Alger Has Nothing to Conceal From Public.

No Appointments Were Made on Political Grounds.

More Patriotic Men Never Served Their Country.

Charges of Wrongful Use of Money Are Declared to Be False.

Out of Hundreds of Millions Expended Not a Dollar Was Misappropriated.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Secretary Alger's last day in office was a busy one, but he looked and acted more cheerful than in many months. He prepared a statement which was given out last evening, answering some of the criticisms which have been passed upon him of late, especially by the English press, and defending himself, and incidentally the president, against the charge of making appointments to the army on political grounds alone. The statement says:

"I am led to make the following statements on account of many criticisms which have been made by the public press, and especially on account of a recent article which appeared in the London Times containing assertions which have no foundation in truth.

"At the commencement of the war with Spain, and for several years prior to that time, the regular army consisted of only 25,000 men, with the minimum number of officers prescribed by law. The situation can be partially appreciated when it is remembered that within 60 days from the declaration of war the strength of the army was increased to 275,000 men, and everything for the equipment of this great force, including clothing, tents, transportation, medical supplies, camps and camp equipage, and all that pertains to equipping an army for service, had to be manufactured, transported and distributed for use.

"From the statement referred to, the public might be led to believe that the volunteer army was officered by men selected by political influence by the secretary of war by special favor and without any regard to fitness for the duties they were to perform. As is well known, the volunteer force, with the exception of three regiments of engineers, three regiments of cavalry and 10 regiments of immune infantry, was made up of regiments from the various states, the officers of which were all appointed exclusively by the governors of the respective states from which the regiments came, and any officer found unfitted for service and discharged was replaced by another in the same manner. The president had no voice or control in the matter.

"The returns of the volunteer army show that in August, 1898, there were 207,244 enlisted men and 8785 officers in those regiments. This, with the regular army recruited up to the war strength, made an aggregate force of about 275,000 officers and men. The volunteer officers appointed by the president numbered, all told, 1032. Of this number 441 were taken from the regular army and 591 from civil life. The scarcity of regimental officers in the regular service, owing to appointments in the volunteers, special recruiting and mustering details, had so reduced their number that to have taken a larger number for service with the volunteers would have seriously impaired the efficiency of the regular regiments.

"For a little over 1000 appointments made by the president, the number of applications was over 25,000, and an application was accompanied by a certificate of his ability, and in most instances of military service, either in the regular army or a state organization, and not infrequently in both. These certificates showed that each one was as well qualified for the position he sought and to which he was appointed as could be possible for men in civil life in this country.

"Of the number appointed there were, for instance, 26 major generals, of whom 19 were taken from the regular army and seven from civil life. Of these seven all but one were graduates of West Point military academy, and all had distinguished themselves in command during the Civil war. Of brigadier generals there were 102 appointed, 66 from the regular army and 36 from civil life. Those from civil life had all seen service during the Civil war or on our western frontier, and all had proven themselves competent to command.

"It has been stated, and repeated many times, that the secretary of war made these appointments, when the truth is that very few were made upon his recommendation, although he caused the entire list with the recommendations to be compiled and placed before the president for his selection. I would be only too glad to have had the honor to have made these appointments. No better, no more loyal or more patriotic set of men as a whole ever served their country, and their appointments were a credit not only to the appointing power, but to the country they served. There were exceptions, but that could not have been foreseen. In every walk of life men are found who cannot carry out successfully the work they have undertaken.

"There were three regiments of cavalry, the officers of which were appointed by the secretary of war. Colonel Leonard Wood, now a brigadier general, and commanding the departments of Santiago and Puerto Principe, was one of these. Colonel Grigsby and Colonel Torrey, both good officers, were the other two. There were three regiments of engineers, the colonels of which were all graduates of the military academy, and not only the officers, but the enlisted men, were selected with a view to their special fitness, and in most instances upon the recommendations of the colonels themselves, and all proved themselves most efficient.

"There were also 10 regiments of immune infantry, of whose colonels eight were graduates of the military academy, who were selected for special fitness to command, and in the short time these regiments were in service developed remarkable proficiency.

"Criticisms as to the amounts and methods of expenditures which could imply the wrong or careless use of money were also made by the London Times. This charge is false. So far as the conduct of the service was concerned, no person with any knowledge of the facts can ever charge truthfully, and no one ever show that a dollar was misappropriated, stolen or embezzled, out of the hundreds of millions of dollars that were expended. The records are an open book, and I will be glad to have them rigidly examined and ask my successor to open those accounts to the country whenever properly called for, in order that the entire truth may be known."

On the Diamond.

Louisville, Aug. 1.—The Giants played poor ball and the Colonels had easy sailing. Doyle talked too much and loudly to Umpire Smith and was removed from the game.

AN INDIAN'S REVENGE.

Killed Young Woman to Whom His Attentions Had Become Obnoxious.

The Murderer Then Destroys Buildings and Contents.

May Have Committed Suicide, but Police Think He Is Hiding In Woods.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 1.—Miss Edith Morell of South Amherst, aged 17 years, was shot last evening by an Indian named Eugene Pakahpuer, who then fired the farm buildings. Miss Morell is dead. She had rejected Pakahpuer's attentions, and this undoubtedly caused jealousy which led to the murder.

It would seem from statements made by friends of the family that the Indian and the girl had been quite friendly, the former taking the latter to parties and on drives. Of late, it was noticed that Miss Morell had repelled Pakahpuer's attentions, because she had said they were obnoxious. The Indian became so jealous that his behavior around the farm was very disagreeable, and yesterday it was found necessary to pay him off and discharge him.

During the afternoon the Indian visited Amherst and bought a 32-calibre revolver in a local hardware store. He returned immediately to South Amherst, and while on the way practiced with the weapon. He was seen by John Chapman, as he was practicing, and Chapman asked the Indian what he was shooting. The latter replied "woodchucks." A little later another neighbor, Henry C. Dickinson, saw the Indian, and the latter said "good-bye, I may not see you again." Mr. Dickinson asked him where he was going, and the Indian replied, "Not very far." This was about 15 minutes before the shooting.

It is evident that Pakahpuer went into the cellar of the Morell house and saw Edith at the refrigerator. It is not known what was said between them, but the Indian finally discharged the revolver twice, one bullet going through the girl's neck and the other into the brain. The Indian then went upstairs and told Mrs. Morell that he had shot Edith, and he was going to set the buildings on fire, and then shoot himself. He went into the barn, and a few minutes later flames broke out there, and the fire which followed destroyed the house, barn and outbuildings.

After the Indian informed Mrs. Morell of what he had done, she went downstairs and found Edith on the floor. In her fright she ran to a neighbor's house and got the assistance of two men, who removed the girl to a nearby building, where she breathed her last in a few minutes.

Up to a late hour last night no trace had been found of the Indian, and yet the police do not think he killed himself in the burning building. They have an idea that he is hiding in the woods. A search will be made on the site of the buildings, to determine if the Indian carried out his threat.

The loss by fire was $6000, which included 12 cows, two horses, several calves, and all the contents of the barn. Most of the furniture in the house was saved by neighbors.

Miss Morell is well spoken of by all the people in South Amherst who knew her. She belonged to the junior class in the high school, and was an active member of the Christian Endeavor society connected with the local church.

Not much is known of the murderer, except that after he graduated from the Indian school he went to Conway, Mass., where he worked for several years, coming here about a year ago.

DIRECTED BY DIVINE POWER.

Senator Frye Says We Must Not Relinquish Possession of the Philippines.

Rangeley, Me., Aug. 1.—The dedication of the Casino building last night was made the occasion of an address on the Philippines by United States Senator Frye. The strong expansion sentiment expressed found much favor with the large audience. Mr. Frye reviewed the work of the Paris peace commission, of which he was a member, and gave humanitarian and commercial reasons why that commission demanded the entire archipelago. He said:

"We could not demand simply a naval station, because it would have to be made a Gibraltar. If Luzon only were demanded, the other islands would be desirous for annexation, and war would continue between the Filipinos and the Spaniards." He showed that if we relinquished the islands, other nations would soon have possession of them and the commerce of the east.

"Now we have shown our power and our voice will be heard. We paid $20,000,000 because we could not offer to do otherwise. We now realize our power and we do not intend to steal posessions. We have gained a foreign market. The Lord directed Dewey's guns. He intended that our civilization should be carried to the east. God opened the door, pushed us through, and shut the door. We must stay and do our duty like men. Our indecision and delay over taking the islands gave Aguinaldo a chance to think they would be given over to Spain again, and so he began to think he would rule the archipelago, and so use his forces for himself."

Decision Failed to Please.

New York, Aug. 1.—Matty Matthews of New York defeated Eddie Connolly of St. John in a 25-round bout before the Coney Island Sporting club last night. They met at 138 pounds, and at the end of the mill Referee Edwards decided that Matthews had won. This ruling was not well received by many of the spectators, who hissed and yelled at the referee.

Good Afternoon.

If any criminal ever deserved lynching it is the educated Indian at South Amherst, who deliberately shot the daughter of a farmer who had employed him, and then set fire to the house and barn, causing their destruction. Undoubtedly the law will take its course, however, if the fellow is arrested, but justice should be speedy.

It is undoubtedly a fact that much of the criticism of Secretary Alger was severe and unwarranted, and his statement to the public is honest and clean. The war was a success and Secretary Alger is entitled to considerable praise. While there were short-comings, they were to be expected when the country went to war so ill prepared. Perhaps no one would have paid the bill better than Secretary Alger.

Mr. Whiting of Wollaston has been complimented as the judge for the defender of the Q. Y. C. cup, but he is equally strong in an aggressive contest. He has been heard from before on the Wollaston fence, but when he does not reach the mark on one tack he takes another, and proposes to crowd on the sails until the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. see that it is unwise to longer antagonize Wollaston people. Mr. Whiting's latest move is a shrewd one, and the action of the Mayor upon his petition will be awaited with interest.

Many have had business with the late Judge White, who for forty years has held probate court in Norfolk county. One session a month was in Quincy, his native town. All have found him exceedingly well versed in laws relative to settlement of estates, either upon death or in insolvency, and were sure to receive impartial treatment and justice. The widow and orphans have found him a friend and protector. It is also pleasing to note that he always retained an interest in Quincy.

Drift of Opinion.

☞It is not so much the gold on the Yukon that arouses the Canadian desire to grab land over her boundary as it is to secure ports of outlet for the northwest territory. The United States holds Alaska by treaty from Russia, and is it supposable that Russia agreed with Great Britain in 1825 to an absurd boundary between Alaska and British America which practically gave to the English every possible advantage on Russia's coast line? The Canadians would like to have us think so, but they will not be gratified.—Lynn Item.

☞One of the most conspicuous evidences of "Yankee rush," is the running of mill night and day when orders cannot be filled by working regular hours. While there may be instances when extra work is necessary, the continuous operation of machinery soon overloads the market, with the result that a large stock of goods is accumulated and the conditions of the market are such that the buyer can dictate to the manufacturer. Then again the difficulty of controlling night works, the lower quality and quantity of work, the wear on machinery and many other disadvantages of night work, make it questionable whether it is finally profitable to the manufacturer.—Wade's Fibre and Fabric.

But One Case Reported to the Police.

The gang of pickpockets that have been working Boston and the larger cities and pleasure resorts about Boston for several weeks past came to Quincy last Saturday night to work the crowd that gathered in City Square to hear the band concert.

As far as can be learned, there were four in the gang that came to Quincy. Three of the men got away, but by prompt action of John F. Piravano, Robert Smith and Albert Cappacioli, one of the gang, who gave the name of Frank Hood was landed in jail.

Cappacioli got on to the gang early in the evening as he saw them going through people's pockets. Realizing that he could do nothing alone he called his friend Piravano and as they turned they saw the four surround Robert Smith. They also saw Hood pick Smith's pocket. They lost no time in notifying Smith, asking if he had lost his pocketbook?

Mr. Smith placed his hand to his inside vest pocket and immediately discovered that a pocketbook containing $39 was missing.

But by this time the four men had made a run for the Houghs Neck car which they boarded. Smith, Piravano and Cappacioli made a rush for the car and grabbed Hood, whom they held until Officer Murray was notified when Hood was turned over to him.

When Smith grabbed him on the car, Hood said, "I am a gentleman. If you do not let go I will give you a smash in the mouth."

Finding, when Officer Murray arrived that he was cornered, Hood held up the pocketbook which he pretended to have taken from Smith's pocket at the time, and said: Here is your pocketbook! You have not lost it!

When searched at the police station two pair of ladies' stockings were found, and several newspaper clippings of picnics, etc. The stockings Hood claimed belonged to his sister. He also claimed his home was on Church street, Boston.

Monday Hood was photographed and later in the day received a call from a young lady. She claimed that she was his sweetheart and had just come on from New York. Hood however said later it was his sister.

Hood also at different times said he belonged in Weymouth and that day Saturday had been in Braintree and at Houghs Neck.

It is evident that the gang had been at work some time before they were discovered picking Smith's pocket, and there is not much doubt but what a number were relieved of their pocketbooks by the light fingered gentry.

The police have had rumors of several, but only one case has been reported officially to them, that of Mrs. Edward Carron, who lost her pocketbook containing $20.

If the story of Hood can be believed, the gang had probably been at work that same day at Weymouth, Braintree and Houghs Neck and doubtless there were people in each of these places who found themselves minus their pocketbooks, but do not know how, when or where they lost them. These may be heard from later.

There can not be much doubt but what the gang were professionals in the business, as in the Smith case, the pocketbook taken from him was in a pocket on the inside of his vest and he felt nothing or knew nothing until warned by his friend. When he placed his hand where the pocketbook should have been, he found it gone.

☞The principal reason why country merchants fail to advertise profitably is that in their advertisements they do not talk specifically about the article they want to sell nor do they give prices. They must learn the Wanamaker system. If the reader is at all interested in an article he wants to know its good points. If these are favorable, he wants to know the price. If this is satisfactory, he becomes a buyer, and the advertisement has served both seller and buyer. If no misrepresentation has been made, the sale of this article may have created a steady customer, the profit on whose trade may become large enough to pay for the advertising necessary to secure one hundred more customers like him.—Making a country Newspaper.

Valuable Reference Book.

Although the Massachusetts Year Book of last year seemed complete, Volume 5 for 1899 has adopted new features and doubled its pages. It has a very complete list of all the business houses of the State this year, thus combining 353 directories in one. All the most valuable features of the old book have been retained, including United States officers, State departments county officers, sittings of all the courts, city and town registers, etc. In the table of aggregates there appears the area of each town, the population, polls, voters, valuation, tax rate and vote on license. We find the Massachusetts Year Book exceedingly valuable as a reference book.

WOLLASTON FENCE.

Still as Obnoxious as When First Built.

New Act of Legislature May Reach It.

Mayor Keith Petitioned to Take Action Against.

It seems apparent that a new phase has been put on the Wollaston fence question by the passage of the following act (chap.—326) by the Legislature at its last session. Nobody seems to know just what was aimed at when this act was introduced and passed. Possibly someone had the fence in mind when it was introduced. At any rate it will furnish the New Haven road with considerable food for reflection. It reads as follows:

Chap. 326., An act relative to unauthorize structures in a city or town. Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Section 1. The supreme judicial court, or any justice thereof, shall have jurisdiction in equity to restrain the illegal placing, maintenance or use of any building, structure or other thing, and may on the petition of any city or town, by its attorney, restrain any such placing, maintenance or use of a building structure or other thing in such city or town, and may require its removal by the owner, and may authorize the city or town in default of such removal by the owner to remove at the expense of the owner any such building, structure or other thing, whether heretofore or hereafter so placed, maintained or used.

Section 2. A defendant in any petition aforesaid, who relies for his justification upon any license or authority to place, maintain or use any such building, structure or other thing complained of in such petition shall prove the same, and until such proof the presumption shall be that he is not so licensed or authorized.

Section 3. This act shall take effect on its passage.

The following correspondence relative to the above is self explanatory:—

Wollaston, July 21, 1899.

Francis L. Hayes, Esq.,

My dear sir:—Do you not think that Charter 32 of the Acts of 1899 would apply to "the Wollaston fence?"

Respectfully,
J. S. Whiting.

Boston, July 22, 1899.

My dear Mr. Whiting:—I do think that Chapter 32 of the Acts of 1899 applies to "the fence," and that under its provisions the legality of its maintenence may be determined.

Yours very truly,
F. L. Hayes.

Wollaston, July 24, 1899.

Hon. Harrison A. Keith, Mayor of Quincy.

My dear Sir:—As a resident of Wollaston, and a citizen of Quincy, I respectfully petition you that action be taken against the N. Y., N. H., & H. R. R., under the provisions of Chap. 326 of the Act of 1899, to compel said corporation to remove the fence at the Wollaston station, commonly known as "the Wollaston fence." I enclose a letter on the subject which I have received from Francis L. Hayes, Esq., in response to a request for his opinion on the act in relation to the fence.

Respectfully yours,
James S. Whiting.

Sunday Golf.

The Rev. Arthur L. Bumpus of the Church of the Ascension' the son of Judge Bumpus of this city, says he has found golf an excellent change from study. Regarding playing on Sunday, he says: "I think it is pretty well established that each man will spend that day as he thinks best. Whether what he thinks best is the best is another question. I confess that I cannot see the harm in two people going out into the fields and playing a quiet little game of golf so long as they do not disturb anyone else. Is it any worse than bicycle riding? Just as soon as Sunday golf matches begin, though, then it is time to stop it, just as we do base ball. The only danger is of carrying such sports so far that Sunday will be lost altogether in time and that question must be left to each player.

Shoe Store Damaged.

The alarm from Box 43 at 12.40 this morning called the department to a stubborn fire in the shoe store of Patrick Kane on Copeland street, near the corner of Common. The building is a small one-story affair and had a miscellaneous stock of boots and shoes. The fire was discovered by Mrs. Fitzgerald, who lives in the rear of the store. She promptly gave the alarm. When the department arrived, the building was a roaring mass of flames. Several well directed streams, however, soon had the fire under control, but not before the building and contents had been damaged to an extent of $600. The building is badly gutted and the stock of goods practically ruined. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Matricide Case.

The continued case of John and Joseph Seery, charged with the murder of Mrs. Ellen Seery, their mother, at East Dedham, July 2, were called for trial in the district court of Northern Norfolk before Judge Grover Monday.

The prisoners appeared to be undisturbed by the proceedings. They were represented by B. H. Greenhood and E. C. Jenny, while the government was represented by Asst. Dist. Atty. Shultz.

Dr. J. W. Pratt, assistant medical examiner for Norfolk county, who conducted the autopsy over the body of Mrs. Seery, testified that the body was partly undressed, lying on the bed. An empty bottle, marked whiskey, was underneath the bed. Some sudden shock had affected the heart, which was weak, and had caused death.

Upon being cross-examined, witness said two men were in the house when he arrived, but he could not say that they were the defendants. He said he found no bloody finger marks on the body and noticed no smell of liquor about the house whatever, nor around the body of Mrs. Seery.

The discoveries made in the course of the autopsy were minutely taken up, and witness said excitement might have caused the shock which resulted in death. Dr. Pratt said that Mrs. Seery must have been dead at least two hours before his arrival there.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the *U. Both Sides Stand Firm.

Cleveland, Aug. 1.—Whether the boycott upon the Big Consolidated Street Railway company is having any effect or not, the company shows no indication of a desire to change its policy with respect to the strike. A special meeting of the directors of the company was held yesterday. At its conclusion President Everet said: "We are going ahead as we have been going. We are hiring new men all the time and we now have nearly all we want. Some of the new men are being discharged when found to be not the men we want and others are put in their places. We are satisfied with the situation. The board of directors has been a unit from the beginning, and it is now unanimous in favor of the policy being pursued." The leaders of the strikers profess to be very much encouraged by the working of the boycott, and they say they must surely win.

A Sensational Discovery.

New York, Aug. 1.—The Press says: It is now believed that Valentine, who wrecked the Middlesex County bank at Perth Amboy, took $25,000 of the funds of the savings bank of which he was treasurer. The depositors of this bank had been told that their funds were intact, or had not been pilfered to any appreciable extent. A bank examiner, however, found that the totals in the book of deposits did not agree with the entries. They showed a deficit of $25,000. The totals were not in Valentine's handwriting. This showed either collusion, or an attempt at forgery. The deposit book, however, came directly under Valentine's supervision.

Constance Wins Second Race.

Dorval, Que., Aug. 1.—The second race for the Seawanhaka cup was won by the American boat Constance by 55 seconds. This makes two wins for Constance out of five races, against Glencairn's nothing, and as the next course will be to windward and return Constance should have a good show. She certainly showed marvelous windward work in the first two rounds of the triangular course yesterday. Constance pointed much higher and stiffer than Glencairn against the wind, while Glencairn made gains before the wind.

Run on Bank Causes Suspension.

Montreal, Aug. 1.—The Banque Jacques Cartier suspended payment this morning. There was a run on the bank yesterday morning, caused by depositors having been rendered uneasy through the failure of the Banque Ville Marie last week. The bank's capital is $500,000, and it has a reserve of $250,000, with a note circulation of about $500,000. Besides the head office, the bank has 14 branches.

Revolution Proclamation Coming.

Cape Haytien, Aug. 1.—From a dispatch just received from a reliable sourse, it is learned that a revolution will be proclaimed tomorrow in the republic of Santo Domingo in favor of Don Juan Isidro Jiminez. According to this dispatch the entire western portion of the republic has declared in favor of Jiminez, and he is the only candidate for the presidency throughout the rest of the country.

Absurd Talk of an Alliance.

London, Aug. 1.—The Morning Post's Rome correspondent says: According to news received here, the victory over Spain and the growth of imperialism in the United States has led the large South American republics to talk of an alliance against the United States, and it is alleged that the preliminaries of such an alliance have been concluded Between Brazil and Argentina.

Probably Caught in a Squall.

Salem, Mass., Aug. 1.—Edwin Nicholas Harrje and his 6-year-old son set out on a fishing trip Saturday afternoon in a yawl boat and have not since been heard from. It is believed that the frail craft could not have lived through a squall which followed their departure, and as they had no provisions, there is every indication that they were lost. Harrje has a wife and family here.

SEWER CONNECTIONS

Work Now Under Direction of Sewer Commissioners.

The revised ordinance in relation to house connection with the sewer have received the Mayor's approval, and the work of making connections has been turned over to the Sewer Department. The changes have been made to take advantage of the provisions of Chapter 319 of the Acts of the last session of the Legislature.

This Act provides that any city or town may make an appropriation for connecting estates within its limits with the public sewers and that whenever the Board of Health of the city or town making such appropriation shall order any real estate therein abutting upon a public way in which a public sewer has been laid to be connected with such sewer, or whenever the owner of any such real estate shall make to the board or officer authorized to lay sewers application to connect his estate with a public sewer, such board or officer shall forthwith make such connection and shall assess the expense thereof upon such real estate.

According to the further provisions of the Act assessments levied as above may either be paid at once or may be added with interest to the general tax for the ensuing year, or may upon request be apportioned into from three to five equal parts, one of which parts, together with interest on unpaid balance, shall be added to the general tax of each year until the whole amount has been paid.

The new ordinance does not require any deposit before work is begun, but provides that the plumbing of any building shall not be connected with a particular sewer until the applicant shall file with the Sewerage Commissioners a certificate by the Inspector of plumbing that the said plumbing work is in suitable condition for connection with the public sewer.

Row on Electric.

Merlre E. Flood was arrested at Braintree Monday night, on an electric car, for disturbing the peace. Flood with others boarded the car at Neponset, and were rather boisterous; so much so that the conductor threatened to put him off. When the car reached Braintree, a new crew took the car. As the car moved toward South Braintree, the disturbance continued and a row was soon in progress, during which it is alleged that Flood drew a knife and shook it at the motorman. The car was stopped and Officer Downey was called, who placed him under arrest.

The Magazines.

Peter MacQueen, the staff correspondent of "The National Magazine," gives an account in the August number of his reception on board the flag-ship "Olympia" in Manila Bay, and his talk with the Admiral. Also a delightfully interesting sketch of the Admiral's Vermont home and his early boyhood days. In the way of fiction the issue is a notable one. It might appropriately be called a "yachting number," from the pervading atmosphere of dancing waves and salt sea breezes in the text and drawings. The charming short stories will serve to while away many pleasant, lazy hours on dreamy August afternoons.

GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF
to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally indulged in and almost as universally injurious. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the stomach, ruins the digestion, effects the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

HOUGHS NECK.

The merry party at a Great Hill cottage on Sunday was from Brockton. The Enterprise says, The pretty summer villa at Great Hill, Quincy, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. D. Cary Keith, was the scene of a very pleasant gathering of young people Sunday, who became guests of Mr. and Mrs. Keith in response to an invitation given by Mr. Keith. The party was composed entirely of the young ladies employed at the office of George E. Keith & Co. The coterie went down in the morning and remained the entire day, returning via the trolley line. Mr. M. M. Rackliffe acted as escort. During the stay at the shore the young people had a delightful time, and enjoyed a fine shore dinner which had been prepared in honor of their visit. Mr. and Mrs. Keith proved charming hosts, and the young ladies are enthusiastic in their praise of the hospitality accorded them. Included in the party were Misses Louise Leonard, Susie Tenney, Katherine Sweeney, Bessie Strachan, Mabel Wilkins, Mabel G. Stinchfield, Ruth Lothrop and Gertrude Horton.

The Shellton.

Landlord Remick of the Shellton is pleased at the surprise of everyone on their first visit to his new seaside hotel at Adams Shore. Many Quincy people have remark that they did not know there was such a pretty spot on the Quincy shore. The Shellton is roomy, airy, new and bright. Broad verandas surround the house and the harbor view is excellent. It is in the evening that the hotel is the most attractive, as the large reception room and dining room which occupy practically all of the first floor are brilliantly lighted. Colored help is employed and the dinners alone would make the Shellton a success. Dances and card parties are held, and everybody is pleased with the new resort.

Cat Boat Wrecked.

The Post reports that President Nicholas Leahy and members of the Lewis Social and Outing club of the North End, Boston, who returned late Sunday evening from a regular outing about the harbor in steam launch Farragut, brought two women and two infants who had been rescued from a large catboat from Quincy, which had gone ashore on the outer ledge of rocks off Peddock's Island, where she pounded heavily, sprung a leak and filled before the party of five had been taken off. Two of the members had to go overboard to effect the rescue. The man in charge of the yacht, husband of one of the women remained on the island to look after the yacht.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.

Governor Candler Issues an Urgent Appeal For Enforcement of the Laws.

Atlanta, Aug. 1.—Governor Candler has issued an appeal to the people of Georgia to join hands and put an end to mob violence in the state. The governor believes that the only way to restore a condition of peace and tranquility, and to bring an end to the lawlessness that has been manifested in different parts of the state, is for the people to uphold the courts, and aid them in bringing to speedy justice criminals of all kinds.

The governor tells of the reproach heaped upon the state by the repeated outbreaks, and in part says:

"The purity of the fair mothers of Georgia must and shall be preserved, and at the same time the lives and liberties of all law-abiding negroes in Georgia must and shall be protected. Arson and burglary and assassination and robbery and rape must stop, and at the same time lynch law must stop. The good of both races and the fair name of the state demand this.

"The ordinary processes of the law are amply sufficient to punish all criminals. The mob often makes mistakes and the innocent are made to suffer with the guilty. We must away with the mob. We must re-enthrone the law.

"Lynch law does not stop arson, or murder, nor robbery, nor rape. This requires the strong power of the statute law, sustained by a healthy and vigorous public sentiment. I would appeal to all officers of the state to remember that it is their duty to apprehend and bring to justice all who violate the law.

"I would appeal especially to the bar to aid the courts and juries in bringing accused parties to speedy trial. I would invoke the active, earnest cooperation of all good men, white and black, with the officers of the law in their efforts to prevent crime and suppress mob violence and bring criminals to justice."

DeClam Acted Under Orders.

Paris, Aug. 1.—Le Soir announces that Colonel De Clam was liberated yesterday. He immediately drove to his home and retired to bed, alleging excessive fatigue. He declined to see anybody. Nothing is yet known of the actual grounds of the acquittal, but it is reported that De Clam was exonerated because it was proved that he acted under direct orders from Generals Gonse and De Boisedeffre, against whom severe disciplinary measures are imminent. If this is confirmed it will prove that the efforts of the general staff to make Dupaty De Clam a scapegoat have failed.

FRIENDLY ADVICE.

The Herald and the Quincy Yachtsmen—Some Facts.

Editors of the Ledger:

Speaking about the Herald yachting reporter's "friendly advice" to the Judge of the cup races, reminds the writer of that person's attempts before this one to belittle the Quinye Yacht club. One was that of the case of the "Privateer," which was purchased this spring by Mr. A.H. Doble and enrolled in the club. Last year the boat won the championship in her class in the Association and was sailed largely by the aforesaid reporter. Then her performances were landed to the skys in the columns of the Herald. After Mr. Doble began to race her this season with a new skipper, the Herald began to throw out innunedoes as to the right of the Privateer to sail in the 21-foot class and soon through various insinuations through the columns of that paper, had Mr. Doble placed on the defensive with a hot fight on his hands with the Association officers. Something like a dozen letters passed back and forth between both parties with the expected result, that Mr. Doble and the Privateer came off victorious. Our readers who peruse the Herald accounts of the association races in which the Privateer takes part, will notice that this near she does not "romp on before the fleet," etc., but is referred to, if at all, in anything but complimentary terms.

A year ago when the declaration of trust of the challenge cup was issued the Herald of March 20, 1898, referred to the executive committee of the club as "it is quite evident from the wording of that document that those who are responsible for it knew but little of American Yachting history," etc., and otherwise so grossly misrepresented the instrument that the yachting editor of Forest and Stream felt called upon to say in an editorial that "the official publication of the declaration of trust of the Quincy Yacht club what we supposed from the first was the case, that the Boston Herald, for ends of its own, has deliberately misstated the facts concerning the origin and aims of this cup.

Contrary to the Herald's direct statement at various times through the winter it is not an international cup, and establishing it the Quincy club had no intention of superceding the Seawahaha cup. In its efforts to discredit the latter club, the Herald has placed the former in a very false position."

It will thus be seen that the Herald's Yachting columns are not so highly prized as they might be, if they were edited by fair and unprejudiced reporters.

The groundless slurs on the management of the cup races were found only in the columns of the Herald, and in no other paper, although there were a dozen reporters present.

The next time that the Herald sends a reporter to the Quincy yacht club it would be more acceptable if he would be a reporter rather than one who poses as an "expert" critic or censor. OBSERVER.

AMPLE PRECAUTIONS

Taken to Prevent the Spread of Yellow Fever From Soldiers' Home.

Official Report of Its Origin and Present conditions.

Facts Which Make It Seem Possible to Confine It to the Hampton Institution.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Following is the text of an order from Adjutant General Corbin, directing the removal of the garrison at Fort Monroe:

"Commanding General, Department of the East, Governor's Island, N. Y.

"The presence of yellow fever, having been officially reported at the soldiers' home at Hampton, Va., the secretary of war directs that you give immediate orders for the movement of the garrison at Fort Monroe to some place of safety somewhere on the northern coast to be selected by you. Two commissioned officers and not less than 20 men will be left in charge of the post. If there are immunes in the command they will be given preference. Acknowledge receipt and report action taken."

Some data furnished by the surgeon general shows the prompt manner in which the authorities have taken the matter in hand. Late Saturday night Dr. Wyman received a telegram from Surgeon Vickery at the home, asking for an expert. Dr. Wasdin was ordered there from Norfolk at once, and Sunday night a dispatch came from him announcing the disease was genuine yellow fever. Surgeon White was sent from Washington to take charge of marine hospital affairs. He has had a large experience in yellow fever epidemics.

After a cordon had been established around the soldiers' home, neighboring cities were warned and advised to hunt for any inmates of the home who might be visiting, and keep them under close observation. Dispatches to this effect were sent Sunday to Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News and Richmond, and the health officer at Washington was notified. In Norfolk a house-to-house inspection is being made. Dr. Farquhar at Portsmouth was appointed to consult the health authorities there and at the adjoining town of Berkely, and to aid in locating any refugees.

The last official advices show a total of 37 cases and seven deaths from yellow fever at the soldiers' home at Hampton. One new case occurred at the home yesterday. Thus far the disease has been confined to the home, but all surrounding towns are excited, and a vigorous quarantine is being maintained.

Dr. Wasdin of the marine hospital service is in charge of affairs at Hampton, and is working in co-operation with the local boards of health. He has strengthened the cordon about the town of Phoebus, which he reports is in very bad sanitary condition. The fact that only one new case appeared yesterday is encouraging to the officials here, who are taking every measure to prevent a spread of the disease. Already a number of inquiries have been received by Dr. Wyman from quarantine officers throughout the United States asking whether they shall impose a maritime quarantine against Norfolk. He has replied that there appears to be no necessity for such restriction in the case of either Norfolk or Newport News.

Dr. Wasdin's official report to Dr. Wyman of his examination of existing conditions at the soldiers' home notes the fact that the doctor has seen all the cases of suspected disease at the home. He sums up the history of the contagion as follows:

"Early in July an old soldier entered the home for a short rest and soon afterward appeared at the dispensary, where he informed the physician in charge that he was but recently from Santiago via a transport to a northern port; thence he started for Manila via San Francisco; beat his way to the home on a freight train and entered with his baggage. He complained of dumb chills and fever and was prescribed for. He mingled freely with the inmates of the home, and a short time ago disappeared. From this as a possible cause, the outbreak is as follows:

"Preceding Friday, the 21st, there had been noticed nothing of a suspicious nature. The weekly death rate was as usual. But on the 21st and 22nd there became ill during the night with sharp chill, high fever, some eight or 10 inmates, men of usually good health. These seizures, although noted as peculiar, had occasioned no alarm until about the 27th, when a death occurred, the man becoming distinctly yellow some time prior to death. On about the same day another one died without having attracted particular attention; he also turned quite yellow. Autopsies were held on both by a resident pathologist. It was then, or a little later, that the telegram was sent you asking for an expert. I found there was 3500 inmates, and that 35 had been taken ill since the 21st."

Dr. Wasdin says he withheld a positive diagnosis in his first communication because of the assertion of Surgeon Vickery at the home that there had been no communication of the inmates with any Cuban soldiers returned since last May or early in June.

With the discovery of the probable origin of the infection and the two autopsies there can be no doubt, he says, about the disease being yellow fever, and continues:

"I have advised Major Vickery to empty the dormitories infected at once, putting the men preferably in tents. The grounds are closed. There has been a very free intercommunication between the inmates and people of Phoebus, a public house near the grounds having been freely visited until Monday night. I have suggested to Dr. Pettus to meet one or more of the local boards of Phoebus and, informing them of the state of affairs, ask their co-operation in watching the village. These inmates, as I understand it, do not mingle much with people outside of the village. From this fact it would seem possible to confine it in the home."

In the course of a statement given out by Frederick W. Peabody, Mrs. Woodbury's attorney, he says the suit is based upon the utterances of Mrs. Eddy at the recent annual meeting of the Christian Scientists.

Boston Messenger Boys' Strike.

Boston, Aug. 1.—The messenger boys of the Boston District Messenger company, to the number of 300, went on a strike yesterday for an increase of 1 cent a message. The boys spent the day in the neighborhood of the central office of the company, and, while there was considerable turmoil, no real violence resulted, except in one case, when a police inspector, who was guarding a new messenger, waw roughly handled. The youngsters succeeded in holding up a number of non-union boys, and preventing them from delivering their messages until the police arrived, and an officer was detailed for each boy.

Belfast Shoemakers on Strike.

Belfast, Me., Aug. 1.—The first unanimous strike to occur in this city took place yesterday, when 300 employes of the shoe manufacturing firm of Critchett, Sibley & Co. struck. The strike is the outcome of a cut in wages which was announced on Saturday. The cut will affect day laborers at the rate of 10 percent and piece workers accordingly. The operators refuse to return to the factory unless the former wages are paid. The firm has large orders on hand and has been rushed with work. A member of the firm states that the cut was due to competition and could not be avoided.

A $200,000 Fire at Holyoke.

Holyoke, Mass., Aug. 1.—A general alarm called the entire fire department of the city to a fire in the Whiting building late last night. The firemen managed to get the flames under control in about two hours. The building was badly gutted and the loss is estimated to be in the vicinity of $200,000. The fire started in the upper story of the building, which was occupied by the Parsons & Greene company, manufacturing stationers. Their loss will be almost total. Several other occupants of the building were damaged by smoke and water.

Policeman Robbed a Corpse.

New York, Aug. 1.—Thomas F. O'Brien, the policeman who stole a gold watch and chain and two charms from the dead body of Captain B. Rhoads of the Seventh regiment, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Blanchard. O'Brien was indicted for grand larceny in the first degree, but was allowed to plead guilty to grand larceny in the second degree. He was remanded for sentence. He cannot get more than five years under this plea. Captain Rhoads was struck and killed by an electric car on the evening of June 10. While transferring the body to the hospital in an ambulance O'Brien robbed it.

Big Seizure by Canadian Officials.

North Sydney, C. B., Aug 1.—The steamer Ailsa Craig, from Rangoon, India, with a cargo of rice for Montreal, arrived here for bunker coal yesterday, and was seized by the customs officials for having on board a large quantity of cigars. The steamer, when at this port two years ago, was reported to have disposed of contraband cigars here in large numbers, and after her departure the officials got wind of it, so they have been on the lookout for the ship ever since.

Sun rises—4:37; sets, 7:03.

It has grown warmer from the middle and southern Rocky mountain region to the middle and southern Mississippi river and has remained nearly stationary elsewhere. Showers may be expected on the south Atlantic coast and generally fair weather elsewhere. High temperature will prevail for two or three days from the Mississippi valley to the Atlantic coast. PURE AND SAFE

"Will it fade?" is a woman's first question when buying wash fabrics. The test is in the washing. Cheap common soaps may do more damage than a year's wear. Pure Soap—will do as much to preserve them as a year's care. There is no resin in Fairy Soap to gum the clothes, no alkali to rot the threads and fade the colors—absolutely no impurity of any kind to injure even the most delicate fabric. It is the best floating White Soap made.

Three convenient sizes for the toilet, bath and laundry.

MINISTERS IN A ROW.

Pandemonium Reigned at a Meeting of Colored People at Boston.

Became So Hot Police Were Finally Called Upon.

Opponents and Supporters of Miss Jewett Tangled Over the Baker Family.

Boston, Aug. 2.—In consequence of the meeting of colored people held at St. Paul's church Monday night, at which the majority voted that if anyone was sent to bring the Baker family north it should be Miss Lillian Clayton Jewett (white), the authoress, a stormy meeting was held last night by the opposition faction in the Revere Street church (colored), at which Mrs. Ruffin, the leader against Miss Jewett, presided. In her opening speech, Mrs. Ruffin referred to the things the opposition party had against the character of Miss Jewett.

MRS. JOSEPHINE RUFFIN.

Miss Jewitt was not there, but she had many sympathizers, and they helped to add excitement to the affair by calling each other hard names, and saying things that were not in the book of etiquette. Much bitter feeling cropped out, and in the speeches which were made, innuendoes were thrown out that it was a fight of ministers rather than a desire to bring the Bakers to Boston.

Such scenes as were enacted last night have rarely been witnessed at a public meeting. I. B. Barnet said that upon investigation he had found that Miss Jewett had not lived in the aristocratic section of the city, as claimed, but in the lodging-house district. Mr. Barnet, continuing, said that the colored people of Boston needed to look out for their ministers, who were misguiding them. He referred slightingly to Rev. Mr. Farris of St. Paul's church for the alleged favoritism he had shown toward Miss Jewitt.

MISS LILLIAN CLAYTON JEWETT.

A half dozen men rushed up to Barnet, shaking their fists in his face, while several women threatened to pull his hair and scratch out his eyes if he didn't take back what he said. Pandemontum reigned. Everybody who could shout was shouting, and those who couldn't shout talked and urged on the participants in the dispute.

The robust form of ex-Councillor Allen was seen in the midst of the group at the platform, and he politely invited Mr. Barnet to step outside and he would change his mind if not his physical appearance. Lawyer Walker got mixed up in the melee, too, and he and Allen had some warm words about each other being "no good."

Rev. Mr. Kirke from Malden proved to be a parson who had fighting blood in him, for he volunteered to wipe the floor with Barnet. Rev. P. T. Stanford of the Colored Congregational church of Cambridge, who was one of the promoters of the meeting, sent out for the police, but the two officers who were inside early in the evening went out because of the oppressive heat, and were far away enjoying the breezes of the hill.

Finally the two policemen returned, reinforced by Sergeant Lowery and some other officers. The sergeant refused to club the crowd into submission, because, he said, he had no right to, not having witnessed any violation of the law. For refusing to do so, the sergeant was threatened with a police board hearing, and all the misery and woe which the law could invoke.

After peace was restored more speeches were made, the tenor of all of which were that it was not advisable at present to bring the Baker family north.

Mr. Barnet was prevailed upon to apologize for his sweeping denunciation of the colored clergy, and he was followed by Rev. Mr. Kirke (colored) of Malden, who formally accepted the apology on his own behalf and added that possibly Miss Jewett could be accepted as the saviour of the colored race.

Rev. Mr. Farris was asked to speak, but he refused.

The public meeting then adjourned, and the Woman's Era club and the committee having the meeting in charge were asked to remain. They accepted resolutions to this effect:

"That while under proper conditions it might be all right to bring the Baker family north in order to arouse public sentiment against lynching, we are forced to warn our friends that unless managed with due regard to moral and religious sentiment of this community, the harm done would be irreparable. We further advise that all contributions be used directly for Mrs. Baker and family."

Little Ones Crushed by Falling Rock.

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 2.—While at play under a ledge of rocks in the outskirts of the city, one child was killed, another fatally hurt, and a third seriously injured, by falling rock. Four other little companions escaped without a scratch. The three victims were the children of George Hill. Tessie was crushed beyond recognition; Sarah, aged 4, had an arm and a leg torn off, and she died while being removed to a hospital. George, aged 7, had a leg crushed, and his recovery is doubtful. Five tons of rock fell, and the boulder which was responsible weighed fully a ton.

Old Veterans Meet.

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 2.—The Eighth Regiment association of Massachusetts held its 31st annual reunion here yesterday, about 100 veterans of the Civil war being present. A fish dinner was followed by speeches and the election of the following officers: President, J. D. Alley, Lynn; vice presidents, W. R. Upton, Denver; D. W. Low, Gloucester, and H. H. Berry, Waltham; paymaster, George O. Stevens, Salem; surgeon, H. R. Lovett, Beverly; chaplain, H. H. Goodrich, Lynn; adjutant, G. A. Foxcroft, Boston; quartermaster, J. F. Kimball, Lynn.

An Open Market Hereafter.

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 2.—The two-years' agreement, which has existed between the vessel owners and the Gloucester Fresh Fish company, is ended. According to this agreement the vessel owners were obliged to sell their entire catch to this company. It amounted to 60,000,000 pounds a year. The Fresh Fish company voted last night not to continue the agreement with the vessel owners. The vessel owners will now put their fares on the open market, and sell to the highest bidder.

Strikers' Places Filled.

Providence, Aug. 2.—The striking caulkers in the employ of the Providence Dry Dock company, who went out on Saturday last, were replaced yesterday by new men, and everything is now going on as usual. There was no disturbance of any kind. The number of new men employed is not known, and the company refused to make it public. The demand made by the striking caulkers was for a nine-hour instead of a 10-hour day.

"PATRIOTIC MOTIVES"

Declared to Have Been the Foundation For Assassination of Heureaux.

The Situation From Revolutionists' Point of View.

New Dominican Cabinet Formed, With Figuereo as President.

New York, Aug. 2.—Adrianno Grullon, the representative in the United States of the Santo Domingo revolutionists, and formerly the business partner of Senor Jiminez, the leader of the insurrection, last night made public a statement which, in part, is as follows:

"The assassination of President Heureaux was not an act of revenge for the murder of Caceres' father, but the signal for the commencement of the uprising against the existing government there.

"Caceres is the cousin of General Horacio Vasquez, and was with him at the time of the shooting. General Vasquez is a member of one of the best families of Moca.

"Neither Mr. Caceres nor General Vasquez can be considered common assassins, as their motives were not personal, but patriotic. They attacked the president in broad daylight in an open space, and not from ambush, although their little party was outnumbered two to one by the president and his bodyguard.

"For 14 years Heureaux has held power by a system of terrorizing; citizens were sent to prison without the slightest process of law and more than 300 were clandestinely shot, without any trial whatever or without even being given a reason for their incarceration.

"There has been no legal election of any kind since 1889, and then Heureaux retained power through a fraudulent count of votes. The opposition appealed to arms, but was defeated.

"The constitution of Santo Domingo provides that no one shall hold office for more than one term in succession, but this the late president overruled. There is no such thing as a free press in that country. The Dominicans resident in New York dare not give information regarding the politics of their country, fearing that their relatives and interests there would suffer.

"During the war between the United States and Spain Heureaux showed his sympathy for Spain in many acts and put every difficulty possible in the way of Americans and Cubans. The Queen of Spain sent him a decoration.

"Mr. Jiminez desires the most friendly relations with the United States, and there is not the slightest fear that the insurrectionists will interfere in any way with the property of foreigners on the island. Mr. Jiminez and General Gomez are warm personal friends.

"As Heureaux was a usurper the vice president is equally so, but bloodshed and insurrection would cease at once if the latter would announce that a legal, public election would take place on Aug. 16, the independence day of the country."

Vice President Wenceslao Figuereo has taken charge of the government of Santo Domingo, as president, and has formed a cabinet as follows:

Minister of interior, F. D. Morales; minister of war and marine, Tilo Palino; minister of foreign affairs, E. Henriquez; minister of finances, J. de J. Alvarez; minister of justice, Sebastian Valverde; minister of agriculture, T. Cordera Bido; minister of posts and telegraphs, James R. Vidal; sub-secretary of justice, Pedro T. Perez; sub-secretary of interior, Braulio Alvarez.

The country is quiet, and no fears of disturbances are entertained.

The latest story of the assassination of President Heureaux agrees with previously published accounts in nearly all particulars. According to advices just at hand, President Heureaux was with the administrator of finances in Moca, when a beggar presented himself and requested a gratuity. The president went to the door of the house, in answer to the appeal of the mendicant, but he had no sooner made his appearance than a shot was fired, wounding him. Despite his wound, General Heureaux started towards the street, firing his revolver as he advanced. Six more shots were fired, all taking effect in the president's body. Death was instantaneous. The assassins escaped, and have not yet been found.

Cabinet Presents Its Resignation.

Brussels, Aug. 2.—The cabinet ministers yesterday decided that, in view of the rejection by the parliamentary committee of 15, of all the government electoral bills which had been referred to it, it was their duty to resign. After the meeting, Premier Van Den Peere boom placed the cabinet's resignation in the hands of the king, who is now conferring with M. De Nayer, the former premier.

Whitman Is Hard to Beat.

Boston, Aug. 2.—The second Longwood cup was played for yesterday by M. D. Whitman, the holder, and Dwight L. Davis, the challenger. Whitman won, Davis making a rather weak battle, comparatively, against the champion. Whitman had the games very nearly his own way in two sets out of three, and the watch and cup went to him.

Telephone Competition.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—The Illinois Telephone Construction company was incorporated in Springfield yesterday, with a capital stock of $500,000. Plans are on foot for the construction of a new system under the grant recently given by the Chicago city council. An active war against the Bell company is to be begun.

Good Afternoon.

Justice was swift to the Indian who committed murder and arson at South Amherst, and it is well the fellow has departed this life. His death, if roasted alive, was as much a punishment as a hanging. Yet what a blow to the bereaved farmer's wife, the day's work of this half civilized savage, and to the cause of education of the Indians.

The views of Rev. Arthur L. Bumpus on Sunday golf are somewhat surprising. If he "cannot see the harm of two people going out in the field and playing a "quiet little game of golf," what would be the objection to two persons playing tennis, croquet, cards or any of the indoor games. It will be some time before New Englanders endorse any "quiet little game" on Sunday.

It is evident that the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company propose to stop the petty thieving that has been going on at various points along its lines for some time. For the recent burglary at the River Point freight house on the Stonington division, the three young men, Charles Stone, Dyer Russel and Levy Jordan were convicted and sentenced to three years in the reform school.

The driver of the water cart in Quincy centre does not seem to have much knowledge or sense. He sprinkles the granite crossings so that the water stands in puddles for several hours after he has been round, when a few feet away the ground is so dry that the dust is ready to fly. We thought he would learn better after a few weeks, but he does not improve and the best thing that can be done is to give him his discharge.

If the Sewer Commissioners will scale down the cost of sewer connections, they will at the outset of their control, meet with approbation from house owners. Under the new system which does not require advance deposits or even thirty day payment, there should be a boom in number of connections. It is early yet for the Board of Health to take arbitrary action, but there are several vaults and cesspools which abut the streets, which are nuisances and as unhealthy as they are unsightly.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Another effort is to be made to fix a constitutional debt limit for Boston. What's the good? It won't stay fixed if consummated. The same old bills will go through the Legislature to negative it, whenever "the gang" has a point to make.—Milford Journal.

☞ Books are kept in the railway stations in Russia in which travelers may enter any complaint they desire to make. If the Russians are as faultfinding as average American travelers, these books must be both bulky and numerous.—Beverly Times.

☞ The railroads north of Boston are beginning to use coke from the works at Everett, which are turning out four hundred tons a day, instead of coal. The engineers like it, and the passengers like it still more, because there are no smoke, no dust, and no cinders from the engine, and the car windows can be kept open to admit the fresh air.—New Bedford Standard.

Judge White.

The following editorial opinion of our friend Judge White is from the Herald: The late George White, who held for many years the office of probate judge in Norfolk county, was a man of many estimable traits of character. He gave in early life promise of a prominent career in politics. He was elected as a young man to the state constitutional convention from Quincy, and was an influential member in that body, where he was the author of the scheme of representation which was embodied in the constitution then agreed upon. He had this distinction among the most eminent collection of men that had assembled in the state in that generation. Judge White was originally a Democrat, and he later joined the Republicans, but he was a thoughtful man, and had always independent tendencies. His appointment as a judge by Gov. Banks took him out of politics, cutting short what might have been distinguished usefulness there. He was always a student of public affairs, and is said to have left a complete diary kept from the time he attained his majority, which should be of rare interest and value.

Cost of Water Works.

Those who think Quincy made a mistake in not fighting the award to the Quincy Water Company for their works when taken by the city, can now see what such a fight has cost Gloucester. The Commissioners appointed by the Supreme Court to fix the value of the plant of the Gloucester Water Supply Company, taken by the city in September, 1895, announced their decision Tuesday, awarding the company $600,000, with interest at 6 per cent. from date of taking. The city claims a reduction of $25,000 from this amount on account of defects in the title to the Lily Pond property and other real estate.

The price is generally considered larger than was expected, as compared with the amount awarded in the Newburyport case, which was decided by the same Commissioners.

Interest and legal expenses will swell the cost at over $700,000.

—The world contains at least four mountains composed of almost solid iron ore. One is the iron mountains of Missouri, another in Mexico another in India and a fourth in that region of Africa explored by Stanley, and there have been reports of such a mountain existing in Siberia.

—In the Baidar valley, near Balaclava in the Crimea, there stands a walnut tree, which must be at least 1000 years old. It yields annually from 80,000 to 100,000 nuts, and is the property of five Tartar families, who share its produce equally.

—The English and Chinese languages are said to be the only two among all those known that class inanimate objects as of the neuter gender.

THANKS.

In severing my connection with the Patriot and Ledger, which takes place today, I desire to extend my thanks to the business men of Quincy for their courteous treatment and for the generous patronage which they have given, through me, to these papers.

JUDGE OF PROBATE.

Two Candidates for the Vacancy.

Ex-Mayor Sears and Judge Flint.

Quincy's Claim for the Position a Strong One.

The death of Hon. George White, the judge of Probate for Norfolk county, leaves a vacancy which must soon be filled by appointment by Gov. Wolcott. It is a very responsible judiciary position, commanding a salary of $2,800 per year. For over forty years it has been held by Judge White with honor and entire satisfaction, and no effort to displace him is recalled during this long term of service.

Now that there is a vacancy, the claim of this end of the county for recognition is asserting itself apparently just. Already, the names of Hon. Russell A. Sears, of Quincy and Hon. James H. Flint of Weymouth, an ex-Senator and an associate judge of the district court, are suggested. Both are able lawyers at the bar, and would doubtless fill the position acceptably.

Lawyer Sears was admitted to the Suffolk bar when but 21 years of age, and has had unusual opportunities for a young man, which he has promptly accepted. He is of good old Bay State stock, his parents being born on Cape Cod. His father, however, died when he was quite young, and his success in life is due to his ability and popularity. At the age of 16 years he entered the law office of his guardian, Hon. Samuel L. Powers, now an eminent Boston lawyer, and for some years has been a member of the firm, with offices in Boston and Quincy.

In 1897 Mr. Sears was elected Mayor of Quincy by a handsome majority, and was an able and popular executive. He is a member of the Granite City club and widely known. Mr. Sears' wife also comes from the Cape and they have three sons and a daughter.

Judge Flint has been frequently honored by the Republican party with office. He has represented the Quincy --Weymouth district in the House of Representatives and with such success that he was elected Senator from the First Norfolk district for two successive years serving in 1897 and 1898. He was born June 25, 1852 in Middleton, Mass., and like many of our successful men grew up on a farm spending his evening hours in study. He attended public and private schools and fitted for Harvard at the Danvers High school and Philips Academy at Andover.

Mr. Flint was principal of the Marblehead High school after being graduated at Harvard, but with a fondness for law he entered Boston University and made an excellent record. He has since been connected with New York and Boston law offices and a member of the Suffolk bar since 1882.

Since 1890, with the exception of the years he served in the Legislature, he has been an associate justice of the East Norfolk district court, and prominent in town affairs in Weymouth where he resides.

The claims of Weymouth for county office seem to have been honored to a much larger degree than Quincy, and the friends of ex-Mayor Sears will make the most of this point. Weymouth now has the clerk of court, the judge of the district court, two of the three associate justices, and a deputy sheriff. Quincy has no important county position, although it is the only city in Norfolk county, has about twice the population, and pays nearly three times the county tax that Weymouth does. All Quincy has is one associate justice of the district court who may serve ten days in a year, and one deputy sheriff.

Dedham has the sheriff, register and assistant register of probate, assistant clerk of courts, county treasurer, register and assistant register of deeds, and two deputy sheriffs; Milton, Medfield and Stoughton, a county commissioner each, while special commisioners come from Canton and Franklin; other deputy sheriffs hail from Brookline, Canton, Cohasset, Franklin, Hyde Park, Needham, Randolph and Wellesley. The new referee of the bankrupty court for the county is a Brookline man and the two senators are from Braintree and Brookline.

☞ Do we not need a stronger centralized federal govenment? Ought not the federal courts to have jurisdiction in murder cases in the states, under certain circumstances? The most effectual way to put a stop to lynching in the south, as well as in other sections, would be to empower federal grand juries to return indictments against lynchers, and federal courts and petit jurors to try them. We need a national homicide law as well as a national marriage and divorce law.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

TO CAMP TOMORROW

Co. K Boys Will Have to Pitch Their Own Tents.

Co K. of Braintree and Quincy will go into camp with the Second Brigade at South Framingham tomorrow. The Transcript says, the soldiers will not find things just as they have been on their arrival in previous years, for only the floors of the tents will be laid in advance of their coming and they will be obliged to pitch their own shelters. This formerly was the custom but it fell into disuse, to be again revived this season. The various batteries will go over the road to Framingham, and most of them will be settled in their camp quarters tonight, ready for work early on Thursday.

There is some complaint because passes issued to friends of the officers and men are limited in number this year as compared with previous years. This, so it is felt, will make the crowd of too large size for comfort on Sunday, when without passes anyone is admitted to the camp grounds. The officers think that if more passes were issued, their personal friends could visit at other times in the week, lessening the number of visitors on the public day.

Rev. E. Winchester Donald, D. D., of Trinity church has accepted an invitation to address the soldiers on Sunday afternoon.

Usual orders restricting the use of liquors on the camp grounds have been issued, and to prevent abuse of these orders, which is possible by the men getting poor liquors while on a leave of absence from camp, with the possibility of their returning in an intoxicated condition, a system of canteens is to be established and conducted with discretion to prevent excesses in this direction.

AMONG WEALTHIEST.

Quincy Ranks Twenty-One in Valuation.

Larger in Area Than Thirteen Cities.

The Valuation of Cities and Wealthy Towns.

From the table of aggregates of Massachusetts cities and towns, in the Massachusetts Year Book, one learns that there were in 1898 only 20 in the State with a larger valuation than Quincy, and that the total number with a valuation of over $10,000,000 is but 32. Five cities have less than $10,000,000, while four towns have more.

The valuation of all the cities and of towns with over $10,000,000 valuation, in 1898 is given below:

*Towns.

In area the town of Plymouth is the largest in the State with 109.3 square miles. Dartmouth has 75, Barnstable 74, Middleboro 72, Sandwich 69, Boston 88 and Quincy 16.5. Quincy has a larger area than 13 of the 32 cities, viz: Cambridge, Chelsea, Everett, Lawrence, Lowell, Lynn, Malden, Medford, Newburyport, Salem, Somerville, Waltham and Woburn.

It is a well known fact that Quincy ranked 22 in the State in population in 1895, and today is still higher.

In number of polls Quincy ranks No. 21, and in registered voters No. 23,—Pittsfield and Waltham which have less polls have more voters.

The rax rate of 37 cities and towns was $20 or more in 1898, and 95 had as large or larger rates than Quincy. The highest was $32 per $1,000 in Burlington, and the lowest, $5.18, in Gosnold. But 19 had a rate of less than $10.

Middlesex county has the most cities and Worcester county the most towns.

Worcester county is largest in area, and Suffolk the smallest.

Norfolk county is eleventh in area, seventh in population, and fourth in valuation.

DINING WITH AGUINALDO.

Captain Coffin's Impressions of the Insurgent Leader.

Captain J. W. Coffin, assistant surgeon of the Tenth Pennsylvanias, now on their way home from Manila, who preceded the regiment, relates his impressions of Aguinaldo and the Filipinos as follows:

"Do I know Aguinaldo? Yes; I dined with him once and was present at Malolos when the Filipino republic was proclaimed. Major Neff was with me. It was last September. While the Americans there could not understand Spanish, we gathered enough from the gestures and what we could figure out that the Filipinos would not be satisfied with anything else than absolute independence, and we all felt that ultimately they would fight and we would have to oppose them.

"Aguinaldo at the dinner I had with him impressed me rather favorably for a Filipino, but candidly I would class him with a Pittsburg bootblack. The pictures of him published in America are good likenesses. He is a boy, not more than 26 years old, but through the assassination of his father, as I understand, by the Spaniards he is held in sentimental esteem by the natives. He could not speak English, and our conversation was carried on through an interpreter.

"I wish to relate this incident of Major Neff and myself; then I am done. The houses in Manila are built even with the pavements, and the streets are narrow. The first story in the best houses is the stable, where the horses and ponies are lodged, and all well to do Filipinos have plenty of these animals. The upper stories are occupied by the family, where you find works of art and evidences of oriental culture.

"The Filipino is fond of music and wine. One Sunday a wealthy Filipino, just before hostilities broke out, invited Major Neff and myself to a ball at his house. We went, of course, but when we arrived at the mansion we were ushered through the stable on the first floor, the customary entrance. When we reached the second floor, we met the family and a bevy of dashing Filipino belles. The dancing was good, and we spent a pleasant day, but I will never forget the remark of Major Neff as he was going through the stable. He was not familiar with this feature of Filipino life. 'Ugh!' he said. 'This would be a fine place to be killed!'"

FILIPINO SKULLS AS RELICS.

Pennsylvania Boys Send Home Mementos of the Malolos Battle.

The skulls of four of Aguinaldo's insurgents, sent as relics to friends in Pennsylvania, were received in registered mail packages at the postoffice in Washington, Pa., the other day from Manila. One of the packages had become broken, and, upon taking a peep, one of the mail clerks was badly frightened at the sight of a skull. Two of the packages were addressed to Ten Mile Village, one to Waynesburg and the other to Dr. J. A. Patterson of Washington. The skull sent to Dr. Patterson is on exhibition at his office, and he is proud of his unique relic from the orient, says the New York World.

The skull, the doctor says, is one of the best for anatomical study he has ever seen. It is well shaped and only differs materially from the Anglo-Saxon type by its low forehead, sloping much from the brow. J. J. Martin of Company K, who sent the skull to the doctor, says it was that of an insurgent who was killed on the battlefield of Malolos and, he is certain, was the victim of a bullet from the rifle of one of the Tenth's boys.

Dealing In Futures.

The volcano of Popocatapetl has been sold—to an American syndicate, of course—for $500,000. Ex-Senator Clark of Montana is said to be the master spirit, and the financiers expect to get more than their money back out of the deposits of sulphur in the crater. How an eruption would affect their plans remains to be seen. —Boston Globe.

Word With a Perspective.

The Germans call their new electric cabs "automobiletaxameterdroschken," says the Boston Globe. By the time they get through calling them the cabs are generally out of sight.

Summer Regnant.

With sweet reluctance in her golden eyes
Summer hath put the imperial rose away
And donned her poppy crown, whose gorgeous dyes
Are like the skies of the declining day.
The minstrel wind that erst was wont to say
Musical matins at the prime of morn
Now swoons within the pine tree tops afar,
And when the bee forsakes his drowsy horn
Red glows the evening star.

It is the season of forgetfulness,
And e'en the sharp cicada, fifing high,
Jars us not back to any sense of stress.
We are content to let the hours slip by
As doth the stream that lapseth languidly.
Why should we tease ourselves to find the clew
To life's enigmas—whence and why and where—
With o'er us brooding such ethereal blue,
Such vasts of halcyon air?

In opulence of calm enough to dwell
On all the ingirdling beauty, to give o'er
To the enthrallment of the slumberous spell,
Letting it clasp us as the sea the shore.
Like those that drink mandragora, no more
We heed the future or what dead days owned.
For us the present and our realm of dream,
Where, by the side of summer, sits enthroned
Love, regnant and supreme!

—Clinton Scollard in August Woman's Home Companion.

MERRY MOMENTS.

A Song of Prunes.

Throughout the drift of centuries, since first the world was young,
The bards have tuned their lyres up and cleared their throats and sung
Glad songs of fruits and flowers, of the orchard and the field,
And puffed up nearly everything the soil has deigned to yield,
And so I crave attention while your humble servant tunes
His lyre to the topmost pitch and sings a song of prunes.

Oh, prunes! though thou art fit to grace the banquet of a king,
Yet dost thou to the lowly board of humble peasants bring Thy pulpy fatness full of joy and flavors rich and deep—
Oh, is there aught on earth so rare and yet so good and—cheap!
And could I twang a thousand harps through centuries of Junes,
My one and all triumphant theme would be a song of prunes.

But, oh, the hidebound, sorry prune, with visage pinched and lean,
We meet in boarding house resorts is not the sort I mean!
Give me instead the puffy prune, inflated with its juice,
That makes strawberries and the like to me of little use,
For did I own a thousand mouths and twice as many spoons,
I'd still employ them, every one, to get my fill of prunes!

Cheap Gas.

The gas war in New York profoundly affects many relations of life.

For instance, the conventional farmer of the humorous prints, upon entering his room at a New York hotel, starts violently.

"I see no 'Don't Blow Out the Gas' sign," he faltered, betraying much uneasiness.

The bellboy says:

"No; gas has got so cheap in New York that we don't care any more."—Detroit Journal.

From Samoa.

Tell not of your sorrows, ye laboring men,
Write not of your trials with eloquent pen;
'Tis your turn to join in a pitying sigh
As you notice my present condition, for I Am a king who is out of a job.

I ne'er learned a cakewalk. I can't even play
The banjo, nor warble the songs of the day
To catch the light coin of the mob;
My only resource—'tis a small one, you'll own—
Is to seek a small junkshop and barter the throne
Of a king who is out of a job.

'Twould have been a slim chance, but I might have pulled through
Had kings stuck together as workingmen do,
But they left me deserted to sob.
They cry "divine right," but they don't seem to like
The plan of declaring a general strike
For a king who is out of a job.

Under the Trees With Grandpa.

Grandpa is stretched in the hammock,
With his legs hanging over in space;
Grandpa is peacefully sleeping,
With a newspaper spread on his face;
Grandpa is snoring serenely,
There is peace, I suppose, in his breast;
His hands are contentedly folded,
And a wasp has just lit on his vest.

The insect approaches his collar,
It dallies awhile here and there,
Now it finds its way under the paper,
And grandpa is up in the air.
His legs are entwined with the branches,
The buttons are torn from his vest—
You can tell by his words and his actions
That grandpa's no longer at rest.

IVORY SOAP PASTE.

In fifteen minutes, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make a better cleansing paste than you can buy.

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture. The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING.—To one pint of boiling water add one and one-half ounces (one-quarter of the small size cake) of Ivory Soap cut into shavings, boil five minutes after the soap is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from the fire and cool in convenient dishes (not tin). It will keep well in an air-tight glass jar. COPYRIGHT 1898 BY THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO. CINCINNATI

—Travelers in India especially if they are afraid of burglars, find great annoyance in the doors of hotel apartments. They are sometimes so swelled that they will not shut, and at other times so shrunken that the lock is useless. In dry weather they shrink, and they swell in damp seasons.

—A new statute in Connecticut makes it unlawful for officers of public records, state, municipal or court to use any ink in making public records not approved by the secretary of state. This is based upon the fact that from using poor ink in past years, some important records are now nearly illegible.

Rascally Officer Sentenced.

New York, Aug. 2.—Policeman Thomas F. O'Brien, who on June 10 stole a gold watch and two lockets from the body of Captain G. D. Rhoads of the Seventh regiment, who was killed on that day by an electric car, was sentenced yesterday to four years and three months in Sing Sing.

One Subscription of $20,000.

Andover, Mass., Aug. 2.—It is announced that the money for the new gymnasium at Phillips-Andover academy, $50,000, has been raised, and work will be begun on the building this fall. The largest subscription was $20,000, given by M. C. D. Borden of New York, who was a member of the class of '60.

Trainman Badly Mangled.

Attleboro, Mass., Aug. 2.—Frank Chase, a brakeman on a freight, was killed at Dodgeville yesterday. His body was found lying beside the track. It is supposed he was struck by a low bridge and knocked under the wheels of the train. His neck was broken and his legs were cut off.

Montreal's Bank Failure.

Montreal, Aug. 2.—The suspension Monday night of the Banque Jacques Cartier precipitated a run yesterday on the Banque Hochelaga, the remaining local French financial institution, and to a smaller extent on the Banque Nationale, a Quebec bank having a branch here. None of the stronger banks were in the least affected. There was a decline of several points in a number of securities on the local stock market, but it was in speculative stocks in which the bulls cornered prices.

A Trolley Decision.

Trenton, Aug. 2.—Judge Kirkpatrick has rendered in the United States circuit court a decision in the case of the General Electric company against the Rahway Electric Light and Power company, in which he restrains the latter from infringing upon the patent owned by the General Electric company, which is generally known as the trolley.

Striking Tailors Winning.

New York, Aug. 2.—It is stated at the headquarters of the striking tailors that 10 settlements were made during yesterday, making 150 in all, permitting about 2000 men to return to work. The vest makers are still out, but will begin today to make settlements, as the bosses have signified a willingness to do so.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about 1-4 as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

IS HUMANITY'S HOPE.

The Declaration of Independence Should Be Our Guiding Star.

Departure From It In Dealing With the Filipinos.

Conclusions Arrived at by Bryan In Summing Up the Philippines Question.

New York, Aug. 2.—This week's Independent contains a discussion from the pen of William J. Bryan, who says, in part:

"The Declaration of Independence asserts that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, and this is the doctrine to which we have adhered for more than a century. It is the doctrine which has distinguished us from European countries, and has made our nation the hope of humanity.

"If the doctrine set forth in the Declaration of Independence is sound, how can we rightfully acquire sovereignty over the Filipinos by a war of conquest? How can we rightfully purchase sovereignty from a Spanish sovereign, whose title we disputed in Cuba, and whose rebellious subjects we armed in the Philippines?

"In the resolution of intervention, congress declared that the Cubans were, and of right ought to be, free. Why? Because governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, and Spain had refused to respect the wishes of the Cubans. If the Cubans were, and of right ought to be, free, why not the Filipinos?

"In the beginning of the Spanish war congress denied that our nation had any thought of extending its territory by war. If we then had no thought of securing by conquest new territory in the eastern hemisphere, why should we now think of securing in the eastern hemisphere new races for subjugation?

"A republic cannot enter upon a colonial policy. It cannot advocate government by consent at home and government by force abroad. The Declaration of Independence will lose its value when we proclain the doctrine familiar in Europe, but detestable here, that governments are round in shape, about 13 inches in diameter and fired out of a cannon.

"For more than a century this nation has been travelling along the pathway which leads from the low domain of might to the lofty realm or right, and its history has been without a parallel in the annals of recorded time. What will be our fate if we turn backward and begin the descent toward force and conquest?

"It is not sufficient to say that the forcible annexation of the Philippine islands is a benevolent undertaking entered upon for the good of the Filipinos. Lincoln pointed out that this has always been the argument of kings. To use his words: 'They always bestrode the necks of the people, not that they wanted to do it, but because the people were better off for being ridden.'

"It is surprising that any believer in self-government should favor forcible annexation, but still more surprising that any one who believes in the Christian religion should favor the substitution of force for reason in the extension of our nation's influence.

"If we adopt the gunpowder gospel in the Philippines, how long will it be before that principle will be transplanted in American soil? So long as our arguments are addressed to the reason and the heart our progress is sure, but can we, without danger to Christianity, resort to the ancient plan of injecting religion into the body through bullet-holes?"

"The question is frequently asked, what can we do? Nearly two months elapsed between the signing of the treaty and the beginning of hostilities in the Philippines. During that time the president and congress might have given the Filipinos the same assurance of independence that was given to the Cubans. Such assurance would have prevented bloodshed. If the doctrine of self-government is sound, the Filipinos are entitled to govern themselves, and the president can now promise them independence as soon as a stable government can be established.

"If the president is not willing to take the responsibility of enforcing the doctrine set forth in the Declaration of Independence, he can call congress together and let it take the responsibility. A special session would be less expensive than war, not to speak of the principles involved.

"Our nation is protecting the republics of South America from outside interference while they work out their destiny. We can extend the same doctrine to the Philippines, and, having rescued the inhabitants from a foreign yoke, we can guard them from molestation while they develop a republic in the Orient. They will be our friends instead of our enemies; we can send school teachers to Manila, instead of soldiers, and the world will know that there is a reality in the theory of government promulgated at Independence hall and defended by the blood of the revolutionary fathers."

Canadian Won This Time.

Dorval, Que., Aug. 2.—With weather favorable to his boat and good seamanship, Duggan, the skipper of the Canadian defender, Glencairn, yesterday won his first race and the third of the series for the Seawanhaka cup. From the very start, when Glencairn crossed the line nine seconds ahead, it was apparent that the Canadian boat was at a much greater advantage as regarded the American challenger than she had been yet during the present races.

Peace In Venezuela.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Official advices received from Venezuela are to the effect that the country is entirely quiet. This offsets recent unofficial reports that a serious outbreak had occurred in the Andes country, and that the people of that section were coming down in force from the mountains for an attack on Maracaibo, one of the chief cities of Venezuela.

HOME RUN IN FOURTEENTH

Robbed the Champions of a Highly Interesting Game at St Louis.

St. Louis, Aug. 2.—Jack Powell begged to be allowed to pitch in the game, and at the conclusion of the 12th inning, with the score a tie, he was sent in to relieve Sudhoff. It was a lucky thing for St. Louis that he was, for in the 14th inning he made a home run for St. Louis which won the game. As he crossed the plate hundreds jumped from the grand stand, and with Powell on their shoulders, bore him in triumph to the club house. Never in the history of baseball in St. Louis was there so much excitement.

The game itself was a pretty one. Both teams played excellent ball, and it was only by luck that St. Louis was victorious. Boston played by far the better game of the two. Their fielding was nothing less than wonderful.

Many Cars Run Empty.

Cleveland, Aug. 2.—The strike has practically been lost sight of in the popular excitement over the boycott. Everybody is talking about it, and the newspapers publish many stories illustrative of the methods that are being resorted to in the effort to prevent people from riding on the cars of the Big Consolidated. People of all classes and in all occupations and walks of life are being affected more or less, and business is suffering greatly in consequence. Adjutant General Axline declares that if any more complaints of discriminations against soldiers come to him, he will appoint a judge advocate general to proceed against the merchants. The street railway company continues to operate its cars on all lines, but many of them are run over the road empty.

The President's Doings.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Soon after Postmaster General Smith arrived at Hotel Champlain yesterday he went for a walk with the president. They found a seat in the woods and talked over the events of the past week in Washington. General Henry and wife called and spent the forenoon playing euchre with the president and Mrs. McKinley. Mr. McKinley had nothing to say in regard to the statement of Secretary Alger, published in the morning papers. The president and Mrs. McKinley, accompanied by Postmaster General and Mrs. Smith, drove out in the afternoon. Mrs. McKinley enjoyed the ride very much.

Havana Newspaper Suppressed.

Havana, Aug. 2.—General Ludlow has issued an order for the suppression of the newspaper El Reconcentrado. The order declares that the paper is an obscene sheet, daily uttering by assertion and inuendo vile personalities against not only the established authorities of the city, but the best people of Havana. Its directors and writers are ordered arrested. The order has been carried out. Merchants and public officials express themselves as pleased with the action of the military governor.

Narrowly Escaped Foundering.

St. John's, Aug. 2.—The British steamer John Bright, which arrived here a fortnight ago with her bows stove by collision with an iceberg in the straits of Belle Isle, left here Monday to resume her voyage, having received a temporary wooden bow. During a severe storm this structure went to pieces and the ship barely escaped going to the bottom. She had to return here yesterday with her pumps constantly going to keep her afloat.

Investigation Resumed.

New York, Aug. 2.—The feature of the session of the Mazet legislative investigating committee, which yesterday resumed its sessions after about six weeks' vacation, was the examination of Messrs. Horgan & Slattery, a firm of architects and contractors, who testified that they have had work on steamboats, jails, gardens, station houses, dump scows, etc., for various city departments. Little of interest developed during the examination.

FIFTY THOUSAND DE TITUTE ORPHANS.

Red Cross Officials Doing Noble Work In Behalf of Stricken Cubans.

New York, Aug. 2.—An article by Miss Clara Barton on the subject of the Cuban reconcentrados will be contained in the coming number of The Independent.

Miss Barton says that there are now in Cuba 50,000 destitute orphan children of reconcentrados who have in the last few years died of starvation and want. These children are scattered throughout nearly every city and town which had been of sufficient size and importance to receive the driven-out country people. They are not children of low or doubtful origin; many are of the best of Cuban families. The reconcentrados were largely the country people of property—farmers and small planters.

Miss Barton says that these children are utterly homeless and no one has the least personal interest in them or responsibility for them. The townspeople still do what they can, but their main dependence is begging of the passengers of every passing train. The aspect of these children is often terrifying. The Red Cross surgeons and trained nurses wrought out a system which, Miss Barton believes, simply followed out as now being pursued, will in less than six months transform these thousands of hapless renegades into clean, wholesome, well-ordered children; learning to work, to read and to forget the lives of pain, want and woe they went through. This system is to gather them up, making small asylums of the plainest and simplest kind, interesting the authorities and the people of the city in the movement, securing their full co-operation, providing for all wants and making it possible for the people of the towns to look after them as their own, with the continued care and oversight of the Red Cross officials.

PEST UNDER CONTROL.

No Outbreak of Yellow Fever Outside the Original Quarantine Lines.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The marine hospital service has received nothing from the center of yellow fever infection at Hampton later than Dr. Wasdin's report of last night, placing the total of the yellow fever outbreak at 40 cases and eight deaths.

The situation is regarded as favorable. There has been no outbreak of fever outside of the original quarantine lines. The usual period of incubation is from three to five days, and the elapsed time since the first outbreak is now almost up to the usual quarantine limit.

Ten Eyck Makes a New Record.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 2.—The second annual regatta of the Quinsigamond International Regatta association at Lake Quinsigamond was witnessed by nearly 25,000 people. Champion Ten Eyck made two appearances, in the final heat of the single sculls and in the eight-oared race as stroke of the Wachusett crew. His rowing in the singles was the distinctive feature of the regatta. He had Kubic of Springfield for competitor, and lost him about 12 lengths. It is the most severe beating Ten Eyck has given any sculler and was done for the purpose of making a record for the course. The previous record was 9:58 2-5, made by him in his race three years ago with Joe Whitehead. Yesterday he covered the course in 9:46 3-5. The work of the Crescent Canoe club paddlers was another feature, the New England champions getting away with both canoe events. In the four-blade the Tatassist and Lakeside clubs of this city were easy victims, and in the war canoe the Lakesides were easy prey.

Complaint of Miners.

Seattle, Aug. 2.—Ex-Congressman Lewis left for Washington yesterday to present to the state department the claims of American miners against the Canadian government for damages sustained through the enactment of a law by the legislature of British Columbia debarring aliens from locating placer claims in the Atlin mining district. It is expected that the claims will be made a subject of arbitration before the joint high commission. Mr. Lewis represents about 1000 miners, whose claims aggregate $3,000,000.

Millions May Be Saved.

New York, Aug. 2.—Comptroller Coler says that he is planning to reduce the number of city office holders, cutting from the payrolls several thousand names, thereby saving to the city $4,000,000 yearly. The comptroller, however, does not propose to do anything himself beyond suggesting that all questions of salary be regulated by the local authorities and not by the state legislature. He favors the abolition of the municipal assembly and borough presidents.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The directors of the Seventh National bank of New York accepted the resignation of John McAverney as president and placed William H. Kimball, vice president of the bank, in practical control of the affairs of the institution.

John Green, 23 years old, died at Peterboro, N. H., as the result of injuries received from being thrown from a runaway horse.

The navy department is informed that the Yosemite has sailed from Manila for Guam, where Captain Leary will be installed as governor of that new American possession.

FURY OF THE ELEMENTS

Severely Felt In Widely Separated Portions of the Country.

Extensive Damage by Tornado, Rain and Lightning.

New Jersey, Florida and New England Give Reports of Havoc Wrought.

New York, Aug. 3.—Elizabeth, N. J., was visited by a form of tornado yesterday afternoon which cut a swath about 1000 feet wide through the center of the city, causing great damage to buildings and property, but, strange to say, not a person was killed and no one was seriously injured. Those who were hurt were only slightly injured. The wind attained a velocity of 80 miles an hour.

The path of the tornado included many of the prominent church buildings and other structures, and no other course could have been taken through the city where the possibilities of damage were as great. The towers of the First Presbyterian, Third Presbyterian and Central Baptist churches were blown down.

The Lyceum theater was totally unroofed. The Star theater's roof was ripped off and hurled two blocks away. Scores of dwelling houses in the path of the storm are without roofs. Trees and electric poles went down before the gale.

The roof was lifted off the three-story shirt factory, in which several score of girls and men were at work, and the building was blown five inches out of plumb. There was a panic in the building, but all escaped injury. The building will have to be torn down if it does not fall.

The roof was lifted off the home of Councilman Reinhardt and carried two blocks and then crashed into another house, breaking in the side.

In many cases the wind, after unroofing houses, whipped all the furniture out of the upper stories and scattered it through the streets and yards many blocks distant.

At the First Presbyterian church, when the tower crashed down, it fell upon the graves in the churchyard. This caused an upheaval of the earth and brought to the surface skeletons and skulls that had long lain under ground. Old trees in the churchyard were uprooted, and these brought up on their roots other skeletons and skulls. The streets are almost impassable with debris.

It took about 10 minutes for the tornado to pass through the city, and then the rain fell in torrents, flooding everything and adding to the damage done by the wind. Just ahead of the storm cloud itself there was a severe shower of hailstones.

Many persons were slightly injured by being struck by flying debris.

The greatest excitement prevailed in the city. Firemen and police were placed on duty in the wrecked section.

The police and firemen say the loss will be close to a quarter of a million, but this estimate is believed by experts to be excessive, perhaps three times the actual loss.

Disastrous Storm in Florida.

Tallahassee, Fla., Aug. 3.—The town of Carrabelle, a prosperous port on the Gulf of Mexico, southwest of this city, is reported almost completely destroyed by a terrific wind and rain storm which raged in this section all Tuesday and until late Tuesday night. Many boats in the harbor have been wrecked and most of the long wharf is gone, together with large quantities of naval stores. At Lanosk the houses, pavilion and boats have been destroyed. Unconfirmed reports say that the steamer Crescent probably has been lost between Apalachicola and Carrabelle. A few houses were destroyed at St. Theresa. McIntyre & Curtis' mills suffered severely. A passenger train on the Carrabelle, Tallahassee and Gulf road, 35 miles below Tallahassee, was badly wrecked, but no one is reported killed or injured. The turpentine interests of this section are greatly damaged and much injury has been done to the crops. The wires are down south of here and railroad traffic close to the gulf ports is suspended. The city of Apalachicola is entirely cut off from communication and nothing can be learned from there. There are many rumors afloat here as to the loss of life. It is not believed here that any lives were lost at the numerous summer resorts, but reliable news is unobtainable. A large relief party will leave Tallahassee for the stricken section.

In the Empire State.

Kingston, N. Y., Aug. 3.—A bolt of lightning struck the shipyards of C. Hiltebrand at South Rondout yesterday, killing Henry Matthias, and injuring 12 other workmen. Two of the injured were senseless at last accounts. The residence of John E. Van Etten in this city was also struck by lightning and burned to the ground. The electric storm, which was the most severe in years, lasted three hours. Scores of trees were blown down in this city, one of them wrecking a house. A flagpole on the Cornell Setamboat company's building was shattered by lightning, and the building damaged. Cellars were flooded, owing to the immense quantity of water that fell, and many streets presented the appearance of creeks. During the storm the streets at times were covered with hailstones. Between Shokane and Boiceville, there was a washout on the Western and Delaware railroad.

The Storm in New England.

Lynn, Mass., Aug 3—A severe storm raged here yesterday afternoon. Two separate storms met over this section, accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain, blinding flashes of lightning and loud peals of thunder. Several large trees were blown down and heavy damage was done to the electric power station of the Lynn and Boston railroad. The house of Mrs. P. A. Williams was struck by lightning and Mrs. Williams was rendered unconscious. The lightning struck in several places in Swampscott, destroying the fire alarm system, and the rain gutted the streets. At Nahant the storm destroyed the fire alarm system and telephone connections. Several small yachts were blown ashore onto the rocks and badly damaged.

North Thetford, Vt., Aug. 3.—Lightning struck the barn of H. F. Wilcox last evening, setting a fire which communicated to the adjoining barn sheds, hogpen and barns filled with crops just harvested. The farming tools of the place were destroyed. Lightning also struck the barn of Nelson Porter at Thetford, starting a fire, which destroyed the barn, contents and a dozen hogs.

Lyme, N. H., Aug. 3.—A thunder shower of great severity passed over the town last evening. The barn belonging to Daniel A. Ware was struck by lightning and badly damaged. A valuable horse was killed instantly and Mr. Ware's son, who, having stabled the horse, while closing the door, was paralyzed. Recovery is expected. The roads are badly washed out.

Railway Property Destroyed.

New York, Aug. 3.—Lightning struck the big power house and carhouse of the South Orange avenue electric road on South Orange avenue at Newark, N. J., last night. The building caught fire and was destroyed. The railroad officials claim the loss is over $300,000. The amount of insurance is not known.

Unique Method of Robbery.

Norwood, Mass., Aug. 3.—Burglars broke into the house of Frank A. Fales and secured a large quantity of silverware. They took the drawers from the sideboard out on the lawn, where they looked their booty over at leisure. They left a great deal of value, which they could easily have laid their hands on. The Fales family was not disturbed, and it did not discover the robbery until morning.

Fever Situation at Hampton.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Advices received by Surgeon General Wyman from Hampton show that the only change in the yellow fever situation is the addition of four suspected cases to those already in existence. These have been sent from the camp to the hospital. This information and the additional statement that there has not been a death since 7 o'clock Tuesday night and that everything with reference to the disease is more than favorable was received from Governor P. T. Woodfin of the soldiers' home. He also wired that he is quite sure the pestilence will be stamped out.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about 1-4 as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

Claim Dismissed.

Falmouth, Aug. 3.—In the admiralty court yesterday the pilots belonging to pilot boat No. 13 sued the owners of the American line steamer Paris for £300 salvage services in showing the vessel a warning light, thus causing the Paris to change her course and avoid the Manacles rocks. Captain Watkins denied having interpreted the pilot boat's flashlight as a danger signal. The course was altered to allow for the tide. Captain Watkins said the night was clear and the Paris was going at full speed. The first indication of danger was when land was sighted. The court dismissed the claim.

Great Britain "Backs Water."

London, Aug. 3.—The Pall Mall Gazette says it learns Great Britain is about to surrender to China the town of San-Chun, which was occupied by the British May 16, during the Kow-Loon disturbances. The paper mentioned asks the reason for this retrocession which, it says, will only serve to damage British prestige.

Nominated by Acclamation.

Baltimore, Aug. 3.—The Democratic state convention resulted in the nomination of the following ticket: For governor, John W. Smith; for attorney general, Isidor Raynor; for comptroller, Joshua W. Herring. The convention was unusually harmonious, and all the nominations were made by acclamation, Edwin Warfield, Mr. Smith's principal opponent, withdrawing at the last moment and placing the successful candidate in nomination.

The Cleveland Boycott.

Cleveland, Aug. 3.—Major J. R. McQuigg has been appointed acting judge advocate by Adjutant General Axline, commanding the Ohio national guard troops on strike duty here. He will at once take up the legal phase of the boycott so far as it relates to the soldiers. General Axline says that proprietors of stores who refuse to sell goods to either soldiers or civilians can undoubtedly be punished under the law.

Leominister, which had a tax rate of 22.50 last year, may well rejoice over a reduction of 1.50 per 1,000.

The dooming board of Boston has increased the valuation of Boston about $30,000,0000 this year. This is over fifty per cent more than the total valuation of Quincy.

Over one-fourth of the taxes of Everett are paid by non-residents—the valuation of the property of non-residents being $4,520,650 in a total of $17,752,700. The tax rate this year is $16.50, and there are 6,501 polls.

Drift of Opinion.

☞As for Mr. Root's lack of military qualifications, we are very glad to see the President put these in a subordinate place.—New York Evening Post.

☞It is a foolish person who takes an infant on a bicycle. Indeed it is a question whether one has a moral right to do it. There is always liability to accident and in case of one the child could not help itself and the rider would be powerless to help it. Infringing on private rights is serious business, but it seems to us that if people do not know enough to protect their children the law should.—Newburyport News.

☞It now looks as if Henry L. Dawes, in a recent interview, had sounded the keynote of what may become the principal issue in the next state campaign when he advocated the puchase by the state of the Boston and Albany railroad. The taking by the commonwealth of a great trunk line railroad would be a step in advance of the municipal ownership of gas and electric light plants, which has been agitated so much in recent years.—Worcester Post.

☞We have had a few troubles of our own in connection with the war department of late, but they sink into utter insignificance as compared with the vice and shame which the military administration of France has brought upon that nation of the smutted lilies and muddled tricolor. It appears, however, at this considerable distance from the scene of events, as though our sister republic had at last found a real man for the head of its war bureau; not a hot headed zealot, not a cowardly time server, not a hypocritical bribe taker, but a real man, honest and fearless, determined to do that which in his eyes is right.—Concord Monitor.

☞The curfew law which has been adopted in many places seems to have accomplished its object so far as keeping small children off the streets after a certain hour in the evening but there is another evil which it does not effect and one that is much more annoying and demoralizing than the presence of children and that is the groups of loafers young men ranging in years from sixteen up who congregate on the street corners and in doorways where they make themselves a nuisance to the traveling public and a special annoyance to ladies, frequently passing uncomplimentary and insulting remarks and using foul and indecent language that is an outrage to civilization. It is a disgrace to any city that these foul-mouthed gangs are allowed to encumber the streets where respectable people have occasion to travel and the law to prevent this sort of nuisance should be enforced. — Brookline Chronicle.

ELECTROCUTED.

A Railroad Man Killed on Third Rail at Weymouth.

Stephen Kane, an employe on the third rail system of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, was killed at 10.45 this morning about 600 feet below the Weymouth depot. He was at work bolting a rail when he accidently stepped on the third rail through which the power is transmitted. The powerful current was immediately diverted through his body, and he was roasted alive, in view of his fellow employes, who did not dare to attempt to remove him. It was some time before he was removed and life had then departed. Medical Examiner Fraser of Weymouth was called and viewed the remains at the Weymouth station. The unfortunate man was about 45 years of age.

With the constant danger of falling electric wires there is need that all should know what to do until electricians arrive or the power is shut off. In handling a live wire, nothing is better than a common hard wood chair such as can be found in any house. Armed with this chair the wire can be lifted from the ground in safety, as wood is a non-conductor. In cases like the above accident, persons armed with such chairs could readily have removed the unfortunate man although in this case the current used is so powerful, it is doubtful if his life could have been saved.

Johnson—Brown.

There was a pretty pink and white wedding Wednesday evening at the residence of Mrs. Frances Souther on Cottage street, her niece, Miss Loella G. Brown a daughter of Mrs. Sarah J. Brown, and Mr. Roscoe Wilbert Johnson being united in marriage by Rev. Mr. Foxcroft of Beachmont. The wedding march was played by Mrs. J. E. Moore of Brookline, Mr. Earl Johnson was best man and the bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Fred B. Brown. Miss Olive Simpson of Beachmont was a charming flower girl, and Chester Brown of Roxbury, the page.

Only the family and intimate friends were present. The bride wore white muslin with lace, and carried a bouquet of white sweet peas. The flower girl was in pink. The floral decorations were quite elaborate, and there was a display of pretty and useful presents. A wedding supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will reside at Wollaston.

South Shore & Boston St. Ry.

In its financial column the Transcript says: The Hanover Street Railway Company has changed its name to South Shore and Boston Street Railway Company. This road is a consolidation of the Rockland and Abington, the Braintree and Weymouth, the Bridgwater, Whitman and Rockland, the Hingham and the Hanover street railways. The capital stock of the consolidated company is $690,000 and the bonded indebtedness $600,000. The company has seventy-four miles of track. The earnings of the several roads in 1898 were $214,693, operating expenses $165,056, net income, $49,637. It is expected that by the operation of the roads as one system and the operation of the independent line to Brockton, now nearly completed, the earnings for 1900 will be increased to $240,000, and operating expenses reduced to $140,000. On the item of power alone, a saving of over $24,000 a year can be made. The consolidation was brought about by Messrs. Pepper and Register of Philadelphia, who are the largest owners of the stock of the new company, the balance of the stock being held by Massachusetts parties.

Killed in Quarry.

Three children of John Hill, 8, 7, and 4 years old, were killed in the old Langdon quarry at Montpelier, Vt., on Tuesday. The quarry has not been worked for some time, and the children have played there. On this day about five tons of stone became loosened and fell upon them. The girl of eight was killed instantly, the boy of seven died in a few minutes, and the youngest child cannot live.

COMPANY K IN CAMP.

New Officers and New Rules This Year.

The State No Longer Feeds Her Soldiers.

The Boys However Have Had Their Pay Increased.

Co. K went into camp at South Framingham today with the 2d brigade, for its annual tour of duty. The baggage of the company left the armory Tuesday night, and Wednesday Quartermaster Sergeant Crane and a detail reported at camp to get things in readiness.

CAPT. WHITNEY.

The company reported at the armory at 7 o'clock this morning and took the 7.58 train for Boston in command of Captain Whitney. The company wore the blue uniforms with campaign hat and leggins. They also took with them the blankets furnished by the city of Quincy. These were worn in a collar roll in which were inclosed a rubber blanket and the brown uniforms.

There is some change in the uniforms this year in the respect that the facings and insignas of the officers are white instead of the dark blue. The uniforms furnished the men are all of large size, and nearly all were obliged to have them altered by a tailor at their own expense.

The first duty upon arriving at camp was to put up tents, which each company now has to do. Another new order this year is that each company shall feed itself. Heretofore the State fed the men, but now the pay of the men has been increased to an average of twenty cents a day and they must provide their own grub. The pay of the private this year is $2.00 a day, corporal, $2.50, and sergeant $2.75. Under this rule each company can expend what it likes for grub. Company K has voted that the minimum price per day for this purpose shall be thirty cents and the maximum price fifty cents. This money will be expended by the Quartermaster Sergeant, a new office created this year for that purpose. That officer in Co. K is Thompson B. Crane, who fed the boys while they were in the United States service.

The company went into camp with two new corporals who took their examinations Tuesday night. These two non-commissioned officers are Frank Pierce and Daniel Foster.

Visiting days at camp will be Sunday and Tuesday, and the public will be excluded from company tents except on these days.

TODAY'S COURT.

William Connors was arraigned for drunkenness and breaking and entering at Weymouth. Cases continued until Aug. 10.

George W. Lafayette was fined $5 for drunkenness at Milton.

The boy was picked up by the Taunton police about 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, and in answer to their inquiries said that he started with his mother for Fall River and that when they arrived at Taunton his mother refused to take him any further and left him to hustle for himself. The police found upon visiting the boy's home that his story was false, and that he had run away from home. His mother has gone to Taunton today after him.

AN ORDINANCE

Regulating Plumbing.

Engrossed Ordinance No. 28, 1899.

CITY OF QUINCY.

In the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety nine.

Be it ordained by the City Council of Quincy as follows:

SECTION 1. No person shall carry on the business of plumbing unless he is a plumber and shall have first registered his name and place of business in the office of the Board of Health; and notice of any change in the place of business of a registered plumber shall be immediately given to said Board of Health.

SEC. 2. Every plumber before doing any work in a building, shall, except in the case of the repair of leaks, file at the office of said Board of Health, a notice of the work to be performed, and no such work shall be done in any building without the approval of said Board of Health or its Inspector of Plumbing.

SEC. 3. The plumbing of every building, unless otherwise permitted by the Board of Health, shall be separately and independently connected with the public sewer, when such sewer is provided, or with a proper and sufficient drain connected thereto outside of the building, and if no sewer is provided with a proper cesspool.

SEC. 4. Pipes and other fixtures shall not be covered or concealed from view until approved by the Inspector of Plumbing, who shall examine the same within two working days after notice that they are ready for inspection.

SEC. 5. The Board of Health must be notified when the main drain, soil, waste, branch connections or ventilating pipes are in and ready to be tested.

The Board must again be notified immediately after the work is completed and before it is covered from view. All work must be left uncovered and convenient for examination until inspected and approved; and no drainage system shall be used until a certificate of approval has been granted.

If, on inspection the work is not satisfactory, the plumber shall be notified in writing and a limit of five days (unless otherwise permitted) given in which to complete said work; at which time the Board of Health must be notified.

SEC. 6. Drain and connecting ventilating pipes shall be of sufficient size, and made of cast iron within the building, and for a distance of at least eight feet outside, except that lead pipes may be used for short connections exposed to view. Such pipes shall be of uniform thickness throughout, and shall have an average weight not less than below specified, viz:

2	inch pipe,	3 2-5	pounds per foot.
3	" "	5	"	"	"
4	" "	6 2-5	"	"	"
5	" "	8 2-5	"	"	"
6	" "	10 2-5	"	"	"
7	" "	13	"	"	"

Drain pipes shall be properly secured by irons to walls, laid in trenches to uniform grade, or suspended to floor timbers by strong iron hangers.

The space between these hangers shall not exceed ten feet. Every drain pipe must be provided with a running trap with an accessible brass screw cleanout, at or near the point where it leaves the building, and shall have a fall of at least one-quarter of an inch to the foot. Soil pipes shall be carried above the roof open and undiminished in size, and to a distance of not less than two feet above the roof, or not less than five feet above any window within fifteen feet. Changes in direction shall be made with curved pipes, and all connections with horizontal or vertical pipes shall be made with Y or long T Y branches. No trap shall be placed at the foot of a stack.

All branches of soil pipe twelve feet or more in length must be carried up not less than two feet above the roof undiminished in size, or more than two feet, if said Board shall so direct, or they may be connected with the main soil pipe above the highest plumbing fixture.

All drain pipe shall be exposed to sight where practicable within the building, and shall not be exposed to pressure where they pass through walls. Every part of every drain pipe below a cellar floor shall be accessible through sufficient unattached covers. In all cases there shall be an extra heavy iron pipe laid from eight feet outside and carried through the foundation wall and connected with the drain inside by a Y branch with a brass screw clean out in a direct line with the sewer or cesspool, and the drains when under the cellar bottom shall be of extra heavy iron pipe also.

Standard galvanized wrought iron may be used for ventilating pipes, when in the opinion of the inspector it is practical.

SECTION 7. When the waste pipe does not exceed three feet in length from its connection with the fixture to its connection with the trap, one round trap may be used for a sink and wash trays or for bath tub and bowl; if over three feet in length the waste pipe of each and every sink, basin, bath-tub, water-closet, slop hopper, and of each set of trays or other fixtures, shall be furnished with a separate trap, which shall be placed as near as practicable to the fixture that it serves.

Traps shall be protected from siphonage or air pressure by special cast-iron air pipes of a size not less than the waste pipes they serve, run from the crown or outlet of the trap. Lead air-pipes may be used only when they are exposed to view.

Air pipes for water-closet traps shall be of two inch bore if thirty feet or less in length, and of three inch bore if more than thirty feet in length; other air pipes shall be as large as the waste pipes from the trap. Air pipes shall be run as direct as practicable.

Two or more air-pipes may be connected together or with a drain pipe; but in every case of connection with a drain pipe such connection shall be above the highest waste connection with said drain pipe. No ventilation shall be required from a deep drum trap or traps in cases where all the plumbing is located on the same floor and where no soil matter is admitted.

Air pipes shall be so constructed as not to allow the formation of a trap, nor be used as waste pipes.

SECTION 8. All waste or overflow pipes from safes under water-closets and other fixtures or from tanks shall be run separately to basement or cellar, and left open; in no case shall they be connected with a soil pipe or any other waste pipe. No waste pipe from a refrigerator or other receptacle in which food or provisions are stored shall be connected with a drain, soil, or waste pipe, but shall be separated therefrom by an open air sink or tray furnished with a trap.

No steam exhaust, blow off or drip pipe shall connect with a sewer, house drain, rain-water conductor, soil, waste or vent pipe.

Such pipes shall discharge into a suitable tank or condenser from which a proper outlet to the house drain shall be provided.

SECTION 9. Every water-closet shall be supplied with water from a separate tank or cistern and shall have a flushing pipe of not less than one and one-fourth inches in diameter; but this requirement shall not apply to water-closets substituted for vaults, where the same are located outside of the building proper; and such water-closets may be arranged so as to receive their supply directly from the main, with proper fixtures approved by the Board of Health.

SECTION 10. No saddle hubs will be allowed on any plumbing. No return bends will be allowed except by special permission of the inspector.

All connections of lead waste and ventilating pipes on sewer or cesspool side of water seal of traps shall be made with plumbers wipe solder joints, and no wipe cup joints will be allowed.

Every joint of an iron and a lead pipe shall be made by a brass ferule of the same size as lead pipe, set in the hub of the branch of the iron pipe and caulked with lead; the lead pipe to be attached to the ferule by a wiped solder joint. Every joint in a cast-iron bell and spigot pipe shall be made with packed oakum and molten lead well caulked, at least one and one-half inches deep, and made water and air tight, and no paint or putty shall be allowed until it has been tested.

SEC. 11. A suitable grease trap shall be constructed under the sink of every hotel, eating-house, restaurant, or other public cooking establishment so as to be easily accessible for inspection and cleaning.

SEC. 12. Existing plumbing in any building may be connected with the public sewer if considered sanitary by the Board of Health after a proper test.

SEC. 13. Penalty—Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be punished by a fine not exceeding (50) fifty dollars for each and every violation thereof, and his license may be suspended or revoked.

SEC. 14. This ordinance shall take effect upon its passage, and Ordinance No. 28, of the City Ordinances entitled "An Ordinance Regulating Plumbing in the City of Quincy" is hereby repealed.

DR. GILBERT DEAD.

The Oldest Practitioner In City of Quincy.

Was Medical Examiner for the District.

Has Served as Hospital Trustee and on Board of Health.

Dr. John H. Gilbert, one of the oldest medical examiners and physicians in Norfolk County died at his residence on Russell Park shortly after 12 o'clock last night, the immediate cause of his death being a carbuncle on the brain, from which he had been suffering for several weeks.

Dr. Gilbert was born in Atkinson, N. H., about 72 years ago. He pursued his early studies in Hanover, N. H. at Dartmouth College, graduating also from the Tremont Medical college, now Harvard in 1853. He first settled in Weymouth where he practiced three years; then removing to Huntington, Mass., After remaining there a year and a half, he returned to Weymouth at the request of many prominent families there.

At the time of Dr. Ebenezer Woodward's declining health in 1862, Dr. Gilbert came to Quincy, locating in the old Marsh house opposite the town pump, which was then the favorite locality for physicians. He later removed to the Square, occupying the house at the corner of Hancock and Savil streets, where the National Granite and Quincy Stone banks were originally located, now occupied by Mr. A. G. Dolliver. Three years ago Dr. Gilbert built himself a handsome residence on Russell park, where he has since resided.

The doctor was the oldest practitioner in Quincy and had been given the title of "Veteran Physicians." He has always been prominent in the advancement of medical matters in Quincy, and was active in the work of the Board of Health and in organizing the Quincy City Hospital, of which he was a trustee.

In 1812 he was appointed medical examiner for this district, which comprises Quincy and Randolph, and has held that office ever since. He was a member of the Norfolk South District Medical society, and had been honored with its presidency. He was also a director in the Cottage City street railway. He was a close student and was devoted to his chosen profession.

Dr. Gilbert has not enjoyed the best of health for some years and of late had been gradually relinquishing his large practice to Dr. Jones.

He leaves a widow and one son, Prof. Frank S. Gilbert.

The doctor was a member of Rural lodge of Masons and South Shore commandery of Knights Templars, and had been connected with other lodges.

WEYMOUTH.

Edgar H. Bowles is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Misses Hattie and Edith Chickering are rusticating at Orr's Island, Maine.

W. Edward Gutterson and Edward C. Nash have returned from an outing in the Maine woods.

Edward Hunt who has been mentioned as a candidate for the next General Court, is a man who enjoys a great deal of popularity about town, and is well known both in business and social circles. Mr. Hunt is a native of Weymouth and has always taken a deep interest in its welfare, as he is always working for the good of the people. Mr. Hunt should stand a good chance of securing the nomination.

Those of our citizens residing in the vicinity of Baker's Corner, are much incensed over the act of the South Shore and Boston Street railway, in cutting down one of the beautiful and ornamental shade trees in that vicinity. The act was committed at a late hour and was entirely unauthorized by the selectmen, and therefore the people think that suit should be brought against the railway company.

George L. Newton of North Weymouth was elected secretary at the 29th annual reunion of the 5th Mass. Battery Association at New Bedford on Wednesday. Thirty-five survivors were present.

—A new invention has been designed to prevent collisions at sea. At a recent test the force from electro-magnetic coils stationed on board a vessel successfully influenced a chemically-prepared compass stationed some six miles away causing it to set up an instantaneous peal of bells.

THE HATCH BATTERY

Why the Q. & B. Has Temporarily Discontinued its Use.

The Quincy and Boston street railway company, which has been operating its Braintree line by the Hatch Storage Battery, discontinued its use August first in compliance with a temporary injunction granted the electric Storage Battery Co. of Philadelphia, restraining the use of the Hatch Storage Battery from continuing its use until the final hearing before the appellate court which sets next October.

The discontinuance of the battery in no way interfers with the operations of the cars which now receive their power from the power station at Quincy Point.

The Hatch Storage Battery Co. was organized under the laws of Maine in April, 1897, and its first plant was that installed at Braintree, some sixteen months ago. The plant has been in operation since that time and has given the best of service. Last May the Electric Storage Battery Co. of Philadelphia obtained a temporary injunction against the Hatch Storage Battery Co., of Boston, claiming an infringement of patents owned by the Philadelphia Company.

The latter company's claim was a broad one, and was based upon a patent granted Charles F. Bush, in February, 1886, for the application of lead oxide as an active material in a storage battery applied to a lead sheet. The claim made by the plaintiff company was that a board construction of the patent would prevent its use in such a manner.

An appeal was taken which will come up next October as stated above.

Upon the strength of the injunction, thus obtained, the complainant company got an order from the court, restraining the users of the Hatch battery from continuing the use until the final hearing.

Upon the representation of the Quincy and Boston that the immediate discontinuance of the use of the battery would work great inconvenience to the traveling public they were given until Aug. 1, to comply with the order of the court.

After the installation one candidate was initiated, which was followed by a collation and a social hour.

The Sporting Summer Man.

The golf jacket for this year is green, which many consider not altogether an improvement on the old scarlet jacket, which lent such a touch of color to the links. Golf knickers are made tighter at the knee and less baggy over the hips than formerly. Thick stockings of green tartan plaid are worn, and gaiters are no longer en regle. Low shoes are better for outdoor sports than ordinary walking shoes.

A new fad in underwear is the knee length "pants." This abbreviated style is destined to "fill a long felt want" with wheel and golf devotees. The innovation bids fair to revolutionize the trade. Its advocates reason that there is relatively no more use for a "continuous performance" on the legs than on the arms in hot weather.

Bicycle hose this year is of the unobtrusive class. Fancy tops are still proper, but the colors and designs are quieter and neater.

All bicycle trousers are made with cuffs which button at the side, but these are now made of the same material as the body of the garment. Full suits of the same material are not worn by the makers of fashion, but light trousers with a fancy check or plaid are the thing, with a sack coat of solid dark color.

The stylish shoe is laced low, but not so extremely as before, the tops being above the ankles. The best dressed riders still wear caps and have them to match the trousers.—New York Herald.

Ex-Secretary Alger Returns to Michigan to Assume Private Citizenship.

He Is Tendered a Most Magnificent Welcome.

Evidence That He Is Highly Esteemed by the People of His State.

Detroit, Aug. 3.—From 4 o'clock yesterday, when the welcoming committee entered his private car at Toledo, until 9 o'clock, when General Alger ceased shaking hands, there was a constant spontaneous ovation to the ex-secretary of war. Smiles and tears repeatedly struggled for the mastery over the secretary's bronzed countenance as he gazed into the faces of the multitudes who loudly insisted that "Alger's all right." Darkness fell during the speeches from the reviewing stand, in front of the city hall, giving opportunity for throwing a searchlight upon the features of General Alger, drawn in crayon on a canvas 16 feet square, hung from the city hall front, and surrounded by patriotic decorations. A great crush at the indoor reception was the final feature.

The special train, which met General Alger and party at Toledo, carried 400 members of the reception committee. Banners stretched along the sides of the cars stated that "Michigan welcomes her honored son, General Alger." When the Pennsylvania train arrived the general's private car was besieged by his old friends. On the return trip General Alger was escorted through the train and greeted by all.

Over 1000 marchers escorted General Alger from the Michigan Central station by a route leading past the general's home to the reviewing stand. Fairbanks post, G. A. R., carried two great banners, stretching half across the street, which declared "There is only one Alger."

When General Alger appeared upon the reviewing stand there was a roar of applause from the crowd which blocked all traffic across the campus Martius. The ex-secretary reviewed the parade and returned the salutations of many marchers, especially those of veteran G. A. R. comrades.

Mayor Maybury formally called the assemblage to order, and made an address, welcoming General Alger, saying in part: "I welcome you home, sir, to a people who love justice and fair play. This welcome is by your neighbors. They come from all parts of this glorious state, only for the purpose of saying, 'God bless you' and 'Welcome home.' You will command and carry with you the same confidence, affection and esteem that have been with you all your life. Men will say that with an upright character, so well established, there is no power on earth that can detract from the fame of a good neighbor and citizen and honest man."

Governor Pingree, in his speach in behalf of the state, made some pointed references to incidents leading to General Alger's home coming, and fired some characteristic shots at the newspapers, which, he asserted, were largely responsible. The governor said that Alger's best service for his country was in the efficient management of the war department.

Governor Pingree said, in part: "I have come to believe that the institution most dangerous to our form of government is the newspaper. Its boasted liberty is rather a license. It has no scruple and no conscience. There are, of course, exceptions, but I speak of the press as a whole. Because you, General Alger, would not bow to them and conduct the war department in the interests of the combines, the army contractors and the commercial interests which control the newspapers, you became a marked man. We have every faith that history will rebuke the newspapers and politicians who have used such vile methods to accomplish their little purposes."

General Alger, responding, said: "I can command no language to express my gratitude to you for this royal welcome to my home. I am glad from the bottom of my heart to be released from official care, and to again enter the old home and live among the people of Michigan.

"Since I went away, two and a half years ago, the country has been through a terrible struggle. The office of which I was at the head was taxed to the utmost of every man's strength who occupied any position in it. I gave my best thought and honest effort, and did everything I could to carry out my part of that great work. What has been done is a matter of record, and I am perfectly willing to rest the case with my countrymen.

"And now, my fellow citizens, I come home without a grievance. During that struggle, and while that great work was upon me, I can truthfully say I had from the president all the support he could give me. We went through the struggle and came out victorious. We transported across the sea more than 150,000 men, one way and the other, without an accident. We fought battles in the Philippines, in Cuba and in Porto Rico, and we never lost a battle, a color, a prisoner or a gun. Wherever the American flag was planted by the American soldier there it stands, and there it shall stand forever. I am glad to be among you again, a private citizen, and I propose to stay here the balance of my life. Good night."

The closing scene was a reception in the city hall corridor, where thousands grasped General Alger's hand. The scene was witnessed by Mrs. Alger and General Alger's relatives.

GAVE POLICE A LIVELY BATTLE.

Brockton Inspector Receives a Pistol Wound In a Mixup With a Crazy Man.

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 3.—Three of the local police officers had a lively scuffle with a crazy man at E. M. Low's box factory yesterday, and, as a result, Inspector Chase is in the hospital with a bullet wound in the stomach. The insane man is George A. Stewart, about 40 years old. He had been committed to the Taunton insane asylum in the past, and was discharged as cured. Early yesterday afternoon he showed signs of his crazy malady by getting ugly. He went to the office and flourished a revolver and called every one vile names. Inspector Chase was summoned, and the man went back upstairs and barricaded himself on the fire escape. He held the officer at bay with his revolver. Later two more officers were summoned, but they could not coax him down. The help were all sent home early, and the officers made a pretence of following. They lay in wait for the man at the lower end of the stairs, and when he came down Inspector Chase grappled with him. He fell on the man, and in the mix-up the revolver was discharged. The outcome of Mr. Chase's injury is not yet certain. The other two officers held the man, and he is now confined at the central police station.

Concerning Licensing of Firemen.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 3.—The test case to determine if firemen in the mills of this state must be licensed under a recent statute was tried in the local court yesterday, and an affirmative decision was given, from which an appeal was taken. In this test case, Manuel Jack, employed as fireman in the Stafford mills, was the defendant. Counsel on behalf of the corporation admitted the contention that he was not licensed as a fireman, and that he was not hired to generate steam, but to shovel coal, and that the statute relating to firemen did not apply in his case. A licensed fireman testified that it was his duty to look after the making of steam. Jack was found guilty of firing without a license, and fined $10.

Congressman Lovering Robbed.

Brussels, Aug. 3.—William C. Lovering, member of the United States house of representatives from Massachusetts, was robbed while on his way from Osten to this city. Mr. Lovering, while in the station at Osten, was jostled by two men, but took little notice of the occurrence at the time. On arriving in this city, however, he discovered that his pocketbook, together with $13,000, valuable papers and notes, had disappeared. The matter was placed in the hands of the police.

Iowa Republican Nominations.

Des Moines, Aug. 3.—The Republican state convention nominated the following ticket: Governor, L. M. Shaw; lieutenant governor, J. C. Milliman; superintendent of public instruction, R. C. Barrett; railroad commissioner, E. A. Dawson; supreme court judge, John S. Sherwin. The first four nominees are the incumbents, and were renominated by acclamation. The resolutions approve the administrations of President McKinley and Governor Shaw, commended the action of the Iowa congresssmen in supporting the Dingley tariff and the maintenance of the gold standard, and in their support of the administration of President McKinley in his policy in peace and war. They endorse David B. Henderson as speaker of the house of representatives, declare for the gold standard, denounce the Chicago platform and its declaration in favor of free trade and free silver coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1, and its attacks upon the courts; favor restraint or abolition of trusts that prove hurtful to the people; approve the conduct of the war, and praise the heroism of the soldiers; declare that there should be no division among us until all in arms against the flag are subdued, and favor legislation which will regain for American ships the carrying of our foreign commerce.

Spanish Generals' Defense.

Madrid, Aug. 3.—At the sitting of the court-martial before which Generals Toral and Pareja are being tried on charges of having surrendered to the Americans before exhausting all means of defense at their command, General Pareja's counsel read telegrams exchanged with the commander-in-chief, showing that Guantanamo only capitulated on orders from a superior officer, and that the town was without either provisions or means of defense. The other officers advanced a similar defense. The judgment of the court-martial was deferred.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

Your Wife's A Judge.

Let her look at the laundry work we do. She knows more about it than you do. She knows how hard it is to do perfect laundry work, and she'll appreciate perfect work when she sees it.

The thing you are more interested in is promptness. When we tell you we'll deliver your laundry Wednesday evening, that doesn't mean Saturday night at eleven o'clock.

HER MAST COLLAPSED.

Columbia Will Have to Be Rigged Over at a Heavy Expense.

Accident In Midst of a Contest With Defender.

Perfect Discipline Prevailed Aboard the Craft and Nobody Was Injured.

Bateman's Point, R. I., Aug. 3.—While the big race between the Columbia and the Defender was under way, about noon yesterday, with the Columbia well in the lead, the latter's mast broke off about 50 feet from the deck, and she was dismasted. A number of tugs and steam yachts hastened to her assistance at a point about four miles southeast of Point Judith. The Defender stood by ready to lend any assistance.

CUP DEFENDER COLUMBIA.

The new boat was towed up to her builders' works at Bristol a total wreck above decks. Her new steel mainmast was bent double, just about half way between the deck and the masthead, and all that remained of her magnificent spread of canvas and specially made rigging was piled up in a heap about the stump of the mast, a tangled mass of wire shrouds, metal turnbuckles, blocks and ropes. Practically all that remained whole was the steel boom and gaff.

The dismasting of the Columbia occurred less than an hour after the new and old cup defenders started on the beat out, when the two contestants had covered about half the distance. Columbia was leading at the time and was steadily drawing away from her rival. The two boats were holding along on a port tack and into the Point Judith channel, about three miles off the point, the new boat having the weather position, when there was a sound of breaking spars aloft, and in an instant the topmast went crashing down to leeward, carrying with it the fine new club topsail and small jibtopsail. The steel mainmast buckled in the middle and down came the upper end of the spar, and the huge mainsail dropped into the water on the starboard side. All hands escaped injury.

The discipline was excellent, not a man leaving his place until Captain Barr gave orders to clear away the wreckage and get the canvas aboard, and then the crew went to work, the Columbia drifting with the waves, a dismantled and sad looking craft.

As soon as the accident occurred, Defender, which was the nearest yacht to Columbia, ranging up alongside her rival, stood by for a time and then went on a little jaunt out to sea. The steam craft near at hand and all kinds of yachts soon reached the boat. Many of the yachts offered to tow Columbia back to Newport, but as Mr. Iselin had previously accepted the offer made from the Associated Press tug, S. C. Hart, to stand by and take Columbia in tow, he declined the offers.

The crew had the hardest work getting the mainsail on deck, for the canvas was weighed down with water and rendered unmanageable by the spars and rigging.

For some time no one knew just what had been the cause of the accident, for there was certainly not strong enough breeze blowing to cause it. It was finally found that the port spreader had broken upward by the strain of the topmast shroud, causing the topmast to break off. The sudden breaking of the spar, the weight of the topsail and clubs coming against the starboard masthead shrouds, was too much for the steel mast, and it instantly collapsed.

The topmast shroud, which Mr. Iselin says was the cause of all the trouble, was not in just the position to properly support the topmast, which fitted into the masthead, telescopic fashion, instead of being stepped forward of it.

No such serious accident ever before befel a cup challenger or defender in these waters as this one. The expense of rerigging Columbia will be heavy, and although most of the wire shrouds and stays can be used again, they will necessarily have to undergo a severe test as to their strength. The hull of the boat was not seriously damaged, the only perceptable injury being a large dent in one of the metal plates on the starboard side.

WALKOVERS FOR CHAMPIONS.

Even Up Matters by Easily Taking Two Games From St. Louis.

St. Louis, Aug. 3.—"It was only luck that St. Louis beat us yesterday," remarked Fred Tenney, the Bostons' first baseman, "and you bet we evened up matters by walking away with today's double-header. The boys were eager for revenge, and you bet they got it." It was just as Tenney said; both games were walkovers for the champions. They outplayed St. Louis from start to finish, winning both games.

"Horse and Horse."

Dorval, Que., Aug. 3.—Yesterday was another Glencairn day, the Canadian boat, winning her second, being the fourth race for the Seawanhaka cup. During the race there were all kinds of breezes, and it was difficult to say at times which boat had the advantage as to wind. Undoubtedly, however, Duggan's able seamanship told well in placing the Glencairn five minutes and 39 seconds ahead of the American challenger at the finish.

Kaiser's Boat Is Swift.

Cowes, Aug. 3.—While on Tuesday the Meteor gave Britannia a time allowance of 10 minutes, in yesterday's races the positions were reversed. The Rainbow was scratch and had to allow the Britannia one minute, the Meteor seven minutes and the Bona 19 minutes. At the end of the first round the Britannia was 12 minutes behind and the Meteor defeated the Bona by about 10 minutes. The Meteor has thus won three principal prizes.

Closely Watched by Miles.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The war department is watching with great solicitude the progress of yellow fever at Santiago. Reports are more encouraging, but it is realized that there is still danger in the situation. In this connection it is learned that as late as July 8 General Miles formally recommended the removal of the United States troops now quartered at Santiago to some port on the northern coast of America. It is said that the rate of infection among the soldiers at Santiago is greater at this time, in proportion to the number of men present, than last year. General Miles, it is understood, called attention to this fact in his recommendation and urged it as one reason for the prompt removal of the men to the north. Thus far his recommendations have not been carried out, but Secretary Root and General Miles had a conference yesterday on the subject.

Pope Denounces Italy's Attitude.

London, Aug. 3.—The Rome correspondent of The Daily Mail says the pope, through Cardinal Rampolla, papal secretary of state, has addressed a note to the nuncio abroad denouncing the attitude of the Italian government towards the holy see in connection with The Hague conference. The note says that all the governments except the Italian desired to see a papal delegate there. "This unworthy spectacle will be severely judged by history," says the pope, "while the papacy will lose nothing by the exclusion."

Concerning Osborn's Nomination.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—A dispatch to the Cologne Gazette from Apia calls the nomination of Mr. Osborn an unpardonable and unjustifiable abandonment of German interests in reference to Anglo-American feeling. The Berlin newspapers, however, express themselves generally as being satisfied that Mr. Osborn will not neglect German interests in Samoa.

Suicide's Body Found.

New York, Aug. 3.—Workmen engaged on the Osborne estate, 1½ miles from Rye, discovered the body of a man hanging from a branch of a tree. From letters found in the clothing, the man is supposed to have been Hans Knudsen of New Haven. It was evidently a case of suicide. The body had evidently been hanging there for at least two months.

Root Makes Calls.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Secretary Root, accompanied by Adjutant General Corbin, called on Assistant Secretary Meiklejonn, General Miles and the heads of other bureaus of the department yesterday. The conference with General Miles was quite extended.

Shamrock Sets Sail For the Contest For the America's Cup.

All Aboard Confident of Beating the Columbia.

Captain Ben Parker, an American, "Loaned" by the Kaiser to Lipton.

Fairlie, Aug. 4.—Amid a whirlwind of enthusiasm the cup challenger Shamrock started for the United States yesterday afternoon to bring back the America's cup.

Every man on board, from captain down, was full of confidence in the ability of the yacht to accomplish the purpose for which she was built. Her captain, Archie Hogarth, shouted to those on shore as the yacht weighed anchor: "The cup is as good as in the Shamrock's locker."

SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

This feeling is shared by all the crew. Sir Thomas Lipton himself is fully as confident. He was in high glee, and he evidently felt the importance of the position which just now he occupies in international sport. Occasionally he seems to be affected by the plaudits of the thousands of spectators.

A dense throng ran along the shore cheering, shouting and waving handkerchiefs and flags. Again and again the great crowd burst into "Rule Britannia" and the song ran all along the line.

Siren whistles on yachts and steamships added to the tumult. They were ablaze with color wherever a flag could be hung or nailed.

Everybody ashore and afloat cheered until tired nature forced a truce and then the enthusiasm found vent in shaking and waving all sorts of banners.

The Shamrock expected to start earlier in the day, but a slight mishap to her bowsprit delayed her somewhat, and it was 5 o'clock when she started, accompanied by the steamer Erin.

Sir Thomas Lipton is an Irishman. Archie Hogarth, her skipper No. 1, is a Scotchman; Wringe, skipper No. 2, is English. Her crew is made up of Englishmen, Swedes, Norwegians and others.

Der kaiser wishes the cup challenger so well in her attempt to lassoo the America's cup that he has loaned her the services of his sailing master, who commands the royal yacht Meteor. This sailing master is an American, Ben Parker. He will assist and advise Captain Hogarth. That is, so the arrangement is stated, but being an American, Parker is very likely to take the helm of affairs himself and let the others do the assisting.

If Captain Parker does take the tiller on the Shamrock he will do all in his power to make her win. That makes the Shamrock more dangerous than does her extraordinary sail spread and other dire things she is thought to have up the sleeve of her rudder case. With an American sailing the challenger, there may be harder work ahead of the Columbia's men.

As the course of the Shamrock will be south of the track of ocean steamships it is expected that she will not be reported until she nears the Azores.

Addressing the crew on his farewell visit, Sir Thomas Lipton expressed his confidence that they would strain every nerve to win the cup. If they succeeded, he said, he would show his appreciation of their services in a manner that would satisfy all. He bade them remember that the eyes of the civilized world were upon them, and he remarked that he was entirely confident that they would get as fair play in the United States as anywhere in the world.

The breeze gave Shamrock a good run down Fairlie roads, and even in the broken water she left practically no wave. She appeared to be a good weather boat.

If Shamrock and Erin lose sight of each other, the plan is to run for the Azores, and another rendezvous has been arranged between the Azores and America.

Shamrock carries two collapsible boats, a cutter gig and a dinghy, and is provided with all the necessaries for the safety of the crew.

Constance Grounded.

Dorval, Que., Aug. 4.—Yesterday's race, which was to have been the final one for the Seawanhaka cup, between the American challenger, Constance, and the Canadian defender, Glencairn, turned out most unsatisfactorily, for Skipper Duggan had to sail his boat over the course alone, while Mr. Craig of the Constance protested the race, because of his yacht having taken ground with her centre-board in maneuvering on the starting line. The sailing committee decided that the race should be awarded to Glencairn, despite the protest of the owners of Constance.

Taylor's Phenomenal Feat.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Major Taylor, the cyclist, rode a mile, paced by a steam motor, at the Garfield park track last night in the phenomenal time of 1:22 2-5, thereby beating the world's record by 5 3-5 seconds. The first quarter was made in 20 1-5 seconds, half in 39 2-5 and three-quarters in 59 3-5. Taylor's performance was not aided by wind shields or any other device, being simply a straightaway paced race. The Garfield track is a half mile in circumference.

Will Be Quickly Repaired.

Bristol, R. I., Aug. 4.—Columbia's broken mast was taken out yesterday. The pine mast will be stepped today, and the boat will be all rigged by night.

Opposed to Slugging Matches.

Denver, Aug. 4.—Mayor Johnson has vetoed the ordinance placing the license for athletic clubs, which conduct sparring contests, at $1000. In his message the mayor said: "I am unwilling to approve any ordinance which would make it possible to have repeated in Denver such a brutal contest as was witnessed in this city about one week ago, at one of these so-called athletic associations." It is not likely that the ordinance can be passed over the veto.

Hope For Consumptives.

Washington, Aug. 4.—A new remedy for tuberculosis developed in France has been reported to the state department by United States Commercial Agent Atwell at Roubaix. It consists in the daily injection into the bronchial tubes of essence of eucalyptus, thyme and cinnamon, held in solution in olive oil. The oil in descending slowly comes into contact with the walls of the tube and upper lungs. The gas set free saturates the air in the lungs and acts on the mucuous membranes. In 16 cases treated, after one or two weeks there was in all a lessening or complete cessation of the cough and expectoration, as well as a return of sleep, appetite and strength.

Revolutionists Growing In Strength.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Aug. 4.—It has just become known that an armed insurrection has broken out at Las Vega, a town 78 miles west of San Domingo, in favor of Jiminez, who aspires to the presidency in succession to the late President Heureux. Later advices from the Dominican republic indicate that the revolution is growing in strength. At Santiago De La Cruz 500 well-armed men have risen under the command of General Ramon Pacheco, and General P. Reyes, who is very influential in those districts, has joined the insurgents, with several other generals, each commanding fairly important forces.

MISS JEWETT'S PLANS

Not Favored by Mr. Dart, Who Came North In Baker Family's Behalf.

Opposed to the Spectacular Way of Giving Aid.

Another Phase of Case Which Has Split Colored Bostonians Into Factions.

Boston, Aug. 4.—Rev. J. L. Dart, president of the normal and industrial institute of Charleston, has been in Boston for over a week to provide immediate assistance for Mrs. Baker and to start a fund for the education of her children, but he has found it necessary to call attention to one way in which, he says, his efforts have been impeded. At one of Mr. Dart's first meetings, at which William L. Garrison was present, Miss Lillian C. Jewett proposed that the Baker family be brought to Boston at once by the colored people. Miss Jewett in a way became the central figure of the meeting, and her proposal took the enthusiastic fancy of her hearers, but the sober second thought of the colored people of Boston developed a strong opposition to bringing the family north at all, and, if the thing was to be done, to putting it without inquiry into the hands of Miss Jewett, hitherto unknown to them. Several stormy meetings have been held by the colored people since that time, and at present they are divided into factions, for and against Miss Jewett. Mr. Dart has expressed himself strongly against Miss Jewett's plans.

"Since I came here," said Mr. Dart, "Miss Jewett has come forward and tried to divert attention from the main purpose of my visit, and has started a movement to go in person to South Carolina and bring the Baker family here. She has some of the colored people of Boston behind her, but the majority of the leading class in this city and elsewhere are opposed to the movement, as are many of the whites. Several of her faction have waited on me and asked me to co-operate with them in bringing the Baker family north; but I have stated to them that I am decidedly and emphatically opposed to the plan during the present state of division and excitement among the colored people of this city. I feel that it would do no good to the people here; that it would not help Mrs. Baker, and would tend to intensify race feeling in the south. I have advised promoters of the enterprise to drop the whole matter and to let it rest for the present. If Mrs. Baker is to be brought north, let it be done in the future and not in the present.

"But this active element seems bent on carrying out its objects, and has already sent Miss Jewett and others to Charleston with the intention, I believe, of bringing Mrs. Baker to the north for exhibition purposes in this and other cities. The purpose is evidently to gain notoriety as well as to make profit out of these unfortunate and deluded people. I hope that the people of Boston will not be misled by persons who are not sincere in their undertaking, but have personal ends to accomplish.

"I wish it understood that I, for one, am opposed to the whole business, and am in no way connected with it, and that the fund started by Mr. Garrison and reputable colored people of this city for the personal, direct and immediate aid of Mrs. Baker and the education of her children will not be used to forward Miss Jewett's plans."

In connection with this fund, Mr. Garrison has written a letter saying that the movement under his control for the relief of the Baker family is in no way connected with that represented by Miss Jewett. The money contributed through him will be placed in the hands of George W. Williams, Jr., president of the Carolina Savings bank of Charleston, and will not be used to encourage any proposal to bring the Baker family north for spectacular purposes.

Held For Grand Jury.

Dedham, Mass., Aug. 4.—Joseph E. and John W. Seery, charged with the murder of their mother, Ellen Seery, a widow, at East Dedham, July 2, were arraigned before Justice Grover Thursday. They were held without bail, to await the action of the Norfolk grand jury, which comes in at Dedham, on the first Monday in September next.

Transport Badly Damaged.

St. Johns, Aug. 4.—The French dispatch transport Mancho struck an iceberg while off the coast of Labrador and had her bows stoved in. She will go into dock here for repairs, which will occupy about four weeks. As the vessel is largely constructed of wood, there was no great danger of her sinking, although the injuries she received would have sunk an iron ship.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Sun rises—4:40; sets, 6:59.
Moon rises—3:52 a. m.
High water—10:45 p. m.

High temperatures will continue generally, except in the northwestern and extreme western states and in the lake regions eastward. Showers and thunderstorms are indicated today, except in the southern and northwestern states. Saturday will be generally fair, except in New England, where showers are indicated. High temperatures will continue in the states now affected, with, however, temporary relief where thunderstorms occur.

Good Afternoon.

The town of Attleboro increased her valuation $1,535,019, yet her tax rate is $17 per $1,000.

The Hostess' victory at Manchester yesterday and the capturing of the Crowhurst cup conclusively confirms what was found out at the Quincy Yacht club races,—that she is the fastest boat of her size in the country. Messrs. Faxon and Keith may well be proud of her as Quincy is of them.

Those citizens who will be called upon to pay the street watering tax this year will undoubtedly do some protesting at the meagerness of the sprinkling. In years past the streets have been kept fairly wet down, so much so that in the dryest weather the surface of the road retained enough moisture to always keep the dust from flyng to any appreciable extent. It is our impression that they were sprinkled at least three times a day. This year some of the streets are sprinkled but twice,—once in the morning and once in the afternroon,—by a stream of water which is so near like a light spray that the dust is not laid. If the streets are to be wet down but twice a day the watering cart should be equipped with studebaker sprinklers such as are used by the city of Boston on the carts in its employ. These carts send a stream which permanently lays the dust. So far as sprinkling the streets go, the Quincy carts make a bluff at it and nothing more. Either the streets should be sprinkled three times a day or else more powerful sprayers should be placed on the carts. As the sprinkling is now conducted, within an hour after a watering cart has passed over a much traveled thoroughfare, the water has dried up, the dust is flying and continues that way for upwards of six hours. Many of our people are forced to pay a special tax for this sprinkling. Complaints are heard from all sides that it is not properly done. They should not be compelled to pay for something which they are not getting adequate returns.

Drift of Opinion.

☞What a serious charge is that which is made by a retiring inspector of police in Boston, who claims that crooks are allied with the police department of that city. The charge should certainly be the subject of a rigid inquiry.—Brockton Times.

☞Culture is ever subservient to the practical things of life. Sing Sing's art school is temporarily suspended because so many of the convict pupils and teachers therein are needed in the new sash and blind industry of the prison.—Lewiston Journal.

☞We suppose Dewey knows the value of his words and that he has been reported correctly. Therefore his statement that Germany had intended to make trouble at Manila, and that America's next war will be with Germany, should deserve serious consideration. But it must be remembered that fighting men are always looking for a scrap, and that Dewey is nothing if not a fighter.—Bridgeport Post.

☞The United States does not want an island in a chronic state of anarchy as a near neighbor to Porto Rico. Santo Domingo must get into the traces of law and order or move away from the vicinity of our territory. The latter is impossible; the former barely possible. If the Dominicans don't behave themselves Uncle Sam may present them with a little ultimatum.—Bridgeport Post.

ONLY 43 MEN

Went to Camp Thursday With Company K.

The camp of the Second Brigade is now well established at South Framingham. The Fifth had on Thursday 61 men, the Eighth, 432; the Ninth, 674; the Cavalry 171; Battery A, 94; the Signal corps, 23; and the ambulance corps, 27.

The Fifth had 45 absent with leave, and 167 without leave. The 611 was made up as follows: Field, staff and band, 60; Co. A, 33; Co. B, 45; Co. C, 52; Co. D, 47; Co. E, 41; Co. F, 44; Co. G, 43; Co. H, 47; Co. I, 51; Co. K, 43; Co. L, 55; Co. M, 50. It will be seen that eight companies had more than Co. K, and only two less.

The Globe says, "On arrival the regiments marched direct to quarters and the camp was quickly got in order for the seven day's stay on the field. With the exception of a few tents at headquarters the work of pitching the camp of the 5th had been left until the arrival of the regiment. The men as they lined up in their company streets, however, when to order was given to pitch camp, made short work of it, and before dinner call was sounded, the whole camp was up and thoroughly policed. This is also true of all the commands, and in the tents there was a total absence of all unnecessary furniture, bureaus, fancy lamps and rugs being tabooed, and even the gun racks were orderd out of the cavalry quarters.

In the review the brigade was led by Lieut. Sprague of Quincy and his signal corps. The Herald says of the Fifth:

"The step of all the companies was excellent, and distances were very good. It was a reminder of a twelvemonth ago, on this same field, when the 5th, tuned up to the limit, gave exhibitions of marching that were worth an admission to witness."

The Journal report says: "Here comes the Eighth, decimated, it is true, but giving the lie to its defamers, Lieut. Col. Bailey is in command. These are good men, every one of them, that are here," said Gen Bancroft, "the Eighth has done even better than than I had expected it was possible for them to do. It shows that the real soldiers of the regiment are with it." After the Eighth followed the Fifth under Col. Joe Whitney. It has 611 men and the companies all looked well. It came up to the reviewing point with a good deal of the old snap and swing that Lieut. Col. Weaver worked so steadfastly to unite. He would be proud of his boys were he here. The Ninth was unfortunate in its band, which chose "Onward Christian Soldier," for its marching music, and gave the cadence altogether too slow. The Ninth came down upon the reviewing point with more steadiness, but the ragged step of some of the companies showed the number of its new men.

Only a Nickle.

Equivalent to some poetry that has been passed from door to door in this city, which the carrier demanded two cents from each lady, the following verse was written by a prominent gentleman in this city; thinking a handsome sum might be gatherd by presenting it from house to house. How well he has succeeded we have not been informed.

My health this summer is very poor,
(Do I look it—the way I fill my pants?)
So I go about from door to door
And ask the ladies for what I wants.
I am sure to give them each a tickle
For all I ask of them is a nickel.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Joseph Bang for assault on Samuel Cohen was called and he paid a fine of $10.

ANOTHER CUP WON.

And This Time the Hostess Gave the Heiress a Handicap.

The Hostess won again on Thursday in a handicap race against eleven crack yachts, and won the Crowhurst cup, a valuable trophy offered by Mr. Francis Waterhouse of the Manchester Yacht club.

It was a race for boats under 25 feet all in one class, with the cup as the first prize, and three cash prizes.

The course was a triangular one, first a run to Little Haste buoy, then a beat to Martins Ledge buoy, and a reach home.

The Hostess soon took the lead, but the Heiress was a close second. At Little Haste they were only a length or two apart. The fog shut down before the second mark was reached, but the Hostess found it first, and rushed for the finish line, crossing 1 m., 5 sec., ahead of the Heiress, while the other boats were way behind. The summary gives the time:

Name and owner.	Length. ft.	in.	Actual time. h.	m.	s.	Cor'ted time. h.	m.	s.
Hostess, H. M. Faxon,	20	11	1	17	02	1	05	11
Heiress, Hayden & Parker,	20	04	1	18	07	1	05	41
Dauntless, Benner & Patten,	17	11	1	27	11	1	12	06
Pirate, B. B. Crowninshield	20	11	1	26	03	1	14	12
Tunipoo, J. L. Bremer,	20	11	1	26	23	1	14	32
Thelma, F. L. Pigeon,	20	09	1	26	27	1	14	26
Persimmon, C. H. W. Foster,	20	11	1	27	23	1	15	32
Lizana, E. V. R. Thayer,	20	11	1	27	56	1	16	05
Cyclone, F. G. Macomber,	15	00	1	47	26	1	28	25
Witch, F. L. Wigglesworth,	14	06	1	54	15	1	31	39

Vixen and "77" did not finish.

At the conclusion of the race, the owners of the Heiress filed a protest against the Hostess on measurement. As the Hostess has been measured within a fortnight by both the Association measurers—Mr. Mills,—and the measurer of the Quincy Yacht club,—Mr. Harrison,—and found considerably under 21 feet by both of those officials, it is hard to understand upon what grounds they base this protest.

Q. Y. C. to Celebrate.

At the regular monthly meeting of the House Committee of the Quincy Yacht club, which was held on Thursday evening, Commodore Rice presided. Secretary Hall read the records of the last meeting. The Committee unanimously voted to celebrate the club's 25th anniversary with a band concert and illumination of the club house on Wednesday evening, Aug. 16.

Committee of arrangements consists of Commodore Rice, Vice-Commodore Davis, Mr. George W. Jones and Mr. J. S. Whiting.

Henry E. Sheldon is away for the summer.

Frank Kemp and daughter are expected home from Scotland this month.

Commencing next Monday cars on the Boston, Milton and Brockton street railway will leave East Milton for Mattapan at 10 minutes of and 20 minutes past the hour. Returning cars leave Mattapan for East Milton, connecting with cars for Quincy at 5 and 35 minutes past the hour. Cars for Randolph will leave Milton Lower Mills at 10 minutes of and 20 minutes past the hour. Returning will leave Randolph on the even hour and half hour.

☞Dwarfing all other questions of local import at the present time, stands that tax rate of $21.60, by which Brockton comes dangerously near leading all the cities of the commonwealth. We are not ambitious for this kind of distinction. Commenting on the situation here, the Salem News says: "The trouble in Brockton, as in too many other cities, centres in the fact that there is too much talk about the reform and too little work in the line of performance." — Brockton Times.

Gen. Bancroft has ruled rum off the state militia grounds without an if or an and, which means that a good many of 'em, especially of the class fired with a holy ambition to guzzle at somebody else's expense, will fall miserably short of the usual good time there this year. Officers and all come under the edict, which is one the people have been waiting for a long time. It takes nerve to do this kind of a job, but Bancroft has plenty of it. —Milford Journal.

—Tobacco has not been found growing wild in any part of the world, and its original abode, is, therefor, unknown. It is believed to be a native of tropical America. It is sometimes found growing as a weed, but in all cases the plants have been traced to an Indian field or settlement.

—The ground in the natural gas region of Indianna is said to be so permeated with gas that it is dangerous to drop a match in a well sewer or any sort of digging in the district. Several serious explosions have resulted from the incautious work of well cleaners.

—No kissing ever occurs in Japan, except between husband and wife, not even between a mother and child; no shaking of hands in salutation. If one were to offer a kiss to a Japanese maiden she would probably think she were going to be bitten.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A Department Store.

The Quincy Department Store Co., is the name of a new company just incorporated, with John F. Merrill as President, Alonzo G. Durgin treasurer, and J. W. Cobb, general manager.

The announcement that such a company has been formed will be in the nature of a surprise, for it was not until Thursday evening that any information was permitted to be known by the public, by those interested in the formation of the new company.

Mr. Durgin, when seen by a representative of the Ledger this morning, said as consolidation seems to be the order of the day we have decided after due consideration to organize the Quincy Department Store Co. believing that the public can be served better and be given goods cheaper in this way than as individuals. The business will be on strictly department store lines on a cash basis enabling us to buy and sell much cheaper.

The store will occupy the whole of the ground floor of Durgin and Merrill's block and a part of the second floor, and will not be equalled by any department store in Boston or New York except in size.

Alterations will be begun at once, partitions will be removed and the front changed, so as to give new entrances and larger show windows. This means a complete renovation of the whole first floor, the only thing to remain unchanged being the entrance to the second floor.

It is expected that the new store will be in full operation on or before October 1.

Life at the Shellton.

W. L. Garrison.
Buck and Wing Dance,

Jessie Farrier.

Cuff's orchestra also furnished music.

Landlord Remick now reports a full house, all the 30 rooms being taken for the season.

Saturday evening there will be a whist party, and on Sunday Cuff's orchestra will be in attendance.

Horgan & Slattery Fail.

New York, Aug. 4.—Horgan & Slattery, architects, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the clerk's office of the United States district court yesterday. The liabilities are $191,392.49, with no assets. They claim to have had an office at 63 Park Row, but state they have had no place of business for six months.

Cherry Roly Poly.

Make a dough same as for baking powder biscuit and roll it into a thin, oblong sheet. Drain two cupfuls of pitted cherries, spread them evenly over the top of the dough, leaving an inch wide space along each side. Sprinkle a cupful of sugar over the fruit, sift one tablespoonful of cornstarch or flour over this and form into a roll like jelly cake. Wring a muslin cloth a little larger than the dumpling out of hot water, flour the inside, wrap it around the roll and baste closely together. Set a plate in a kettle, lay the dumpling on it, cover deeply with boiling water and boil steadily for 1¼ hours. Do not uncover the kettle except toward the last to see if more water is needed. Serve hot, with a sauce made of one heaping cupful of sugar and one-third of a cupful of butter beaten to a light cream. Just before serving flavor with lemon and whip in the white of two eggs beaten to a stiff froth.

LADY CHURCHILL'S MAGAZINE.
The Anglo-Saxon Review, Most Aristocratic Periodical Ever Published.
BY ANDREW DOWNS.

The first number of The Anglo-Saxon Review, that gilt edged literary exploit of Lady Randolph Churchill, is out. It is a quarterly magazine and the most expensive periodical ever issued. Its price is a guinea, $5, a number. It is published simultaneously in London and New York.

The initial number bears out all the promises of luxurious magazine making with which its appearance had long been heralded. It has about the same relation to the 10 cent magazine that a palace car does to an ox wagon.

Those enthusiasts who expected that each contribution would be signed by an emperor, a queen, or at least a lord, may be disappointed, but the ordinary reader will be impressed with the distinguished names of contributors.

As a specimen of bookmaking it is very fine indeed. And so it should be, for this department of the magazine is in the hands of Cyril Davenport, F. S. A., of the British museum. The cover is of dark blue morocco with a wealth of gilt decoration. The design is a facsimile of a book cover made in France for James I about 1604. It shows the English royal arms enmeshed in arabesques.

It is understood that in the bindings of successive numbers of The Anglo-Saxon the side covers will always be different, though the back will ever remain the same. But in every case the side covers will be a replication of famous bindings of the past, preferably English.

The Review is 12 inches long, 7½ inches wide, 1½ inches thick and contains 256 pages. It is admirably printed on very heavy and expensive paper. The type is large and clear and the margins wide. The illustrations, of which there are eight, are photogravures exquisitely executed. The frontispiece is a reproduction of the Onslow Ford bust of Queen Victoria.

COVER OF LADY RANDOLPH CHURCHILL'S NEW MAGAZINE.

The other illustrations are portraits of Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, from a miniature; George Washington, from a painting by Gilbert Stuart; Sir Robert Peel, from a painting by John Linnell; Anne of Austria, from a painting by Rubens; the Countess of Pembroke, from the painting by Marc Gheeraerts, and the Duchess of Devonshire, from a painting by Sir Joshua Reynolds.

"The explanations of the production of another Review will be found in the number of those already in flourishing existence. The excuse must be looked for in these pages," says the introductory by the editor. "The first object of every publication is commercial. 'No one but a blockhead,' says Dr. Johnson, 'ever wrote except for money,' and the Anglo-Saxon is not disposed to think lightly of his wares or set low value on his effort—for otherwise his green and gold brocade would soon be threadbare.

"Miles of newspapers, tons of magazine articles, mountains of periodicals are distributed daily between sunrise and sunset. They are printed; they are read; they are forgotten. Little remains. And yet there is no reason why the best products of an age of universal education should not be as worthy of preservation as those of a less cultivated era. * * * This book is published at a price which will insure its respectful treatment at the hands of those who buy it. It will not be cast aside after a hurried perusal. It appears, too, in a guise which fits it for a better fate. After a brief, though not perchance unhonored stay on the writing table, it may be taken up into that valhalla of printed things—the library."

Of the 18 contributors six, including the editor, were born in America. There is a very Henry James story called "The Great Condition." Elizabeth Robins writes about "A Modern Woman, Born in 1689," being Lady Mary Montagu.

Whitelaw Reid tells of "Some Consequences of the Last Treaty of Paris," from which it may be inferred that there will be no more treaties signed in Paris. Lord Rosebery has a fine article on Sir Robert Peel.

When one looks upon the beautiful volume it is patent that many will willingly pay $20 a year just to see it in their library. It has a great distinction. It breathes an aroma of high society.

Most people appreciate a good thing at a fair price, but some few will have only the things that cost the most money. The "Ivory" is the favorite soap of most people. Some few want the high-priced toilet soaps and think they must be better because they cost more. No soap is more carefully made, or is made of better materials, than Ivory Soap.

IVORY SOAP IS 99 44/100 PER CENT. PURE.

WALL PHOTOGRAPH RACKS.

Decorative, Convenient, Easily Made and Easily Carried About.

Most women like to have the counterfeit presentments of relatives, friends or celebrities round them and hardly consider a room furnished without a few portraits standing about, but we have too much even of a good thing, and there is nothing so uncomfortable as a room in which hardly a vacant spot can be found to deposit a book or a cup of tea because of the photos and other trifles which fill the tables. In these days of flats and fitments, when every nook and corner must be utilized, the wall is made to accommodate many a space saving contrivance, and among these may be numbered the wall photo rack. For travelers, too, who wish to give a homelike touch to the temporary abiding place in summer hotel or boarding house it is a convenience, because it may be packed flat and carried in the trunk.

Besides the advantage of getting eight or nine cabinet photos out of the way and yet en evidence, a wall photo rack may be quite an ornamental addition to a room provided it is in harmony with its surroundings both as to color and material. Do not, for instance, put a dainty white brocade rack on a wallpaper which is getting shabby, for instead of brightening up the room it will only make it appear dingier by contrast. Choose materials which will not clash with your furniture, either, and make the foundation of the rack of wood a quarter of an inch thick, 16 inches long and 7 inches wide, or of very stout cardboard.

The covering should be of colored silk, satin or sateen, which must be cut two inches wider and six inches longer than the foundation of the rack.

Make two folds in the material about two inches deep and four inches apart, pin them into position and then stretch the material tightly across the foundation and glue or tack it at the back, thus forming the two upper "pockets" shown in the illustration.

The lower pocket looks best in a contrasting shade of velveteen or brocade, trimmed with strips of antique gold braid. This pocket should be put on in the same way as its fellows, but it is desirable to make it at least an inch deeper.

When the front of the rack is finished, a strip of sateen should be fastened across the back to cover the rough edges, and brass hooks may be screwed into the top corners of the rack, which can be used either for photos or letters and is in both cases useful and ornamental.

Another Georgia Lynching.

Blakely, Ga., Aug. 4.—Louis Henderson, a negro, who has been in the employ of J. M. Bowman, a planter in this county, for four years past, attempted to commit an assault on the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. Bowman. He was captured by the father, and was hanged by a mob.

AN ORDINANCE

Regulating Plumbing.

Engrossed Ordinance No. 28, 1899.

CITY OF QUINCY.

In the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety nine.

Be it ordained by the City Council of Quincy as follows:

SECTION 1. No person shall carry on the business of plumbing unless he is a plumber and shall have first registered his name and place of business in the office of the Board of Health; and notice of any change in the place of business of a registered plumber shall be immediately given to said Board of Health.

SEC. 2. Every plumber before doing any work in a building, shall, except in the case of the repair of leaks, file at the office of said Board of Health, a notice of the work to be performed, and no such work shall be done in any building without the approval of said Board of Health or its Inspector of Plumbing.

SEC. 3. The plumbing of every building, unless otherwise permitted by the Board of Health, shall be separately and independently connected with the public sewer, when such sewer is provided, or with a proper and sufficient drain connected thereto outside of the building, and if no sewer is provided with a proper cesspool.

SEC. 4. Pipes and other fixtures shall not be covered or concealed from view until approved by the Inspector of Plumbing, who shall examine the same within two working days after notice that they are ready for inspection.

SEC. 5. The Board of Health must be notified when the main drain, soil, waste, branch connections or ventilating pipes are in and ready to be tested.

The Board must again be notified immediately after the work is completed and before it is covered from view. All work must be left uncovered and convenient for examination until inspected and approved; and no drainage system shall be used until a certificate of approval has been granted.

If, on inspection the work is not satisfactory, the plumber shall be notified in writing and a limit of five days (unless otherwise permitted) given in which to complete said work; at which time the Board of Health must be notified.

SEC. 6. Drain and connecting ventilating pipes shall be of sufficient size, and made of cast iron within the building, and for a distance of at least eight feet outside, except that lead pipes may be used for short connections exposed to view. Such pipes shall be of uniform thickness throughout, and shall have an average weight not less than below specified, viz:

2 inch pipe,	3	2-5	pounds	per	foot.
3	"	" 5	"	"	"
4	"	" 6	2-5	"	"
5	"	" 8	2-5	"	"
6	"	" 10	2-5	"	"
7	"	" 13		"	"

Drain pipes shall be properly secured by irons to walls, laid in trenches to uniform grade, or suspended to floor timbers by strong iron hangers.

The space between these hangers shall not exceed ten feet. Every drain pipe must be provided with a running trap with an accessible brass screw cleanout, at or near the point where it leaves the building, and shall have a fall of at least one-quarter of an inch to the foot. Soil pipes shall be carried above the roof open and undiminished in size, and to a distance of not less than two feet above the roof, or not less than five feet above any window within fifteen feet. Changes in direction shall be made with curved pipes, and all connections with horizontal or vertical pipes shall be made with Y or long T Y branches. No trap shall be placed at the foot of a stack.

All branches of soil pipe twelve feet or more in length must be carried up not less than two feet above the roof undiminished in size, or more than two feet, if said Board shall so direct, or they may be connected with the main soil pipe above the highest plumbing fixture.

All drain pipe shall be exposed to sight where practicable within the building, and shall not be exposed to pressure where they pass through walls. Every part of every drain pipe below a cellar floor shall be accessible through sufficient unattached covers. In all cases there shall be an extra heavy iron pipe laid from eight feet outside and carried through the foundation wall and connected with the drain inside by a Y branch with a brass screw clean out in a direct line with the sewer or cesspool, and the drains when under the cellar bottom shall be of extra heavy iron pipe also.

Standard galvanized wrought iron may be used for ventilating pipes, when in the opinion of the inspector it is practical.

SECTION 7. When the waste pipe does not exceed three feet in length from its connection with the fixture to its connection with the trap, one round trap may be used for a sink and wash trays or for bath tub and bowl; if over three feet in length the waste pipe of each and every sink, basin, bath-tub, water-closet, slop hopper, and of each set of trays or other fixtures, shall be furnished with a separate trap, which shall be placed as near as practicable to the fixture that it serves.

Traps shall be protected from siphonage or air pressure by special cast-iron air pipes of a size not less than the waste pipes they serve, run from the crown or outlet of the trap. Lead air-pipes may be used only when they are exposed to view.

Air pipes for water-closet traps shall be of two inch bore if thirty feet or less in length, and of three inch bore if more than thirty feet in length; other air pipes shall be as large as the waste pipes from the trap. Air pipes shall be run as direct as practicable.

Two or more air-pipes may be connected together or with a drain pipe; but in every case of connection with a drain pipe such connection shall be above the highest waste connection with said drain pipe. No ventilation shall be required from a deep drum trap or traps in cases where all the plumbing is located on the same floor and where no soil matter is admitted.

Air pipes shall be so constructed as not to allow the formation of a trap, nor be used as waste pipes.

SECTION 8. All waste or overflow pipes from safes under water-closets and other fixures or from tanks shall be run separately to basement or cellar, and left open; in no case shall they be connected with a soil pipe or any other waste pipe. No waste pipe from a refrigerator or other receptacle in which food or provisions are stored shall be connected with a drain, soil, or waste pipe, but shall be separated therefrom by an open air sink or tray furnished with a trap.

No steam exhaust, blow off or drip pipe shall connect with a sewer, house drain, rain-water conductor, soil, waste or vent pipe.

Such pipes shall discharge into a suitable tank or condenser from which a proper outlet to the house drain shall be provided.

SECTION 9. Every water-closet shall be supplied with water from a separate tank or cistern and shall have a flushing pipe of not less than one and one-fourth inches in diameter; but this requirement shall not apply to water-closets substituted for vaults, where the same are located outside of the building proper; and such water-closets may be arranged so as to receive their supply directly from the main, with proper fixtures approved by the Board of Health.

SECTION 10. No saddle hubs will be allowed on any plumbing. No return bends will be allowed except by special permission of the inspector.

All connections of lead waste and ventilating pipes on sewer or cesspool side of water seal of traps shall be made with plumbers wipe solder joints, and no wipe cup joints will be allowed.

Every joint of an iron and a lead pipe shall be made by a brass ferule of the same size as lead pipe, set in the hub of the branch of the iron pipe and caulked with lead; the lead pipe to be attached to the ferule by a wiped solder joint. Every joint in a cast-iron bell and spigot pipe shall be made with packed oakum and molten lead well caulked, at least one and one-half inches deep, and made water and air tight, and no paint or putty shall be allowed until it has been tested.

SEC. 11. A suitable grease trap shall be constructed under the sink of every hotel, eating-house, restaurant, or other public cooking establishment so as to be easily accessible for inspection and cleaning.

SEC. 12. Existing plumbing in any building may be connected with the public sewer if considered sanitary by the Board of Health after a proper test.

SEC. 13. Penalty—Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be punished by a fine not exceeding (50) fifty dollars for each and every violation thereof, and his license may be suspended or revoked.

SEC. 14. This ordinance shall take effect upon its passage, and Ordinance No. 28, of the City Ordinances entitled "An Ordinance Regulating Plumbing in the City of Quincy" is hereby repealed.

Passed to be ordained July 21, 1899.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

Shock Killed Him.

Boston, Aug. 4.—An electrician and general workman, named James Corrigan, 43 years old, employed by the Boston Electric Light company, received a strong current of electricity through his body while fixing some machinery at the power house, and died soon after reaching the hospital.

News From the Gold Fields.

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—Steamer Charles Nelson arrived yesterday from St. Michael. The Nelson carried 111 passengers, who brought down about $150,000. The news from Dawson is not encouraging. Thousands of men are partment for yarn spinning. The sea-in every saloon. The government has already sent many back to their homes. The people at Nome scarcely know themselves the exact condition of the gold fields. The discoveries are so new that it is folly to attempt to either boom them or pronounce them of little value. There are many contradictory reports from the district.

Branded as a Coward.

Des Moines, Aug. 4.—The adjutant general is in receipt of Manila advices that Captain A. F. Burton of company B, Fifty-first Iowa, from Villisca, has been suspended for cowardice, and is now at Manila awaiting dishonorable discharge. Burton was school superintendent at Wymore, Neb., when the war broke out, and disappeared, going back to his old home at Villisca, Ia., and taking the captaincy of the company. He is reported to have deserted his troops in an engagement, and hidden in a ditch while the company went into action without him.

Chicago's Labor Troubles.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—As a result of the brickmakers' strike, all the building trades in the city may be locked out. This would precipitate the greatest struggle between employes and employers Chicago has ever known. It would be a battle to the death between the building trades council and the central association of contractors, made up of those operating in all the different building trades. There will be a meeting Saturday of the members of the association to consider the advisability of ordering the lockout.

Situation Well In Hand.

Washington, Aug. 4.—The yellow fever situation at Hampton continues favorable and encouraging in the opinion of the officials of the marine hospital service. According to official reports there has been no spread of the contagion since Thursday, nor have any of the cases now under treatment proved fatal since that time. It is hoped to confine the disease to the soldiers' home and Phoebus, but Surgeon General Wyman thinks it too early to make a definite prophesy regarding the outbreak.

William's Visit to Victoria.

London, Aug. 4.—The Daily Telegraph, which announces that Emperor William will soon pay a visit to the queen, comments editorially upon the fact as "disposing of the rumors that the emperor is trying to form a European coalition against England" and "showing the continued good relations between the two countries." The paper thinks the visit will be "productive in clearing up small misunderstandings."

A TALK ON POLITICS.

Roosevelt Holds Good Citizens Responsible For Our Shortcomings.

Ideals Should Not Be Followed With Heads In Air.

War Handicapped by Failure of Congress to Provide an Adequate Army.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 4.—Governor Roosevelt last night delivered an address upon "Practical Politics and Decent Politics" before a large audience here. On his arrival at Ocean Grove, it was with difficulty the governor made his way to his carriage through the cheering crowd. The governor stood up in the carriage, bowing right and left.

It was estimated that 10,000 persons assembled in the auditorium to hear the orator. Bishop Fitzgerald introduced Governor Roosevelt, who was greeted with long continued applause. Before beginning his address Governor Roosevelt called to the front and introduced to the audience Colonel Brodie of the Rough Riders, who led the charge of the left wing and was wounded during the Santiago campaign. Colonel Brodie received an ovation. Governor Roosevelt in part said:

"It is idle for the mass of good citizens to try to set themselves apart as not responsible for our political shortcomings. In the end the politicians must be exactly what the people allow them to be. They must represent the people—perhaps the vice, perhaps the virtue, perhaps the indifference of the people. Do not let us fall into the mistake of thinking that we shall ever make politics better by hysterics in any shape or form. Wild denunciation of all politicians, good and bad, is the very thing most advantageous to the bad politician. Your highest duty to the state is to see that you do all that within you lies to elevate the standard of public life, to demand honesty and efficiency in your public men and to frown on the system of lying slander which would teach you that there is no good and no bad; no black and no white; that everything is gray. Do not trust to sudden uprightness, to sudden insurrections of virtue. Do not get into the habit of permitting things to drift from bad to worse with the belief that you can always apply a revolutionary remedy. Revolutions are some times necessary, but government by revolution is not a success.

"We have a right to demand from our good citizens that they apply themselves steadily to their public duties and keep politics at a constantly high level. We never can have politics on a satisfactory basis in this country until we make it understood that dishonesty in a public servant is an unpardonable sin; that corruption of any kind or sort will not be condoned for any consideration of party expediency.

"Now this is decent politics, and therefore it is practical politics. But it is by no means all that there is of practic politics. It is not enough for you to what is honest yourselves and to insist upon honesty in others. You have also got to possess courage, and finally, you have got to possess common sense. In New York I firmly believe that the decent people could combine to overthrow the civic corruption if they only would; but they are so apt to fight one another, so apt to quarrel as to exactly how high the ideal of their government shall be that they too often throw the victory into the hands of those who have no ideal at all and who, in addition to a cynical belief in the power of corruption and in mere demagogy, also set about their work with practical common sense. Practical politics must be the politics of decency, but also the politics of courage, of common sense, of hard work. You must have high ideals, but you must not follow them with your heads in the air, blind to the practical methods by which alone they can be even partially realized."

"The call for great heroism in an individual or in a nation does not often rise. If you wait for heroic days before you exert yourself, you simply will be a drone. Still the need for heroism does now and then arise. Just at the moment the nation is face to face with a duty that calls for heroism. I mean our attitude in the Philippines. We shall be guilty of a terrible wrong to humanity if in the Philippines we retreat before armed savagery instead of organizing a suitable government which shall guarantee justice to everyone and an ever-increasing measure of liberty to those who show themselves worthy of it.

"The whole history of the world shows that the wrong done by the mere sentimentalist is often of larger proportions and more elastic than any other kind of wrong; and of this wrong we shall be guilty, if we fail to do our task thoroughly and well. It will call for but the merest fraction of our strength, provided only we choose to exert that strength. If, however, the people let their representatives in congress hamper the administration as they did last winter, when they refused to put the army upon a proper footing as to size, permanence and organization, then the people have themselves to thank if the war lingers, with difficulties and dangers increased. What the people have to do is to resolve to back up the president to the full in seeing that outburst of savagery is repressed once for all and, what is even more important, to see that these new tropic islands in the east and west alike are not left to be the prey of paupers and spoilsmen, but are governed primarily in the interest of their inhabitants and, therefore, ultimately for the honor and renown of America."

The audience expressed their appreciation of Governor Roosevelt's address by so much cheering that the governor was compelled to ask them to desist. Every allusion to the Philippines question was the signal for renewed outbursts of cheering.

At the conclusion of Governor Roosevelt's address the choir and audience closed the services by singing the Hallalujah chorus. Immediately after the exercises Governor Roosevelt drove over to Norwood, Vice President Hobart's home, where he spent the night.

JENNINGS DID GOOD WORK.

Four Runs Made by Baltimore Were Due to His Fine Playing.

Pittsburg, Aug. 4.—Jennings, who was unexpectedly swapped to the Orioles for Nops and Demontreville, was a big factor in four of the visitors' runs. His two three-baggers brought in two runs and he scored two on hits by Brodie. Notwithstanding this handicap, Pittsburg had three chances to win, but amateurish playing gave the victory to Baltimore.

Scared by Husband's Facial Contortions.

Bellefontaine, O., Aug. 4.—The most extraordinary complaint ever heard of in Logan county came to light here. Mrs. Luella O. Cole, now living in Hagerstown, Md., wishes a legal separation from Jonas O. Cole, a farmer's assistant of this county, better known the "the man who grins." She alleges there are periods when Cole gives way to mirth, and his facial distortions are horrible to witness. His mouth, she says, sliding from ear to ear, skin wriggling and eyes turning up, make him a most repulsive and fearful object, and on such occasions she is fearful of her life.

Unsound Speculation Is Alleged.

Berlin, Aug. 4.—The Deutsche Tages Zeitung publishes a sensational article predicting a great panic in the German money market. The paper says that during the last six months 1,595,000,000 marks of new shares were issued, of which 518,000,000 marks were industrial securities, which, it is added, exceeds the whole issue of 1898. A mass of evidence is quoted to prove the existence of unsound speculation.

Miners and Operators Compromise.

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 4.—The miners' strike at Blairsville has been settled on a basis favorable to the men. The miners struck for 30 cents, but compromised for 28 cents. This strike has been marked by the very best feeling between the operators and their men from start to finish.

WIPED FROM THE MAP.

Storm Has Swept Away the Town of Carrabelle---Thirteen Vessels Ashore.

Tallahassee, Fla., Aug. 4.—The first train from Carrabelle, through the storm-stricken gulf section since Monday, has reached here. The train crew and passengers agree that the reports of the destruction wrought by the storm have been extremely moderate. Carrabelle is literally wiped from the map. Her docks and wharves, containing about 400,000 feet of lumber and 50,000 barrels of rosin, were swept away. Thirteen of the 14 large lumber vessels in the harbor were blown ashore, and are now up on the dry land. The vessels contained several million feet of lumber.

No information is yet obtainable as to the loss of vessels from the large fleet of fishing boats in the neighborhood. Only two or three huts are left standing in Carrabelle, and one colored woman is reported to have been killed by the falling of a house. Citizens of Carrabelle are flocking in every direction for relief.

The towns of McIntyre and Curtis are completely demolished, and large interests have been destroyed. The coast resorts, St. Teresa and Lanard, are more seriously wrecked than at first reported, and visitors have suffered hardships, although no loss of life is yet known.

Fifteen men, seen fishing on Dog island just before the storm broke, cannot be found.

"Strikers Have Gone Too Far."

Cleveland, Aug. 4.—Grand Chief P. M. Arthur of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has been reported to the strikers for riding on Big Consolidated cars in disregard of the boycott. When asked if he patronized the Big Consolidated cars, Chief Arthur replied: "Of course I do. Do you suppose I am going to walk three miles down town when the cars pass my door? This agitation and the boycott are utterly ridiculous and the strikers have gone altogether too far."

P. M. ARTHUR.

More Trouble Likely.

New York, Aug. 4.—The expected cut in the wages of the Brooklyn "L" engineers has just gone into effect. The men are now called "motorneers" and receive $2.50 a day instead of $3.50. The surface motormen are to receive $2 a day and the bridge motormen $2.25. During the recent strike of the trolleymen the engineers of the elevated system, anticipating a cut in wages when the change from steam to electricity was made, sent a committee to President Rossiter to protest. The men declare that he gave them to understand that no cut would be made. President Rossiter says: "I never promised the men that they would continue to get $3.50 a day when they did the work of motormen."

Mrs. McKinley Gaining Strength.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Mrs. McKinley went driving twice yesterday, the president holding the reins, and Mrs. McKinley returned from the drives very much refreshed. The deer hunting season opens a week from next Tuesday, and President McKinley will have an opportunity of enjoying the sport. The deer are so numerous this year that they are coming out of the woods into the clearings and they are causing considerable damage to crops. The president yesterday had a call from Dr. A. D. Richardson of West Chazy, a farmer, 70 years of age, who walked 15 miles to shake hands with the president.

Departure From Old Customs.

Rome, Aug. 4.—The standing council of prelates has reported to the pope recommending the separation of the Latin churches in South America from the jurisdiction of the Spanish primate, the appointment of an American primate, the creation of Latin-American ecclasiastical tribunals and the branting of a special constitution regulating the relations of all the South American bishops with the civil authorities. The report suggests other far-reaching changes.

Scarcity of Fresh Meat.

Manila, July 30, via Hong Kong, Aug. 4.—The troops in the southern islands are complaining of the rations, which, they claim, are not suited to the climate and do not include sufficient fresh meat. During the six months' stay of the California volunteers at Negros the regiment was without fresh meat except for occasional supplies of inferior native beef. There was plenty of refrigerated meat in Manila harbor at this time, but General Otis refused to send any of it to Negros.

Greek Philanthropist Dead.

Alexandria, Aug. 4.—George Averoff, the wealthy Greek, whose gift of 1,000,000 francs for the restoration of the Stadium at Athens led to the revival of the Olympic games a few years ago, has just died in his 70th year.

In the erection of public buildings in Greece and the maintenance of public charities and other philanthropic interests, M. Averoff is said to have expended no less than $7,500,000.

Justice Chambers' Successor.

Berlin, Aug. 4.—A dispatch from Apia, under date of July 17, confirms the report of the appointment of Luther W. Osborne, United States consul general at Apia, as acting chief justice, and asserts that he was appointed on the proposal of Dr. Solf, German president of the municipal council.

The Social Realm.

The world's a wood in which all lose their way,
Though by a different path each goes astray,
The world's a labyrinth, where unguided men
Walk up and down to find their weariness.
No sooner have they measured with much toil
One crooked path, in hope to gain their freedom,
But it betrays them to a new affliction.
—Beaumont.

Birthday Anniversary.

A pleasant social gathering was held at the residence of Mr. Kenneth Hirtle on Bromfield street, Wollaston Park, Wednesday evening, the occasion being the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Hirtle's sister, Miss Hannah Esau. Miss Esau had been spending the day with her sister, and incidentally a number of friends had been invited to be present during the evening, and at an early hour made their appearance to the number of twenty-four.

After the guests had been introduced, Miss Christie Douglass called the assemblage to order and in a few appropriate remarks presented Miss Esau on behalf of those present with a beautiful and costly gold ring, set with pearls and rubies. Greatly surprised and deeply touched by the kind remembrance by her friends, Miss Esau responded in a feeling manner, thanking those present for their gift, and assured them it would be prized very dearly.

Games and merry-making were then introduced, after which ice cream and cake were served and a general good time enjoyed until a late hour, when the guests took their departure, wishing Mis Esau many happy returns of the day.

The New Organ.

The large organ which has been placed in the Wollaston M. E. church this week and which will be played for the first time on Sunday by George H. Ryder, the famous Boston organist, is attracting considerable attention for the improvements introduced into it.

The action is tubular pneumatic for both the stops and keys, and is consequently very reliable and not likely to get out of order. It is covered by twenty-eight letters patent and is used only by the builders of this organ, the Kimball Bros. Co., of Chicago, of which Mr. Ryder is the selling agent, and who installed the organ. The organ is elegant in appearance, exquisite in tone and perfectly adapted to the house.

The music on Sunday will include:

Priest's March, Andante,	Mendelssohn
Prayer,	Beethoven
Gloria,	Haydn
Gloria,	Moyant
Hallelujah Chorus,	Handel
Offertoria in G, Cathedral March, Twilight Whispers,	George H. Ryder

A PHOTOGRAPHIC ERROR.

I begged a "sitting," and she knew
I made my plates with care;
So she consented, for she, too,
Thought to be pictured fair.
If others, who to her might seem
Less fair, were in request
As models, why should she not dream
Of ranking with the best?

And now she will not speak to me!
Her frown my art disarms;
She never thought her face might be
One of her lesser charms,
And she is angry, much to my Regret, you understand,
Since I politely asked if I
Might photograph her hand!

Love at Long Range

Sentiment and Telegraphy—Dots and Lines That Were Full of Feeling.

Charles O'Meara was an operator in New York on one side of a quadruplexed wire running to Chicago. The operator on the corresponding side in Chicago was Miss Amy Davidson. Both were expert, and the manner in which they kept their message hooks clear excited the admiration of the chiefs in their respective offices. O'Meara was a handsome and intelligent young Irishman, with jet black hair and mustache and great soulful blue eyes—one of the kind of men who seem almost unconsciously to possess the power of fascination over women.

After having worked the wire together for a few months O'Meara and Miss Davidson became well acquainted, although, of course, neither had ever seen the other. They had abundant opportunity for conversation in the early morning before the rush of business for the day began and in the late afternoon when the rush was over.

There is a sort of telepathy in telegraphy, as all telegraphers admit, and there certainly was in this case. Long before any word of love had passed over the wire between them each had become conscious of a tender regard for the other. O'Meara could recognize in an instant the touch of a strange hand on the key in Chicago, and Miss Davidson was as quickly conscious of the change when any other than O'Meara's hand manipulated the transmitter in New York. There is as much that is distinctly characteristic in the manner in which telegraphers form the dots and dashes as there is in the manifold forms of chirography.

One morning Amy complained of feeling ill. "I am afraid," she said, "that I will have to give up and go home. I would do so surely if I could afford to lose the time. My head aches dreadfully. Dear me! What would my mother and sister do if I should become real sick. They have nobody to take care of them but me."

There was a tremulouness in the dots and dashes, which plainly indicated to O'Meara that the girl, a thousand miles away, was weeping softly, as indeed she was, with her head resting wearily against the resonator containing the sounder. He replied:

"Try to stick it out today, dear. We will take it easy, and perhaps you will feel better by tomorrow. At any rate don't worry."

It was the first time he had used any term of endearment in their intercourse, and she was much affected. But she brightened up a little and managed to struggle through the day's work.

Next morning O'Meara found a strange operator at the Chicago end of the wire, and when he inquired for Miss Davidson was told that she was very ill. The poor fellow realized now, if he never had before, that he was deeply in love with a woman he had never seen. He became so fretful and irritable as to excite comment among the others in the office.

"What on earth is the matter with O'Meara?" asked one of the operators on the opposite side of the "quad" of the man who sat at the next instrument

"I guess he's in love with the Chicago girl who is sick," was the reply.

One morning the answer made by the Chicago operator to O'Meara's inquiry as to Miss Davidson's condition contained but one word—"Dead."

O'Meara uttered a kind of moan, and his head fell upon his desk. When one of the chiefs aroused him, he found the young man's face flushed and his eyes bloodshot. O'Meara was sent home, where he remained for weeks, suffering from a severe attack of brain fever. When at last he had recovered and returned to the office to report for duty, the chief told him to take his usual seat at the Chicago quadruplex.

"If you'd just as lief, give me another wire. I'd rather have it," O'Meara said. "I don't think I care to work with Chicago any more."

There was a twinkle in the eye of the chief as he said

"You used to do some fine work on that Chicago wire."

"Perhaps so," O'Meara replied sadly, "but I had a fine operator to work with."

"Well," said the chief, "that's a fine operator there yet—the same one, I believe, that was there before."

"That cannot be—for she is dead." This with a great sob.

"I think you had better return to the old wire for the present at least," the chief said. "Then if you are not satisfied I will transfer you to some other circuit."

O'Meara walked slowly over to his old place to relieve the man who was at the moment receiving some messages from Chicago. As he neared the instrument and heard the characters coming with a dearly loved and familiar sound his heart almost stopped beating so overwhelming was the surge of emotion. He listened for a moment until at the beginning of another message came the signal of the sending operator, "A. D."

"Who in heaven's name is there in Chicago," he almost shouted, "that dares to sign 'A. D.?'"

"Amy Davidson, of course," was his friend's reply.

"Don't trifle with me," O'Meara cried. "Amy Davidson is dead."

"Not by a long shot," said the operator, making way for O'Meara. "It was only a rumor that some chuckle headed ass accepted as a fact. She has been back at work for two weeks or more. From the manner in which she has inquired about you every day I should imagine that she takes an interest in you."

When he sat down before the instrument, his hand trembled so that he could scarcely form the dots and dashes to ask:

"Is that really you, Amy?" He gave his own signal "O. M."

"Yes, Charley, and I'm glad you are well again." Her reply was as fluttering as his question had been tremulous.

Some of the operators in the New York office wondered at seeing a young man sitting at an instrument with tears of joy streaming down his face, while in the Chicago office there was surprise because a girl was crying and smiling at the same time.

When he had recovered his equanimity, O'Meara said:

"They told me you were dead and I believed it. The shock nearly killed me."

"It was merely a rumor, I'm happy to say. But when I came back to work I was greatly depressed at hearing you were so ill. Now we will both be well and happy again."

"I will never be thoroughly happy, my darling," O'Meara replied, "until you are my wife. I'm coming out there soon to claim you. May I?"

"Dear me, how can you wish to marry a girl whom you have never seen?"

This was another instance of tremulousness in transmission.

"That's all right," O'Meara said. "I'm willing to risk it if you are. I've known and loved you for a long time, even if I haven't seen you. Can I come for you?"

"I may be so homely that when you see me you may be terribly disappointed. I may have red hair and freckles, a cast in my eye and a terrible hump on my back. Could you stand all that?"

"Yes," replied O'Meara, "if you could stand my bald head and red nose."

There was more of this pleasantry, and then Miss Davidson seriously agreed to marry her distant lover. After many more conversations on the wire it was agreed that Miss Davidson and O'Meara should meet at a half way point—Pittsburg being finally selected—where they should be married. This course was chosen in the hope that the consummation of their peculiar courtship could be accomplished secretly, thus avoiding the good natured, but embarrassing chaffing of their fellow operators.

But that wire on which they made their arrangements ran through the Pittsburg office, where there were automatic repeating instruments. An operator standing beside the repeaters one day overheard the final arrangements; heard the description each gave the other by which to insure identification at the depot and told all about it to the Pittsburg operators, who thereupon determined to make the occasion of the wedding interesting. A committee was appointed to watch the meeting of the couple and to prepare for a reception.

O'Meara arrived at Pittsburg a day ahead of Miss Davidson, as had been agreed upon, and was at the station on the following day when her train pulled in from the west. His heart was beating wildly as he scanned the alighting passengers, and he was too preoccupied to notice that he was being watched by half a dozen young men.

Nor did he notice that he was observed closely by a tall, bronze haired and decidedly handsome young woman who had alighted from a Pullman car and was standing in the shadow of a baggage truck, loaded with trunks. There was a smile on the young woman's face as she finally stepped forward and touched Mr. O'Meara on the shoulder.

"How d'ye do, Charley?" she said.

"Are you indeed Amy?" he cried, grasping her outstretched hands in both of his. "You told me to look out for a short, curly haired girl with a limp in the left foot, and I gave you an accurate description of myself."

"Not so very accurate, though," she laughingly replied. "You didn't tell me half how good looking you are."

It was evident to the watchers, who now came forward, that they were pretty well satisfied with each other. The committee introduced themselves and announced that the couple were to be conducted forthwith to a hotel, where at 8 o'clock that evening they were to be married. This arrangement was carried out, and during the evening the Pittsburg operators and their wives and daughters attended the wedding reception and supper at the hotel.

O'Meara is now an officer in the signal corps, and he distinguished himself in the war with Spain.—Buffalo News.

Divorce In North Dakota.

From this day forward a year's residence will be required in North Dakota on the part of persons who wish to secure divorces. North Dakota will now come to be known, as its sister states are, for its fields, pastures, mines and natural resources. Heretofore it has been famous only as the state where persons might get a divorce while they waited.—Kansas City Star.

Mexican Prisons.

The term of a prisoner in a penitentiary is divided into three periods. The first is occupied with penal labor. The second is labor in the training school, with a little pay. The third, "preparatory freedom," includes paid work and many privileges.

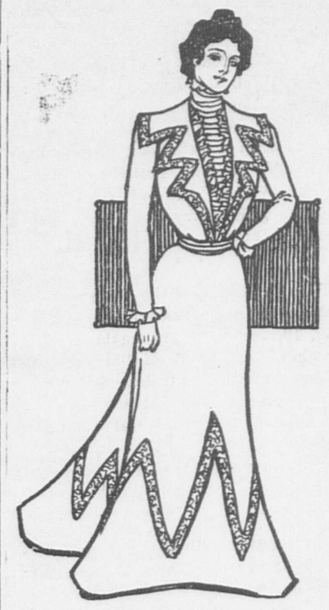

MIDSUMMER MODES.

THE CLIMAX OF FASHION'S ATTRACTIONS AND NOVELTIES.

Transparent Neck and Sleeves—Dimities Make Charming Morning Dresses—Old Fashioned Linen Traveling Gowns Revived.

Everything that is delicate and diaphanous is in high favor now, bringing visions of the old days when sloping shoulders, fichus and poke bonnets were leading features of fashion, says the New York Sun in presenting the modes from which the following are gleaned:

One of the distinguishing features of dress just at the moment is the use of embroidered batiste in white, cream and ecru tints. It is made up into gowns, lined with colored silk, pale pink for a choice.

Other pretty gowns are made of cream net dotted over with applique designs of cream lace, and elbow sleeves are one of the refreshing features of the latest summer costumes.

Transparent neck and sleeves are one of the special features of all the thin gowns, while another, which is quite new this season, is the belt of the same material to give the long unbroken line from the shoulder to the hem.

Printed chine silk muslin in both black and white grounds are very popular, as are all the cotton muslins classed under the head of wash fabrics. Muslin gowns in great variety loom up conspicuously in the vista of fashionable dress, but they are not the simple affairs that the name suggests. Extravagance runs riot quite as much among the thin gowns as any other variety, but the expense is chiefly in the making and accessories, with silk linings, miles of lace and ribbons for trimmings and the proper hats and parasols to match.

Dimities made up without any lining are charming morning dresses for the street, especially in the dark colors. Dark blue and black Swiss with white dots are very fashionable made up over silk or a dimity lining.

Muslin gowns are not the only division in summer dress which is expensive, for the pique, duck and linen suits carry a goodly amount of extravagance in their train. They must be up to date in every sense, tailor made, if possible, or they will not pass muster. White lawn or silk shirt waists are most generally worn with the pique coat and skirt, but colored silk waists with the white pique are very popular, as they were last season. Gray pique is very much worn, and with this the pale pink and blue shirt waists are very pretty.

In white pique is a pretty gown trimmed with white embroidered insertion set in around the skirt in points. The vest of tucked white lawn has an outer vest of embroidery which makes it very effective.

The old fashion of wearing linen gowns for traveling has been revived this season, and very pretty weaves are shown in this material. The ecru and gray tints are the prevailing colors, patterned with black or brown spots.

Among the new blouse waists of silk is one tucked in diamond form and trimmed with mechlin lace run through with satin ribbon. Another tucked silk waist shows a corselet belt of cream lace, and a wide collar of closely corded pipings in three shades of the color of the bodice is the special feature of still another bodice. Silk covered with an applique of lace forms the yoke, fastened with a double row of small black velvet buttons.

How to Cook Macaroni With Bacon.

Boil two or more ounces of nice streaky bacon, then cut it into small pieces and stir in a quarter of a pound of macaroni boiled as for macaroni cheese. If liked, add a few drops of vinegar, pepper and salt and serve very hot. Very little salt is required.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 6—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Drifting.—Eph. iv, 14; Jas. i, 1-8.

We are living in an age characterized by the unsettlement of faiths. The tendency of the age is to cast reflection and doubt upon the beliefs of the past, in science, literature, history and religion. Many past scientific beliefs are doubted or discarded. Literature and history fare little better. Doubt has been cast upon Homer's authorship of the "Iliad" and "Odyssey," William Tell's existence, Shakespeare's title to the plays which have been attributed to his name. This spirit is specially prolific in the sphere of religion. What is not doubted by some one? The result is that many are unsettled and unstable. Many do not know what to believe. They are drifting. They are "children, tossed to and fro and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive."

The tendency to drift with the current in such times is strong. On the other hand, the importance of steadfastness and stability in religious faith is unquestioned and unquestionable. He that wavereth, that doubteth, hath no power with God. "He that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed. Let not that man think that he shall receive anything of the Lord." Strong, real, unquestioned faith in God is the first essential to a satisfactory, progressive religious life.

To safeguard ourselves against drifting is therefore a very important matter. Some directions for doing so are suggested in the topical references.

1. Knowledge is a safeguard against drifting. Ignorance is the cause of much lack of stability. Knowledge is therefore the cure. The ignorant, like children, are easily influenced and easily deceived by the cunning craftiness of men. Christ has therefore appointed teachers of His word—apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors—for the very purpose of the edifying of the saints that they may not be imposed upon and deceived by false teachers. The regular attendant upon the ministry of the word is better safeguarded against the assaults of the tempter than one who neglects God's house. God also promises us wisdom in answer to prayer. "If any man lacketh wisdom, let him ask of God * * * and it shall be given him." Pray for wisdom to remain steadfast in faith.

2. Christlikeness is a safeguard against drifting. The reception and practice of Christian truth leads us "unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ," and thus we are safeguarded. The nearer we are to Christ in thought, word and deed, the harder it will be to lead us away from our faith in God, in Him and in a blessed future life with them.

Bible Readings.—Deut. x, 20; Job xi, 14, 15; Math. vii, 24-29; I Cor. xv, 58; Col. ii, 5; I Thess. v, 21; Heb. ii, 1-4; iv, 14; x, 23; xiii, 9; I Pet. i, 6-9; v, 8, 9; II Pet. iii, 17, 18; Rev. ii, 10.

The Company of Christ.

It was said of Melik Shah, one of the noblest of the Seljuk emperors, that "to belong to his household, to hold his commands, was not merely an honor and a privilege. It was also an apprenticeship in principles. In serving the sultan one grew like him, and a standard of conduct was thus set up, modeled upon the life of the royal master, the pattern and exemplar of the age. A chief or governor was esteemed by public opinion in accordance with the degree in which he conformed to the sultan's example."

These words could scarcely be improved upon as a statement of the privileges and duties of Christian discipleship. How truly to belong to Christ is "not merely an honor and a privilege," but "also an apprenticeship in principles!" If in serving the famous sultan one grew like him, much more is this true of the follower of Jesus Christ.—Evangelist.

Good Advice.

It will not pay to be always asking, Will it pay?

Infidelity plucks the flowers and scoffs at the gardener.

It is only the coward that finds it necessary to be cruel.

It is not opposition without, but apathy within that hinders.

Competition may be the life of business, but it is the death of the church.

The safety vaults of your heavenly treasures may be the hands of the needy.

To turn a new leaf is not enough, there must be a new life to make the record.

Many a man will slam the door in the devil's face and open a window to let him in.—American Hebrew.

A Dear School.

Experience keeps a dear school. But fools will learn in no other, and scarce in that, for it is true we may give advice, but we cannot give conduct. However, they that will not be counseled cannot be helped, and if you will not hear reason she will surely rap your knuckles.—Franklin.

Escaping Debts.

The Christian who prays that his debts may be forgiven of God should not act on the assumption that in lieu of that forgiveness he may escape his just debts to man.—Christian Intelligencer.

Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled.

Let not your heart be troubled.
Have faith. Believe in Me.
I go to prepare a mansion
In Father's house for thee.

Let not your heart be troubled,
Although I go away;
I will come again and receive you
Unto Myself some day.

Let not your heart be troubled.
How sweet those words to me—
That where He is, there also
I shall forever be.

IS NO REAL JUSTICE.

Ex-Queen "Lil" Says the Government of Hawaii Is an Oligarchy.

Inhabitants Know Nothing Whatever of Their Fate.

Confidence That America Will Act Honorably In Forming a Government.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The Post today prints an interview with Liliuokalani, ex-queen of the Hawaiian Islands, who is residing here. The former queen receives many letter from home, and says what the people need there is some head to the government. She adds:

EX-QUEEN LILIUOKALANI.

"Reports to the contrary notwithstanding, the islands are in a state of practical anarchy. We (I say we, because I count myself one of my people), have no laws but those which have obtained for many years and a few which have been foisted upon us by the Hawaiian republic.

"There is no such thing as real justice. The native has not the same standing when he goes to law with the white man, and even some of the foreigners find that they cannot obtain their dues. Laws are administered in a careless fashion. The government is an oligarchy, instead of a republic. Caprice dictates the administration of affairs. I speak with no bitterness whatever. I am merely endeavoring to give a correct picture of the conditions. The inhabitants of the islands know nothing whatever of their fate, or what sort of government will be placed over them."

Liliuokalani expresses every confidence in the honorable intentions of America, and hopes when a decision is made as to a form of government for the islands that the officials will be appointed from this country.

When asked as to her claim for confiscation of the crown lands, her majesty was somewhat reticent.

"I believe that my claims are just," she said simply. "I think that they will be respected. When the papers were filed no definite amount was stated, but the revenue resulting from the lands three years ago was about $150,000 a year. Since that time the lands have increased in value. I have heard that their annual income is now approximately $1,000,000, but I know nothing about that. There was certainly no warrant to dispossess me of them without payment."

Drunken Soldiers' Doings.

Atlanta, Aug. 5.—A riot between the regular and volunteer forces stationed at Fort McPherson yesterday resulted in the wounding of eight soldiers. The recruits of the Twenty-ninth volunteers had just received their pay, and, coming into town, spent most of it for liquor. On returning to the fort, some of the volunteers engaged in a controversy with the regulars, and they began to fight with bayonets and revolvers. The service of a company of regulars with fixed bayonets was required before order could be restored. As a result of the riot, eight men occupy bunks at the post hospital, and it is feared some will die.

Spaniards Acting With Courtesy.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Senor Quesada is in daily consultation with state department officials respecting the Cubans held prisoners in Spanish penal settlements. Mr. Storer, our minister at Madrid, is earnestly aiding in the effort to secure the release of these prisoners where their offense was purely political. The main difficulty experienced so far is in the identification of the prisoners, and to this branch of the subject Senor Quesada is devoting himself. The result has been the location, up to date, of 15 prisoners. The Spanish government is said to be acting with the greatest courtesy and consideration in this matter.

Battle With a Burglar.

Attleboro, Mass., Aug. 5.—Miss Lizzie B. Day, aged 60 years, who resides with her mother, aged 90 years, on Main street, had a desperate struggle with a burglar at her home. Miss Day was awakened by a flash in the face from a lantern in the hands of an unknown man, whom she grappled and fought desperately for fully 30 minutes, during which time a large amount of furniture was smashed. She sustained painful bruises, but is not seriously injured. She succeeded in tearing the coat from the intruder's back, but he finally escaped, without securing any articles of value in the house.

Yellow Jack Has Been Checked.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Official reports to the marine hospital service from the soldiers' home at Hampton show that the yellow fever situation there continues favorable. Surgeon White reports to Dr. Wyman that there is nothing suspicious in the town of Hampton. There were no new cases and two deaths at the home yesterday. Dr. Vickery, the surgeon at the institution, reports that the epidemic seems to be checked.

BERGEN AT WORK AGAIN.

Bostons' Crack Catcher Does Some Exceedingly Fine Work For His Team.

Boston, Aug. 5.—It was Bergen day at the Boston ball grounds. The Bostons' noted catcher was the cynosure of all eyes in the game between the returned champions and Arthur Irwin's visiting senators from Washington.

Bergen's absence from the team during the western trip seemed to be satisfactorily accounted for, and Manager Selee sent the expert in to catch with good results. The champions won out in an eyelash finish chiefly because of Bergen's clever back stopping and throwing to bases and his single in the last inning.

Weyhing, the old-timer, pitched scientific ball for Washington until the last round, only four hits and two runs being scored off his heady "benders," but the last inning proved his downfall.

Atherton, the visitors' third baseman, was partly the cause of their defeat, as he shifted towards third just when Bergen hit down between third and short and the ball rolled safe to left, allowing the tieing and winning runs to count.

Not Complimentary to Strikers.

Cleveland, Aug. 5.—The fact has come to light that Lucius F. Mellen was terribly beaten by strike sympathizers last Wednesday. Mr. Mellen is 68 years old, and is in a precarious condition. His family did not report the matter to the police for fear of further violence. Mr. Mellen rode on a Big Consolidated car Wednesday to a sign painting shop. He was followed into the shop by a boy, who told two men within that he had ridden on a "scab car." The men seized Mr. Mellen and threw him out of the door. He fell on the sidewalk, and the two men and the boy, reinforced by two other men, kicked him brutally. Mr. Mellen is one of the most prominent citizens of Cleveland and has been for years a leader of national fame in church and charitable work.

Frominent Lowell Citizen Dead.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 4.—Edward J. Rowell, president of the Lowell Courier-Citizen company, staying with his family at the Ocean House at Swampscott, died on a Boston and Maine train, near Everett, Mass. Death is supposed to have been due to heart disease. The deceased was 62 years of age, and was a prominent figure in the state, as well as in the city of Lowell, where he resided. He was an ex-mayor and ex-postmaster of Lowell, and served several terms in the house of representatives. He was president of the Lowell City bank, and a director of the Lowell and Andover Street railway. He is survived by a widow and one daughter.

Why William Didn't Visit Cowes.

London, Aug. 5.—The Berlin correspondent of The Daily Mail says: I learn that the real reason why Emperor William did not go to Cowes was the acute state of the Transvaal question. The letter delivered Thursday to the queen at Osborne House explains this, repeats the emperor's regrets and contains a promise to visit her majesty during the autumn. There is some talk of a previous meeting between the Prince of Wales and Emperor William at the Empress Frederick's castle near Homburg.

After Two Score Years.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Aug. 5.—The remains of the seven followers of John Brown, the abolitionist, who were shot and buried at Harper's Ferry 40 years ago, passed through this village yesterday en route to Lake Placid. The bodies were located by Dr. Haugh and Captain Hall of Washington and O. G. Libby of the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Libby has charge of the remains. The bodies are to be buried by the side of the old liberator in the little plot at North Elba.

To Consider Chamberlain's Message.

Pretoria, Aug. 5.—Herr Fischer, the special agent of the Orange Free State, has arrived here to confer with the Transvaal government, presumably with the view of the altered situation resulting from the message of Joseph Chamberlain regarding the appointment of a joint commission to inquire into the effect which the new franchise proposals of the Transvaal government will have on the position of the outlanders.

A Satisfactory Test.

Washington, Aug. 5.—An armor test was made at the Indian Head proving grounds yesterday of a 5½-inch plate, representing 700 tons of the casemate and belt armor of the battleship Alabama. Two shots from a six-inch projectile failed to pierce the plate, the greatest depression being 3½ inches, and there were no cracks. The armor will be accepted.

TWISTS AND WRIGGLES

Of an Amusing Nature Largely Figure In the Carranza Letter Case.

Detective Bell Claims His Affidavit Was Untruthful.

That Being the Case, Carranza's Claim For Indemnity Will Be Refused.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The secret service men here find endless amusement in the accounts given in the Canadian newspapers of the wriggles and twists made by the people concerned in the trial of George F. Bell at Montreal. The news that the presiding judge has taken the matter under consideration and will not announce his decision till next week does not surprise anyone who has followed the trial, because a more involved mass of evidence was probably never laid before a magistrate to straighten out, and if he had asked six weeks instead of one it would have seemed equally reasonable.

It will be recalled that Bell suddenly loomed into prominence on July 8 by the publication in a newspaper of a sworn statement prepared by him voluntarily and without even the incentive of pay, describing in detail the way in which he had stolen a letter written by Lieutenant Carranza of the Spanish navy, apparently proving the lieutenant to be the head of a spy system for keeping Spain informed of occurrences in the United States during the war. It was on the strength of this letter that the Canadian government expelled Carranza and his companion, Du Bosc, from the soil of the Dominion on the ground of abusing the hospitality of a neutral power. Carranza affected to be very angry at such treatment and promptly filed a claim against Sir Wilfrid Laurier for damages; and upon the settlement of this matter the result of the Bell trial will have an important bearing.

The first comedy element in the affair is found in the fact that Bell retained as his counsel H. C. St. Pierre, Q. C., who is also counsel for Carranza. St. Pierre, at a meeting of the bar some time ago, made an address, in which, referring to the subtler ethics of his profession, he asserted the opinion that no lawyer could honorably defend an accused person of whose guilt he was himself convinced. On July 11 St. Pierre expressed in an interview his belief that Bell stole the incriminating letter from Carranza, and stated at some length the reasons for this faith. How he reconciles himself in Bell's guilt with his professional defense of Bell against the charge of stealing the letter, he has not taken the trouble to explain.

The next amusing feature in the case is the fact that if Bell is acquitted of theft by proving that he perjured himself in the statement he made under oath for newspaper publication, the claim of his fellow-client, Carranza, suffers a severe blow. Shrewd men may say that it was a clever stroke for St. Pierre to hedge himself against defeat in any event by holding simultaneous retainers from two clients whose interests are such that if one fails the other may succeed and vice versa. This makes him reasonably sure of winning one case anyway.

Bell's original sworn statement stands or falls by one test. If, as he now pleads in order to defend himself against punishment for theft, he lied under oath in his newspaper account, the situation is left precisely as it was before this publication; that is, the secret service has on its files what purports to be the original letter written by Carranza, on the strength of which Sir Julian Pauncefote advised the Canadian government to expel the chief of the Spanish spy system. On that letter the Canadian government will rest its case in refusing Carranza's claim for indemnification. His only hope then will be the production of convincing proof that the letter was a forgery and the witness upon whom the whole brunt of proof would have fallen will have been by his own admission, proved unworthy of belief.

Still another comedy element enters into the case from the fact that the description by Carranza of the man who entered and who was believed to have carried away his letter tallies not with the appearance of Redfern, the Boston operative of the United States secret service, who, the authorities here insist, procured the letter.

The conclusion of the whole matter, summed up here, is that Carranza's authorship of the incriminating letter and his later efforts to crawl from under the effect of it, is about on a par for silliness with his now historic challenge of Captain Sigsbee and General Lee to mortal combat, and proves him to be the very model of a mediaeval cavalier; and that Bell's blatent claim of credit for the theft, followed by a cowardly attempt to escape the consequences of his confession, constitute a fine testimonial or recommendation on which to continue his career as a detective.

Africa Leads In Gold Produc's.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The director of the mint has nearly completed his estimate of the world's gold production for the year 1898. The data at hand seems to warrant the conclusion that the production will amount to at least $294,000,000. Africa leads all other countries, with $80,300,000, with Australia second, with $67,500,000, and the United States third, with $64,463,000. Russia is credited with $25,000,000, Mexico with $10,000,000, and Canada, including the Klondike, with $14,000,000.

No Law to Fit the Case.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Referring to the reports that goat meat is being sold in some of the western cities as mutton, Dr. Salmon, chief of the bureau of animal industry, says that the law provides only for the inspection of cattle, sheep and hogs, and that nothing short of congressional action will remedy the defect. Dr. Salmon says, however, that he does not anticipate much danger from the use of goat meat, as goats are generally healthy animals.

THE BUSINESS SITUATION.

Financial Firmness Gives Additional Evidence of the Expansion in Trade.

New York, Aug. 5.—Bradstreet's says: All signs indicate the maintenance of general trade and industry in an unprecedented midsummer volume. Specially indicative of this are the continued very heavy bank clearings' returns, largely increased railroad earnings, reflecting a traffic in grain and merchandise generally far in excess of a year ago; reports of activity in numerous lines of manufacturing industry, notably in all branches of iron and steel and kindred lines, woolen goods, boots and shoes and cotton goods and advices from leading markets of a satisfactory opening of the regular fall demand, with heavy shipments of goods on orders. The firmness of money at many centers is itself an additional evidence of the expansion in trade now in progress.

With the exception of food products, the price situation is generally one of maintained strength, advances being most numerous in the line of manufactured goods or in raw materials for manufacturing industry. Cereals are all lower on the week, reflecting the generally favorable crop outlook, and also some indifference as regards foreign buying of wheat, though export demand for corn has been apparently stimulated by recent price reactions.

All classes of iron and steel are either firmly held or tending upward, notable in this respect being all grades of pig iron, steel rails, structural material and bar iron and steel. Other metals are rather quieter, and tin shows some reaction from the high prices reached last week.

Wool is still moving upward in sympathy with improved demand for the manufactured article, but buying is more closely confined to manufactures, speculative dealing being apparently less noticeable.

Activity in building is reflected in very firm prices for lumber at the east, while at the west further advances, particularly in white pine, are noted.

Cotton is steady, pending further developments in the crop situation.

The boot and shoe trade continues in good shape, and hides are slightly higher on the week, with the finished product firm.

The anthracite coal trade appears to be well under control, and recent advances are reported maintained.

Western and northwestern trade advices tell of expanding fall trade.

Fall trade is opening well at the east. Boston reports wool firm, and slight existing differences between buyers and sellers.

Contrary to the usual customs, wheat supplies in this country and Canada increased during July to a trifling extent, it is true, but still nearly sufficient to offset the slight falling off shown in European supplies.

Four Thousand Redskins In Revolt.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 5.—A dispatch received from Hermosillo, Mex., the headquarters of the Mexican army operating against the Yaquis, says: General Torres, commandant of the military zone, was not killed as reported, but wounded in the thigh and is now very low. The government will place 1000 men in the field if necessary. The rebellious Yaquis now number 4000 well-armed warriors. Sixty Indians were killed in the fight last Friday and twice that number wounded. It is authoritatively reported that the Indians have slaughtered both women and children, and that many American prospectors have been slaughtered.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Star Pointer, 1:59¼, will start, for the first time this season, at Charter Oak Driving park, Hartford, on Aug. 31. He will go to break the pacing record of the world, held by him, receiving $2500 for the start, and an additional $5000 if he lowers his mark.

Samuel Burnham died at his home in East Orange, N. J., of heart failure. He was born in Essex, Mass., in 1825, and entered Phillips academy at Andover, Mass., intending to study for the ministry, but his eyesight failed. He was then chosen secretary of the American Tract society at Boston, and served a number of years. In 1869 Mr. Burnham went to New York and was associated with Orange Judd in the publication of The American Agriculturist."

During 1898 the United States made a record in lead production, the total mine product being 222,000 short tons, or 10,000 tons more than in the previous year.

The auditor for the interior department has rendered an opinion in which he holds that about $12,100 has been erroneously paid to members of the Sioux Indian nation. There is no evidence of fraud, the mistake being one of law. The comptroller suggests that the government withhold future payments to be made to the Indians who received the excess an amount equal thereto.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The completion of the million and a half dollar terminals of the Burlington Railroad at Quincy, Ill., marks an important stage in the development of that system. It was only five years ago that the road built into St. Louis, and established there an enormous freight yard, with a capacity of 3,000 cars. Elsewhere, at Chicago, St. Paul, Kansas City and Denver, the Burlington has facilities for handling freight and passengers that are unexcelled.

Sudden Death.

John L. Gleeson, of Brewer's corner, Quincy, was found dead in his room in the rear of his store shortly after 1 o'clock Friday. Mr. Gleeson complained of a dull pain in the breast in the morning and shortly before 10 o'clock told his clerk, John W. Nelson, that he was going to lay down. This was the last time he was seen alive. When found by his clerk he was laying on the bed dressed. The police were notified and Officer Barry and Medical Examiner Jones were soon on the scene. Dr. Jones made an examination and pronounced his death due to rheumatism of the breast. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker Hall.

Mr. Gleeson was unmarried and his only known relative is a sister who resides in South Boston.

Mr. Gleeson's sister, Mrs. Daniel Buckley of 151 M street, South Boston, was notified by the police and last evening came to Quincy and took charge of the body, which was removed to her home at South Boston. Mr. Gleeson was 55 years of age and had carried on the druggist business at Brewer's corner for several years.

$200,000 Land Sale.

The estate of James Edwards of Quincy sold this week a valuable piece of land on Huntington avenue Boston. Perry, the purchaser, was about $200,000. The land is opposite the chutes.

DEPARTMENT STORE.

The Business Men of Quincy Against the Scheme.

The proposed department store for Quincy does not meet with general approval among the business men of Quincy who see that it can not help but hurt their business. They also feel that there seems to be an effort on the part of some to control all of the business done in Quincy of what ever nature it may be. Department stores have always been a source of annoyance to business houses who confine their business to one line of goods, for this reason that department stores are continually cutting prices, so that a man who carries one line and tries to do a legitimate business finds it hard to get a living if he sells honest goods at less than a living profit. Quincy up to the present time has been in a sense free from a department store although some stores have attempted it on a small scale.

In some States it is said that department stores are subjected to a special tax which in a measure evens up matters and gives other dealers a chance. Massachusetts has no such law at present but it is sure that the matter will be brought before the Legislature next winter. A movement is now on foot looking to the formation of an association to be known as the Anti Department Store Association which will take in the whole State. The plan proposed by this association is the enactment of a law which will provide that every department store which employes fifteen or more clerks shall annually pay a tax of $500 for each department.

A representative of this association was in Quincy last week and succeeded in securing a number of members. The business men were asked to sign a petition to the Legislature for the enactment of the above law. Then if they desired they could become a member of the association upon the payment of one dollar. They were also asked to agree to pay $2 to help get the law enacted.

Several of Quincy's representative business houses have been seen by the Ledger in relation to the proposed new store, and there was not one who was at all pleased with the idea.

Some expressed themselves in a forcible manner, saying that they thought two or three men were trying to run the whole city. Some were willing to be quoted while others were not.

Joseph W. Johnson, President of the Quincy Grocers' Association, said he did not knew as it would injure his business much. He considered department stores but little more than the old-fashioned country store, where everything could be found. If the proposed new store cut prices they must purchase the quality of goods to meet those prices. People always flock to a new store for a while but in this case he could not say what the effect on other business would be in the long run.

John W. Nash said, in a sense, department stores are a nuisance, the way people are cheated. They advertise to sell cheap, but if a person wants good articles, they must pay for them, for good articles can not be sold for nothing. It was a shame to have these department stores advertise to sell goods cheap and then sell a poor quality of goods.

George H. Wilson did not think Quincy was yet ripe for a department store. It is too near Boston, for with the present accommodations for reaching Boston, people who have cash to spend will go there in spite of anything you can do. He did not think that it would effect the credit much, as people who pay by the month will not change. The cash trade however will feel the effects of it for a time at least.

A number of business men were seen this morning, who had their private opinions as to the proposed department store, but they declined to be interviewed for publication.

—Collis P. Huntington has written a letter to Judge V. W. Grubbs, Chairman of the State Committee of the industrial Commission, explaining his recent speech at San Francisco, wherein he said that the youth of the country were being over educated. Mr. Huntington says that education is not harmful in itself, but the generality of young men spend too many of perhaps the most valuable years of their life in the school room. The mass of boys, he declares, by carrying their education beyond the point required to enable them to cope with the practical details of business, gain a positive distaste for labor that does not come under the head "genteel," and as a result young men are crowding into poorly paid places, where they do not have to soil their hands or do manual labor and good chances for promotion go begging in many cases.

LARGELY ATTENDED.

Masonic Funeral of Dr. John H. Gilbert.

Seldom has there been a larger attended funeral in Quincy than that of Dr. John H. Gilbert which was held this afternon.

Private services were held at the late residence of the deceased at 1.30 o'clock and were conducted by Rev. Edward Norton, Rev. Ellery C. Butler being confined to his home by illness.

At the conclusion of the services at the home the remains were escorted to the First church by Rural lodge of Masons and South Shore Commandery, Knights Templars.

At the church Messrs. Frederick W. Tirrell, Dexter E. Wadsworth and Charles L. Hammond acted as ushers.

The services at the church were largely attended and were conducted in an impressive manner by Rev. Edward Norton music being by the Apollo quartette of Boston.

There was a profusion of beautiful flowers in front of the altar among them being wreaths without number large pillow from the different Masonic bodies, the physicians and from friends. There were also many large bouquets of summer and cultivated flowers.

After the services at the church the remains were escorted to Mt. Wollaston cemetery where the Masonic burial service was held.

Jennie Maude Dyer.

Miss Jennie M. Dyer, daughter of Mr. Brainard T., and Mrs. Maude Smith Dyer, died of heart disease caused by rheumatc fever on Monday, July 31.

Her early years were spent in Braintree, then her father moved to Worcester where the family lived for several years, and then returned to Braintree. She attended the public schools in town and then went to Cushing Academy at Ashburnham.

She was a member of the South Congregational church and very active in the Christian Endeavor society.

The funeral was held from her home on Dyer Hill, on Thursday afternoon, and was largely attended. The Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern, pastor of the South Congregational church, conducted the services, assisted by her uncle, the Rev. W. T. Dyer of Ashburnham. A quartette composed of Mrs. A. R. French, Miss Mary French, William E. Wilde and Louis E. Thayer, sang two selections. There was a most beautiful display of flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Dyer have the sympathy of the whole community in their great loss.

The body was interred in the family lot in the South cemetery.—Braintree Observer.

Braintree No. 72.

There are just 71 cities and towns in Massachusetts with a larger valuation than Braintree, a smaller number than generally supposed as there are 32 cities and 321 towns in the State. But 62 have a valuation of over $5,000,000, including the 32 cities and these towns: Amesbury, Arlington, Attleboro, Brookline, Clinton, Dedham, Falmouth, Framingham, Gardner, Greenfield, Hyde Park, Leominster, Manchester, Marblehead, Melrose, Milton, Milford, Natick, Peabody, Plymouth, Revere, Stoneham, Swampscott, Wakefield, Watertown, Wellesley, Westfield, Weymouth, Winchester and Winthrop.

Braintree had in 1898 a valuation of $4,557,425, and there were 15 other towns with a valuation of over $4,000,000, and less than $5,000,000. These towns with their population in 1895 will be of interest:

Hot at Camp.

Most of the other companies of the Fifth regiment increased their attendance at camp on Friday, but Co. K. again reported 43, and was the smallest in the regiment. The Ninth regiment had 675 men, the Fifth 622 and the Eighth but 475.

Friday was sultry and disagreeable.

The Signal Corps men, under Lieut. Sprague, made themselves useful by connecting brigade quarters with the local telephone exchange.

The Herald says the review was much better than on Thursday evening, although that was good. At 5.15 P. M. the brigade formed under Col. Whitney, 5th infantry, who had as his staff details from the other organizations. The formation was much more quickly performed than on Thursday evening, the brigade being formed in line of masses. There was some hesitation in taking up the march, after the ride of the reviewing officer and staff about the brigade.

Col. Whitney, of course, headed the column, and, with his staff, made a very pretty present to Gen. Bancroft. Sprague's signal corps led the brigade, looking very nicely.

Lieut. Col. Oakes headed the 5th regiment. This regiment went along in splendid shape, with alignment excellent and the distances, with two exceptions, good.

AN ORDINANCE

Regulating Plumbing.

Engrossed Ordinance No. 28, 1899.

CITY OF QUINCY.

In the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety nine.

Be it ordained by the City Council of Quincy as follows:

SECTION 1. No person shall carry on the business of plumbing unless he is a plumber and shall have first registered his name and place of business in the office of the Board of Health; and notice of any change in the place of business of a registered plumber shall be immediately given to said Board of Health.

SEC. 2. Every plumber before doing any work in a building, shall, except in the case of the repair of leaks, file at the office of said Board of Health, a notice of the work to be performed, and no such work shall be done in any building without the approval of said Board of Health or its Inspector of Plumbing.

SEC. 3. The plumbing of every building, unless otherwise permitted by the Board of Health, shall be separately and independently connected with the public sewer, when such sewer is provided, or with a proper and sufficient drain connected thereto outside of the building, and if no sewer is provided with a proper cesspool.

SEC. 4. Pipes and other fixtures shall not be covered or concealed from view until approved by the Inspector of Plumbing, who shall examine the same within two working days after notice that they are ready for inspection.

SEC. 5. The Board of Health must be notified when the main drain, soil, waste, branch connections or ventilating pipes are in and ready to be tested.

The Board must again be notified immediately after the work is completed and before it is covered from view. All work must be left uncovered and convenient for examination until inspected and approved; and no drainage system shall be used until a certificate of approval has been granted.

If, on inspection the work is not satisfactory, the plumber shall be notified in writing and a limit of five days (unless otherwise permitted) given in which to complete said work; at which time the Board of Health must be notified.

SEC. 6. Drain and connecting ventilating pipes shall be of sufficient size, and made of cast iron within the building, and for a distance of at least eight feet outside, except that lead pipes may be used for short connections exposed to view. Such pipes shall be of uniform thickness throughout, and shall have an average weight not less than below specified, viz:

2 inch pipe,	3	2-5	pounds per foot.
3	"	"	5	"	"
4	"	"	6	2-5	"
5	"	"	8	2-5	"
6	"	"	10	2-5	"

Drain pipes shall be properly secured by irons to walls, laid in trenches to uniform grade, or suspended to floor timbers by strong iron hangers.

The space between these hangers shall not exceed ten feet. Every drain pipe must be provided with a running trap with an accessible brass screw cleanout, at or near the point where it leaves the building, and shall have a fall of at least one-quarter of an inch to the foot. Soil pipes shall be carried above the roof open and undiminished in size, and to a distance of not less than two feet above the roof, or not less than five feet above any window within fifteen feet. Changes in direction shall be made with curved pipes, and all connections with horizontal or vertical pipes shall be made with Y or long T Y branches. No trap shall be placed at the foot of a stack.

All branches of soil pipe twelve feet or more in length must be carried up not less than two feet above the roof undiminished in size, or more than two feet, if said Board shall so direct, or they may be connected with the main soil pipe above the highest plumbing fixture.

All drain pipe shall be exposed to sight where practicable within the building, and shall not be exposed to pressure where they pass through walls. Every part of every drain pipe below a cellar floor shall be accessible through sufficient unattached covers. In all cases there shall be an extra heavy iron pipe laid from eight feet outside and carried through the foundation wall and connected with the drain inside by a Y branch with a brass screw clean out in a direct line with the sewer or cesspool, and the drains when under the cellar bottom shall be of extra heavy iron pipe also.

Standard galvanized wrought iron may be used for ventilating pipes, when in the opinion of the inspector it is practical.

SECTION 7. When the waste pipe does not exceed three feet in length from its connection with the fixture to its connection with the trap, one round trap may be used for a sink and wash trays or for bath tub and bowl; if over three feet in length the waste pipe of each and every sink, basin, bath-tub, water-closet, slop hopper, and of each set of trays or other fixtures, shall be furnished with a separate trap, which shall be placed as near as practicable to the fixture that it serves.

Traps shall be protected from siphonage or air pressure by special cast-iron air pipes of a size not less than the waste pipes they serve, run from the crown or outlet of the trap. Lead air-pipes may be used only when they are exposed to view.

Air pipes for water-closet traps shall be of two inch bore if thirty feet or less in length, and of three inch bore if more than thirty feet in length; other air pipes shall be as large as the waste pipes from the trap. Air pipes shall be run as direct as practicable.

Two or more air-pipes may be connected together or with a drain pipe; but in every case of connection with a drain pipe such connection shall be above the highest waste connection with said drain pipe. No ventilation shall be required from a deep drum trap or traps in cases where all the plumbing is located on the same floor and where no soil matter is admitted.

Air pipes shall be so constructed as not to allow the formation of a trap, nor be used as waste pipes.

SECTION 8. All waste or overflow pipes from safes under water-closets and other fixtures or from tanks shall be run separately to basement or cellar, and left open; in no case shall they be connected with a soil pipe or any other waste pipe. No waste pipe from a refrigerator or other receptacle in which food or provisions are stored shall be connected with a drain, soil, or waste pipe, but shall be separated therefrom by an open air sink or tray furnished with a trap.

No steam exhaust, blow off or drip pipe shall connect with a sewer, house drain, rain-water conductor, soil, waste or vent pipe.

WINS EVERY DAY.

Hostess Outsailed Heiress and 25-Footers Yesterday.

The Hotsess won again yesterday in the second of the open races of the Manchester Yacht club, outsailing the Heiress and Thelma. In the 25-footers the order was: Cartoon, Little Peter and Sally IV. In the raceabouts, the Pirate led the Tunipoo, Lizana, Pelp, Persimmon, and Coleen in the order named. Among the half raters the Jag withdrew and the Freak outsailed the Witch.

The Hostess led the Heiress and Thelma over the course, and on actual time also defeated all the 25-footers. The actual time of the 21-footers was:

Hostess, H. M. Faxon,	1	48	56
Heiress, Hayden & Parker,	1	51	10
Thelma, F. L. Pigeon,	1	55	46

Again the Heiress protested the Hostess and the Little Peter was protested by Sally IV.

Statement from Mr. Clare.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I wish to correct a statement which appeared in the Ledger this week. The fact is my counsel was on hand when the case came up and the counsel for the plaintiff was absent.

I also wish to say that the suit brought against me was intended to prevent my attending a stockholders' meeting held at Portland, July 12, 1899, at which meeting I was re-elected treasurer of the company by a majority of 10,661 votes.

The statement on which I am held was signed and sworn to by George E. Hatch and other directors. By giving this information to the public you will greatly oblige,

Yours very respectfully,

JAMES S. CLARE.

LETTER FROM CUBA.

From a Co. K Boy Now in Regular Army.

The following letter has been received from Henry Collins, formerly of Co. K, 5th Mass., U. S. V., but now of Co. L, 2d U. S. Infantry, which is located in Cuba:

Cienfuegos, Cuba
July 27, 1899.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I thought I would write you a few lines, so as to let you know that I have not forgotten my promise. I am in the best of health and enjoying myself. It is a great place over here and we are camped right on the sea coast, where there is a nice sandy beach. We go in swimming every day and the breakers are as high as your tent, and I tell you it is fine.

The people are very funny here, and they cannot talk English at all. All they can say is good bye. They do not wear hardly any clothing. The children do not wear anything at all. They look like a lot of rats and they will steal everything they can lay hands on, if you do not watch them.

The buildings are old timers, and they look like forts. There is a lot of pineapple orchards, and all kinds of fruits here, also lots of sugar cane.

I went out into the country the other day with another fellow and took a lot of pictures. I will send you some when they are developed.

I will tell you how I happened to get in this place. When I left Boston, I was assigned to the 13th Infantry and when I got to Fort Slocum, New York, they were all filled up, and so I was sent to the 2d U. S. Infantry. I was told I would have to go to Cuba. I tell you there is quite a change in this and the 5th Mass. Each man is supplied with an iron bed and spring and hair mattress; also a locker to keep his clothes in. When we move we do not have to carry our things in our blankets. All we carry is our gun, belt, canteen, haversack and empty blanket. The rest of your stuff is shipped with the company's property, so you see we do not have to make a pack horse of ourselves.

We live high—we have roast beef, potatoes, tomatoes, corn and peas every day for dinner; for breakfast, stew, oatmeal and milk; for supper we have beef, fried potatoes, peaches, apples, coffee and bread, so you see we do not live so bad after all. We drill one hour a day from 6.30 to 7.30 a. m., and I do guard duty every ten days, so you see we have lots of time to ourselves. Another thing, we do not have to dig any ditches or the like of that. The only thing the matter with this place is, I cannot get any chewing tobacco or anything to read. My address is

GRANITE CUTTERS

Return to Work at Hurricane Isle and Waldoboro.

A despatch from Rockland, Me., to the Globe says:—The strike at Hurricane Isle and Waldoboro is off. William S. White, manager of Booth Bros. and Hurricane Isle granite company received a letter this morning from James Duncan, secretary of the National granite cutters' union, in which he states that the national committee has voted to advise the branches at Waldoboro and Hurricane Isle to resume work on the stone for the naval academy building at Annapolis.

This decision was reached, after a consultation between the national committee, the architect of the naval building and P. J. Carlin, the contractor. The branches above mentioned were ordered out, it will be remembered, because it was claimed that Mr. Carlin had sublet other contracts on which non-union men were being employed.

Mr. Carlin established to the satisfaction of those present at the conference that he had no power to control the doings of his sub-contractors, but evinced a willingness to use all the influence in his power to have those contractors supply union men. And in the furtherance of this proposition, he has issued, or will issue, it is understood, a letter to the contractors, in which the expression of this sentiment is plainly set forth.

Work at Hurricane and Waldoboro will be resumed right away, it is understood. The Booth Bros. and Hurricane Isle granite company's portion of the Annapolis contracts amounts to $325,000. The work remains in the sheds just as the stonecutters left it when they went out several weeks ago. At Hurricane, 56 cutters are at work at present, the men having been employed in getting out stone for the Mill river bridge and a New York hospital. The bridge contract has since been completed.

While quite a number of the cutters have found employment in other New England quarries, there have been many applications for employment, and manager White thinks there will be no difficulty in getting all the men needed. Those who reside in this section, but went away to seek employment, will probably return.

Manager White proposes to increase the force at Hurricane to 112 cutters. The force at Waldoboro will be increased from 52 to 84.

The strike gave Booth Bros. and Hurricane Isle granite company an extension of time on the Annapolis contract, but it was a matter of regret on the part of the company and the workmen that much fine weather should have been passed in idleness, when there was an important contract on hand.

Manager White expresses himself as well pleased over the peaceful settlement of the strike. He voices the sentiment of the community, including that of a majority of the workmen, who went out unwillingly.

BOASTING OF JIMINEZ.

Aspirations to Dominican Presidency May Be Rudely Shattered.

United States Will Keep Close Watch Upon Him.

Declares That He Is the Only Leader Wanted by People of Santo Domingo.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Administration officials here are not disposed to take the Havana interview with Jiminez seriously. He will be watched, however, and if he undertakes to organize an expedition or violate in any way the laws of neutrality he will find the United States government in his way. If he undertakes to leave the United States he will be dealt with under the neutrality and navigation laws of the country, just as were the expeditions which were detected in their efforts to reach Cuba during the insurrection in that island. If he undertakes to go from Cuba he will be taken in hand by the military authorities. A dispatch from Havana on the subject says:

General Jiminez, when his attention was called to a cable summary of an alleged declaration made by him here recently, and published in the United States, to the effect that he was about to proceed to the United States to organize an expedition against the existing government of San Domingo, replied that he had not made the statement attributed to him; that it was quite unnecessary for him to proclaim himself hostile to the present government, as it could not possibly last beyond the 15th of this month.

"I did hear," he continued, "that Heureaux was sending men to Cuba to kill me, but I knew nothing whatever regarding the plot to kill him. I had no connection and have no connection with Ramon Caceras, who did the shooting.

"I do not believe that the United States will interfere with my government in San Domingo, which will be a government peaceful and helpful to all; for the United States did not interfere with the government of Heudeaux, who robbed and murdered for 14 years."

General Jiminez admits that he has often been to the United States incognito, but says he has not had interviews with official persons. He considers that there is no need of promoting expeditions to land in San Domingo, as already there are a thousand men waiting for him, a force which he deems quite sufficient for his purposes.

Referring to the future relations of San Domingo with the United States, he expressed a desire to be on friendly terms with Washington, and said he believed he could call upon American sympathy. Gomez he referred to as "esteemed by all classes of Dominicans, but not sought for as president."

The people of San Domingo, he declared, are impetuous and are urging him to come to them at once, but, for a time, he prefers delay, as "each day is worth a battle won."

In conclusion, he said: "For two years I have been working against President Heureaux. I have worked among foreign powers. I have landed filibustering expeditions, and at last my plans are successful. The people do not want Figuereo; they want me, and they shall have me."

All Citizens of Italy.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Count Vinci has not yet received the report of Marquis Romano, who was sent to Louisiana to make a personal inquiry into the lynching of Italians, though the marquis has sent a brief dispatch saying he has completed his inquiry at Vicksburg, near the scene of the lynching, and has secured convincing proof that the five victims were Italian citizens. Beyond securing information on the facts, neither government has thus far taken any action except in the expression of sincere regret over the affair by the United States and a return assurance by Italy that every confidence was felt that this country will employ all possible means required by the case.

Candler's Good Work.

Atlanta, Aug. 5.—Governor Candler of this state made a personal trip to Newnan to save the life of the negro, John Mullens, charged with an assault upon Mrs. Cook near Senoia, Ga., Wednesday. Governor Candler arrived at the public jail of Coweta county an hour after daybreak yesterday. He took command of the Newnan guards and a company of state militia which had been guarding the jail during the night from a mob and directed Sheriff Brown to take his prisoner at once to Atlanta for safe keeping. The greatest excitement prevailed in the town. The mob was successfully avoided and the prisoner was lodged in jail at Atlanta shortly before noon.

Queer Tale From Johannesburg.

London, Aug. 5.—The Johannesburg correspondent of The Times, who furnishes evidence of the attempts of the Transvaal government agents in the recent conspiracy case to manufacture testimony implicating the British government and South African league, says: "President Kruger's son, who is the head of the secret service department, tried to induce one of the witnesses for the prosecution to do his utmost to prove the case to be one of conspiracy on the part of the British government, as that would strengthen Mr. Kruger's hands. This was on the very eve of the Bloomfontein conference."

Twenty-Five Rounds to a Draw.

New York, Aug. 5.—Billy Smith and Andy Walsh met for a third time with five-ounce gloves last night, and as yet neither has gained a decision. On the two previous occasions the men fought 20 and 25-round draws, and last night they fought another 25-round draw. As far as viciousness goes, neither man lost an opportunity. Round after round they fought without either gaining the slightest advantage, and at the end of the 25th round it looked as if both could have gone on for 25 rounds more. Smith was the lighter of the two by 10 pounds.

CANADIANS DEEPLY OFFENDED.

Tone of Our Press Forbids Their Visiting Us In Any Social Capacity.

Washington, Aug. 5.—F. W. Fitzpatrick of the treasury department has just returned here from Ottawa, where he went at the instance of the committee of citizens of Chicago in charge of the ceremonies of laying the corner-stone of that city's great postoffice building next October by President McKinley, to arrange for the formal invitation and expected acceptance of an invitation from Chicago's citizens to the governor general and cabinet of Canada to participate in these festivities.

Mr. Fitzpatrick admits that his official reception was slightly chilly, Sir Wilfred fred Laurier candidly telling him that under the present conditions it would be impossible for him to accept or even to consider any social invitations to this side of the border. Mr. Fitzpatrick says that, in substance, Sir Wilfred's statements and answers to queries were as follows:

"As a friend, in whom I am deeply interested, I am very glad to see you, but, frankly, as a representative of the federal or any local government in the United States, your visit could not have been more untimely. When I received your first letter I took up the matter with the governor general, and he expressed a sincere desire to visit Chicago and seemed as anxious to accept the invitation as I was. We would have been delighted to go, and were looking forward to the day with much anticipation. But since then the tone of your press has become so harsh in dealing with the Alaskan boundary question, such misrepresentations have been made about our government, and particularly about me, that it would be undignified for us to visit you, and I cannot advise his excellency to go."

Mr. Fitzpatrick said that Sir Wilfred intimated that in the present state of public feeling in the United States, as indicated in the press, it would not be entirely safe for the governor general and himself to visit Chicago, as he feared that they might, in a great gathering at Chicago, be subjected to some unpleasantness or indignity by thoughtless persons.

Mr. Fitzpatrick secured Sir Wilfred's promise, however, to reconsider the matter of going to Chicago. Sir Wilfred expressed himself as strongly in favor of arbitrating the Alaskan boundary dispute.

De Blowitz' Remarkable Story.

London, Aug. 5.—M. De Blowitz, the Paris correspondent of The Times, gives an extraordinary explanation of M. Delcasse's present mission to St. Petersburg. He asserts that it was decided upon quite suddenly for "a reason which admitted of no delay," and then gives this story: "Emperor Nicholas is disappointed and tired of the throne. The absence of an heir excites his superstitious feelings; and he connects himself with a Russian legend, according to which an heirless czar is to be succeeded by a Czar Michael, predestined to occupy Constantinople. The death of the czarewitch and the failure of the conference at The Hague led him to decide to abdicate on the occasion of his coming visit to Darmstadt. On this becoming known in Paris, M. Delcasse was sent in hot haste to dissuade him from carrying out this intention."

Quoted a Dead Law.

Boston, Aug. 5.—Assistant District Attorney Sughrue yesterday served on the mayor and board of aldermen of Chelsea an official notice, calling attention to the fact that the mayor and board of aldermen had refused to grant soldier's relief to John White, a veteran of the Civil war, under chapter 237 of the acts of the legislature of 1893. Alderman James was one of those upon whom the notice was served, and he at once notified Mr. Sughrue that the law which the assistant district attorney had quoted had been repealed by the legislature.

Are They Really Engaged?

Cowes, Aug. 5.—While Lieutenant Churchill, son of Lady Randolph Churchill, denies the reported engagement of his mother to Lieutenant West, brother of the Princess Henry of Pless, the matter continues to be the subject of much conversation among their friends. Neither Lady Churchill nor the other interested parties have been seen about since the engagement was reported.

Order Not Signed.

New York, Aug. 5.—Justice Fitzgerald left court yesterday without having signed an order for the imprisonment of the five councilmen who refused to vote for the $2,000,000 bond issue for the new hall of records. The justice has gone to his country home at Long Beach, L. I., and is not expected to return to the city until Monday next. The order, therefore, will not be signed until next week.

Peculiar Marriage Agreement.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 5.—A marriage agreement between Andrew Whitney, the millionaire real estate owner of Fitchburg, and Jennie Moriarty, who were married in Fitchburg Saturday, was filed in the registry of deeds office in this city yesterday. Each agrees not to claim any of the property of the other, Miss Moriarty agreeing to have received a sum of money, reported to be $50,000.

Strikers Had a Dance.

Belfast, Me., Aug. 5.—There is apparently no change in the strike affecting the shoe workers here. A schedule of wages has been presented for consideration, but nothing has developed thus far. A big mass meeting was held last night, at which matters in general pertaining to the situation were discussed, and the affair closed with a social dance.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Sun rises—4:41; sets, 6:58.
Moon sets.

Conditions favor fair weather in the New England states. Fresh southerly winds will prevail along the Atlantic coast.

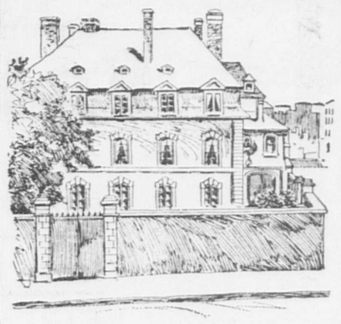

WHERE DREYFUS WILL BE TRIED.

Descriptions of His Prison, the Courthouse and Other Places of Interest In Rennes.

BY HOWARD SPENCE SINCLAIR.

The most important town in all Europe just now is Rennes, the quaint old Breton capital, where will presently be enacted the climax to France's great tragic drama. Dreyfus, the martyr of Devil's island, is there. So is Mme. Dreyfus. So are a host of other folks—government officials, great lawyers, swarms of detectives, army men and newspaper correspondents.

The center of interest, of course, is the military prison. It is a solid old stone structure. From without it looks very comfortable in spite of the heavy iron bars at the windows. Never before in its history has it held such an important prisoner. In fact, its cells have been but little used, an occasional unruly soldier or indiscreet officer making up its list of occupants.

It is surrounded by a heavy stone wall, as are many of the old mansions in the town. The only difference between the prison wall and those of the grand residences is that the former is topped with an iron fence and has little watchtowers at the corners.

The window of the cell which Captain Dreyfus occupies is wholly inaccessible from without. It overlooks a sort of courtyard, part of which is paved with brick, the rest being beautified with flowers, palms and shrubs.

Next to the prison, both in interest and location, is the military court where the second court martial will take place. There is a communicating passage between the two buildings, so that Dreyfus will not be exposed to the gaze of the crowds when he finally goes to face his accusers.

Many court martials have been held there in years past and many officers of artillery have answered charges at that bar, but no trial has ever been held which has attracted the attention of more than a handful of army men.

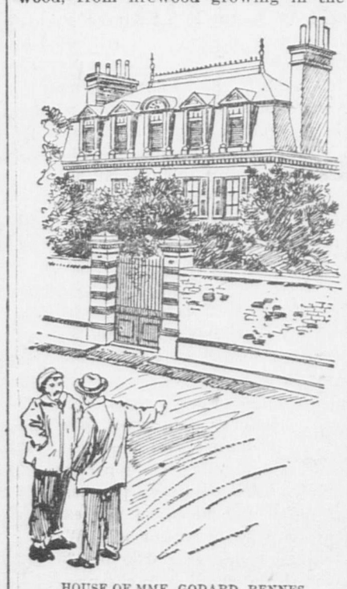

How different this one! The people of two continents, many millions of people of other races than the one to which the prisoner belongs, listen eagerly for the story of his attempt to get tardy justice from a prejudiced nation.

The courtroom has always been found ample before, but now the foreign and native press correspondents are beginning to wonder how they will all crowd into it with the judges, counsel, witnesses and court officers.

Another place of interest is the house in which Mme. Dreyfus is staying. It is the home of Mme. Godard, a plucky, wealthy little old French woman who has brought down on herself the active hatred of the great majority of her townspeople because she has opened her home to the afflicted woman who has suffered so much and so long.

Up to within a few weeks ago very few people outside of Rennes had ever heard of Mme. Godard. Now her name is hissed on the Paris boulevards and applauded in England and America.

Her husband is dead, but before he died they had made an ample fortune together from the sale of all kinds of wood, from firewood growing in the forests around Rennes to strange spicewood and dyewood from Asia and Africa. They really carried on a kind of business entirely original with themselves, and though they made a fortune out of it, it seems that now, when one of them is dead and the other retired, the business dies with them. Nobody has enterprise enough in Rennes to carry it on or to establish it in Paris and become richer still than funny little old Mme. Godard.

She has been outrageously treated by the Paris correspondents and bars them from her house, but the American and English correspondents she treats differently. In a recent interview she told why she offered an asylum to Mme. Dreyfus.

"This is how it all started: Mme. Dreyfus sent her agent to Rennes to prepare a suitable place near the prison, in which she should live during her husband's trial. To her surprise the agent returned in a few days to say that he could not rent a house for her in all Rennes, and that not a single hotel would take her in.

"Think of it! Now, I am not a 'Dreyfusarde,' as the Paris papers say, at all. I don't want to know anything about the case except this much: Mme. Dreyfus has won my admiration by what I know of her attitude during all this terrible trouble that has come upon her and her family, and as soon as I read that her agent had failed here I sat down and wrote her a frank little note, putting my house at her disposal.

"I did not then know what beasts were among my fellow townspeople, and I was glad when I received a graceful acceptance from Mme. Dreyfus. I do not know her; I have never seen her, and I stated that I would leave the house the day before she arrived, so as to leave her in the greatest privacy. But this she wrote to say she should not allow. Then began my troubles. I have been sometimes awakened in the dead of night by people shouting out against me beneath my very windows. And why? Because I had been moved to compassion by the unheard of injustice done to a good woman.

"If she could find neither lodging nor bread and wine elsewhere in Rennes, she could at least get both at my house, and not because I hold any definite opinion as to her husband's guilt or innocence, but because she deserves the respect of every human being.

"I am now almost afraid that Mme. Dreyfus will refuse the hospitality I have been so glad to be able to offer her. She has certainly heard of the persecution to which I am now being subjected and will fear to cause my ruin by coming here. But my blood is up," concluded the stalwart old lady, with flaming eyes. "They shall not frighten me or turn me out of the path I have entered. I defy them!"

And defy them, she has most effectually, for Mme. Dreyfus has lived under her roof in safety for some little time. It is expected that she will continue to stay as the guest of the courageous little widow until the end of the trial.

The aristocratic old citizens of Rennes were somewhat disturbed at first by the sudden influx of strangers, but they have become highly satisfied with the present state of affairs. The strangers have brought with them much money, and 20 franc pieces have never been changed so frequently in all the history of the old town as now.

Rennes is busy gathering in the franc pieces and the bank notes. The cafes find themselves forced to stretch themselves gradually out into the street to the very border of the river; the theaters have two performances a day, and even then cannot offer room to all who want to come. Bands play on every street corner, and the long disused fountains in front of the superb old Mairie are set hurling their snowy tongues toward the sky. The two lazy music halls are inundated; the hotels burst with guests; the force at the telegraph office has been quadrupled.

And all this because the court of cassation chose Rennes as the place where Dreyfus should be brought a second time before his judges. The longer the trial is delayed the larger the harvest of money; every day must mean thousands of dollars for those of the population who are engaged in catering to the newcomers.

The Bitter Part of It.

Some philosopher says: "The contented man is never poor; the discontented never rich."

That may be all right as far as the man himself is concerned, but it's discouraging to be a member of a contented poor man's family.—Chicago Times-Herald.

That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." SOLDIERS' BIG STORIES.

Drew the Long Bow In Letters Sent Home From Manila.

RESULTS OF AN INVESTIGATION.

A Correspondent Describes His Observations In the Philippines—Says Prisoners Are Not Murdered—The Fighter and Camp Follower Distinct—"Potting Like Rabbits"—Looting and Burning Admitted.

At the request of the New York Post their Manila correspondent investigated the charges of barbarity, looting, etc., contained in the private letters of soldiers which were published in the United States several months ago. Writing from Manila under date of June 5, he sets forth the following results of his investigation. He says:

In the first place, I want to controvert the belief that these private letters are the best class of evidence, because written without thought of publication. My experience is that the most unreliable news published in the United States, the most romantic and imaginative, is that contained in the private letters which thoughtless and injudicious parents, wives and friends have given to the press for publication. They contain all the camp gossip and baseless rumors that circulate throughout the army, all the "hops" and "pipes" that constitute the daily topics of conversation, none of which are true in the form in which they circulate and few of which have any genuine foundation whatever.

Even when these letters deal with the personal experiences of the writers they are unreliable to a degree surprising to one who has not been in a position to observe as I have. I have read many of them, and I am willing to lay it down as a general rule that any private letter telling of the exploits of the writer is either greatly exaggerated or wholly untrue. I have investigated a number of them and found them to be absolutely false, one writer cheerfully admitting the fact that he was just "stuffing them a little," another that he did not propose to let the other boys get ahead of him in writing about their adventures and others saying that they did not expect their letters to be printed or they would not have written such nonsense. It was worse than it is now, for such writers have been mercilessly "guyed" and "joshed" by their comrades for drawing the long bow. I know a captain who lost all discipline in his company for a time because of one of these boastful letters. All such persons were at once assigned to the ranks of the "rough writers."

Most, if not all, of the writers of boastful or bloodthirsty letters are men who never see the firing line, special duty men, or the class that straggle in battle. The men who do the real work are not boastful, nor do they murder prisoners in cold blood. All the killing they do is in the heat of battle, and if there has been any killing of prisoners or helpless wounded it has been by these stragglers and camp followers. One such case I believe to have occurred at Malabon, a soldier having told me that he saw a special duty man from the Manila headquarters kill a wounded prisoner to whom the men who had done the actual fighting had previously given a drink of water. He could not identify the man, and so I did not investigate it further.

I know a special duty man who has never sniffed the smoke of battle who wrote a letter home in which he said, "We take no prisoners, but kill them as fast as we come to them," and this letter was published and is as good evidence as the letter of the Kansas man who said he killed four prisoners in order to join in a charge. I have heard of no instance, and do not believe there has been one, of the deliberate killing of a Filipino once taken prisoner. That we do take prisoners is proved by the 2,000 to 3,000 that have been sent in from the front, nearly all of whom have been given their liberty, as well as the hundreds that have been released at the front and never sent to town, among them men with regular insurgent uniforms on and captured in actual conflict. That we do not kill the wounded is shown by the fact that as many as 500 Filipino wounded have been or are now being cared for in our hospitals here, being given as good surgical attention as our own men. I have seen soldiers stop while advancing across the lines from which the insurgents have just been driven and bind up the wounds of Filipino soldiers with their first aid packages and give them a drink from their canteens just as carefully as they had but recently done for their own comrades who fell in the same contest.

When the situation is understood, it will be seen that there has been but little opportunity to take prisoners, since in nearly every encounter all uninjured Filipinos have been able to escape. We have not been able to corner them and compel a surrender at any time except in a few isolated cases. The largest number captured at any one time was 374, sent in by the Washington regiment from Pasig at the time Wheaton's flying column swept through that region. These men had no arms when captured and claimed to be "amigos," but their identity as soldiers was fully established by the fact that they promptly fell into line when ordered to do so, the noncommissioned officers in the rear. Comparatively few even of the wounded or dead of the enemy have fallen into our hands owing to their custom of carrying them from the field as soon as hit, their work in this respect being even better than our own, because their army is better organized for that purpose.

The Filipinos have not enough rifles to arm the 70,000 or more men on their rolls, and so with each body of riflemen there goes a body of bolo men. The bolo is the genuine native weapon, a long, wide bladed knife, tapering to a point and ground sharp on the edge. It is carried in a leather or wooden sheath at the side. The natives are quite skilled in its use and in a hand to hand conflict or in a street riot could do much execution with it. They originally expected these bolo men would slaughter the Americans by the thousands, but, in fact, there have been but few opportunities for them even to attempt the use of this ugly weapon. They have too wholesome a fear of coming into close quarters with the American soldiers, since their sad experience of the attack upon Manila, to render the bolo a practicable weapon in this war. However, useless as these bolo men are for offensive purposes, they are always on hand in the trenches to carry the dead and wounded to the rear and to keep their guns and ammunition from falling into our hands.

As soon as a man is killed or wounded he is placed on a bamboo litter or taken between two men and carried at once to the rear, while his gun and cartridges are seized by a bolo man, who becomes at once transformed into a rifleman. In this way a regiment of a thousand men with "fusils" and 400 with bolos can keep a thousand rifles in action all the time, even after 200 or 300 men have been hit. This accounts for the comparatively few rifles we have captured and the really small number of wounded and dead that fall into our hands. Only those who fall during the last minutes of a fight, when the enemy is hastily fleeing to places of safety or to trenches farther back, are left, and I have seen fleeing men stop and rush back to grasp the guns of men who fell in these headlong flights and carry them away in safety. It is easily seen that but few prisoners can be captured under such circumstances, the enemy almost invariably deserting their trenches before our lines reach them. However, occasionally small groups have been surprised and captured, and I have never heard of a case of this kind where the natives were killed if they offered to surrender.

The talk of taking no prisoners, which was quite prevalent in February, and from which these bloodthirsty special duty men received their impressions and inspirations, grew out of incidents of the first week of fighting around Manila. There were quite a number of cases where wounded Filipinos shot our men after our lines had passed over them. They played possum until they saw a good opportunity, and then tried to kill an American, either with their guns of bolos. This not only angered our men, but made them afraid to leave wounded Filipinos on the ground behind them.

During that week I frequently heard it asserted that the word had been sent out for the Eighth army corps to take no more prisoners, but there never was any truth in the statement. It all grew out of the frequent assertions of our men and officers in the line that they would take no more chances with wounded Filipinos and would leave only dead men behind them when they charged and captured the enemy's line. There is no doubt that at this period of the war some Filipinos who had previously been wounded were again shot or bayoneted by our men in the heat of the strife as they rushed over the enemy's trenches, but I have yet to learn of a single instance where a prisoner once taken, either wounded or not, was subsequently killed except in the Malabon incident previously mentioned.

As to the Kansas incident of four prisoners being shot after an officer had called attention to the orders to take no prisoners, I believe it to be pure fiction and that the writer of the letter, if his record were looked up, would prove to be what is called here a "coldfooter," either a special duty man, who steals away from headquarters to follow up the firing line and see what he can find, or a straggler who falls out of the line at the first sound of the firing and follows along at a safe distance in search of spoils. Such men may have the moral turpitude to kill prisoners or wounded, for such men have done it in every war since the children of men first met together in battle, but I have lived with the soldiers of the Eighth army corps for a year, I have shared their beds and their food, I know their moods and sentiments, and I know that the genuine soldiers, who do the fighting, have not killed prisoners or wounded men after their capture.

As to the expessions "potted them like rabbits," "shot them like quail," etc., contained in various letters, they are literally true. I have even used such expressions myself in trying to describe how our men fired into fleeing Filipinos, not noncombatants, but men with arms in their hands. That is about the only time we get a good chance to do execution among them. The usual proceeding is for our lines to deploy about 2,000 yards from the enemy and advance under fire, stopping at intervals, where cover can be found, to pour in volleys. In this advance but little damage is done to the enemy, because they keep down pretty close behind their trenches. But when they break cover to run to other trenches farther in the rear, or even to abandon the fight entirely for the day, then our men get a chance at them. They jump to their feet and fire at the fleeing natives as fast as they can. If near enough, each man picks out one of the enemy and takes as deliberate aim at him as he would if he were a bounding deer in the mountains or a leaping jack rabbit on the plains.

Surely this is legitimate warfare. During the civil war the blue shot the fleeing gray, and the gray shot the fleeing blue, and they were brothers. It is military to demoralize the enemy as much as possible and keep him on the run and prevent a rally when he once begins to retreat. The effect has been excellent. The Filipino veteran now begins to squirm and think of a place of safety by the time our line gets within 500 yards of him, when formerly he used to remain and shoot at us until we were much closer. He fears our marksmanship at close range.

The American people can be assured that there has been no more killing of Filipinos, wounded or otherwise, than the necessities of the case required, no more than the British have found necessary in India and the Sudan and the French in Anam. There may have been a few sporadic cases of unnecessary killing, but those occur in all wars and are the result of individual turpitude and not of a general policy. While, therefore, the charges of barbarity in this respect against the Eighth army corps are untrue, the charges of looting and destruction of property are not. In this work the volunteers have taken the lead, though the regulars are not so far behind as their longer and better education in the principles laid down in "Troops In Campaign" should make them.

The volunteers have been here the longest, they have done the most fighting, they have suffered the most from the treachery of the natives, they best understand the "amigo" proposition and are, therefore, the most severe upon the natives and the least regardful of their rights of person and property.

The orders against looting and burning are very strict, and burning has been almost stopped and looting much diminished. It must not be imagined that the word "loot" covers much that is of value, for as our army has advanced the native population has retired and taken with it in most cases everything except the bare walls of the houses and a few domestic utensils of no value. Yet occasionally our advance has been too rapid for this, and houses but partly denuded of their contents have fallen into our possession.

This was especially the case at the time of the attack on Manila, the natives being confident of the capture of the city, and thus fled unprepared when our lines advanced. In that advance every house that fell into our possession that had been abandoned was visited by the soldiers and searched for valuables, very few of which were discovered. Most of them were then burned, for they had been the hiding places of sharpshooters, and their destruction was a military necessity. It is due to the fact that our troops were constantly being fired upon from the windows of nipa huts and from concealed rifle pits under or near them that the custom of burning the huts as the line advanced sprang up.

The Filipino soldiers do not live in tents, but occupy the houses of towns and villages. When a town has been burned, it ceases to be a nest of insurgents. This has led to the destruction of a number of villages in the vicinity of towns occupied by our army. Our garrisons were constantly annoyed by night attacks and bushwhacking until they raided these villages, drove out the enemy and sent the houses up in smoke. After that there was comparative peace in those neighborhoods.

But to return to looting. As I said before, every house was entered, and if anything had been left by the former occupants it was thoroughly overhauled. Clothing was snatched out of bureaus and scattered over the floor in search of valuables. Boxes were broken open. Suspicious mounds in back yards were dug into. Cisterns were probed and bamboo thickets were inspected. Often caches of clothing, crockery, books, etc., were discovered, and their contents scattered in the search for valuables, very few of which were found. Probably the two richest places, because the most hastily abandoned, were the cities of Pasig and Malabon. I was in Pasig the day after its capture, and at that time there was not a house that had not been ransacked. It was current rumor that several sums of money had been found, one soldier having discovered about $1,500. I was told by a saloon keeper in Manila a few days later that several soldiers had exhibited considerable rolls of Filipino paper money. However, such things must be chiefly conjecture, since a soldier finding money would keep very quiet about it for his own protection. Only a few cases of such finds have come under my personal observation, and in those the amounts were small. There were a number of houses in Pasig belonging to wealthy persons, and it may well be that articles worth carrying off were found. I know that the floors were covered with clothing, much of it expensive goods that had been thrown from wardrobes. In one house I waded knee deep in elegant gowns of silk, satin and pina cloth. The condition of affairs in Malabon was much the same, and in every town entered by our troops until the past month, when the appointment of a provost marshal and guard has been the first act of the commanding general. I have seen fine libraries scattered about and trampled under foot, many valuable books being carried away. I have seen books nearly two centuries old in the possession of soldiers.

There has been no personal violence at any time that I have seen or heard of. Only vacant houses have been searched. Whenever the occupants have remained instead of fleeing, they have been unmolested in either person or property. Actually there has been but little property taken. More has been damaged or destroyed than carried away.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

MAKING FRUIT JELLIES.

The Plain and Simple Road to Success With All Sorts.

"Whatever is worth doing is worth doing well" must be the housekeeper's motto when engaged in this operation, says Alice Chittenden, whose advice on making fruit jellies is here reproduced from The Housewife: The first care is to be exercised in the choice of the fruit. The stage at which the natural gelatinous substance is present in full force is that in which maturity is reached.

Let me say right here that an oil or gas stove with one burner will give the necessary heat, with much less discomfort to the operator than a coal or a wood stove. Take a granite or porcelain lined blueware saucepan, large as to circumference and not more than eight or ten inches deep. Lay the fruit in this and set it inside a tin pan of boiling water, with a couple of muffin rings underneath to keep the fruit from too close contact with the heat. Cover closely and boil fast until soft.

Let your jelly bag be a huge cornucopia of double cheese cloth properly scalded. Place a broom handle over the backs of two chairs in a room free from dust, hang the bag over this by two stout loops, pour in the hot fruit and let it hang all night.

Measure the juice the next morning, and for every pint allow a pound of the best sugar. Be sure that you are buying cane sugar for this purpose, as beet sugar always contains a certain amount of moisture. Set the juice over the fire, and exactly 20 minutes from the time it has begun to boil throw in the sugar, which in the meantime has been heating, but not scorching or melting, in shallow pans in a lukewarm oven. A fire of newspapers or twigs in the cook stove will heat the oven enough for this purpose. Stir until it is dissolved, remove the spoon, allow it to boil up just once and pour into glasses that have been scalded and dried, but are still very hot. If these processes have been carefully followed, the jelly will begin to set at once. If jelly ferments, it shows that the sugar was impure—that is, that it contained moisture. When jellies, after keeping for a time, show little hard crystals on the top, it is because sugar and juice were boiled together. If your jellies are not sufficiently firm, set them in the sun for two or three successive days if necessary, but do not reboil them.

The above rule obtains for all sorts of jellies, although a word or two of caution as to the different sorts may be added. For red currant jelly it is most important that the currants should not be overripe. Try to get clean fruit that will require no washing, and if you are satisfied as to the cleanliness of the picking they need not be removed from their stems, but if full of leaves and possible insects look over them carefully. Some fruits which will be mentioned will require only 12 or 14 ounces to the pint, but currants require the full pound.

To Ward Off Sunburn.

Remember, fair cycling enthusiast, that the ruddy, glowing face you will bring home with you after a many mile spin under a heartless midsummer sun is not alone the result of good, healthful exercise. It is an out and out sunburn and is not by any means a beautifier. Avoid it as much as possible by rubbing well into the skin before going awheeling a little cold cream or some lotion that will protect the skin from the sun's ravages. Your face won't look greasy if you apply the stuff properly, and you will find it the greatest aid in warding off an overdose of sunburn. A cold water facial bath before hobnobbing with sun and wind is fatal to complexion charms.

Summer Fancies In Hats.

"What's in a hat?" Merely the whole success of a toilet. With the airy, diaphanous robes now in vogue the millinery should be not just handsome or fine, but picturesque, effective—such, for instance, as the Trelawney hat for afternoon wear, with low crown and drooping brim, flower trimmed above and beneath.

Picture hats in Tuscan straw, with high crowns and turned up brims, borrowed from the empire period, are among fashions of the moment, which also commend themselves to the notice of the well dressed. Many of the brims are covered with puckered black tulle, a little jet here and there, long ostrich plumes lying on either side of the brim falling on the hair at the back.

A dressy hat is the Panama order, but arranged, as it were, in deep tuckings, trimmed with roses outside the brim and a bunch beneath at the back, the tulle strings tied under the chin on the left side.

Shade hats of masses of shirred muslin and fetching little empire sunbonnets will be worn by the summer girl who strolls the lawn, the woods and fields.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

—The following from the Westboro Chronotype, is a just rebuke: "The Worcester minister who said in a sermon that the late Robert Ingersoll was in a very undesirable locality, which is spelled with four letters, had better attend to his legitimate work of making the world better rather than taking the prerogatives of the Almighty on his shoulders. Robert Ingersoll, the great infidel, is dead, and beyond that no mortal has a right to presume. The door is shut.

AWFUL FATE

Of a Trolley Car Load of Pleasure Seekers.

Of Forty-Three Persons but Two Escaped Unharmed.

Thirty-Six Are Known to Have Been Killed.

Car Plunged From Trestle Into Pond In Connecticut.

President of Road Says It Is Impossible to Account For the Disaster.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 7.—Upwards of 30 people, ranging in years from an infant to a man over three score, and representing various walks of life, who were enjoying the delights of a trolley ride, were suddenly plunged to instant death Sunday afternoon by the car leaving the rails and toppling over a trestle 40 feet to the flats below. Eight more were seriously injured, and it is feared two of them now at Bridgeport hospital will not recover. The trestle crossed the bridge at Oronoque, midway between this city and Shelton. Sunday was practically the opening of the road, which was completed only last Thursday, and was an extension of the line of the Bridgeport Traction company to Shelton.

Only two persons are known to have escaped unharmed. It is believed that there were 43 passengers on the car, but the indicator was removed by a conductor of another car and spirited away, so that at present it is impossible to state accurately the number aboard.

The scene of the accident is midway between Shelton and Bridgeport. The car was northbound, running toward Shelton. It was in charge of Conductor John Carroll of Bridgeport, who was among the killed, and Motorman Hamilton of Bridgeport. He escaped by jumping.

The trestle is 440 feet long, made of iron, with stone foundations, and was not protected by guard rails. South of the trestle is quite an incline, on which the car ran down at a very fast rate of speed. After it ran on to the trestle for about 10 feet the trucks left the rails, and then the car continued on the ties for about 75 feet, when it went off the trestle and dropped into the pond below, overturning completely and striking end-up. When the car struck, the motor, which weighed four tons, and the heavy trucks, crushed into it, instantly killing many of the passengers.

Drs. Lynch, Ivers and Johnson of Bridgeport, who were passengers on a car a short distance behind, were quickly on the scene, and rendered all possible assistance to the injured. Word was quickly sent to Bridgeport, and three ambulances and a police wagon were hurried to the scene, and the injured were taken to the Bridgeport general hospital. A number of other conveyances were also pressed into service to convey persons to the morgue in the main room of the town hall at Stratford, and in a very short time 23 bodies were laid out, awaiting identification.

The road, which is practically controlled by the Bridgeport Traction company, was opened for traffic last Thursday. President Andrew Radell was in Derby when he received the news of the catastrophe, and he immediately drove to the scene. He was completely prostrated when he saw the extent of the disaster.

Undertaker Curtis of Stratford was notified almost immediately after the accident, and he utilized all sorts of conveyances to convey the dead bodies to the improvised morgue. Nearly the entire medical force of Bridgeport responded to telephone calls sent in, but able to render but little assistance, as so few escaped instant death. The car, after up-ending, soon settled over on its side, and there was little difficulty in removing the bodies of the dead, as well as assisting the wounded.

The cause of the accident will probably not be known until after Coroner Doten conducts an investigation. Motorman Hamilton, who escaped death, is suffering from such a severe shock that it was impossible to learn anything from him.

President Radell stated that it was impossible for him to account for the accident. Immediately after his arrival at the scene he made a thorough inspection of the tracks on the trestle and he could see nothing wrong, and the cars were running over the trestle as usual soon afterwards. He denied that the cars were being run at a high rate of speed, and claimed that every possible precaution had been taken to prevent such an occurrence. Seven inspectors were put on to watch the running of the cars, and a time allowance of half an hour was allowed, and extra cars put on to provide for this.

One theory advanced is that faulty construction was responsible for the accident. At the point where the cars leave the road for the trestle, it is alleged that the rails had sunk a little, and though the forward trucks took the rails all right, the rear trucks did not connect, and jumped the track, which caused the forward trucks to also leave the iron.

It is believed that if proper guard rails had been placed on the trestle the cars would have been prevented from toppling over.

The scene about the wrecked car was one of horror, and seemed to stun all the early ones on the scene to render assistance. Fortunately, all that were not instantly killed were rendered unconscious, so that [illegible] of the gruesome scenes connected with most disasters were evidenced. All of the persons killed sustained fractured skulls.

William Kelly of Bridgeport, who was in company with Miss Farrell, escaped death by jumping from the car, as he felt it swaying, to the flats below. Soon afterwards the car toppled over. He sustained a severe shock, but otherwise was uninjured. He stated that the car was not running unusually fast, but that the car was swaying considerably when it struck the trestle, and he realized the danger, and knew his only hope was in jumping.

George Willis was on the highway, not more than 100 feet from the scene, and witnessed the car toppling over. He said that there was one unearthly shriek as it went down, and after that silence.

Miss Frances Peck, who was dressing in her room, saw the accident from her window, and it is her impression that the car was running very fast. She was so excited that she could give but meagre information, but avers that the car was swaying considerably as it reached the trestle.

One of the pathetic scenes was that of a lifeless baby reclining in the arms of a dead man, and the infant seemed to be smiling and asleep. Another sad incident was noticed when the 3-year-old son of Mrs. J. H. Rugg was frantically appealing to his mother, who was one of the victims. His sister, 5 years old, had her left arm broken.

The Stratford town hall, where the bodies were taken, was soon besieged by more than 1000 persons, some of whom had relatives or friends among the dead, and Deputy Sheriffs Blakeman of Shelton, Heisler of Bridgeport and Stagg of Stratford had considerable difficulty in handling the crowd of weeping women and anxious men.

In the early evening it was estimated that upwards of 6000 people visited the vicinity of the accident, and pickpockets took advantage of the crowd, and secured considerable booty.

All the bodies of the Bridgeport dead, and the few unidentified, were taken to the morgue at Bridgeport late last night.

It has been ascertained that 40 fares were registered, and, with the young children that did not have to pay fares and the motorman and conductor and an extra motorman that was being taught, makes the probable number on the car 47.

Life In Kentucky.

Pineville, Ky., Aug. 7.—News has been received here from Leslie county of the killing of a constable by his prisoner. Jim Beltzer went to the head of Middle Fork and placed under arrest a man named Howard, from Harlan county. The two proceeded some distance, when Beltzer stopped and entered a house, leaving Howard outside. As Beltzer was returning and stepped from the doorway, Howard drew a Colt revolver and shot him through the head, causing instant death. Howard made his escape.

London, Ky., Aug. 7.—At East Bernstadt, Clyde Thompson, a marshal's son, aged 18, was leaning against a telegraph pole, a young man named Holt came along and told Thompson to stand aside as he wanted to shoot at the pole. This Thompson refused to do. Again Holt told him, and again Thompson refused. Then Holt drew a 45-calibre Colt and fired at the pole, hitting Thompson, who is fatally wounded, the ball passing through his body one inch from his heart.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 7. — Deputy United States Marshal Blair was shot and fatally wounded in Morgan county while trying to arrest L. F. Lewis, an alleged moonshiner. Blair killed Lewis after receiving a desperate wound.

Revere, Mass., Aug. 7.—Oak Island Grove was the scene yesterday of a general fight between a crowd of Italians and Hebrews. One Hebrew was beaten, pounded and kicked until he could hardly move. The police arrived with a patrol wagon, and, as the Italians started to make their escape, the police gave chase. Ten arrests were made. None of the injuries were serious, but there were many blackened eyes and sore heads.

FAMILY COMING NORTH

The Bakers Evidently Have Faith In Miss Jewett's Good Intentions.

Accomplishes the Purpose For Which She Went South.

Will Hold Mass Meetings to Arouse Sentiment Against Southern Mob Law.

Charleston, Aug. 7.—Lillian Clayton Jewett, the Boston girl, who recently created a sensation among the negroes of that city by declaring that she would come to Charleston and take back north with her the family of the late Frazer B. Baker, who was lynched at Lake City, S. C., in 1897, with a view to beginning an agitation against mob law, has carried out her design. Miss Jewett arrived here Friday, accompanied by her mother and a young man named R. G. Larsen, a Boston journalist. She had frequent conferences with the Baker woman and her friends, and as a result left here for Boston Saturday evening, accompanied by the entire Baker family, the mother and five children.

Miss Jewett said her plans for the future were not yet formulated, but she proposed to hold mass meetings throughout the north to rouse popular sentiment against lynching and mob law generally. She did not regard her movement as an issue between the races, but she was advocating the cause of humanity, irrespective of color or condition. She said that since her Boston address, she had received many threatening letters from the south, but to those she paid no attention, knowing that they did not come from a source worthy of serious consideration.

Miss Jewett paid for the tickets of the Baker family from here to Boston, and she also bought a number of small articles of clothing for the woman and her children.

Rev. J. L. Dart, a colored minister of this city, who has recently spent some time in Boston, returned to the city Saturday night and opposed vioently the removal of the Bakers from Charleston. He declares that Miss Jewett does not represent the better class of white or colored people in Boston. He says she and those who stand with her merely want to get control of the Bakers to make notoriety and money for themselves.

Long and Bloody Campaign Predicted.

Austin, Aug. 7.—A special dispatch from Terrasa, Mex., near the scene of the Yaqui uprising, is to the effect that the Indians are rising for a prolonged war. The dispatch says: The Mexican government will need a long time and a big force of troops to quell the rebellion. The Yaquis are better prepared now than ever before for a long and bloody campaign. They are all well fixed financially. It has been common talk among the American prospectors in the Yaqui valley that the Indians were preparing for another outbreak, but as the braves had always shown a friendly spirit towards the Americans it was thought they would not molest them when they did go on the warpath. They are determined to recover all of their lost country, however, and will kill everybody they find within the limits of their old possessions.

A Gruesome Find.

Boston, Aug. 7.—A diver sent down yesterday to inspect the piles of the old Charles River avenue bridge to Charlestown discovered an old gunny bag containing a human body. The body is wedged between two piles, about 25 feet from the Boston side of the river, between four and five feet from the river bed. At low tide it is covered by at least five feet of water. Whether the body is that of a man or woman is not yet known. It may have been a crime that was committed and this means taken to conceal it. The bag may contain a body buried at sea, which came to the surface and was carried to the spot found by the tide, which ebbs and flows beneath the ancient bridge.

Samoan Commissioners Arrive.

San Francisco, Aug. 7.—The United States steamer Badger, with two of the Samoan commissioners, arrived yesterday, eight days from Honoulu, and 19 days from Apia. United States Commissioner Tripp and the representative of Germany, Baron Sternberg, made the trip from Samoa without their conferee, C. N. E. Eliot, the commissioner for Great Britain, who sailed from Apia to New Zealand, intending to proceed by way of Australia to London to report to his government. The commissioners will depart for Washington tonight on the overland train.

Fell Three Hundred Feet.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 7.—Four miners were working on the 49th level of the Quincy mine repairing the timbering yesterday. The men were standing on one ladder, the bottom of which they failed to secure. The ladder gave way, throwing all four into the shaft. They fell 300 feet, one man being killed instantly, two others were probably fatally injured and the fourth was badly hurt.

AN ORDINANCE

in Relation to House Connections with the Common Sewer and Regulating the Same.

Engrossed Ordinance No 33, 1899.

CITY OF QUINCY.

In the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety nine.

Be it ordained by the City Council of Quincy as follows:

All applications for the construction of particular sewers and their entrance into common sewers shall be made upon blank forms to be obtained at the office of the Board of Sewerage Commissioners, and shall be signed by the owner or by the accredited agent of the premises to be sewered.

The size and materials of particular sewers and appurtenances shall be such as the Board of Sewerage Commissioners shall prescribe, and in conformity with the requirements of the Board of Health.

Said sewers shall be laid accurately to straight lines and grades. If angles along the lines thereof are unavoidable, manholes or other approved means of access shall be provided.

The materials and labor required in the construction of particular sewers and appurtenances thereof, shall be provided and the work done by the Board of Sewerage Commissioners or their duly authorized agents, and by no other person or persons; excepting that the applicant may make all of the excavation and back fill outside the street lines, excepting so much as will affect the proper bedding and securing of the pipe or other structure.

The plumbing of any building shall not be connected with a particular sewer until the applicant shall file with the Board of Sewerage Commissioners a certificate by the Inspector of Plumbing, that the said plumbing work is in suitable condition for connection with the public sewer.

No person shall be allowed to make any alteration in or make any connection with any particular sewer, except as stated in the original permit. Leave to depart therefrom must be obtained from the Board of Sewerage Commissioners on further application thereof to said Commissioners.

The Board of Sewerage Commissioners may at any time require such grease traps to be introduced along the line of any particular sewer, or on the discharge of any fixture connected therewith as he may deem necessary for the proper maintenance of said particular sewer, or of the common sewers.

No person shall throw or discharge into a public sewer or any of its connections, any steam or other matter or thing which may tend to, or cause, an obstruction thereof or a deposit therein, or any injury thereto.

No person shall cause or allow any roof water or surface water, by pipe or otherwise, to be conducted or to flow or discharge into any pipe or drain connecting with, or which indirectly through any other pipe or drain or directly discharges its contents into any main drain or common sewer.

All particular sewers shall be under the control of, and be maintained and kept clean by the city. The expense in cleaning and repairing any particular sewer shall be paid by the owner of the premises connected by said particular sewer, and pre-payment or security for the said expense may be required by the Board of Sewerage Commissioners, provided, however, that any labor on particular sewers occasioned by defects or obstructions in the common sewer shall be paid for by the city.

The term "particular sewers" used in this ordinance is intended to mean the house connections of the abuttor with the main or common sewer.

Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of these rules and regulations shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding Twenty dollars ($20.00) for each violation.

This ordinance shall take effect upon its passage and the ordinance in relation to House connections with the common sewer and regulating the same is hereby repealed.

Good Afternoon.

The Metropolitan Park Commissioners are asserting rather too much power, certainly too arbitrary a power, when they close a thoroughfare like Blue Hill avenue to travel, whatever the reason. The action of Saturday was taken because a street railway would not remove rails from the bridge between Boston and Milton. Why should the public suffer for the action or non-action of a street railway company?

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Judge Flint is a man of excellent ability, unimpeachable integrity of purpose and action and governed by impulses creditable alike to heart and hand. His appointment would give to Norfolk county a probate judge equal to the best.—Milford Journal.

☞ As sailors are proverbially superstitious the crew of the cup defender, Columbia, must be impressed with the belief that their graceful craft is the victim of a persistent hoodoo. She went into the mud when she left the "cradle" and she has already broken two masts. Meanwhile her rival, the Shamrock, has been giving indications of possessing a first-rate Mascot.—Beacon.

☞ The idea of presenting a home to Dewey was never of the practical sort that appeals to the American people successfully. Most of the people were of the opinion that such a present would not be in good taste, while many others could see none of the fitness of things in making it. Dewey will have a very large salary for life, his share of the prize money will be considerable, and he will be in a comfortable, financial condition. What he will really need will be a storehouse to keep his presents in.—New Britain (Conn.) Herald.

☞ It seems a great pity that they cannot find that boundary in Alaska, and the failure is not easy to explain. As it appears on the map, one cannot well understand how they can miss it. There it is, a broad, red line, with country green on one side of it and blue on the other, just as plain as a river or a chain of mountains. The men who went out to search should have been careful to take a good look at their geographies before they started, but it appears that they did not. And now Canada wants to fight. This shows how serious a matter it is to neglect one's geography—Worcester Gazette.

☞ Secretary Root, during the few days he has been in the War Department, has impressed his personality upon the officials of high as well as of low degree, and brought it back to the business position from which it has drifted during the incumbency of his predecessor. The Secretary has an idea of proportion and each man will have his place, be recognized and expected to do his own duty and not interfere with the functions of others. We shall hear very little more of the bickerings that have made a scandal of the War Department and hereafter the Navy Department will have a rival in the matter of harmonious and efficient work. This might have been brought about before, but let us be thankful that at last it is accomplished. Mr. Root has not yet had an interview with the President. He wanted first to set his department in order and get it to running without friction, and then he will be ready for the weightier duties with which the President will shortly charge him.—Lynn Item.

"MY DOCTOR."

Touching Eulogy of Dr. Gilbert by Rev. Edward Norton.

A Ready and Willing Helper Always.

Masons of High Degree in Attendance at Funeral.

The funeral service of the late Dr. Gilbert is worthy of a more extended report than was possible in Saturday's Ledger.

Seldom has there been a larger attended funeral than that Saturday of Dr. John H. Gilbert. Few were so well known to Quincy as Dr. Gilbert, and his many friends in Quincy, in the medical profession and in the Masonic fraternity gathered at the First church to pay their last tribute to him who in life was so well and favorably known.

Brief prayers were said at his late residence on Russell Park, at 1.30, by Rev. Edward Norton, the Apollo quartette singing "Come unto me."

At the conclusion of these services the remains were escorted to the First church by South Shore Commandery, Knights Templar, St. Stephens chapter, Royal Arch Masons, and Rural lodge, F. A. M. The Grand Consistory of Massachusetts was represented by Lieut. Commandery William S. Buttler and the United States Supreme Council of the Soverign Grand Inspectors General by R. L. Day.

During the services at the house the many friends of Dr. Gilbert were arriving at the church, where Mr. Frederick W. Tirrell, Mr. Dexter E. Wadsworth and Mr. Charles L. Hammond officiated as ushers.

The flowers at the church were most beautiful. Directly in front of the desk was a large pillow of ivy on the face of which was a circle of purple. The centre of this circle was green upon which was the 32d degree cross of yellow. Aside from this were the words: Grand Consistory, 33 of Mass. At the right of this large pillow was a pillow of green, on which was a square and compass in colors and the figures 32. At the left was a pillow, on the face of which was a keystone containing the letters S.T. K. S. H. T. W. S. At the top was a large Knights Templar cross and crown in colors, and below was an emblematic pillow from Rural lodge. Surrounding the large pieces were bouquets and wreaths without number. Aside from these there were eight large wreaths of ivy, four upon each ballistrade leading to the pulpit.

The funeral procession reached the church at 2 o'clock, and as it entered the organ pealed forth Handel's Largo, which was played by Mr. James F. Harlow by request of the family. The casket was met at the entrance by Rev. Edward Norton, who preceeded it down the centre aisle.

The bearers were Dr. F. E. Jones, Dr. Daniel Bruce, Dr. S.W. Ellsworth, Mr. John C. Randall, Mr. Rupert F. Claflin, Mr. Emile Mollanhauer, Sir Knight John Shaw and Herbert Burr and Elihu Spear, F. J. Fuller and Benjamin F. Linton, representing the Masons.

Following the casket were the mourners, physicians of Quincy and members of the Norfolk South District Medical Society, the Masonic bodies and friends.

The services were brief and opened with Scripture reading, followed by singing by the quartette of "Sweet Peace, the gift of God's love."

Rev. Mr. Norton then said in part: We gather here to perform the last offices for one who has filled an important place in this community. For two score years the name of Dr. Gilbert has been widely known and esteemed. The public press has briefly told us of Dr. Gilbert's life. The traits that have made him a ready and willing helper are as well known to you as me, and silence would therefore serve as well as any words of mine, but for just one thing to bring a tribute of love to a public servant who has gone from us.

Truly if any one is loved by a community it is a skilled physician. He who comes to us in sickness and sends the red blood tingling. Oh! how we love him, our old family physician. He who knows best our physical needs and in whom we have unlimited confidence. The old saying who shall decide when doctors disagree, we often hear, and our ready answer is my doctor. How many are there who are living today to say of him my doctor. If a living flower could be cast by all who love him this casket would be buried. I would lead the way for the ever ready way he has answered my ready call.

Perhaps the best tribute that we can give is that we try to keep in our own minds the best in his life.

The one quality that makes a life successful is self sacrifice. Are we filling life with God's best gifts? He knows best who seeks as they go guideingly to gather that which is best.

Rev. Mr. Norton closed his address with prayer.

The quartette then sang "In Memorium," after which an opportunity was given those who desired to take one last look of their friend. As the remains were taken from the church the organ played the funeral march from Batiste.

At the close of the services at church, the remains were escorted to Mt. Wollaston cemetery by South Shore Commandry, Knights Templar, and Rural lodge of Masons.

The bearers here were Sir Knights, John Shaw, Joseph C. Morse, Herbert Burr and Hiram E. Raymond of the Knights Templar, Elihu Spear of St. Stephen's chapter, H. O. Studley, F. J. Fuller and Benjamin F. Linton of Rural lodge.

Arriving at the cemetery the Masonic burial service was conducted by Rural lodge, Henry L. Kincaide, worshipful master.

SUNDAY IN CAMP.

The Fifth Regiment Set a Good Example.

Several friends of Co. K visited the camp of the Second Brigade at South Framingham on Sunday.

The attendance in the Fifth improved Saturday and was very good on Sunday, when the strength of the Fifth was 656, but 34 less than the Ninth and about 200 more than the Eighth. On Saturday Co. K had 47 men, which was 7 below the maximum and 11 more than Co. A of Charlestown. Four companies had less than Co. K.

The attendance is explained by the following paragraph from the Herald:

"The 5th, both in numbers and duty done, is all that could be asked. Many of its best men who saw service with it are on furlough, and by 1900, doubtless, its numbers will reach into the 700's. It was admittedly the proper thing to do in the case of service men who for various reasons couldn't leave their business for a week in camp, to permit them to absent themselves, rather than discharge them, for by the time the winter drill season commences these veterans will have time to again pick up the business of soldiering."

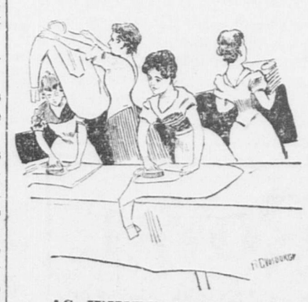

The Journal says, "There was some hilarity Sunday in the early morning down the line in the way of blanket tossing, and, in one instance, on the left a game of base ball was attempted, but the action of the Fifth in absolutely prohibiting any sports or demonstrations that are considered in violation of the Lord's day was speedily emulated down the line."

Chaplain House of the Fifth Infantry held the first service of the day at 8 o'clock in the regimental mess house. The companies marched in from their respective streets, and Col. Whitney and his officers sat at the head of the big hall. The Chaplain gave an informal talk to the men in which he defined virtue as courage; the courage to do right and stand steadfast against wrong when they had done that which their courage called upon them to do; then they would be victorious. Miss Gleason sang several solos without accompaniment, and added very much to the enjoyment of the service.

One of the features of Sunday was the escort to the colors by the Fifth regiment, which preceded the evening parade of the brigade.

Nearly Completed.

The Quincy Patriot Souvenir, a beautiful pamphlet of some eighty pages which four to five gentlemen have been busily engaged in compiling, arranging and printing, for the past three months, is now nearly completed. In two weeks, or less, it will be in the hands of the binder. It will be one of the most attractive works ever published in this city. It will contain eighty large pages, 11 by 14 inches, with about 200 handsome large half-tone engravings of public buildings, residence and prominent citizens of the city. The work has cost some $1500 to publish, and will retail at thirty cents per copy. To news agents and business men, who may want eight or more copies, they will be furnished at twenty-five cents.

Thomas B. Davenport with his son Harold and Everett Winslow left this morning for Peddock's island where they will camp for a week. When asked why he selected this island for his camp, Tom said he wanted to get away from the hustle and crowd at the beaches so that he could shoot birds, catch fish and dig clams without being molested.

Six hundred invitations have been issued for the Bullock-Wales wedding at Christ church on Wednesday at 3 P. M., and the attendance is likely to be very large and brilliant. Miss Amy Howard Wales, the bride, was quite recently an assistant in the Stetson High school at Randolph, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Wales of that town. Rev. Ernest Nelson Bullock, the groom is settled on Cape Cod. A reception will follow at the parish house.

Three Scooped.

Three young fellows, who the police believe intended to work the crowd that gathers to hear the band concerts, were pulled in early Saturday evening by Officer Barry. The three men were hanging about the depot, from which place they were ordered to move on by Officer Barry. All three had been drinking, and instead of complying with the officer's order they began to use profane language. The result wss that all three were placed under arrest, one for drunkenness and two for using profane and indescent language. The names they were: James J. Doherty, William Harold, and William J. Geary. All three claimed to hail from Boston.

Police headquarters Boston was notified and Sunday Officer Maguire came to Quincy to have a look at the fellows. He readily recognized them as old offenders. The police believe that the three came to Quincy for no good purpose, and are congratulating themselves that they were nipped before they had time to do anything in this line if that was their purpose in visiting Quincy. They were arraigned in court this morning.

TODAY'S COURT.

James Bushie was fined $7 for drunkenness at Quincy.

James J. Doherty was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Poker Players Arrested.

Among the large number who visited Houghs Neck Sunday was a barge load of Hyde Park men. In the afternoon becoming tired of watching the throngs at the lower end of the beach, five of them wandered over onto Manet avenue and selecting a quiet spot under the banking they started in to play the national game of poker. Officer Sandberg who was on duty at the beach was soon aware of the fact and notified Police headquarters. Inspector McKay responded, but when the officers approached the gang started to run.

The officers, however, secured two of the men, and later in the day captured two more. The fifth man is known, but has not been arrested as yet. The four men arrested were locked up for gambling upon the Lord's day, and gave their names as Judson Jonah, Ira W. Jonah, Walter Nayon and William W. David. They were arraigned in court this morning.

WANT PROTECTION.

Boston and Surburban Retailers and Department Stores.

Retail merchants of the smaller class in Boston and the suburbs, and any number of male and female clerks, to say nothing of the people who buy, says the Transcript, have watched with interest the development in Boston of the immense department stores in which the householder can buy everything from a pin to a parlor set, a peppermint to a ham, and which, although their increasing success and achievements have been of benefit to many a purchases, have threatened and in many cases ended the commercial existence of the smaller dealer. In many instances he has been absorbed, stock and all, and in others he has retired in judicious season. There are, of course, many comparatively small but well established concerns in Boston and outside, that have gone along prosperously, although with larger sales and smaller profits than of old, in accordance with the new conditions governing all business.

So general, however, has been the effect of the great department stores upon the smaller concerns that steps are now quietly being taken to devise some legislative remedy which shall check or limit the scope of their operations and thus leave more opportunity for the merchant of smaller plant or constituency to remain in business. This action is being initiated by means of agreement and organization of the small retailers, and it has so far progressed that legal talent in Boston has been consulted with the view of framing a bill to be submitted to the next Legislature, whose object shall be the restriction or curtailing of the business of the large stores.

That this would be an extremely difficult undertaking is at once apparent. It would first meet with the fundamental question as to whether such a law would be constitutional, and even with that point settled in its favor, the bill would find ahead of it at the State House, a gauntlet which many a less drastic bit of legislation might find dangerous to its chances of success. The points at issue, although smacking of trust and anti-trust, are not strictly that, and it is not known that there is precedent for a restrictive law of this kind in this country.

There is, however, said to be ample precedent for the passage of such a law in the legislation of some European countries, notably France, where the Parisian department stores are restrained in some directions, but the evidence from abroad is not yet fully in the hands of the committee which has the matter in charge, and its revelations are awaited with interest. The movement, it is understood, is widespread, and the question will command attention throughout the State.

One in Thirteen.

Messrs. Editors:—

The total debt of the City of Quincy, reported August 1, inst., was $1,443,605, or seven and one-half per cent. of its last (1898) assessed valuation of $19,236,832. Therefore, the city owes one dollar in every thirteen of that high valuation. In other words, as the assessed valuation of the real estate of the city was $16,812,825, it follows that, the holders of its obligations have a claim to the amount of eighty-five dollars plus, on each and every one thousand dollars of the real estate valuation of the city. But the city, as an offset, has its water and sewer properties, as far as completed.

Lewis Bass.

August 7, 1899.

Mr. Bass might also have added most of the debt is for water and sewers and that the receipts from water amount to over $50,000 per year. Against a municipal debt of $265,505.86 on Jan. 1 last the city had schoolhouses and school property worth $468,400, also City Hall, engine houses, parks, playgrounds, streets, etc. The municipa debt is less than $11 per capita.—Ed.

Victor Metals and Foundry Co.

The new building which is rapidly nearing completion for the above company and located on Mill lane, East Braintree, will as before stated, increase our indutries in that section.

This building is so situated that in looking at it from the easterly side, it appears small and low, but on the westerly side is quite large. It is eighty feet long by forty feet wide and over thirty feet high. This will be used as a foundry with traveling cranes and will have five large melting furnaces.

The capacity of this building with their present structure, will be seven to eight tons a day.

Last week they closed a large contract with the Atlantic works of East Boston, and Thomas A. Edison has tested their Victor White Metal and is sending in orders.

There is employed now, about twelve men, but there will be need of from twenty five to thirty soon.

Third Rail.

The N. Y., N. H., and Hartford have decided to run their electric cars all winter between Cohasset and Braintree. Next year there is to be made a further extension of their electric system.

We hope to see a power plant built in Braintree as their present plant at Weir River is inadequate.

SUNDAY'S DOUBLE HEADERS.

Chicago and Cleveland Split Even---Cincinnati Beats Louisville and St. Louis.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—The Orphans and the tail-enders split even Sunday. Phyle's poor work virtually presented Cleveland with the first game, his wildness being followed by a bunching of hits. Garvin had the wanderers at his mercy in the second until the game looked safe, then let down and was found freely at the finish. Donahue's batting was the surprise and feature in both games. Struck Sunken Obstruction.

Boston, Aug. 7.—The Cunarder Ultonia, which ran into a sunken obstruction just below Boston light Saturday when outward bound, and returned to quarantine, still remains there, awaiting the result of an examination to be made by Lloyds' surveyor. It is generally believed that the vessel will return to her dock to have the damage repaired before proceeding.

"Sheerest Nonsense," Says Laurier.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—Premier Laurier was shown the Washington dispatch in which E. W. The premier said that Mr. Fitzpatrick's statement was the sheerest nonsense.

ONE FOR HEIRESS.

The Hostess Drops One Race in Six to Her.

At last, the Heiress has won a race from the Hostess. Six times in two weeks the Quincy cup defender had headed her at the finish, and on Saturday it was nip and tuck over the course. On the home stretch the Hostess was ahead but when she approached the line she became becalmed while the Heiress got enough breeze to put her over 34 seconds ahead. The time was:

Hostess, H. M. Faxon,	1	46	50
Thelma, F. L. Pigeon,	1	54	25

Skipper Faxon's crew gave the Heiress three hearty cheers when they came in, which the crew of the Heiress evidently appreciated, and they in turn cheered the Hostess.

Had Better Be Careful.

Havana, Aug. 7.—General Jiminez, who, with six Cubans and four native San Domingans, left Havana Saturday afternoon, supposedly bound for San Domingo, returned to his home Saturday evening, bringing his baggage. The supposition is that, on finding that he was closely watched, he decided to await a better opportunity. Should he start again he will not be interfered with, unless he endeavors to take an armed expedition. General Ludlow will keep a strict watch to see that there is no violation of international law in this respect.

Motorman Killed.

Saunderstown, R. I., Aug. 7.—Two cars collided yesterday on the Sea View Electric road, running between Wickford and Narragansett Pier, which resulted in the death of Merritt L. Both cars were set on fire by the electrical current, and totally destroyed.

There has been trouble in the society for some time.

Columbia Didn't Participate.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 7.—The Defender met Vigilant Saturday for the first time since the trial races four years ago, and not only showed her superiority again, but gave her the worst beating in the history of these two cup defenders. The Navahoe was also in this race, but she in turn was beaten by Vigilant almost as much as the latter was beaten by Defender. The fact of the Columbia not starting killed public interest in the event.

FATAL TRAP.

Steamer's Gang Plank Paried In Center.

Struggling Mass of Humanity Went Overboard.

At Least Twenty Persons Are Known to Have Perished.

Bodies of Others May Have Been Carried Away by Tide.

Disaster Which Has Brought Gloom to Homes of Many Maine People.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 7.—While a crowd of excursionists were on the way to see the warships, a slip leading from the dock to the boat at Mount Desert ferry broke, precipitating more than 100 into the water. Seventeen bodies have been recovered, and it is estimated that the dead will number 30 or more.

It was the worst accident remembered in the history of the state and especially in the career of the Maine Central road, under whose auspices so many excursionists had been brought here. About 200 of them, rushing from the train to the boat which was to carry them to Bar Harbor, were without an instant's warning plunged into the water through a fatal trap. Penned in on three sides by the piling of the wharf and on the fourth by the boat, they fought for a few minutes, while a hundred or more excursionists, stupefied, and failing at first to realize the enormity of the tragedy they were witnessing, looked down from the wharf above.

The Maine Central railroad ran excursions to Bar Harbor from all sections of its line in Maine, the attraction being the warships which were expected. All the forenoon long trains packed with excursionists were rushing to Bar Harbor. The train which left Bangor at 8:25 consisted of 12 cars jammed with people. To Mt. Desert ferry, the terminus of the line, the train is left for the boat for an eight-mile sail to Bar Harbor. The trains run out onto the wharf, and it is but a step from the train to the boat. The wharf is owned by the Maine Central railroad and the boat is a part of its system. From the wharf a slip or gang plank, 40 feet long and 10 feet wide, led up to the boat. The slip was hinged at the inner end, the outer end being supported by chains, by which it was raised or lowered to suit the tide. The wharf extends on both sides flush with the end of the gang plank. The plank was of wood. Five timbers, 4x12 inches, set vertically, ran the length of the plank, and those were crossed by two-inch planking. It is said that there was no support for the plank between the hinges at the outer end.

When the excursion train from Bangor arrived at the ferry there was a rush for the steamer Sappho. The first few passengers had crossed the gang safely, and it is estimated that 200 people were massed upon the plank. Suddenly they felt the plank give way beneath them. The long timber supporting the plank broke in the middle. The hinges held up one end and the chain the other, while the broken ends of the plank dropped, and a struggling, screaming mass of humanity was plunged into the water, 15 feet below the wharf. A few clung to the inclined sides of the plank, but at least 150 were struggling in the water. The piling of the wharf partially penned them in on three sides, and the boat lying at the wharf closed the outer end of the opening.

After the first moment of stupefaction the work of rescue began. Ropes and life preservers were thrown to the crowd, but in the panic the people in the water clutched one another, and many sank thus in groups in a death grapple. Many taken from the water were unconscious, and were revived with difficulty.

Doctors were summoned from all directions, but it was half an hour before the first arrived. The freight house at the ferry was turned into a morgue, the bodies being taken there for identification as fast as recovered. By noon 17 had been recovered. Three other persons were taken on board the Sappho and died on the way to Bar Harbor.

The exact number of dead will not be known for some time yet, as a strong tide sweeps under the pier, and some bodies may have been carried away by it. A diver, who was set at work without delay, was engaged in his search until 5 o'clock, but only 17 bodies were found.

Coroner Field of Ellsworth impanelled a jury consisting of William F. Grant, S. C. Moore, Nelson Stewart, James Butler, George W. Gorgins, all of Hancock, and Henry Eppes of Ellsworth, to hold an inquest. The jury begun its session this morning.

The awful nature of the accident was not comprehended for at least a minute by those who were the last to leave the train, although the scene changed instantly from one of holiday gaiety to a death struggle. The drop between the solid wharf and the steamer, which was high in the water, was so precipitate that those who were on the wharf's edge urging forward to the 30-foot slip, pressed on over the brink to the waters beneath. Some of those whose bodies were afterwards recovered died quickly, for they were borne beneath the waves by the weight of the living, who fell after them, and who madly struggled to reach life preservers and lines thrown to them from both wharf and steamer.

When the first moment of the calamity had passed a panic seemed to seize those who were safe, and they drew back from the edge of the water. But for only another minute, as then the cooler heads in the crowd, more especially among the officers and crew of the steamer, asserted themselves and the work of rescue began.

Eye witnesses differ in their estimate of the number of people who were carried down when the plank broke, but it was the vanguard of the crowd which was rushing from the train to the steamer. Those who fell into the water last were mostly pulled out by main force, but not a few were gotten out by the boats which were immediately manned. But boats could not be handled in the little space between the steamer and the wharf, and in five minutes no living thing was seen on the surface.

Those were moments fraught with excitement on land, for each excursionist was rushing around among his or her neighbors in quest of relatives and friends. In the hurry and bustle of alighting from the train, husbands and wives, parents and children had become separated, and that separation at that moment meant heart-breaking suspense. Mrs. Estey, one of the victims, was one of those who, while apart from her husband only a few feet, lost her life, while Mr. Estey was saved, although thrown into the water.

In the course of the next half hour several bodies were recovered from the water, and these were taken to the nearby freight house and laid out, awaiting identification. It was a grewsome sight and a more pitying scene as identifications were made.

Fault of Higher Officers.

Madrid, Aug. 7.—The supreme court-martial before which Generals Toral and Pareja have been on trial, charged with surrendering Santiago to the United States forces without having exhausted all means of defense, has acquitted both officers, on the ground that they acted upon the orders of their superiors and only surrendered when it was impossible to do otherwise. The judgment severely censures those in high command in the colonies and in Spain, as well as the government's responsibility for the lack of resources for the defense of the colonies. It was rendered by a majority of only one vote, and is not well received by the press and public, who wanted a clearer exposure of relative responsibility.

Strike on The Sun.

New York, Aug. 7.—The compositors and printers of the New York Sun, 120 in number, who went out on strike Saturday night, fearing a revision of the rules of their chapel, are still out. The Sun appeared yesterday with only four pages in its news section. The strike, which was ordered and sanctioned by Typographical union No. 6, was ratified yesterday at one of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings ever held by "big 6." The meeting unanimously passed a resolution offering the entire funds of the union, amounting to $40,000, for the use of their striking brethren in case of necessity.

Crazed by Daughter's Downfall.

Greentown, O., Aug. 7.—Ruth Swartz, aged 16, was killed by her mother, Mrs. Catherine Wise, yesterday. The mother then went a mile and a half and threw herself into a pool of water in an abandoned stone quarry. The facts brought out by an investigation of the county coroner are that the young girl, who is unmarried, was in a condition which distracted her mother, who declared she would find some way to save her daughter. During the night the mother arose, went down stairs and slashed her daughter's throat with a razor, which was left lying on a table in the room.

Swimming Instructor Drowned.

New York, Aug. 7.—Davis Dalton, a well-known swimming instructor, who has been stopping at Far Rockaway, was drowned yesterday. He was giving an exhibition of swimming when he suddenly disappeared from sight. He did not immediately arise, and it was supposed that he was showing how long he could remain under water. After the longest possible time for a person to remain had passed, boats were sent out and the body was recovered. It was found that death resulted from apoplexy.

Illicit Stills Seized.

Chattanooga, Aug. 7.—United States revenue officers raided two illicit distilleries operated within three miles of Chickamauga park. Both establishments did a large business last year in supplying whisky to soldiers at Chickamauga park and had defied arrest, the soldiers aiding the moonshiners in keeping the officers off the track. Both stills were in active operation when raided. About 2400 gallons of beer and 60 gallons of low wine were found and destroyed.

Running Under Difficulties.

Eau Claire, Wis., Aug. 7.—As a result of the strike of the conductors and motormen, the local street railway had but two local cars in operation last night, and but two on the line to Chippewa Falls. Crowds of strike sympathizers hampered the progress of the cars by placing obstructions on the tracks. The company threatens to withdraw all of its cars if not given proper protection.

AN ORDINANCE

Regulating Plumbing.

Engrossed Ordinance No. 28, 1899.

CITY OF QUINCY.

In the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety nine.

Be it ordained by the City Council of Quincy as follows:

SECTION 1. No person shall carry on the business of plumbing unless he is a plumber and shall have first registered his name and place of business in the office of the Board of Health; and notice of any change in the place of business of a registered plumber shall be immediately given to said Board of Health.

SEC. 2. Every plumber before doing any work in a building, shall, except in the case of the repair of leaks, file at the office of said Board of Health, a notice of the work to be performed, and no such work shall be done in any building without the approval of said Board of Health or its Inspector of Plumbing.

SEC. 3. The plumbing of every building, unless otherwise permitted by the Board of Health, shall be separately and independently connected with the public sewer, when such sewer is provided, or with a proper and sufficient drain connected thereto outside of the building, and if no sewer is provided with a proper cesspool.

SEC. 4. Pipes and other fixtures shall not be covered or concealed from view until approved by the Inspector of Plumbing, who shall examine the same within two working days after notice that they are ready for inspection.

SEC. 5. The Board of Health must be notified when the main drain, soil, waste, branch connections or ventilating pipes are in and ready to be tested.

The Board must again be notified immediately after the work is completed and before it is covered from view. All work must be left uncovered and convenient for examination until inspected and approved; and no drainage system shall be used until a certificate of approval has been granted.

If, on inspection the work is not satisfactory, the plumber shall be notified in writing and a limit of five days (unless otherwise permitted) given in which to complete said work; at which time the Board of Health must be notified.

SEC. 6. Drain and connecting ventilating pipes shall be of sufficient size, and made of cast iron within the building, and for a distance of at least eight feet outside, except that lead pipes may be used for short connections exposed to view. Such pipes shall be of uniform thickness throughout, and shall have an average weight not less than below specified, viz:

2	inch pipe,	3 2-5	pounds	per	foot.
3	" "	5	"	"	"
4	" "	6 2-5	"	"	"
5	" "	8 2-5	"	"	"
6	" "	10 2-5	"	"	"
7	" "	13	"	"	"

Drain pipes shall be properly secured by irons to walls, laid in trenches to uniform grade, or suspended to floor timbers by strong iron hangers.

The space between these hangers shall not exceed ten feet. Every drain pipe must be provided with a running trap with an accessible brass screw cleanout, at or near the point where it leaves the building, and shall have a fall of at least one-quarter of an inch to the foot. Soil pipes shall be carried above the roof open and undiminished in size, and to a distance of not less than two feet above the roof, or not less than five feet above any window within fifteen feet. Changes in direction shall be made with curved pipes, and all connections with horizontal or vertical pipes shall be made with Y or long T Y branches. No trap shall be placed at the foot of a stack.

All branches of soil pipe twelve feet or more in length must be carried up not less than two feet above the roof undiminished in size, or more than two feet, if said Board shall so direct, or they may be connected with the main soil pipe above the highest plumbing fixture.

All drain pipe shall be exposed to sight where practicable within the building, and shall not be exposed to pressure where they pass through walls. Every part of every drain pipe below a cellar floor shall be accessible through sufficient unattached covers. In all cases there shall be an extra heavy iron pipe laid from eight feet outside and carried through the foundation wall and connected with the drain inside by a Y branch with a brass screw clean out in a direct line with the sewer or cesspool, and the drains when under the cellar bottom shall be of extra heavy iron pipe also.

Standard galvanized wrought iron may be used for ventilating pipes, when in the opinion of the inspector it is practical.

SECTION 7. When the waste pipe does not exceed three feet in length from its connection with the fixture to its connection with the trap, one round trap may be used for a sink and wash trays or for bath tub and bowl; if over three feet in length the waste pipe of each and every sink, basin, bath-tub, water-closet, slop hopper, and of each set of trays or other fixtures, shall be furnished with a separate trap, which shall be placed as near as practicable to the fixture that it serves.

Traps shall be protected from siphonage or air pressure by special cast-iron air pipes of a size not less than the waste pipes they serve, run from the crown or outlet of the trap. Lead air-pipes may be used only when they are exposed to view.

Air pipes for water-closet traps shall be of wo inch bore if thirty feet or less in length, and of three inch bore if more than thirty feet in length; other air pipes shall be as large as the waste pipes from the trap. Air pipes shall be run as direct as practicable.

Two or more air-pipes may be connected together or with a drain pipe; but in every case of connection with a drain pipe such connection shall be above the highest waste connection with said drain pipe. No ventilation shall be required from a deep drum trap or traps in cases where all the plumbing is located on the same floor and where no soil matter is admitted.

Air pipes shall be so constructed as not to allow the formation of a trap, nor be used as waste pipes.

SECTION 8. All waste or overflow pipes from safes under water-closets and other fixtures or from tanks shall be run separately to basement or cellar, and left open; in no case shall they be connected with a soil pipe or any other waste pipe. No waste pipe from a refrigerator or other receptacle in which food or provisions are stored shall be connected with a drain, soil, or waste pipe, but shall be separated therefrom by an open air sink or tray furnished with a trap.

No steam exhaust, blow off or drip pipe shall connect with a sewer, house drain, rain-water conductor, soil, waste or vent pipe.

Such pipes shall discharge into a suitable tank or condenser from which a proper outlet to the house drain shall be provided.

SECTION 9. Every water-closet shall be supplied with water from a separate tank or cistern and shall have a flushing pipe of not less than one and one-fourth inches in diameter; but this requirement shall not apply to water-closets substituted for vaults, where the same are located outside of the building proper; and such water-closets may be arranged so as to receive their supply directly from the main, with proper fixtures approved by the Board of Health.

SECTION 10. No saddle hubs will be allowed on any plumbing. No return bends will be allowed except by special permission of the inspector.

Every joint of an iron and a lead pipe shall be made by a brass ferule of the same size as lead pipe, set in the hub of the branch of the iron pipe and caulked with lead; the lead pipe to be attached to the ferule by a wiped solder joint. Every joint in a cast-iron bell and spigot pipe shall be made with packed oakum and molten lead well caulked, at least one and one-half inches deep, and made water and air tight, and no paint or putty shall be allowed until it has been tested.

SEC. 11. A suitable grease trap shall be constructed under the sink of every hotel, eating-house, restaurant, or other public cooking establishment so as to be easily accessible for inspection and cleaning.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

THE TRIAL OF DREYFUS.

Prisoner Vehemently Asserts Innocence of Charges Against Him.

Judge's Attitude Appears to Be That of a Prosecutor.

His Questions Answered Promptly, Emphatically and Distinctly.

Rennes, Aug. 8.—The Dreyfus court-martial assembled here yesterday, and the second trial of Captain Dreyfus began. The public proceedings were practically limited to a verification of the powers of the court, which then adjourned after deciding to sit with closed doors until the famous secret dossier should be disposed of. The next public session of the court will be held later in the week, probably on Saturday. To forever settle the Dreyfus question, to place beyond doubt either his guilt or his innocence, is the function of the Rennes court-martial.

CAPTAIN ALFRED DREYFUS.

It is difficult to say whether he realized it or not, but his vehement protestations were not made alone to the judges at Rennes. It was really an appeal to the civilized world, and the general opinion was that his impassioned appeal for justice, his denunciation of the treatment to which he has been subjected and his general bearing strengthened immensely the feeling that he is innocent.

Some of the incidents of the day were really dramatic. There were moments when the spectators held their breath in something like awe. There were moments when the quivering, impassioned tones of the prisoner almost brought tears to the eyes of some of the spectators.

There was a certain amount of pomp and splendor connected with the proceedings. But from the moment of his appearance the generals in their gold lace and even the judges in their gorgeous uniforms were forgotten, and every eye was riveted on the prisoner. Those who had not seen him for five years were surprised at the change in his appearance. His hair has turned gray and a bald spot has begun to appear on the top of his head. He wore rimmed eyeglasses and a slight mustache. His frame seems to have shrunken considerably.

But his earnest, impressive manner and bearing made up for his physical deficiencies. At times his voice rang out, and his right hand was raised as if calling upon heaven to attest his innocence. At other times his voice sounded almost harsh from the excess of his emotion.

The trial began at 7 o'clock. Everything was keyed to the event. Precautions for weeks in preparation became visible.

The officers of the court took their places on the stage, which occupies one end of the hall. Back of them was hung a crucifix, in front were places reserved for the press, witnesses and a few others specially admitted.

Dreyfus, in a new uniform of captain of artillery, dark blue with red facing, fixedly regarded the judges, with immovable features.

The judges looked much in earnest and a trifle nervous. It was a few minutes past 7 o'clock when Captain Dreyfus, who was sitting to the right of the court, was ordered to stand, and the charge accusing him of betraying French military secrets to a foreign power was read. At the conclusion of this the prisoner gave his name, age and grade, and said: "I am Captain Alfred Dreyfus, who is named in this accusation."

His voice was as firm as of one who answered a familiar question. As Dreyfus spoke, the audience strained forward breathlessly. Dreyfus appeared less careworn than when he arrived at Rennes. He did not look triumphant, but as one about to realize a long hope.

The recorder of the court then called the roll of witnesses. At the conclusion of the roll-call, physicians' certificates, etc., were presented explaining the absence of Du Paty de Clam and others.

Major Carriere, government prosecutor, told the witnesses that possibly four days would be spent in the examination of the secret dossier, and that they must retire until called. The witnesses left, and the court took a 20-minute recess, to consider the excuses of absentees.

Upon the resumption of the session, Colonel Jouast, president of the court, standing in his place, his associates and the officers of the court also standing, read a decision that, inasmuch as the defense offered no objection, the trial would proceed without the absentees.

The lawyers, attired in black robes, took their seats. Dreyfus was brought back from the anteroom under guard. The reading of the act of accusation, which is identical with the charge of the first court-martial, was then resumed, and took half an hour. At the conclusion, the prisoner was ordered to stand, and Colonel Jouast said:

"Captain Dreyfus, you have heard the accusation; do you recognize this?" (Handing him the bordereau.) Dreyfus said: "I do not."

Jouast: "Is that your work?"

Dreyfus: "It is not; I am innocent."

As the prisoner said this he trembled palpably, and in a voice throbbing with emotion he repeated: "I am innocent; upon my honor, and everything I hold dear—my country, my children—I am innocent."

Dreyfus answered the questions promptly, emphatically and distinctly without that impediment in his speech charged to his long, isolated imprisonment. He stood with his hand raised in the attitude of salute as Colonel Jouast read from notes. His replies to questions relating to different documents which concerned the treason were always of the same tenor: "I had no knowledge of it" or simply "Never."

After 10 minutes' questioning, the tone became conversational, and it was difficult to hear what passed between the president and Dreyfus. To the question, "Have you ever (naming several dates) visited Germany or Italy?" The answers were "No" and "Never," with a burst of indignation which sounded through the hall.

There are many persons who were present at the trial now under the impression that the harshness of the presiding judge was assumed, and was intended to disarmm the enemies of Dreyfus, who are only anxious to interpret ordinary courtesy into the grossest partiality toward the prisoner. If this be the case, and such an explanation is quite plausible, Dreyfus is naturally unaware of it, and the effect upon his highly-strung nerves may easily be conceived.

JUST AN EVEN SCORE.

Search Fails to Reveal Additional Victims of Mt. Desert Disaster.

Pulling of Rod Nuts Through Ten-Inch Stringpiece

The Probable Cause of the Calamity Which Overtook Excursionists.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 8.—The coroner's inquest into Sunday's frightful accident at Mt. Desert Ferry, when 20 persons lost their lives, and a score or more were badly hurt, begun yesterday. A night of anxiety was followed by a day full of effort to determine if any other lives had been sacrificed, and happily the suspense was not long. When daylight came the waters under the wharf at the ferry were carefully inspected, and as the tide receded men wandered about in the mud searching for traces of other victims. Divers were also at work in deep places, and the fears that the death list was greater than indicated Sunday night were not realized. On shore there was no less effort made to relieve the sufferings of the injured.

The railroad officials during the early morning removed much of the broken ferry slip, and prepared the wharf for the continuation of traffic. The road's chief engineer, Mr. Dunn, made an inspection of the vicinity and fragments of the slip, and secured statistics for use later on, when the accident is officially investigated.

From the hasty examination Sunday it appeared that the only support of the gangway was the timbers, but when the wreck was removed yesterday it was seen that the first cause of the accident, apparently, was the pulling out of three one-inch iron rods, which ran the length of the gangway, with bolts. Apparently the nuts had pulled through the 10-inch stringpieces, throwing all the strain on the wooden girders. Then came the crash and the awful death struggle.

The coroner's inquest was to have begun early in the morning, but the absence of a stenographer delayed the proceedings until afternoon, and then it proceeded slowly, as testimony had to be taken in longhand. Coroner Field of Ellsworth conducted the inquest. John E. Bunker, Jr., of Bar Harbor acted as clerk. Lawyer Addison of Bangor appeared as attorney for several of the injured.

The first witness examined was Captain H. N. Fairbanks of Bangor. He stood beside the gangway, near the outer end of the wharf, watching the people going aboard, and speaking to those he knew. He said it was an orderly crowd, no unusual pushing, but the crush of a crowd of people all bent in the same direction, and anxious to board the boat. A few may have jumped over the chains at the side to reach the slip quickly, but there was no roughness. Captain Fairbanks said that an instant before the crash, he heard a slight noise above the rush of feet, which he now believes was caused by the bolts pulling through the headpiece of the gangway. Then followed the crash of breaking timbers and the fatal plunge.

Captain Fairbanks' wife and daughter, who were with him, testified substantially the same, except that they did not hear any noise before the great crash. Both said that no effort was made by anyone to keep back the crowd from the gangway. All three of these witnesses believed that all the dead were drowned, not crushed in the fall, or by planks being thrown in for their rescue. No one was pushed in by the crowds on the pier, for after the crash, all involuntarily drew back in horror from the opening.

Miss Ethel F. Stratton of Bangor testified to the same effect.

The most important witness was William A. Witham of Lisbon Falls, foreman of bridges for the Maine Central railroad, who built the gangway last June. He said the material for the gangway was not ordered by him, but was landed on the wharf for his use. His orders for the building of the bridge came from Superintendent Powers of the bridge and building department of the Maine Central. The gangway was 37½ feet long and 10 feet wide. The timbers were 3x12 inches, set vertically, and crossed by two-inch planking. There were five of these beams running the length of the gangway. These timbers were reinforced by three one-inch iron truss rods, set in a hard pine cross timber at the hinge of the pier, and a spruce timber at the outer end. These rods were through holes made with a chisel, not an augur, and were fastened on the outside by 2½-inch nuts, screwed flush with the timber. He was not an expert of the quality of timber, but thought the material was good, and supposed the gangway was strong enough to bear all the strain that could be put upon it. He believed the accident was caused by the nuts of the iron rod pulling through the outer crosspiece, and then the timbers were not strong enough to stand the extra strain thrown upon them. Asked why washers or plates were not put under the nuts, he said he built the slip as instructed.

The railroad's attorney, Mr. Chadbourne, arrived late in the afternoon, and asked for an adjournment for another day, which was granted.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Mr. Moody suggests that a roof garden would be a popular adjunct to a church. But the church is not instituted for the exploitation of popular adjuncts.—New Bedford Standard.

☞The burning in effigy of William Waldorf Astor in New York city the place of his nativity, which he has disowned to become a British subject, points its own moral, and must carry with it a sharp sting.—Milford Journal.

☞So long as Spain clings to men of the Weyler stamp her efforts to recover from the effect of the war will labor under a handicap. It was his course in Cuba that brought about the conditions which made the war inevitable. He is a species of medevial despot who is out of place in this stage of the world's advancement, and his insufferable egotism is a menace to the peace of his own country.—Brockton Times.

☞The Missouri legislature has passed a law against department stores. Merchandise is classified under eighty-eight separate heads and a special tax is imposed upon any merchant who sells more than one class of goods. This is indeed a new departure, and the matter will be watched with interest, to see whether such a law can be enforced. It would seem to be in direct conflict with anything like freedom of trade, and a step in the direction of such socialism as Edward Bellamy deals in.—Beverly Times.

☞The Negro cannot be emancipated by mere legal process and then left alone. He must be educated, his character must be formed, he must be made a useful and self-reliant being. This is precisely what is being done at the Tuskegee Institute, and therefore, its founder is solving, as far as one man can, one of the chief American problems of the time. And what a problem! The practical humanizing and elevation from barbarism of dusky millions, on whose own future the future of the United States largely depends.—London Daily Chronicle.

☞Dr. Kenealy argues that the muscular woman of today is not one whit superior to the woman of the past. But just let the healthy, strong, college-bred woman of the present time be supplanted by the beruffled, languid female of her class in society 60 years ago—the delicate creature who fainted on every occasion in order to exhibit her delicate nerves, and who would have been shocked at the stout shoes and short skirt of her athletic descendant of '99—just let her take the place of the modern girl and see what a howl would go up everywhere from the men who have enjoyed the companionship of the healthy, vigorous girl of today.—Lewiston Journal.

☞The first part of Mrs. Kate Chase Sprague's life was a triumph, the last part a tragedy. An unfortunate marriage blighted the career of one of the brightest women of America. Many people at the time of her marriage feared that it would prove an unhappy one, for Mrs. Sprague was a woman of great force of character, a woman who had associated all her life with strong men, while her husband was intellectually a weakling. He had wealth and position, but that was all, and when these were gone all was gone. After all her troubles, death would no doubt have come as a welcome relief, but for her daughters, to who she was entirely devoted.—Malden Mail.

MANY CANDIDATES.

Another Quincy Lawyer Suggested for Judge of Probate.

The contest for Judge of Probate for Norfolk county will not be limited to ex-Mayor Sears of Quincy and Judge Flint of Weymouth. Most every city and town in the county seems to have a candidate, and some of them two or three. These include: Prescott F. Hall of Brookline, C. C. Mellen of Braintree, E. H. Talbot of Sharon, Emery B. Gibbs of Brookline, George W. Wiggin of Franklin, W. G. A. Pattee of Quincy, Theodore H. Tyndale of Weymouth, Charles T. Dunckee of Brookline, James Hewins of Medfield and Judge Harriman of Barnstable, who is temporarily taking the late Judge White's place. It is stated that the latter has withdrawn in favor of Mr. Tyndale.

Lawyer Pattee, one of the new candidates, has long been one of the leading lawyers of Quincy, which is his native city. He was the first City Solicitor of Quincy, and has been very successful in the criminal and civil courts. He has also enjoyed a large practice in the probate court for Norfolk county. Mr. Pattee is the son of the late Dr. Pattee, Quincy's historian, and was born in this city Aug 28, 1854. He was graduated from the Harvard Law School in 1876, receiving the degree of LL. B. He studied law with Augustus Russ and was afterwards in partnership with him. He has served two terms in the Legislature where he was on the Committee on the Judiciary. He was moderator of the town meeting at which the city charter was accepted, and under the town government he often served on important committee. Lawyer Pattee is president of the Quincy Electric Light & Power Co., and counsel for the Quincy and Boston street railway and other corporation. He is a married man and resides on School street in this city.

Proud of Their Order.

Manet Council, 1763, Royal Arcanum, celebrated its second anniversary Monday evening by entertaining its friends and ladies at Doble's hall.

Regent James H. Elcock presided and welcomed those present in behalf of Manet council. He then briefly recounted the history, of the council and introduced Past Vice Regent Robert Goodwin.

Mr. Goodwin, who has been a member of the order for twenty years, told of its institution from the time 9 men went to the Massachusetts legislature to organize a beneficial society, until the present time when the order numbered over 190,000 members in 1780 councils. The Royal Arcanum, he said, stood for the home. No beneficiary is allowed except those related to the members. In June last 140 deaths were recorded, which was the smallest month for a year. The amount of $3,000 each was paid to the gentler sex, the beneficiaries of the 140. In May there were 185 deaths and in only seven cases was the amount paid to men.

The order was doing a great work having long since ceased to be an experiment. No man was worthy to be a husband or father who does not make some provision for those he loves when he is taken away. In closing the speaker urged all not members to think the matter over carefully and affiliate with the order.

Aside from the address there was music by the South Quincy Social club orchestra, piano solos by Miss Mamie Kennedy, songs by Robert Callahan, Robert Kennedy and James M. McLoud, and harmonica solos by Charles Baron.

During a lull in the entertainment, a collation of sandwiches, coffee, cake and ice cream were served.

Statement by Mr. Hatch.

Quincy, Aug. 7, 1899.

Mr. Editor: Referring to the communication of James P. Clare in your issue of Saturday last, permit me to say that the reason Mr. Clare was arrested was because he falsified the books of the Company of which he was treasurer, and in that position of trust rendered false statements to the Commissioner of Corporations, and bondsmen of the Company caused an action of perjury to be brought against him, for which I am in no way responsible. All this will appear at the proper time when the case is tried and in the meantime I will not be drawn into a newspaper controversy.

NEW APPOINTMENT.

Office of Inspector of Animals and Provisions Divided.

Early in the year when Mayor Keith appointed Robert T. Johnson as Inspector of Animals and Provisions there was some opposition to his confirmation in the City Council because he was not a veterinary but the city fathers thought that the chief duties of the office were the inspection of meats and provisions and they recognized in Mr. Johnson an expert and he was confirmed.

Since accepting the position Inspector Johnson has very satisfactorily performed all the duties of the office, giving what time was required both for the inspection of animals, meat and provisions.

But since the appointment, the legislature has revised the laws relative to infectious diseases among animals and a new act was passed and approved May 25.

It provides in Section 17 that the Mayor and aldermen in cities shall annually appoint one or more inspectors of animals, and imposes heavy penalties upon the city and inspectors for the non-performance of their duties.

Mayor Keith has therefore divided the duties. Mr. Johnson will continue as inspector of meats and provisions, while the Mayor has appointed Francis Abele, Jr., the veterinary, as inspector of animals.

The new law requires the inspector of animals to be sworn to faithfully discharge the duties; to keep a record of all inspections, and to make regular returns to the Cattle Commissioners; and to enforce all regulations of the board. Several sections of Chap. 408, of the Acts of 1899, relate to the duties of inspectors.

Dr. Abele, the new inspector, is among the youngest veterinaries in Quincy, but has met with marked success, and the appointment will be well received.

Lawn Party.

Mr. Joseph D. Griffin, who recently took unto himself a fair bride entertained his fellow employes in the wholesale department of C. F. Hovey and Co., and the drivers of the delivery wagons of that firm Monday evening, at his residence on Quincy avenue. The party, which was about seventy in number, arrived from Boston on one of the early evening trains, and took a special car that was in waiting. Aside from those from Boston there were guests present from New York, Portland, Me., and Quincy.

The spacious grounds about the house were brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns, which made it light as day. Over the door leading to the house was a large banner containing the magic word "Welcome." On the lawn an orchestra composed of the employes played entrancing music while in the house Lyon's orchestra performed the same function.

The evening proved to be one of lasting pleasure; music, songs and dancing making the hours pass all too quickly. During the evening Caterer Nash served a tempting supper.

One of the features of the affair which had been arranged unbeknown to Mr. Griffin was two presentations which were made during the height of the festivities. The first of these came from the employes of the wholesale department and was a purse containing $100 in gold; and the second came from the drivers and was a silver water pitcher.

Mr. Griffin was greatly surprised but thanked them all heartily for their most generous gifts.

At a late hour the guests left for home with many well wishes for the future prosperity of Mr. and Mrs. Griffin.

Nearly Completed.

The Quincy Patriot Souvenir, a beautiful pamphlet of some eighty pages which four to five gentlemen have been busily engaged in compiling, arranging and printing, for the past three months, is now nearly completed. In two weeks, or less, it will be in the hands of the binder. It will be one of the most attractive works ever published in this city. It will contain eighty large pages, 11 by 14 inches, with about 200 handsome large half-tone engravings of public buildings, residence and prominent citizens of the city. The work has cost some $1500 to publish, and will retail at thirty cents per copy. To news agents and business men, who may want eight or more copies, they will be furnished at twenty-five cents.

TODAY'S COURT.

James M. Quinn was arraigned for non-support of his minor child at Weymouth, and was ordered to pay $2.50 per week for its support.

Alfred F. Mallet was arraigned for assault on Phebe E. Mallet at Braintree. He was found not guilty and was discharged.

The continued case of Mary Delaney, for assault at Quincy, was called, and she was discharged.

100 FEET WIDE.

Town River Being Widened by Government Contractors.

Sometime ago Congress passed a bill, in which was included an appropriation of $8,000 for further improvements in Town river. These improvements have now been commenced and will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible, and will probably be completed before winter.

The improvements roughly stated, are to widen and straighten Town river, and to dig the channel to a width of 100 feet, the present width being but 50 feet.

In order to make these improvements it will be necessary to cut off the points extending into the river; when completed the river will be of uniform width.

The contract for this work has been let to Messrs. Perkins and White, and a large dredger of that company is now hard at work.

The dredger is at present located nearly opposite Johnson's lumber wharf and is working up the river. This section will be the first to be completed.

Riot at Greenville.

The Co. K boys saw many hot times while in camp in Greenville, and a dispatch from that city under date of Aug. 7 reports a race riot at the Poe cotton mills nearby, in which one white man and five negroes were wounded. Early in the evening several negroes fired into the home of Mr. Greenberg, a mill operator, while he and his family were at supper. No one was struck by the shots, but Greenberg and his friends followed the negroes, capturing the leader. He was taken to jail.

Reports were circulated among the negroes that he had been lynched, and 300 of them appeared at the mills.

Messengers summoned white men from Greenville and a pitched battle ensued. Ben Odom was the only white man wounded. The names of the five wounded negroes are unknown, as they were immediately taken off by members of their race to prevent their arrest. Excitement has subsided and all is quiet today.

—The Commissioner General of the Paris Exposition has signed a contract with the French Railway companies whereby goods intended as exhibits will be carried to Paris terminal at a reducation of 25 per cent. on existing general and special rates. A reduction of 75 per cent. will be allowed on these rates for the return transportation.

—"You would be delighted to see the old bronze cannons and mortars which we have taken here," writes General Wood from Santiago "Some of them go back to the Middle Ages, and were evidently captured from the French. I hope they will be taken to Washington, where they would be the most interesting and ornamental in our parks."

—Engish capitalists are already preparing to buy the railroad which Sir Herbert Kitchener has built in the wake of his army practically as far as Omdurman. The gauge is the same as that of the line from Cape Town to Buluwayo, which before long will be extended ot Lake Tanganyika.

—Careful weighing shows that an ordinary bee, not loaded, weighs the five-thousandth part of a pound, so that it takes 5,000 bees to make a pound But the loaded bee, when he comes in fresh from the fields and flowers, freighted with honey or beebread, often weighs nearly three times more.

—Theatres in Spain have no programmes. A bill in the lobby sometimes gives the cast, but most of the actors remain unknown by name. The curtain is devoted to advertisements, and in Madrid theatres advertising cards are affixed with the numbers on the back of each set.

Harry Hough Rearrested.

Dover, N. H., Aug. 8.—Harry Hough, the assistant cashier of the Cocheco Savings bank of this city, who left here suddenly several weeks ago after a shortage in his accounts as teller in the Cocheco National bank had been discovered, and who was arrested by the United States officers in Boston, and brought back a few days later, was arrested yesterday on a warrant issued by the state authorities. Hough is under bond for the United States grand jury in connection with the national bank case. W. F. Nason, receiver for the bank, declined to make any statement and would not deny that anything new had developed. The warrant charges Hough with the embezzlement of $3500, the shortage reported by those who examined the books of the bank.

To Commemorate Heroic Deed.

Peru, Vt., Aug. 8.—The erection of a monument to commemorate General Stark's heroic march with a thousand men through the wilderness to meet the invasion of the British at Bennington was begun here Monday with the laying of the cornerstone. This place, which is made memorable by the encampment of General Stark upon it, lies a short distance north of this village. It is only a small clearing on rising ground. Around it on all sides is the same wilderness of forest nearly as unbroken as on the day when General Stark made his march through it. The monument, when completed, will be about 25 feet high. It will be of rock finish and of the obelisk pattern, consisting of 25 pieces of beautiful grayish granite.

Young Butler Surrenders.

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 8.—Fred Butler, aged 20, who has been wanted on an indictment charging manslaughter, in causing the death of John Rollins, aged 65, in this city, May 6, was brought into the police station last night by his mother and given up. Butler and Rollins were hoeing over a dump on May 6, and engaged in a quarrel, which finally led to blows. Rollins was struck over the head with a grub hoe, and died two days later. Butler said he went to New Hampshire after the trouble, and later went to Revere, Mass., where he has since been at work. He says he did not know of Rollins' death until his mother told him last night.

Will Make No Definite Engagements.

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 8.—Mayor Senter has received a letter from Admiral Dewey, dated Trieste, in which the admiral thanks the city for the kind expressions of regard and says that it would give him much pleasure to meet his old friends and townsmen. He states that he is unable to fix upon any definite time for his visit to Montpelier, but hopes to come here soon after his arrival in the United States. Admiral Dewey says in explanation that owing to his being a member of the Philippine commission, which meets during the coming fall at Washington, and other good reasons, he deems it unwise to bind himself to any definite engagements.

Missing Man Found.

Portland, Me., Aug. 8.—C. S. Greeley of Nashua, N. H., who disappeared June 6, has been found in this city. Greeley came here soon after leaving Nashua. He was taken sick and he went to the Greeley hospital, where he was told that an operation for an abscess was necessary, and that it might be fatal. He then told his true name, and asked that his wife be sent for. The operation was performed, and the chances are about even for his recovery. His wife and son have arrived, and a sister whom he had not seen for 15 years came from California. He does not give any reason far going away.

Took Up a Collection.

Providence, Aug. 8.—Lillian C. Jewett and the Baker family arrived in Providence on the 5:52 p. m. New York train yesterday. There was no demonstration at the station. Later there was a well attended mass meeting, where speeches were made and some $72 collected. Four watches and one pocketbook were stolen. At the conclusion of the meeting the Lillian Clayton Jewett Anti-lynching association No. 2 was formed.

A Cool Spot.

Evangelist Roughly Treated.

Millsbury, Mass., Aug. 8.—A gospel wagon in charge of Rev. F. B. Bendit, a Worcester evangelist, was stoned and driven from the street by a mob here last night. The wagon was damaged, but no one was injured.

Quarrelled Over a Woman.

Boston, Aug. 8.—John Townsend, 32 years old, colored, was fatally shot in the stomach by an unknown man, also colored, late last night. The assailant escaped. The two men were quarrelling about a woman.

Sword the Best Protector.

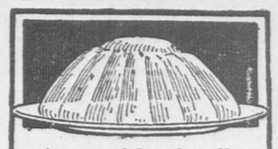

Berlin, Aug. 8.—Baron Von Stengel, who was second in rank in Germany's delegation at the recent peace conference at The Hague, has published an article upon the results of the conference. He says he doubts whether it was necessary to deal so minutely with arbitration. "A good sword," he continues, "is the best protector of a country's rights; and it would be both unwise and unpatriotic for Germans to join peace societies in advocating courts of arbitration."

Shoe Manufacturers Meet.

Philadelphia, Aug. 8.—Three hundred of the leading shoe manufacturers in the United States arrived here last night to attend the first general convention of shoe manufacturers ever held. The business sessions, begun today, will continue for three days, and the delegates hope to form a permanent national organization and advance prices to meet the recent increase in the price of leather.

A Gotham Tragedy.

New York, Aug. 8.—Mrs. Annie Kronman, wife of Nathan Kronman, a wealthy fruit commission merchant, was found in their home on Eighth avenue last night unconscious, with two five-inch gashes in the back of her head. Beside her on the floor lay a bloody hatchet. The flat was in perfect order, and Mrs. Kronman's jewelry, valued at several thousand dollars, had not been disturbed. There was no evidence of a struggle. The woman had evidently been struck down while passing through the private hallway. Mrs. Kronman was removed to Roosevelt hospital. Kronman was formally placed under arrest. He is charged with having murderously assaulted his wife. The police say that a woman had been much in Kronman's company of late, and that she called frequently at his place of business. Kronman was seen to leave his place of business last night accompanied by the woman.

The Confidant Jiminez.

Havana, Aug. 8.—General Jiminez says he is in daily receipt of about 25 cablegrams from Santo Domingo, where all is going well. To an interviewer he exhibited a letter, which he said was from a person of influence, advising him not to risk participating in an expedition, as the result was assured and was only a matter of time. According to the writer, if anything happened to Jiminez the people of Santo Domingo would regard it as a great loss, as their ideals and hopes regarding good government were bound up in him. General Jiminez said he could not leave Havana at present, as he must have headquarters from which to send orders and at which to receive news, but, when all was assured, he would go.

McKinley and Root Confer.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Secretary Root, when seen late last night after a conference with Mr. McKinley, said: "I have had a long conference with President McKinley. It is the first chance I have had to talk with Mr. McKinley since I assumed the office of secretary of war, and there are naturally many things to be talked over. I shall remain here and have a further conference with the president." When asked whether General Otis was to be relieved of his command in the Philippines, or whether our force there was to be increased to 40,000, Secretary Root said there was nothing to be said upon those points yet.

Thirteen Passengers Hurt.

New York, Aug. 8.—A car of the Flatbush avenue line, Brooklyn, bound for Bergen beach, in charge of Motorman Hogel, yesterday ran into the rear end of another car, injuring 13 persons, three of whom were taken to the hospital. It is alleged that the motorman had taken the seat behind the brake of the car to rest, leaving the car to William Hannigan, a shop hand. The speed of the car became too great and got beyond Hannigan's control, and before either of the men could stop it there was a crash. After the accident Hannigan disappeared, but the motorman was arrested and was held in $2500 bail.

Full Bloods Defeated.

Vinita, I. T., Aug. 8.—Incomplete returns from the Cherokee election indicate the defeat of the national ticket, which had the support of the full blood element in the nation, and the election of Buffington for principal chief by 2000 majority. This defeat of the full bloods makes it certain that the treaty with the United States will be revived or a new commission appointed to make a treaty with the Dawes commission.

Modest Insurgents.

Madrid, Aug. 8.—It is stated that the insurgents in the Philippines demand $7,000,000 for the release of the Spanish prisoners held by them.

—The Park Square station in Boston will be vacated Oct. 1 when the trains will enter the South station.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about 1-4 as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

AN ORDINANCE

Regulating Plumbing.

Engrossed Ordinance No. 28, 1899.

CITY OF QUINCY.

In the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety nine.

Be it ordained by the City Council of Quincy as follows:

SECTION 1. No person shall carry on the business of plumbing unless he is a plumber and shall have first registered his name and place of business in the office of the Board of Health; and notice of any change in the place of business of a registered plumber shall be immediately given to said Board of Health.

SEC. 2. Every plumber before doing any work in a building, shall, except in the case of the repair of leaks, file at the office of said Board of Health, a notice of the work to be performed, and no such work shall be done in any building without the approval of said Board of Health or its Inspector of Plumbing.

SEC. 3. The plumbing of every building, unless otherwise permitted by the Board of Health, shall be separately and independently connected with the public sewer, when such sewer is provided, or with a proper and sufficient drain connected thereto outside of the building, and if no sewer is provided with a proper cesspool.

SEC. 4. Pipes and other fixtures shall not be covered or concealed from view until approved by the Inspector of Plumbing, who shall examine the same within two working days after notice that they are ready for inspection.

SEC. 5. The Board of Health must be notified when the main drain, soil, waste, branch connections or ventilating pipes are in and ready to be tested.

The Board must again be notified immediately after the work is completed and before it is covered from view. All work must be left uncovered and convenient for examination until inspected and approved; and no drainage system shall be used until a certificate of approval has been granted.

If, on inspection the work is not satisfactory, the plumber shall be notified in writing and a limit of five days (unless otherwise permitted) given in which to complete said work; at which time the Board of Health must be notified.

SEC. 6. Drain and connecting ventilating pipes shall be of sufficient size, and made of cast iron within the building, and for a distance of at least eight feet outside, except that lead pipes may be used for short connections exposed to view. Such pipes shall be of uniform thickness throughout, and shall have an average weight not less than below specified, viz:

2 inch pipe, 3 2-5 pounds per foot.
3 " " 5 " " "
4 " " 6 2-5 " " "
5 " " 8 2-5 " " "
6 " " 10 2-5 " " "
7 " " 13 " " "

Drain pipes shall be properly secured by irons to walls, laid in trenches to uniform grade, or suspended to floor timbers by strong iron hangers.

The space between these hangers shall not exceed ten feet. Every drain pipe must be provided with a running trap with an accessible brass screw cleanout, at or near the point where it leaves the building, and shall have a fall of at least one-quarter of an inch to the foot. Soil pipes shall be carried above the roof open and undiminished in size, and to a distance of not less than two feet above the roof, or not less than five feet above any window within fifteen feet. Changes in direction shall be made with curved pipes, and all connections with horizontal or vertical pipes shall be made with Y or long T Y branches. No trap shall be placed at the foot of a stack.

All branches of soil pipe twelve feet or more in length must be carried up not less than two feet above the roof undiminished in size, or more than two feet, if said Board shall so direct, or they may be connected with the main soil pipe above the highest plumbing fixture.

All drain pipe shall be exposed to sight where practicable within the building, and shall not be exposed to pressure where they pass through walls. Every part of every drain pipe below a cellar floor shall be accessible through sufficient unattached covers. In all cases there shall be an extra heavy iron pipe laid from eight feet outside and carried through the foundation wall and connected with the drain inside by a Y branch with a brass screw clean out in a direct line with the sewer or cesspool, and the drains when under the cellar bottom shall be of extra heavy iron pipe also.

Standard galvanized wrought iron may be used for ventilating pipes, when in the opinion of the inspector it is practical.

SECTION 7. When the waste pipe does not exceed three feet in length from its connection with the fixture to its connection with the trap, one round trap may be used for a sink and wash trays or for bath tub and bowl; if over three feet in length the waste pipe of each and every sink, basin, bath-tub, water-closet, slop hopper, and of each set of trays or other fixtures, shall be furnished with a separate trap, which shall be placed as near as practicable to the fixture that it serves.

Traps shall be protected from siphonage or air pressure by special cast-iron air pipes of a size not less than the waste pipes they serve, run from the crown or outlet of the trap. Lead air-pipes may be used only when they are exposed to view.

Air pipes for water-closet traps shall be of wo inch bore if thirty feet or less in length, and of three inch bore if more than thirty feet in length; other air pipes shall be as large as the waste pipes from the trap. Air pipes shall be run as direct as practicable.

Two or more air-pipes may be connected together or with a drain pipe; but in every case of connection with a drain pipe such connection shall be above the highest waste connection with said drain pipe. No ventilation shall be required from a deep drum trap or traps in cases where all the plumbing is located on the same floor and where no soil matter is admitted.

Air pipes shall be so constructed as not to allow the formation of a trap, nor be used as waste pipes.

SECTION 8. All waste or overflow pipes from safes under-closets and other fixtures or from tanks shall be run separately to basement or cellar, and left open; in no case shall they be connected with a soil pipe or any other waste pipe. No waste pipe from a refrigerator or other receptacle in which food or provisions are stored shall be connected with a drain, soil, or waste pipe, but shall be separated therefrom by an open air sink or tray furnished with a trap.

No steam exhaust, blow off or drip pipe shall connect with a sewer, house drain, rain-water conductor, soil, waste or vent pipe.

Such pipes shall discharge into a suitable tank or condenser from which a proper outlet to the house drain shall be provided.

SECTION 9. Every water-closet shall be supplied with water from a separate tank or cistern and shall have a flushing pipe of not less than one and one-fourth inches in diameter; but this requirement shall not apply to water-closets substituted for vaults, where the same are located outside of the building proper; and such water-closets may be arranged so as to receive their supply directly from the main, with proper fixtures approved by the Board of Health.

SECTION 10. No saddle hubs will be allowed on any plumbing. No return bends will be allowed except by special permission of the inspector.

All connections of lead waste and ventilating pipes on sewer or cesspool side of water seal of traps shall be made with plumbers wipe solder joints, and no wipe cup joints will be allowed.

Engrossed Ordinance No 33, 1899.

CITY OF QUINCY.

In the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety nine.

Be it ordained by the City Council of Quincy as follows:

All applications for the construction of particular sewers and their entrance into common sewers shall be made upon blank forms to be obtained at the office of the Board of Sewerage Commissioners, and shall be signed by the owner or by the accredited agent of the premises to be sewered.

The size and materials of particular sewers and appurtenances shall be such as the Board of Sewerage Commissioners shall prescribe, and in conformity with the requirements of the Board of Health.

Said sewers shall be laid accurately to straight lines and grades. If angles along the lines thereof are unavoidable, manholes or other approved means of access shall be provided.

The materials and labor required in the construction of particular sewers and appurtenances thereof, shall be provided and the work done by the Board of Sewerage Commissioners or their duly authorized agents, and by no other person or persons; excepting that the applicant may make all of the excavation and back fill outside the street lines, excepting so much as will affect the proper bedding and securing of the pipe or other structure.

The plumbing of any building shall not be connected with a particular sewer until the applicant shall file with the Board of Sewerage Commissioners a certificate by the Inspector of Plumbing, that the said plumbing work is in suitable condition for connection with the public sewer.

No person shall be allowed to make any alteration in or make any connection with any particular sewer, except as stated in the original permit. Leave to depart therefrom must be obtained from the Board of Sewerage Commissioners on further application thereof to said Commissioners.

The Board of Sewerage Commissioners may at any time require such grease traps to be introduced along the line of any particular sewer, or on the discharge of any fixture connected therewith as he may deem necessary for the proper maintenance of said particular sewer, or of the common sewers.

No person shall throw or discharge into a public sewer or any of its connections, any steam or other matter or thing which may tend to, or cause, an obstruction thereof or a deposit therein, or any injury thereto.

No person shall cause or allow any roof water or surface water, by pipe or otherwise, to be conducted or to flow or discharge into any pipe or drain connecting with, or which indirectly through any other pipe or drain or directly discharges its contents into any main drain or common sewer.

All particular sewers shall be under the control of, and be maintained and kept clean by the city. The expense in cleaning and repairing any particular sewer shall be paid by the owner of the premises connected by said particular sewer, and pre-payment or security for the said expense may be required by the Board of Sewerage Commissioners, provided, however, that any labor on particular sewers occasioned by defects or obstructions in the common sewer shall be paid for by the city.

The term "particular sewers" used in this ordinance is intended to mean the house connections of the abuttor with the main or common sewer.

Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of these rules and regulations shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding Twenty dollars ($20.00) for each violation.

This ordinance shall take effect upon its passage and the ordinance in relation to House connections with the common sewer and regulating the same is hereby repealed.

A SAFE STRUCTURE.

Responsibility For Trolley Disaster Cannot Be Placed Upon Bridge.

Railway Had Just Contracted For Guard Rails.

Motorman Arraigned on Manslaughter Charge and Released on Bail.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 8.—Coroner Doten and the jury which was impaneled yesterday started for the scene of Sunday's satastrophe at about 2 o'clock. The big trestle across the pond from which the car fell first engaged their attention. Every portion which could in any way have a bearing upon the accident, as well as the earthen approaches at the south of the structure, was carefully examined. Several experts on bridges and bridge building accompanied the jury to explain technical points which might have a bearing upon some incident connected with the occurrence.

From the examination made by the coroner's jury, the bridge apparently is a good, strong, substantial structure. The stringers on the outside of each rail are of red oak, 6x10 inches, bolted to the ties and intended to prevent a car from leaving the rails. The rails, however, measure 5½ inches from base to top, thus being only one-half inch lower than the wooden stringer or "guard rail."

Representatives of the jury measured the distance which the car ran after leaving the irons, as indicated by marks and scars on the ties, and found it to be 85 feet. At that point the car toppled over into the mud flats below.

At the south end of the bridge is an earthwork approach 250 feet in length, with a 3 percent gradient. The bridge experts who accompanied the jury said that a car running rapidly over this earth approach would acquire a "springy, swaying motion" because of the elastic property of the earth. If a car traveled down the approach at a high rate of speed, they said, it would, at the time the trestle was reached, be swaying considerably. So long as it remained on the earthen foundation there would be little danger of leaving the irons, but when the bridge was reached the elasticity of the foundation immediately would be removed, the bridge being rigid, and the tendency would be for the car to spring up from the rails.

Two experts, representatives of the Berlin Iron Bridge company, who were present, pronounced the bridge to be all right in every way and just as safe as it was possible to make it. One of them ventured the remark that he would willingly ride over it on a train of Pullman cars traveling at a good rate of speed. The element of safeness in a bridge of this kind, he said, was the light weight of the cars and the short wheel base.

The car which had sunk in the mud of the flat beneath the bridge was removed and carefully examined. The wheels were examined and the flangers found to be in perfect condition, not being broken in any way. The brake and brake rod also were uninjured. The brakes were set. The condition of the lever by which the power to run the car is regulated showed that at the time the car left the bridge the power was turned completely off. Everything about the car, all the parts, all the surroundings, were carefully examined by the jurors, and when they thought nothing remained to be done there adjournment was taken until today.

An official of the Shelton Street Railway company stated last night that President Radell last week had contracted with a steel concern to place steel guard rails inside the rails running over the trestle where the accident occurred. The arrangements for placing the guard rails, just as they are placed on bridges and trestles used by steam railroads, had been completed, the company guaranteeing to have the irons on the ground and ready to put in place next week.

George Hamilton, the motorman of the ill-fated car, was arraigned before Justice Peck in the Stratford court last evening.

The charge brought against Hamilton was that of manslaughter. He pleaded not guilty, and without having heard evidence of any kind, Justice Peck continued the case for one week and fixing the prisoner's bail at $2000. Hamilton was released soon afterwards.

Death of Holyoke's Mayor.

Pittsfield, Mass., Aug. 8.—Mayor W. W. Whiting died last night while presiding at a meeting of the board of aldermen. The business of the meeting had been nearly completed, and Clerk Lewis was reading a recommendation from the highway committee, when the mayor said: "Alderman Stevens, I wish you would take the chair." With these words his head fell forward, and his face grew pale. The aldermen carried the mayor to an improvised couch and summoned a physician. Mr. Whiting was taken to a hospital, where he died at 10:30. He was serving his second term as mayor, being a Democrat in politics. He was a tax collector from 1881 to 1883, and selectman from 1885 to 1887. He was born in Bath, N. Y., in 1847, and came to Pittsfield in 1866. He established a wholesale paper business in 1873 and continued it until 1881, when he commensed the the manufacture of fine stationery.

A Furious Duel.

Vienna, Aug. 8.—A sensational sabre duel was fought yesterday between Herr Wolff, Radical member of the reichsrath, and Herr Krzekep, a Liberal deputy. It was a furious encounter. Herr Wolff received a wound in the head, severing an artery. The doctors declared him impossible of continuing the duel, but he persisted, though his face was bathed in blood. Ultimately he sustained a second wound in the head, and was carried home in a dangerous condition. The duel arose from Herr Krzekep's accusing Herr Wolff of always answering political attacks by fighting duels against incapable antagonists.

WILLIS AT HIS BEST.

Boston Practically Defeated Washington In Last Half of the First Inning.

Boston, Aug. 8.—Willis was at his best at the Boston grounds, and his fast pitching, coupled with hard hitting by the home champions, good fielding and heady base running, gave Boston the third straight game from the visiting Senators.

The total run getting and hitting of the visiting tourists was not enough to win any game, unless the other team scored nothing. A solitary hit, and a single run, and the latter in the opening inning, was Washington's achievement. Boston found Dineen hard and often, although outside of three innings runs came hard for the champions.

In the last haf of the first the home club scored a bunch of three runs, which practically settled matters, by timely work at the bat. Three more tallies in the eighth on good hitting, and Irwin's boys are more impressed than ever with the ability of the champions to bat once they get started.

Brutal Treatment Caused Death.

New York, Aug. 8.—An examination of the body of James McGuire, formerly a paretic patient at the Manhattan state hospital on Ward's island, who died in that institution on Saturday, led to the arrest last night of four keepers, Thomas Sexton, Patrick Ryan, Daniel O'Connell and Martin White, who may have to answer to a charge of murder. The arrests were made on the strength of the report of Coroner's Physician Williams, who conducted the post mortem and reached the conclusion that McGuire met death by violence. Scarcely a spot on the dead man's body was free from bruises, which apparently were the result of pressure from the knees of the attendants. From his head to his knees deep, blue dents were discernible on the flesh. Six of the ribs on the right side were broken. The intestines had broken through the abdominal membrane, while the membrane itself had been torn almost to ribbons. The kidneys and liver had been badly bruised and there was a large abrasion at the back of the head.

Yellow Jack's Backbone Broken.

Newport News, Aug. 8.—One new case of yellow fever developed at the soldiers' home yesterday. There were no deaths. This is the official report. The case found yesterday is the first reported since last Thursday night. There is now no doubt that the backbone of the yellow fever epidemic is broken, and in two weeks it is probable that the scourge will be a thing of the past. The quarantine, however, will be raised before that time, as the situation is improving so rapidly that it will be unnecessary to block business and traffic after the next few days.

COLUMBIA WINS AGAIN.

Four Minutes Faster Than Defender In a Thirty-Mile Contest.

Vigilant Makes Poor Showing Against Newer Boats.

More Than Fifty Contestants In First Run of New York Yacht Club.

New London, Conn., Aug. 9.—A magnificent spectacle presented itself to the eyes of those fortunate enough to look out into the harbor yesterday, where lay at anchor the largest fleet that ever had a rendezvous here under the auspices of the New York Yacht club. Nearly 200 boats floated calmly and majestically on the waters and gave some idea of the magnitude to which pleasure yachting is carried. The Columbia, America's pride and hope, was the central figure for admiring eyes, and many were the comments and discussions about her shapely lines. She was compared with the stately Defender, which always will hold a high place in patriots' hearts.

The first run of the club must be set down as one of the most successful in the club's history. The club watched with pride the magnificent run of Columbia, which fairly distanced every other yacht with the exception of Defender, and she, too, was defeated by 4 minutes and 1 second in a 30-mile race.

The old cup defender, Vigilant, was beaten by the two flyers by nearly an hour, but much of this was no doubt due to the fortunate run of the Columbia and Defender along the Fisher Island shore, while the rest of the fleet kept over on the other side of the sound. The Amorita was also held in under Fisher Island, and beat out all the schooners with ease, winning in her class, by a number of minutes.

Over 50 yachts crossed the line at New London, and nearly all finished in Gardiner's bay. The run gave the yachts a good broad reach to Race Rock of 3½ miles, a fine run before the wind to Watch Hill of 8½ miles, and a grand beat of 18¼ miles in a constantly increasing breeze to the finish, an ideal course.

There were many interesting and exciting moments from the time that the great bunch of sloops, followed by the schooners, swept over the starting line until the last of the racers finished, but by far the greatest event was the magnificent seven-mile run of the Columbia from Fisher's island to Great Gull island, during which she averaged close up to a 13-knot gait. It was on this leg, made very close to the wind, that the Columbia pulled out so far on the Defender, for where the boats were but a short eighth of a mile apart under Fisher's island, there was nearly a mile and a half of water between them at Great Gull island. Both yachts had all the wind they could stagger under, and the Columbia hauled down her jib topsail during a 10-minute interval, when it blew the hardest. She set it again, however, when the Defender began to pick up, and held her advantage to the line. Neither boat was held back. It was a good square test of the merits of the old and new boats, and the latter may be put down as a good four minutes faster under the present conditions, and with her steel mast in, a couple of minutes more.

Once during the day, just after the start, the Columbia seemed inactive and lifeless, and the Defender almost got by her. But just before reaching Race Rock, the new boat seemed to find herself again, and from there she was never in danger.

The fleet started out soon after 10 o'clock, but Commodore Morgan did not send them away until nearly 11, waiting for a little more breeze. The feature of the fleet outside of the big sloops was the great number of schooners.

Nearly all the cracks participated, and some of the older ones showed themselves still in the game.

It was a fine spectacle at the start, and an even finer one as coming down to Watch Hill buoy, with every kite set and spinnakers to starboard, they all folded their extra wings and rounded the buoy for the beat to the finish.

Quisetta looked a winner at this point, but Captain Lippitt made a mistake in seeking the Long Island shore, and his rival on the Amorita easily beat him.

The wind held throughout the day, and during the afternoon reached up to almost 12 knots.

Sergeant and Private Killed.

Salt Lake City, Aug. 9.—First Sergeant John Jackson was shot and killed at Fort Douglass last night by Private W. E. Carter, and the latter was then shot and killed, while resisting arrest. Both were colored and belonged to the Ninth United States cavalry. Jackson ordered Carter taken to the guardhouse for inattention to duty, and Carter was sent to his quarters for his blankets, but he got his rifle and went to Jackson's room and shot him twice. Carter attempted to escape, and 25 soldiers pursued him. Carter shot several times at his pursuers, and was fatally shot himself. Jackson and Carter both participated in the battle of San Juan hill.

Drank Wood Alcohol.

Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Four young men in Elkland, Pa., died suddenly within 24 hours. All were similarly affected previously to death. It is thought that they all drank wood alcohol at a picnic Sunday. Several others are seriously ill and two are expected to die.

CLEVELAND'S PLUCKY CATCHER

Finished Out In the Game With Boston, Although He Was Badly Hurt.

Boston, Aug. 9.—The Clevelands came to Boston again and the champions had an easy time defeating them in a game devoid of features. It was a disastrous game for the visitors, their only catcher, Joe Sugden, meeting with a bad accident, which will lay him up for some time perhaps. Sugden is the only catcher with the visitors, and a foul from Bergen's bat hit him on the right knee cap, dislocating it until a surgeon appeared. By skilful manipulating the injured part was shoved back into place, and Sugden won applause by his gameness in continuing.

To Await Result of Inquest.

New York, Aug. 9.—The four employes of the Manhattan state hospital on Ward island, arrested on a charge of homicide in causing the death last Saturday of James McGuire, a paretic patient in the hospital, were brought before Coroner Zucca yesterday. Three were committed to the Tombs without bail to await the inquest. It was ascertained that Martin Whyte was an eye-witness of the attack on McGuire, but took no part in it. Whyte stated that just before the assault he saw Sexton talking with some other attendant. He heard McGuire ask Sexton, "Who are you looking at?" Then McGuire struck Sexton in the neck. O'Connell and Ryan then rushed toward McGuire and bore him to the floor. Seeing that the attendants were able to cope with the man, Whyte went away.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

New Hampshire Tragedy Brought About by Jealousy and Liquor.

Ida Miller, Divorced Woman, Killed on a Highway.

Slayer Then Puts a Bullet Into His Own Head, Both Dying Instantly.

North Conway, N. H., Aug. 9.—Charles Bennett of Windham, Me., shot and killed Ida Miller of Standish, Me., on the highway at Quint's Siding, on the line of the Boston and Maine railroad, near Conway Corner, yesterday afternoon. The murderer then turned the weapon on himself and committed suicide, while near the scene of the murder. The act was caused by jealousy, superinduced by drinking. There were three witnesses to the affair.

The murder and suicide have caused intense excitement in this section of the state, where both parties were known to a great many of the people. Ida Miller, the victim of the act of Bennett, was the divorced wife of Maynard Miller, her maiden name being Langdon. The result of their marriage was a daughter of 12 years, who has resided with her mother since the divorce was decreed.

For six years after the divorce, Mrs. Miller lived with Charles Bennett at Ossipee, N. H., though it is said they were not married. It is claimed that drunken abuse on the part of Bennett caused a separation in the early part of the present year, and for four months Mrs. Miller had not seen Bennett. About two weeks ago Mrs. Miller, her daughter and a 16-year-old girl named Morrill drove up from Windham on a blueberrying expedition on Moat mountain, and during their stay they occupied a tent on the mountain. On Friday last they were joined by Harry Morrill, the girl's brother, and since that time the party had great pleasure in climbing the mountainous country for berries.

About 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon Bennett appeared at a wagon which the merry berry pickers had driven on the High street road, about a mile and a half from their tent. Bennett was under the influence of liquor, but appeared kindly to the members of the party, and especially toward Mrs. Miller, and remained in their presence about 30 minutes, when young Morrill started for their temporary home in the tent. The other members of the party drove down on the west side road with Bennett in the wagon, and during the trip he partook of more liquor, but was not angry upon the refusal of the others to join him.

About 4 o'clock the party drove toward North Conway, and upon nearing the village the girls waited at the Saco bridge while the couple went into the village for more liquor. Upon their return to the bridge the party started for Quint's siding, where they arrived between 5 and 6 o'clock.

After driving up and down the road near the house of A. H. Quint, Bennett began to quarrel and forced the children from the carriage with cuffs and threats. They grasped the horse by the bridle, but upon being whipped up by Bennett the animal broke loose, and the children started for the village after Harry Morrill, the last words of Mrs. Miller being: "Get to Harry as quick as possible." She was then struggling in the grasp of Bennett, who was attempting to choke her.

The children met Morrill near the Red Eagle House, and but 20 minutes elapsed in making the trip, but when they returned they found the two dead bodies. However, passersby had heard the quarrel and there were three witnesses to the shooting which followed.

The witnesses were A. H. Quint and his two farmhands, Cyrus and Obed Hallett. Their story is to the effect that they understood the man to say: "Will you go back with me," to which Mrs. Miller answered: "No." Bennett then drew a revolver and shot her twice in the neck and once in the body. He then threw her from the wagon and turned the revolver on himself and fired one shot, which entered the skull under the left ear. Both deaths were undoubtedly instantaneous.

Bennett's body then fell from the wagon after he had gone a distance of about 150 feet from the spot where the body of Mrs. Miller was lying in the road. As the laws of the state do not allow the removal of the bodies until an inquest is held, they remained there last night, awaiting the return of Coroner Shedd from Portland.

Both of the actors in the event were in abject poverty.

It is thought that Bennett was about 40 years of age. He resided here for a short time, but about three years ago engaged at wood cutting for William Kennett of Madison.

Mrs. Miller was 30 years of age. As this was the first murder in this section for many years, the affair has terribly excited the residents of the ordinarily peaceful district.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Any organization operating to destroy competition with a view to preying on the public is unlawful in any and all the states of the Union. Any combination, however large, that does not injuriously limit production or raise prices is lawful, even though it may dispense with numerous middlemen and close mills that cannot be profitably operated. It may lawfully do much private injury without doing a public wrong. It is no more unlawful to displace men by combination than by labor-saving machines. In either case there is suffering for individuals. That has always been the penalty of progress.—Washington Post.

☞ To take a picture against the wishes of the persons photographed is a species of assault which may properly be resented. The most natural and effective method of expressing resentment in such a case is to smash the camera with which the assault was committed. That gives satisfaction when successfully accomplished, but it is difficult, and usually impossible, and, besides, it is violent, and gets ones name into the papers. Still, it ought to be considered an honorable distinction to figure in the newspapers in such a cause. Whether the law protects citizens from assault by camera has not been determined, so far as the present writer knows, but surely it ought to.—Harpers' Weekly.

☞ No one who watches events in the economic world fail to recognize the fact that we are just now passing a milestone. We are witnessing changes in the machinery of distribution made inevitable by the tremendous changes which the last decade has brought about in production. There may be for a time in such a period more wealth side by side with more want. It was so in England in the time of Henry the Eighth, when the centre of English industry shifted from agriculture to trade. But the end of such an experience, is always improvement, the advancement of the race in well being. Every social change seems at the time to be for the few and against the many, but Nature is in the end—like wisdom—justified of all her children.—Kansas City Journal.

☞ Something should be done with regard to the instuction of the natives of our new possessions in the English language. Great care should be taken not to attempt too much. If the United States government should employ teachers of English (and these must all be acquainted with the Spanish language) to make weekly visits to the several schools and give model lessons in instruction in English and direct instruction in this branch, one lesson a day being required in each of the schools, the native teachers would soon become good instructors in this branch, and the English language would very soon come to be taught in an effective manner, and this with a minimum of outlay from the public funds.—Commissioner W. T. Harris in the Independent.

CITY TREASURER BURKE.

Mysterious Obstruction.

Although as thorough search as possible has been made to discover the nature of the hidden obstruction in the channel where the Cunard steamship Ultonia struck on her outward passage last Saturday morning, thereby damaging two of her plates, no trace was found of anything which could bring about the injury received by the vessel. From the nature of the damage to the ship it seemed almost certain that the vessel had been scraped along her side by some object of iron or steel, for no wooden obstruction or rock could cut as cleanly a slice off of the heavy plates.

Nearly Completed.

The Quincy Patriot Souvenir, a beautiful pamphlet of some eighty pages which four to five gentlemen have been busily engaged in compiling, arranging and printing, for the past three months, is now nearly completed. In two weeks, or less, it will be in the hands of the binder. It will be one of the most attractive works ever published in this city. It will contain eighty large pages, 11 by 14 inches, with about 200 handsome large half-tone engravings of public buildings, residence and prominent citizens of the city. The work has cost some $1500 to publish, and will retail at thirty cents per copy. To news agents and business men, who may want eight or more copies, they will be furnished at twenty-five cents.

Fine Showing.

The Second Brigade made an excellent showing at the review by Lieut. Gov. Crane on Tuesday, which is said to have been the best ever held at the camp. Of the Fifth the Herald says, The regiment swung along handsomely, and the alignment and distances in the first two battalions were perfect. The rear rank in this regiment was perfect in all the companies in their distance, but the 3d battalion company commanders were too generous in distances between companies. It was a beautiful exhibition, however, of set-up and general military bearing.

LIEUT. GOV. CRANE.

What will it do? It will do so much that it is impossible to tell it in a short space. It will brighten and freshen the rooms you have been living in and destroy all germs of disease. It will make the inside of the house attractive and cheerful, and if the house is not cheerful the family can hardly expect to be. It will protect the outside of the house and preserve it from decay, besides making it good to look upon. It will "stick closer than a brother," and it will make a place for itself in the corner of your heart, so that when the name "Chilton Paint" is mentioned you will "rise up and call it blessed."

Constable Furnald held up two Arab lace peddlers on Washington street, Tuesday afternoon, and brought them to the police station. They told Chief Hayden that the lace was made by a sister. If this was true they had a right to peddle it without a license. In the absence of any proof that a sister did not make it they were released.

In the closing race of the Manchester Yacht club on Tuesday the winners of first prizes were the Cartoon, Heiress, Arab IV, Tunipoo and Freak. The Hostess was not entered, and the Heiress outsailed Dauntless, her only rival, over 24 minutes. The Privateer was close upon the Arab in the cabin class losing by 1 minute, 26 seconds.

Someone who wanted to have fun with the clerks at the post office mailed a postal card Saturday that was not only written in shorthand but was addressed in the same character thinking perhaps that it would be held up. Postmaster Hammond however does not permit such things to bother him any and promptly forwarded the card to the young lady in Boston to whom it was addressed with the remark that the address was easy to read when compared with some of the addresses he has in English.

RAILROAD STRIKE.

New Haven System May be Tied Up any Day Now.

For two months there have been rumors of a strike on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Generally when there is so much talk there is little else and it may be so in this case, but a strike may come any day, and cripple local as well as through service.

A dispatch of Tuesday from New Haven to the Globe says: New Haven & Hartford railroad has taken measures to prevent the 1200 telegraphers who threaten to strike from stating their grievances to even their own district superintendents.

When President Clark of the road refused to receive any representative of the Telegraphers union, Secretary Cardinal instructed the telegrahers on every one of the 20 divisions of the Consolidated road to send two men to their respective superintendents and state their grievances to them, asking for a conference.

Two men on each division, therefore, went to each superintendent and asked for a conference. A prompt refusal met every request.

In one instance the superintendent told the petitioners flatly that they had been ordered not to confer with the prospective strikers, and not to allow the telegraphers to leave their posts for a conference.

Secretary Cardinal says that this action indicates that the road officials will leave no stone unturned to prevent conferring with the Telegraphers' union. He has received word from 650 telegraphers, and 625 had voted to strike.

There are 800 of the 1200 telegraphers on the road in the union, and it is expected that practically, 700 of the 800 will vote to strike. Besides this it is practically certain that 200 of the 400 men outside the union will join in the strike.

President Powell of the telegraphers' federation will arrive here tomorrow, and the strike will probably be ordered at once.

Secretary Cardinal says that he sees no chance of a compromise, although he is emphatic in his statement that the telegraphers are eager to leave the matter to the officials and compromise on a reasonable basis.

Secretary Cardinal said tonight: "I am more than ever confident now that the matter of the telegraphers will come to a head immediately and everything looks like strike. The men have just demands and are bound to have them heard, at least.

"It is outrageous the way we are treated, and if the road persists in its position it will have one of the biggest strikes on its hands ever seen on the system. When railroad officials run up against the associations of employes on this road and the east, which are the strongest in the world, they will do so to their sorrow".

"When the leaders meet here at President Powell's call a committee will request an interview with President Clark, and if refused, or if the interview amounts to nothing, a prompt order will go out for a strike."

Milton Fire.

The fire near Granite bridge shortly after 5 A. M. Tuesday was the burning of a shed recently built by Ham and Carter. Alarms were sounded in Boston and Milton, but the building was destroyed. The shed was a one-story wooden structure, 50x100 feet in size. It was the property of Thomas W. Carter, treasurer of the Ham and Carter Company, and contained about 200,000 bricks, the larger part of which were not injured, besides a quantity of hay. The loss is estimated at $2,500. Neither the building nor its contents was insured. The fire, it is thought, may have been set by a tramp. The building has been frequented by hoodlums and vagrants, who have used it as a lodging place, and all efforts to keep them out have been ineffectual.

Liquor Transportation Case.

Another hearing in the James McDonnell case, was held today. This is the case where certain liquors were seized in Quincy under the Faxon law for illegal transportation on May 29, last. Two cases have already been heard and that this morning was a new warrant charging him with not properly keeping an expressman's book. The claim was that the law said that the expressman's books shall be exact transcript of the tags and these were not. The address of the consigner not being on the book but on the tags. McDonnell claimed that the entries in the book were not made by him, but by the clerk at the liquor store, when he got his goods. The tags were also written by the clerk. He brought out goods for neighbors at their request and received twenty-five cents a case.

—An official of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. says that he never knew a time in the history of the road when the traffic on the entire system, both freight and passenger, was so heavy as at the present time. At many points the road is suffering from a car famine, and finds difficulty in caring for all the business that is offering.

It was a very pleasant reunion of Quincys most popular citizens.

UNIQUE SIDEBOARD.

FOR A ROOM WHERE HOSPITALITY IS MORE APPARENT THAN SPACE.

A Clever Device With Many Advantages For a Small Dining Room—It Saves Discomfort and Is Convenient For Waitress and Cook.

The dining table, with the six chairs that are usually provided, will often fill a small room so that it is almost impossible to include other furnishings that go far toward making a hospitable looking and cheery place in which the family meet together at their meals and entertain the guests. Among clever devices suggested by a writer in The Household to remedy this state of things is the unique sideboard here illustrated and described.

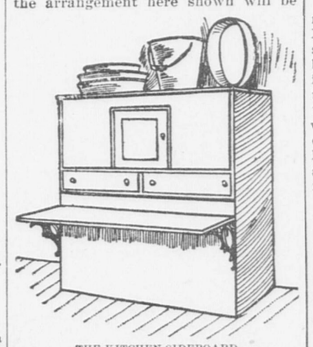

THE DINING ROOM SIDEBOARD.

The sideboard has several unique features. It is built into the wall between the dining room and the kitchen, these rooms usually being found adjoining. One cut shows the sideboard from the dining room side, the other gives a view of it as seen from the kitchen. It does not project at all into the dining room—a saving of space that will be appreciated by many housewives who have experienced the discomfort of attempting to entertain friends about a table where hospitality was more apparent than space.

It often happens that the other rooms of the house are laid out quite at the expense of the room in which the family is to dine. This room usually gets the space that is left after the others have been satisfactorily arranged. This, perhaps, comes from the feeling that the dining room is to be the least used, in point of time, of any room in the house. The sacrificing of space in the room where all the family meals are to be eaten is almost without exception regretted afterward, especially if much furniture is placed in it.

The construction of such a sideboard as is shown here will help out a crowded condition of the room by removing the necessity for the usual movable sideboard. But it has other advantages that will be recounted. The entire sideboard projects into the kitchen. At the back, above the top, are three glass panels. The middle one is hinged and opens like a door. This gives opportunity to set in from the kitchen side any article that may be needed upon the table.

If the nostess must do her own serving or when guests are not present if the family must wait upon themselves, the arrangement here shown will be found very desirable. The curtains can be drawn during the meal, and at a stroke of the bell the cook can set in upon the sideboard the hot dessert from the oven or the cold dessert from the ice chest, together with the coffee or chocolate. The convenience of this plan does not need comment.

THE KITCHEN SIDEBOARD.

It will be seen from the kitchen illustration that the two upper drawers in the sideboard pull out into the kitchen as well as into the dining room. The knives, forks, spoons, etc., can thus be washed in the kitchen and put into the drawers without leaving the room. Here the less used kitchen tinware can be stored. Such a sideboard can be built into an old house without much trouble.

The Ubiquitous and Stylish Bolero.

The ubiquity of the bolero is a bit disconcerting, yet everywhere we find this little coatee invested with every possible element of novelty to justify its existence and continue it in the vanguard of vogues. In foulard, voile and the like it will be well to note how frequently are draped folds resorted to, these lending a most becoming breadth and fullness to the figure of slim svelte proportions.

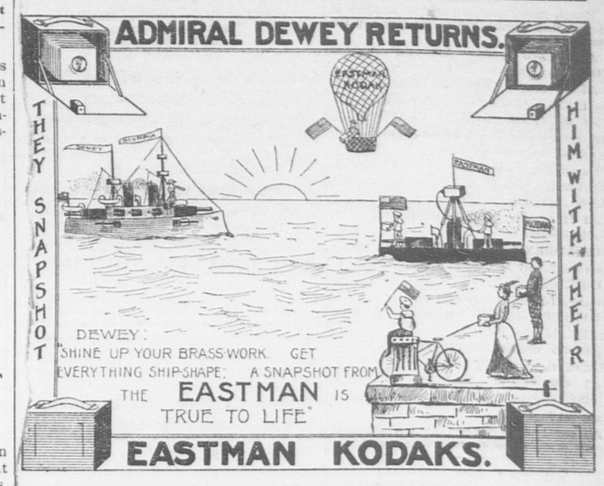

Also are boleros tucked in ways innumerable, or piped; left open or closed with eccentric buttons, sloped up or down in front; completed with high collar or merely vandyked at the neck, as elsewhere round the edges. Literally and in very truth the bolero can do no wrong. In its more elongated form—when, strictly speaking, it becomes an Eton—linen costumes claim the vogue particularly for their own.

Death of Ex-Governor Atkinson.

Newman, Ga., Aug. 9.—Ex-Governor W. Y. Atkinson died at his home here yesterday. His physicians gave up hope for his recovery several days ago. Governor Atkinson was one of the leaders of the Democratic party in the state. He located at Newman after being admitted to the bar. In 1886, 1888, 1890 and 1892 he was elected to the legislature, and was speaker the last term. He has also been chairman of the Democratic state committee. His phenomenal race for the gubernatorial nomination gave him a national reputation. From Maine to California the active, but friendly, contest of the "Georgia wagon boy" with his opponent, General Evans, was watched with interest. Mr. Atkinson spent nearly four months campaigning, and it has been said that he visited every city and town in the state.

Not Punishable In New York.

New York, Aug. 9.—C. J. Guide, a jeweler and silversmith, was arrested yesterday on a warrant and indictment issued in Taunton, Mass., charging him with adultery. The offense, while a felony in Massachusetts, is not even a misdemeanor in New York state, and this is the first case in the memory of the oldest police court clerk in which an indictment on this charge has been recognized here. Magistrate Brann held Guide to await the necessary papers and officers from Massachusetts.

Victim of Masked Burglars.

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Two masked men entered the home of George Hunter, Jr., Centerville, during his absence, knocked Mrs. Hunter insensible, bound and gagged her and carried her into the cellar. The men then ransacked the house and confectionery store, getting away with $400 in money and other valuables, besides destroying much property. Mrs. Hunter was discovered by her husband upon his return. She is in a precarious condition, but it is thought may recover.

Virginia Rape Fiend Lynched.

Alexandria, Va., Aug. 9.—Ben Thomas, colored, 20 years of age, was lynched here last night for attempting an assault upon the 8-year-old daughter of Edward Clarke. The police made a determined effort to prevent the mob from obtaining possession of the prisoner, but were unsuccessful. The door of the jail was broken in and Thomas was captured and strung up to an electric light pole. The prisoner was roughly handled on the way to the place of hanging, his clothing being cut almost to shreds.

Fifty-Five Hundred on Strike.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 9.—The Glen Lyon miners of the Susquehanna Coal company, 1200 in number, yesterday joined the Nanticoke strikers, and now all of the employes of the company in this region, a total of 3800, are out, and the mines are closed. The strikers demand an increase in wages. The men at the Exeter, Babylon and Keystone collieries are still out, making a total of 5000 on strike.

Yaquis Hemmed In.

Guaymas, Mex., Aug. 9.—General Torres has almost completely surrounded Bycan, a Yaqui stronghold, where nearly 2000 savages are massed. On the arrival of the artillery and the machine guns the Mexican general will close in on the Indians and precipitate the biggest battle ever fought between the government and the Yaquis. The government now has nearly 5000 men in the field.

The Yellow Fever Situation.

Newport News, Va., Aug. 9.—There has been no change in the yellow fever situation since Monday afternoon, and it is quite probable that the quarantines will be raised this week. A feature of the shotgun quarantine here was the presence on the line last night of nearly every minister in the city, each preacher standing guard in his allotted section for a period of six hours.

The Board must again be notified immediately after the work is completed and before it is covered from view. All work must be left uncovered and convenient for examination until inspected and approved; and no drainage system shall be used until a certificate of approval has been granted.

If, on inspection the work is not satisfactory, the plumber shall be notified in writing and a limit of five days (unless otherwise permitted) given in which to complete said work; at which time the Board of Health must be notified.

SEC. 6. Drain and connecting ventilating pipes shall be of sufficient size, and made of cast iron within the building, and for a distance of at least eight feet outside, except that lead pipes may be used for short connections exposed to view. Such pipes shall be of uniform thickness throughout, and shall have an average weight not less than below specified, viz:

2 inch pipe, 3 2-5 pounds per foot.
3 " " 5 " " "
4 " " 6 2-5 " " "
5 " " 8 2-5 " " "
6 " " 10 2-5 " " "
7 " " 13 " " "

Drain pipes shall be properly secured by irons to walls, laid in trenches to uniform grade, or suspended to floor timbers by strong iron hangers.

The space between these hangers shall not exceed ten feet. Every drain pipe must be provided with a running trap with an accessible brass screw cleanout, at or near the point where it leaves the building, and shall have a fall of at least one-quarter of an inch to the foot. Soil pipes shall be carried above the roof open and undiminished in size, and to a distance of not less than two feet above the roof, or not less than five feet above any window within fifteen feet. Changes in direction shall be made with curved pipes, and all connections with horizontal or vertical pipes shall be made with Y or long T Y branches. No trap shall be placed at the foot of a stack.

All branches of soil pipe twelve feet or more in length must be carried up not less than two feet above the roof undiminished in size, or more than two feet, if said Board shall so direct, or they may be connected with the main soil pipe above the highest plumbing fixture.

All drain pipe shall be exposed to sight where practicable within the building, and shall not be exposed to pressure where they pass through walls. Every part of every drain pipe below a cellar floor shall be accessible through sufficient unattached covers. In all cases there shall be an extra heavy iron pipe laid from eight feet outside and carried through the foundation wall and connected with the drain inside by a Y branch with a brass screw clean out in a direct line with the sewer or cesspool, and the drains when under the cellar bottom shall be of extra heavy iron pipe also.

Standard galvanized wrought iron may be used for ventilating pipes, when in the opinion of the inspector it is practical.

SECTION 7. When the waste pipe does not exceed three feet in length from its connection with the fixture to its connection with the trap, one round trap may be used for a sink and wash trays or for bath tub and bowl; if over three feet in length the waste pipe of each and every sink, basin, bath-tub, water-closet, slop hopper, and of each set of trays or other fixtures, shall be furnished with a separate trap, which shall be placed as near as practicable to the fixture that it serves.

Traps shall be protected from siphonage or air pressure by special cast-iron air pipes of a size not less than the waste pipes they serve, run from the crown or outlet of the trap. Lead air-pipes may be used only when they are exposed to view.

Air pipes for water-closet traps shall be of wo inch bore if thirty feet or less in length, and of three inch bore if more than thirty feet in length; other air pipes shall be as large as the waste pipes from the trap. Air pipes shall be run as direct as practicable.

Two or more air-pipes may be connected together or with a drain pipe; but in every case of connection with a drain pipe such connection shall be above the highest waste connection with said drain pipe. No ventilation shall be required from a deep drum trap or traps in cases where all the plumbing is located on the same floor and where no soil matter is admitted.

Air pipes shall be so constructed as not to allow the formation of a trap, nor be used as waste pipes.

SECTION 8. All waste or overflow pipes from safes under water-closets and other fixtures or from tanks shall be run separately to basement or cellar, and left open; in no case shall they be connected with a soil pipe or any in Relation to House Connections with the Common Sewer and Regulating the Same.

Engrossed Ordinance No 33, 1899.

CITY OF QUINCY.

In the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine.

Be it ordained by the City Council of Quincy as follows:

All applications for the construction of particular sewers and their entrance into common sewers shall be made upon blank forms to be obtained at the office of the Board of Sewerage Commissioners, and shall be signed by the owner or by the accredited agent of the premises to be sewered.

The size and materials of particular sewers and appurtenances shall be such as the Board of Sewerage Commissioners shall prescribe, and in conformity with the requirements of the Board of Health.

Said sewers shall be laid accurately to straight lines and grades. If angles along the lines thereof are unavoidable, manholes or other approved means of access shall be provided.

The materials and labor required in the construction of particular sewers and appurtenances thereof, shall be provided and the work done by the Board of Sewerage Commissioners or their duly authorized agents, and by no other person or persons; excepting that the applicant may make all of the excavation and back fill outside the street lines, excepting so much as will affect the proper bedding and securing of the pipe or other structure.

The plumbing of any building shall not be connected with a particular sewer until the applicant shall file with the Board of Sewerage Commissioners a certificate by the Inspector of Plumbing, that the said plumbing work is in suitable condition for connection with the public sewer.

No person shall be allowed to make any alteration in or make any connection with any particular sewer, except as stated in the original permit. Leave to depart therefrom must be obtained from the Board of Sewerage Commissioners on further application thereof to said Commissioners.

The Board of Sewerage Commissioners may at any time require such grease traps to be introduced along the line of any particular sewer, or on the discharge of any fixture connected therewith as he may deem necessary for the proper maintenance of said particular sewer, or of the common sewers.

No person shall throw or discharge into a public sewer or any of its connections, any steam or other matter or thing which may tend to, or cause, an obstruction thereof or a deposit therein, or any injury thereto.

No person shall cause or allow any roof water or surface water, by pipe or otherwise, to be conducted or to flow or discharge into any pipe or drain connecting with, or which indirectly through any other pipe or drain or directly discharges its contents into any main drain or common sewer.

All particular sewers shall be under the control of, and be maintained and kept clean by the city. The expense in cleaning and repairing any particular sewer shall be paid by the owner of the premises connected by said particular sewer, and pre-payment or security for the said expense may be required by the Board of Sewerage Commissioners, provided, however, that any labor on particular sewers occasioned by defects or obstructions in the common sewer shall be paid for by the city.

The term "particular sewers" used in this ordinance is intended to mean the house connections of the abuttor with the main or common sewer.

Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of these rules and regulations shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding Twenty dollars ($20.00) for each violation.

This ordinance shall take effect upon its passage and the ordinance in relation to House connections with the common sewer and regulating the same is hereby repealed.

Passed to be ordained July 21, 1899.

Everybody Must Be Vaccinated.

Everett, Mass., Aug. 9.—Although no new case of smallpox has been reported, the board of health is at work night and day to avert even a possibility of an epidemic. The order compelling all persons residing in ward 1—the infected district—to be vaccinated within 48 hours has now been extended to include the entire city. The infected district is quarantined night and day by the police. A strict patrol will be maintained for two weeks. Members of the board of health admit that it will be nothing short of miraculous if new cases do not develop, as the infected patient, ignorant of her condition, mingled freely with friends and neighbors for four days. Everett has a population of 23,000, who will all have to be vaccinated by tomorrow or pay a fine of $5 in court. There are many people who object to the course of the board of health, but the majority uphold those in authority.

Inquest Not Completed.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 9.—The inquiry which Coroner Doten and a jury are conducting into the causes of the trolley horror of Sunday afternoon was not concluded yesterday, chiefly from the fact that Motorman Hamilton was not present to give his testimony. Hamilton is held under $2000 bonds on the charge of manslaughter. His attorney stated that his failure to be present was due to a misapprehension, but that he would be in attendance today. Hamilton, William Kelley, who claims to have jumped off the car as it was about to plunge over the trestle, and a representative of the firm that built the bridge will be heard, which will probably close the inquest.

Verdict In Mt. Desert Disaster.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 9.—The coroner's jury, which began its session Monday to determine responsibility for the deaths of 20 persons at Mt. Desert ferry on Sunday, rendered its verdict Tuesday. The verdict, after reciting the names of the 20 victims, says:

"All came to their death by drowning near the slip of the Maine Central Railroad company's wharf at Mt. Desert Ferry, town of Hancock, Hancock county, state of Maine, on Sunday, the 6th day of August, 1899, at about 10:40 o'clock in the forenoon; and they, the jury, further say that said drowning was caused by the breaking of the slip in said wharf, which said slip was imperfectly and defectively constructed."

Crime on the Increase.

New York, Aug. 9.—A large number of persons ready to give detailed accounts of robberies which have occurred in Greater New York during the past few months appeared before the Mazet investigating committee yesterday. About 30 witnesses were examined of the large number of persons subpoenaed, Attorney Moss explaining that he did not care to pursue that line of inquiry further, as the evidence was of a purely corroborative and cumulative nature. Once in a while a witness was willing to say a good word for the police, but in the main the evidence did not appear to reflect much credit upon the city authorities. Evidence was produced tending to show that crime was on a decided increase in the tenderloin, the result of what Attorney Moss called "the wide-open policy."

Was on the Verge of Ruin.

Philadelphia, Aug. 9.—The inquest into the death of Charles A. F. Autenreith, the supposed wealthy banker, who committed suicide last Friday by shooting, disclosed the fact that he was on the verge of financial ruin. Autenreith, in addition to his banking business, represented several steamship lines and was the representative of George C. Mecke & Co., bankers, of Bremen. The jury rendered a verdict that death was due to nervous prostration, caused by pressure of financial difficulties.

More Dynamite at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Aug. 9.—The last company of militia left the city yesterday, the authorities having decided that there is little probability of any further trouble in connection with the street car strike. A Wade Park avenue electric car of the Big Consolidated line was blown up near the Euclid avenue barn at 1:30 this morning. The car was badly torn. The motorman, name yet unknown, was badly hurt. There was one passenger on the car.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Sun rises—4:46; sets, 6:53.
Moon sets—8:20 p. m.
High water—1:30 a. m.; 1:45 p. m.

The high area in the north is slowly disappearing and the temperatures over this district are rising. High temperatures continue elsewhere. In New England fair weather and fresh northerly to easterly winds will prevail. Telegraphic communication with the islands of the West Indies east of Santo Domingo is cut off. The hurricane center is apparently approaching Porto Rico. Hurricane warnings are carried westward to Santiago, Cuba, and shipping bound north and east from Cuban and Jamaican ports are advised to remain in port.

THE RUIN OF MERCIER

Will Be Accomplished If Dreyfus Is Acquitted by the Court Martial.

Colonel Jouaust Not Disposed to Be Unkind.

Prisoner Was Not Prepared For Hostile Tribunal and Scrutinizing Public.

[Copyright, 1899, The Associated Press.]

Rennes, Aug. 9.—Maitre Demange, the principal counsel for Captain Dreyfus, expresses himself as well satisfied with Monday's proceedings. Colonel Jouaust had to play the part of a severe judge, but, if his voice were rude and his manner commanding toward the prisoner, his eye was kind, and there were no attacks to press home the points raised by the indictment.

M. Chamoin, the custodian of the famous secret dossier, said it would take four days to examine it, and, as the examination will be behind closed doors, most of the witnesses have gone to the seaside. General Mercier remains here, the guest of General Saint Gerrain, who tells his friends to be prepared for sensational evidence that must crush Dreyfus and many others with him.

M. Cavaignac talked at Le Mans, on his way here. He said he expected two coups de theatre. We now hear that one will be an avowal by General Billot that he said on his soul and conscience Dreyfus was a traitor because he was misled. The other will be Mercier driven to bay. The latter will issue from this trial ruined, if Dreyfus is acquitted.

I hear he intends to throw a searchlight on the secret councils of the Dupuy government, of which he was a member in 1894, and to show what diplomatic wires were pulled between the arrest of Dreyfus and his embarkation for Cayenne. Mercier refuses to be interviewed. He looks bowed down from care.

General Billot, on the other hand, seems to have taken out a new lease of life. He is also extremely reticent, as indeed are all the witnesses of note.

M. Jaures claims to know how much there is in the secret dossier. An intercepted correspondence between two military attaches, who were mixed up in the affair, is said by Jaures to be a shame to human nature. These two officers wrote under feminine names, and in a strain that might not have shocked the young courtiers of Nero or ribald crowds that gathered around Lot's house in the doomed city. Possibly, nay probably, the attaches in question never wrote these scented billets. Lemercier Picard was equal to the task of forging them, and he possibly did forge them for a pecuniary consideration. Hence, perhaps, the mystery in which his suicide is shrouded.

The counsel for Dreyfus met yesterday, at his wife's residence, the heads of the Dreyfus party, and consulted on the present aspect of the affair. They went there after they had examined the documents of the secret dossier in the judges' room. They do not see any possibility of repeating the judgment of 1894.

Dreyfus was greatly fatigued after Monday's ordeal. He asked anxiously yesterday what the press and public thought, and was led to think that opinion is generally favorable. This is true. The representatives of Nationalist jaurnals here, who judge harshly in print, express admiration for the unflinching constancy he has displayed.

Leading personages here for the trial have much to say about the late General Aunenkoff and Baron Fredericks in connection with Dreyfus, but General Mercier and M. Hanotaux (former minister of foreign affairs) refuse to speak on the subject. M. Hanotaux looks dejected. It will be curious to see whether he and Mercier contradict each other.

There seems danger that all the evidence relating to foreign diplomatists will be given with closed doors. The public trial will be resumed Saturday.

Dreyfus, a member of his family says, has not yet got over his Rip Van Winkle feeling. He was lost, as he put it. He remarked to his wife that he was astonished to find himself Monday watched by the whole world, or its proxies, though he showed no sign of astonishment. He was thrown in a heap by the searching and, as he thought, unfriendly examination by the president of the court-martial. He had expected more formal proceedings.

MM. Demange and Labori did not prepare him for a hostile tribunal and a scrutinizing public. He felt as if X-rays were being cast on him all the time he was under public gaze. It was as if the inmost thoughts of his heart were being peered into. He imagined the proceedings would be only formal, and that, perhaps, he might leave the extemporized courthouse to walk to his wife's temporary home.

His counsel was quite right not to discourage him before hand, as his strength is low, and he is condemned to a dieto f milk and eggs, which does not enable him rapidly to recover his lost strength.

He was first greatly depressed to learn that he would be confronted with a crowd of hostile witnesses, and that the trial might last a fortnight, or three weeks, or even longer. Then, steeling himself, he cried: "You must prove yourself a man, Dreyfus. You must struggle for your honor, and not give in until you have cleared it once forever. But what have you done, Dreyfus, to make people thus rend you? Were you born under a malignant star? If so, fight against fate, and wrestle till you have thrown the evil angel."

From long habit, he speaks to himself when intending to converse with visitors.

Emily Crawford.

Roca Arrives at Rio.

Rio de Jeniero, Aug. 9.—The Argentine squadron, escorting President Roca of the Argentine republic, has arrived here. Fetes lasting nine days have been arranged in honor of President Roca. As to the political objects of the visit, the press was assured by a high authority that, if an attempt were contemplated to ally Latin America against the United States, it was bound to prove a failure, for Brazil will do nothing to offend America, her best customer for her principal products. The chief advantage to be derived from the visit of the Argentine president is an harmonious understanding, aiming at a reduction of the military expenditures of South American republics.

Will Reject Proposals.

London, Aug. 9.—All the dispatches from the South African correspondents of the London morning papers take it for granted that the secret session of the volksraad, called last evening, will confirm the rejection of Mr. Chamberlain's proposals, but leave the way open to continue negotiations. They also dwell upon the serious situation thus arising, and upon the consternation of the uitlanders over the addition to the constitution compelling them to fight for the Transvaal, which seems to indicate that the Transvaal is expecting hostilities.

Revolt In French Colonial Possession.

Zanzibar, Aug. 9.—Great Comoro island is in revolt. The police commissary has been assassinated and the governor's residence is besieged. A gunboat has been ordered to assist the island authorities in restoring order. Great Comoro island is the principal island of the Comoro isles, in the Mozambique channel, 350 miles from the northwest coast of Madagascar and 200 miles from the east coast of Africa. The population of the group is estimated at about 60,000 souls, mostly Mohammedans. The islands form part of the French colonial possessions.

Peerages Not For Sale.

London, Aug. 9.—Truth says: The rumor that William W. Astor will soon be raised to the peerage assumes what is impossible. A law passed during the reign of William III deprives the crown of the power of conferring the rank of peer upon naturalized aliens. It was enacted because the king was converting too many Dutch Republicans into British peers. A baronet or a knight Mr. Astor could be and, if he is ready to pay, there is no doubt that he will find no difficulty in negotiating the matter.

Gold Standard For India.

London, Aug. 9.—In the house of commons yesterday Secretary of State for India Hamilton, in introducing the Indian budget, said that the government had deliberately concluded that a gold standard was required in the interests of India, and that they would not be deterred from prosecuting this policy by all the means in their power. "If," continued the secretary, "we could establish a great bank like the Banks of England and France, it would be a fruitful ally in establishing a gold standard."

Uprising of Russian Peasants.

Vienna, Aug. 9.—The Neue Freie Presse says the peasantry of portions of Bessarabia (a government of Russia bounded on the south by the Danube and the Black sea) have revolted, being driven desperate by famine. Troops have been sent there and several encounters have taken place. A score of peasants have already been killed and many wounded.

Another Victory For Americans.

Manila, Aug. 9.—General MacArthur's force, consisting of 4000 men, advanced five miles beyond San Fernando today and encountered and defeated a Filipino force of 6000 men. The enemy retreated, leaving many dead and wounded. The American loss, killed and wounded, was 20.

Sunk by a Warship.

Torquay, Aug. 9.—The British warship San Pareil, while returning from the maneuvers, sank a full-rigged ship off the Lizard. One man was drowned. The vessel sunk by the San Pareil is the British ship East Lothian, Captain McFarlane, of 1389 tons.

Murderer Hanged.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 9.—Edwin D. Heidler, the second murderer ever executed in the Erie county jail, was hanged here yesterday. The feature of the execution was the nerve with which Heidler walked to the gallows. Heidler shot and killed his brother-in-law, Levi Kreider, because the latter, who was the custodian of funds left to Mrs. Heidler by her mother, refused to turn the money over to Heidler.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

SECOND DAY'S CRUISE

In Which Columbia Again Demonstrates Superiority Over Defender.

Vigilant Defeats Colonia In a Fifteen-Mile Contest.

Other Crack Yachts Furnish a Good Day's Sport For New York Club.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 10.—The New York Yacht club succeeded in keeping its hold on good weather for the second day's run—a cruise to Newport. The run was a distance of 43 miles, and, while full of interesting brushes, was not quite as satisfactory as the first one, for while the yachts ran the last half of the 43 miles in a constantly increasing southwest breeze, the first half of the day was fluky and many boats received more than due credit for a seemingly glorious victory.

It is no disparagement of Columbia to say that her defeat of Defender by over 22 minutes was due more to bad judgment and hard luck of the latter boat than to actual superiority. Still the new boat showed herself very able in a broad reach with a constantly increasing breeze, and made an average of 13 knots in the run along shore from Watch Hill to Point Judith. So rapidly did she drop Defender that when she gybed round the whistling buoy off Point Judith her rival was hull down to the westward over five miles astern. On the run up from Point Judith, dead before the wind, the Columbia gained a minute or two more, so that at the finish the old Defender had received the worst beating in her history.

There was never a moment during the day that there was no wind enough to fill the sails, while the last 15 miles was sailed in a grand breeze from the southwest. All Newport saw the finish at Brenton's Reef lightship, the cup defender of 1893, Vigilant, leading the fleet over the line after a warm contest with the schooner Colonia of 15 miles or more.

The brush between these two boats, and the great luffing match between Amorita and her great rival, Quisetta, as well as that between Hildegarde and Constellation, claimed attention after Columbia had jumped so far in ahead of Defender.

For miles and miles the sloop Vigilant sailed abreast of the schooner Colonia, neither getting the advantage until after rounding Point Judith whistling buoy. From here in, before the wind, Vigilant pulled away and gained something more by changing her spinnaker from starboard to port. At the finish there was 55 seconds between the boats, but as the Vigilant started six minutes ahead, the Colonia beat her easily on the run, although the boats sailed in different classes.

Amorita and Quisetta had another of their famous luffing matches, and sailed miles off the course towards Block island before the swinging off for home. Amorita, on the last 10 miles, pulled away and won easily, while Quisetta was beaten by the new Latona.

Hildgarde and Constellation, the two largest yachts in the fleet, had another great tussle, Hildgarde finally winning.

The yachts started at 10:30 in a fairly strong westerly breeze, all breaking out spinnakers on crossing the line. The first three or four miles was quickly sailed, but half an hour after the start the wind began to slacken and soon some were almost becalmed. Half a dozen stood over into the Long Island sound, among them Amorita, and nearly all gained by this move, as they held the westerly breeze strongly until the shift came to the southwest about 1 o'clock.

All during this soft spell of two hours, Columbia seemed to be specially favored, for she carried a breeze right through, and she gained rapidly on Defender. The latter, too, made a mistake in getting too near the Fisher island shore, so that when the wind did come round the Columbia caught it half an hour ahead. It was at this time, as the boats passed the entrance to Fisher island sound, that Columbia made the great gain that gave her such a lead. From Watch Hill to Point Judith she fairly flew over the water.

All the boats went well on this reach along shore, and looking back every yacht seemed fairly buried in canvass. The home stretch of seven miles from Point Judith to Brenton's Reef lightship was made dead before the wind in a freshening breeze. The entire fleet was over the finish line within an hour after the Vigilant, and at 6 o'clock the flagship had dropped anchor in Brenton's cove.

From Vermont to Philippines.

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 10.—Troops E, C and F of the Third United States cavalry, stationed at Fort Ethan Allen, left yesterday in two special trains for Seattle, where they will go on board transports for Manila, to take up active service in the Philippines. The horses went in one section and the officers and men in the other.

Little Brothers Drowned.

Boston, Aug. 10.—James, Frank and Ray Morrison, aged 7, 6 and 5 years respectively, sons of John Morrison, were playing on the bank of the Charles river at Brighton yesterday, when the youngest boy slipped into the water. James, the eldest, jumped in to rescue Ray, and both were drowned.

THREE RUNS IN THE EIGHTH

Settled Matters In the Champion's Favor in the Game With Cleveland.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Boston won the second game of the final series from the Cleveland Harlequins. Nichols twirled for the champions, while Knepper, the German recruit, was in the points for the visitors. The home team found Knepper a rather difficult proposition to solve for hits or runs until the eighth inning, and then they tore off five hits and three runs, which settled matters.

The Lake Front tourists got away with a good lead in the first inning by good, hard batting. Nichols was touched up for five hits, and the three runs which ensued were well earned on hitting by Harley, Quinn, Sullivan, Tucker and Lockhead. The visitors did no "pulling away" from Nic's fast ones, as the balls were served up without a break and with few curves. After the first inning Cleveland failed to score, though they made one or more hits in six of the remaining eight innings, and had men left on third and second bases a few times.

The Montreal Bicycle Tourney.

Montreal, Aug. 10.—The world's cyclo championship meet of the International Cyclists union opened yesterday on the Queen's Park track. The weather was fair and not too warm, and there was but a slight wind. Ten thousand persons saw the races. There was only one world's championship event on the day's card, that at one mile, amateur, and it fell to Tom Summersgill of the Leeds (Eng.) Athletic club, who won in a bruising finish from Earl Peabody of Chicago and John Caldow, the Scotch champion. Time, 5:43 2-5. The most important professional event was the half mile. McCarthy of St. Louis, Nat Butler of Boston, Carman, the Canadian rider; McCarthy of Toronto, Major Taylor of Worcester and Angus McLeod of Toronto, were the six men who got into the final. There was a hair-raising finish between McCarthy of St. Louis and Major Taylor. The decision was so close that a part of the crowd on the stand back of the wire refused to accept it, claiming that Taylor had won. The time was 1:00;1-5. In the two-mile tandem professional a new world's competition mark of 3:47 3-5 was made by the Butler brothers, the previous record being 4:01 2-5, made by McDuffee and Tyrell at Boston. The half-mile amateur was won by Wilson of Pittsburg, who beat Drury of Montreal handily.

Bay State Banks Flourishing.

Boston, Aug. 10.—In compliance with a request from the comptroller of the currency, who desires to obtain uniform returns from all the national, state and savings banks and trust companies in the Union, the commissioners of savings banks have obtained returns from the 186 savings banks in Massachusetts. The statement, as compared with that of Oct. 31 last, shows an increase in deposits of $20,572,930.19, which is nearly $6,000,000 more than the increase for the entire previous year ending Oct. 31 last.

TEXTILE MILL CONSTRUCTION.

Hundred and Sixteen New Plants During the Past Six Months.

Boston, Aug. 10.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter says: The first half of the year 1899 has slightly surpassed the last half of 1898 in the number of new and proposed textile enterprises entered into in the United States. Thus the total number of new enterprises launched in the first six months of this year was 116, against 107 in the last half of 1898, and 155 in the first half of 1898. The south continues to lead in new mill construction, and the number of new enterprises compares very favorably with those of any half year for a long time. The number of new enterprises in the north is considerably greater than that of the last half of 1898, but it is decidedly less than that of the first half of that year. North Carolina, as usual, leads the list of new enterprises, with a total of 33. Georgia comes second, with a total of 26. South Carolina and Virginia each show seven, Texas six, Rhode Island five, New York, Massachusetts and Tennessee four, Alabama, Maine and Pennsylvania three, Mississippi, New Jersey and Louisiana two, Connecticut, Missouri, Maryland, New Hampshire and Vermont one each.

The record of "enlargements and improvements" shows up very favorably as compared with last year. The textile mills of this country are today running full, almost without exception, and more new machinery has been ordered during the past six months than for a like period in many years. One result is that the various machine shops are enjoying a period of remarkable prosperity, several of them being overrun with orders.

Had Taken Out Naturalization Papers.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The state department has received from Governor Foster of Louisiana certified copies of the final naturalization papers taken out by Frank, Charles and Joe Difata, three of the men lynched at Tallulah and claimed by the Italian authorities to be Italian citizens. Governor Foster's final report on the circumstances of the lynching has not yet been received.

The Parting of the Ways.

Quitman, Ga., Aug. 10.—At the regular meeting of the Georgia State Agricultural society here the race problem came to the front. Pope Brown, president of the society and a prosperous planter, asserted that the white man and the negro were now at the parting of the ways, and said the former should assist the latter in his efforts to leave this country.

Exclusive Settlement For Americans.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 10.—Steamer Empress of Japan, from Hong Kong and Yokohama, brings news that an agreement has been arrived at between the British and Chinese governments by which the United States shall have an exclusive settlement at Kankow.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Low pressure is general throughout the country, except on the Pacific coast. As a consequence high temperatures prevail generally except in the eastern states. There have been showers and thunder storms in the south Atlantic states, the upper lake region and the central valleys. Showers and thunder storms are indicated in New England, with higher temperature and fresh to brisk southerly winds.

Metropolitan Park Commission Regulations.

Good Afternoon.

Wollaston continues to be the home of gangs of youthful offenders, and the boldness of the youngsters is rather surprising. It is evident that too much leniency has been shown in the past, and that some examples are necessary.

The Comptroller of the Currency reports deposits of $509,215,854.11 in the 186 Savings Banks of Massachusetts on June 30. About one-half of this amount is invested in real estate, $94,000,000 in personal security, $70,000,000 in public funds, $64,000,000 in railroad bonds, $23,000,000 in bank stock. Although the amount of deposits is large, the most satisfactory showing is in the increase of $20,572,930.19 since Oct. 1 last.

The pleasure of the Metropolitan parkways, boulevards and speedways is promoted by rules which govern their use. Greater Boston takes pride in the beautiful and extensive park system which the five Metropolitan Park Commissioners have so admirably laid out, and which promise to make Boston a city of parks. These rules are advertised in this issue, so that the public in this vicinity may be well informed. Each year these parkways will be of greater value, and more and more appreciated. It is to be hoped that the connecting link through Quincy, from Boston to the Blue Hills reservation for which the Legisature has made an appropriation, will be built this year. If there is any hitch over the route suggested, the city government and citizens are ready to cooperate on some other route.

Drift of Opinion.

☞It is a little amusing to read the reply of Admiral Dewey when asked if he made certain statements that were ascribed to him. His answer that he has said nothing that he is not prepared to back up, leaves the question in the same delightful state of uncertainty that it was before. Your Uncle George hasn't licked a whole Spanish fleet to be trapped at this late day by two or three fresh reporters.—Marlboro Enterprise.

☞General Bancroft was hissed in the camp of the Eighth Regiment Tuesday afternoon, and the affair will be the subject of an official inquiry. Two reasons for the insult are given, one the defense of Colonel Pew by the brigade commander, and Gen. Bancroft's order to allow no women in the company streets during the military movements. In both these positions the General was right, and the men who so far forgot the discipline of the service to express dislike for their commander deserve punishment.—Lynn Item.

☞The Pennsylvania Railroad company will soon put into operation a plan by which employes will be pensioned when they reach seventy years of age, or upon the expiration of thirty years of service with the company. The scheme, it is said, will cost the company about $300,000 a year, but presumably the management is convinced that it will pay in the financial sense. It has been the policy of the Pennsylvania road to maintain the best of relations with is employes, and its policy has proven wise in every respect. Doubtless the new pension scheme will have a good effect. Its working will be watched with eager interest by all students of sociology.—New Bedford Standard.

AFTERNOON BREAK.

Seven Young Boys Caught in Wollaston Grocery.

Store Had Closed for Weekly Half Holiday.

Helping Themselves to Cash, Cigars, Etc.

The grocery and provision store of Charles H. Backus, Newport avenue, Wollaston, was burglarized on Wednesday afternoon by seven Wollaston boys, whose ages average not over ten years.

The youngsters chose Wednesday afternoon to commit the crime because on that afternoon that store, as well as he others in that line of business, closed at one o'clock.

A week ago Wednesday it is supposed that the gang sounded the premises and discovered an easy access to the store, as there were signs that somebody had entered after the store was closed the previous noon. The tenants on the floor above were therefore requested to fire an alarm if on the following Wednesday afternoon their suspicions were aroused.

Yesterday afternoon a disturbance was heard in the store by the tenants. An immediate investigation revealed the sight of seven little boys going through the cash drawer and cigar case. An attempt was made to shut them in and notify the police and also Mr. William Keyes, who manages the store during Mr. Backus' absence on his vacation. But the boys knew the place to well to be trapped and suddenly disappeared out of a rear entrance and down the street. Enough was seen of them to get an accurate description of who they were. In the meantime Mr. Keyes had been notified and gave chase. He caught the gang with their booty in an outlaying street on the Plains. Three escaped but their names were taken.

Entrance was gained to the store through a door in the adjoining cellar, and thence by removing a window in the partition to the Backus store cellar.

It is suspected that this is the same gang which entered store of Ephriam L. Noyes, Beale street, last week.

Truant Statistics.

There was filed at Dedham Tuesday with Charles H. Smith, treasurer of Norfolk County, the second quarterly report of the Norfolk, Bristol and Plymouth Union Truant School, at East Walpole, which has one boy from Quincy.

The report contains the following facts and figures:

The number of truants at the school is 67, which is a larger number than has been there for a number of years.

Forty-seven are from Bristol County. Of this number Easton, Fairhaven and North Attleboro furnish one each. Attleboro 3, Taunton 7, New Bedford 12 and Fall River 22.

Plymouth County sends 10, of which number Brockton furnishes 7, Abington 2 and Hingham 1.

There are 10 truants from Norfok county. Of that number the city of Quincy and the towns of Walpole, Hyde Park, Braintree and Stoughton furnish 1 each, and the town of Brookline 5.

The total cost of boarding the truants for the quarter was $655.92.

The Thomas Crane Library.

Miss Bumpus wishes to call attention to the fact that at request of some citizens, the Outlook has been added to the library table for distribution; and that there are, also, some recent magazines of value that have not become familiar to the people. Among these are The Dial, Gardening, Critic, Good Literature, the Bookman and The Literary World.

These are different from many of the illustrated papers and magazines but now-a-days our best papers have even a children's column, so no one need hesitate in trying them if Munsey's, Godey's and Harper's publications are out.

THE HOSE 5 BALL.

It Lacked Publicity and Attendance Was Not Large.

The social event of the year at Houghs Neck is the annual ball of Hose Company No. 5. The fifth of these annual affairs was held Wednesday night at the Casino, and while it was not as largely attended as could have been desired it said to have been a financial success as many tickets were sold to friends who were unable to be present. The attendance would have been larger if proper notice had been given in the local papers.

For this occasion the bare walls of the Casino were decorated with colored bunting. The banner presented to the Company a few years ago, by the ladies, also occupied a prominent place, the whole making the hall look very pretty. At the westerly end of the hall in an enclosure was the Tremont orchestra, which furnished music for the promenade concert and for dancing.

The promenade concert was from 8 to 9 o'clock and the dance from the latter hour until until 4 o'clock in the morning.

Promptly at 9 oclock the signal for the grand march was given.. This was led by Floor Director, John P. Sullivan and Mrs. Hattie Connor, who were followed by the invited guests, the officers of the ball, and others.

At midnight there was a brief intermission during which supper was served at the different hotels along the beach, the invited guests being entertained by Mrs. O'Toole at the Shakespere Inn.

The invited guests included Mayor Keith, Commissioner Cavanagh, Chief Engineer Williams, ex-Chief Packard, and firemen from out of town.

The officers of the ball were: Floor Marshal, Capt. G. W. Peterson; Floor Director, John P. Sullivan; Assistant, Marshall Willard; Aids, Frank Ryder, Charles Haughn, Frank Leonard, B. F. Macomber, B. B. Derry, B. H. Bartlett, W. Staunwhite. Reception Committee, Charles Haughn, B. B. Derry, B. F. Macomber, Marshall Willard.

Answer to Mr. Hatch.

To the Editor of Daily Ledger:

I notice the statement made by Mr. Hatch in your issue of Aug 8. His statement that I falsified the books of the Company is absolutely untrue and he knows it. I never made an entry in the books and they were always in the hands of clerks whose integrity he dare not question.

In 1897 he sold a half patent to the present Company the other half was owned by Mr. Ridgway of Philadelphia. My directors finding it necessary to own the whole patent instructed me to purchase the same at any reasonable figure. I made a trade for the half patent for seven thousand dollars ($7000) and paid two thousand cash and gave a four months' note for five thousand dollars.

I then suggested to Hatch and the holder of the note, who is also a large stockholder, that he, Hatch, and myself, ought to pay the seven thousand and not show it a liability against the Company, to which we agreed. We also agreed to sell 583 shares of stock each to raise the $7,000.

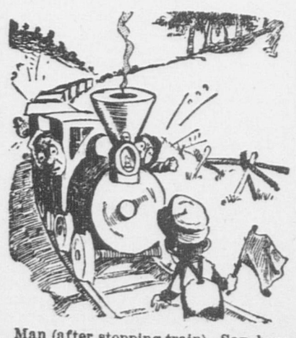

When the note came due I sold 300 shares of my own stock for $1,050 and paid $1000 on the note according to agreement. This with the two thousand previously paid was not charged to the Company, which shows clearly that it was the intention of the parties to relieve the Company of all responsibility on account of the note, which was never entered on the books of the Company.

On the 5th of February, 1898, the note was renewed for $4,000 Mr. Hatch at that time President of the Company, and as such signed the note. About the first of March following he was chosen auditor by the directors, and he submitted a statement under oath to the commissioner of corporation that he had audited the books and that his report was a true statement of the affairs of the Company. He knew that the note did not appear; he also knew that he signed the note.

After an investigation of this whole question by the stockholders they indorsed my position and showed their resentment by removing Hatch's friend from the board of directors.

Gallantry of Ambrose Bierce.

No one made any remark upon the temerity of the ladies who invited Ambrose Bierce to deliver a lecture before the members of their club. Undaunted by his reputation they fearlessly bearded the lion in his den, a committee extending the invitation verbally.

Bierce was so taken aback by the unexpectedness of the request that, to his own surprise, he found himself weakly accepting the bid and then humbly consulting his callers concerning the topic upon which they might desire him to speak.

The president, a dignified and very conservative lady, in reply to a novel suggestion of the lecturer elect, remarked somewhat loftily that they were not a club of new women.

"I am convinced of that," answered Mr. Bierce in a bland and deferential tone, which almost but not quite concealed his cynicism. "Shall I say you are a club of old women?"—San Francisco News Letter.

CHURCH WEDDING.

Bullock-Wales Nuptials With Reception at Parish House.

In the old Christ church of Quincy, whose history dates back 300 years, there was a fashionable wedding Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. None of the bridal party were Quincy people, but the bride is well known in Randolph and the groom is a rector at Sandwich.

The bride was Miss Amy Howard Wales, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Wales of Randolph, and the groom, Rev. Ernest Nelson Bullock of Sandwich, son of Mrs. Abby A. Bullock.

Rev. Walter Russell Breed, the rector of the church officiated, and the full Episcopal ceremony was used, the bride being given away by her father.

The bride's dress was of white satin with lace and tulle veil. The maid of honor, Miss Ella L. Chase of Randolph wore white organdie muslin over pale green.

The groom was attended by Mr. Henry E. Cottle of Randolph as best man, and the ushers were: Mr. Charles Gray of Ann Harbor, Mich., Rev. James C. Sharp of Springfield, Mass., Dr. Joseph C. Breitling of Lunenburg, Vt., Mr. Lawrence Hill of New York City; Mr. Gibson Bell of Cambridge Mass., Mr. Herbert M. Chase of Randolph.

The organist was Miss Lucretia C. Breitling.

Rev. and Mrs. Bullock were given a reception immediately after the ceremony in the parish house. Their future residence will be at Sandwich.

Nearly Completed.

The Quincy Patriot Souvenir, a beautiful pamphlet of some eighty pages which four to five gentlemen have been busily engaged in compiling, arranging and printing, for the past three months, is now nearly completed. In two weeks, or less, it will be in the hands of the binder. It will be one of the most attractive works ever published in this city. It will contain eighty large pages, 11 by 14 inches, with about 200 handsome large half-tone engravings of public buildings, residence and prominent citizens of the city. The work has cost some $1500 to publish, and will retail at thirty cents per copy. To news agents and business men, who may want eight or more copies, they will be furnished at twenty-five cents.

FAKIR IS IN CUSTODY.

Noted Filipino Whose "Prophecies" Have Excited the Natives.

Story of MacArthur's Latest Victory Over Insurgents.

Latter Followed Usual Tactics by Retreating When Trenches Became Too Warm.

Manila, Aug. 10.—Captain Deems, with a provost guard, has captured a noted Filipino fakir, with several aliases, who, by means of ventriloquism, has persuaded the natives that he has supernatural powers. He raised much money, ostensibly for the insurrection, which he kept for himself. Our soldiers surrounded his house and corralled 30 Filipinos. Many others escaped. The troops also captured $1000.

Immanuel, as the fakir is generally known, has been predicting the fall of Manila. His "prophecies" have created excitement among the natives who believed them.

Reports from rebel sources say 150 Filipinos were killed in General Hall's engagement at Calamba and in the subsequent skirmishes.

Details of the movement forward of General MacArthur's troops show that the Americans advanced five miles in the first five hours, and at 2 o'clock had advanced six miles along the railway, stretching on each side of it for two miles and resting at night three miles from Angeles, which will be made a northern base of operations, instead of San Fernando, where a garrison of 600 men has been left.

The Filipinos were surprised, expecting the American forces to move against Tico. They followed their usual tactics of holding their trenches until they became too warm, and then retreated in disorder. They are now falling backwestward toward Poric.

The Twelfth and Seventeenth regiments had the sharpest engagement. The country our troops passed over is covered with rice fields and bamboo thickets, the hardest possible ground for marching. The mud in places is knee deep.

Angeles is one of the richest towns north of Manila, and is considered to be a better base of operations than San Fernando. The forces at San Fernando consisted of the Iowa regiment, the Seventeenth regiment, the Ninth regiment, the Twelfth regiment, Bell's new Thirty-sixth regiment, a battalion of the Sixteenth regiment, troop E of the Fourth cavalry and 15 guns.

The movement was planned some time ago, but was delayed by rains. Finally two days of sunshine dried the rice fields sufficiently to warrant the attempt.

The position of the Americans had long been unpleasant. The rebels almost surrounded the town, and fired almost nightly into it, the Americans not replying except on extreme provocation. It was necessary to keep 500 or 600 men on outpost duty constantly.

The American loss in the fighting about San Fernando is between 30 and 40. The loss may possibly exceed these figures, as the line is five miles long, and it is impossible to hear from every point. Our troops are now about Angeles waiting for the artillery, which has the greatest difficulty in moving owing to the wet ground.

The attack was opened at 5 o'clock in the morning, a battery of the First artillery shelling Bacolor on the left. Simultaneously Bell's Thirty-sixth infantry struck Bacolor from the rear and drove the rebels out. Armored cars, each with a six-pounder and two gatling revolving cannon on board, then moved out on the railroad track in the center of our lines.

Soon afterwards these guns did sharp execution. Battery K of the Third artillery and 100 men of the Iowa regiment made a feint towards Mexico, while the main body of troops, consisting of the Iowa regiment, the Seventeenth regiment and a battalion of the Twenty-second, under General Wheaton, on the right, and the Ninth regiment, Twelfth regiment and Bell's regiment, under General Liscum, on the left, advanced steadily, pouring their fire into the rebels and receiving a heavy fire in return.

The rebels were well protected by trenches, and seemed not to lack ammunition. They were unable, however, to withstand for a length of time the hail of shots our artillery and infantry poured in on them and retreated, leaving dead and wounded on the field. A dozen prisoners were captured by our troops.

The reports indicate that the Ninth infantry suffered the most, though the casualties of all the regiments are not yet reported. The weather was extremely hot and our troops suffered greatly, but there was no faltering. A company of the Sixteenth regiment went to the relief of Bell's regiment yesterday afternoon.

Campaign Will Be Actively Pushed.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 10.—President McKinley has nothing to add to the statement made by Secretary Root in regard to the campaign in the Philippines, but there is no doubt that the president and the secretary are in accord and favor pushing operations with all possible vigor. There is reason to believe that Secretary Root will soon have a conference with General Miles for the purpose of deciding whether changes ought to be made among the officers in command of the American forces in the Philippines, in accordance with the expressed determination to push the campaign there with all possible vigor.

Cloakmakers Returning to Work.

New York, Aug. 10.—More than 600 cloakmakers in the employ of a Broadway firm resumed work yesterday, having gained their demand for an increase of 25 percent in the weekly scale of wages. According to General Secretary Levy of the United Brotherhood of Cloakmakers more than 2000 hands will, under similar conditions, return to work today in other shops.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

William Dean Howells' novel, "A Hazard of New Fortunes," is being dramatized by Frank C. Drake for production next season.

Victor Herbert will compose the music for a new comic opera which the Bostonians will produce probably in December. Harry B. Smith may write the libretto.

William Gill, who wrote "Adonis" and "The Seven Ages" for Henry E. Dixey, has just about completed an entirely new work, in which this comedian may be seen next season.

Charles Wyndham will open his new theater in London next October with a revival of David Garrick. During the holidays he will present Stuart Ogilvie's adaptation of "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Vaudeville teams are displaying a penchant for queer names, a custom heretofore confined to the soubrette directory. A pair of gymnasts now appearing at the London music halls rejoice in the unique names Undah and Ovah.

Mme. Modjeska will appear the coming season in a new play, "Marie Antoinette," by Clinton Stuart. The play is said to have many points of resemblance to "Robespierre," Sir Henry Irving's latest production, containing the revolutionary characters of Robespierre, Marat and Mirabeau, besides those of King Louis and the unfortunate queen.

It is said there will be an expenditure of $100,000 in the production of "Ben-Hur" before the play makes its appearance at the Broadway theater, New York, next November. The chariot race is to be reproduced on the stage, and in order to get the requisite effect a revolving stage apparatus is being constructed, so that the audience can be thrilled by horses galloping at genuine top speed.

NEW ENGLISH WORDS.

Connors, when arrested, was at home, and in the room with him was a bottle of Scotch whiskey similar to that taken from the gunning stand. Two other bottles were found near the house. Connors claimed to have found the bottle of whiskey in the woods in the rear of his house. He was held in $600 for the grand jury.

Motorman Hamilton Gives Testimony.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 10.—Contrary to the expectations of the jurors who are conducting the inquiry into the causes of the trolley disaster of Sunday last, the examination of all the witnesses was not concluded yesterday. George Hamilton, who was motorman on the ill-fated car, told his story. His testimony threw no light on the question as to the responsibility of the disaster. He was questioned at length by the jurors, and it is believed that the information gleaned will have considerable weight on the verdict. It was brought out that Hamilton had already made two trips over the line, a round trip being about 30 miles, and that he made the third trip under protest, and was not given any time to get his dinner, and he did not wish to go four hours longer without food. Witness could give no explanation for the car leaving the rails, neither could he say what caused it to run so far after having left the iron. Hamilton has been in the employ of the company four years, and President Radel, who was also among the witnesses, expressed himself as having confidence in the motorman.

Evangelist Bassett Becomes Insane.

Providence, Aug. 10.—Joel Bassett, one of the best known evangelists in this city and superintendent of Bethany mission, has broken down mentally under the strain of carrying on his work under adverse circumstances. For 10 years past he has been engaged in mission work among the sailors and longshoremen. By occupation he was a druggist. He contracted the liquor habit and sank by degrees to a low level. Conversion led him to go into evangelistic work in the line which had been his failing. Tuesday night there was a meeting at the mission. At its close his friends saw that he was suffering from delusions. He thought he had seen John the Baptist. His actions led his wife to take steps to have him cared for, with the result that he was placed in an asylum last night.

The Bakers on Exhibition.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Three thousand people paid 10 cents admission to People's Temple last night to see Miss Jewett and the Baker family. Mrs. Baker furnished the sensation of the evening. While J. W. Hutchinson, the white-haired anti-slavery singer, was singing his song, "The Brotherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man," Mrs. Baker experienced religious exhiliration. She dropped her little son, Willie, who had been sleeping in her arms, and strode around the platform rolling her eyes and waving her arms. A dozen people conducted her to a seat. Rev. Mr. Adams presided, and among the other speakers were Rev. Justin D. Fulton and Miss Jewett.

Seven Thousand Vaccinations.

Everett, Mass., Aug. 10.—Vaccination still goes on at a rapid pace in this city. Hundreds of men, women and children besieged the city hall yesterday, anxious to avail themselves of the opportunity for free vaccination. Church street was packed with women, accompanied by their children. Some physicians have hardly had time to attend to their regular patients, the calls for vaccination being so numerous. Seven thousand people, out of a population of 23,000, have been vaccinated during the past few days.

Jennie Worrell's Sad Fate.

New York, Aug. 10.—Jennie Worrell, a famous beauty and actress 20 years ago, is in the Kings county hospital suffering from severe burns received on the Coney Island meadows. Dr. Bacon says that she has a fighting chance for her life. The grass of the meadows took fire yesterday and the woman was found in the burned area unconscious, her hair and clothing down to her waist being burned away. It is stated that she went to the meadows with a man. The police are searching for this man. Jennie, with her sisters, Sophie and Irene, became known from Maine to California. They were famous for beauty, cleverness and jewels.

Florida Has a Lynching.

Jasper, Fla., Aug. 10.—An unknown negro entered the house of Mrs. Bush, a white woman, and demanded food and money. The woman told him she had neither money nor food. He caught hold of her and she screamed for help. Her husband, who was near by, ran to her rescue and tied the negro. A posse started to jail with him. A mob overtook the posse, took the negro away and lynched him.

MENACING LANGUAGE

With Reference to the Transvaal In Queen Victoria's Speech.

Boer's Internal Independence "Gift" From Great Britain.

Chamberlain Again Declares That England Will Not Recede From Her Position.

London, Aug. 10.—Parliament was prorogued yesterday by royal commission. The house of lords met and summoned the commons to the bar, and the proceedings terminated with the reading of the queen's speech. That part relating to Transvaal affairs was as follows:

"We have received a petition from a considerable number of my subjects residing in the South African republic praying my assistance to obtain a removal of grievances and disabilities of which they complain. The position of my subjects in the South African republic is inconsistent with the promise of equal treatment whereon my grant of internal independence to that republic was founded, and the unrest caused thereby is a constant source of danger to the peace and prosperity of my dominions in South Africa. Negotiations on this subject with the government of the South African republic have been entered into and are still proceeding."

Replying to various questions in the house of commons yesterday Joseph Chamberlain said no official confirmation had been received of the report that the Transvaal had declined to agree to a joint inquiry into the effect which the franchise reforms will have on the outlanders.

Several regiments, he added, were about to be dispatched to South Africa for the defense of Natal, in response to the request of the Natal government, and preparation was being made for all contingencies.

Later, replying to T. P. O'Connor, Mr. Chamberlain deprecated a resumption of the debate on the Transvaal situation, which, he pointed out, while serious, still remains doubtful. The colonial secretary added that he sincerely hoped that the report saying the inquiry proposal had been rejected was untrue. While he regretted the necessity of answering Mr. O'Connor, it would be a fatal mistake to allow the latter's views, that a war was entirely needless, that the government ought to express willingness to wait, maybe 25 years, for redressal of the grievances of which they complained, to be considered. He added:

"The representative opinion of even the small minority in the house of commons or anything but the most insignificant minority in the United Kingdom on the government's policy, have been clearly expressed. We recognized the grievances of the outlanders and have said these grievances are not merely themselves a serious cause for interposition, but are a source of danger to the whole of South Africa. We say our predominance is menaced by the action of the Transvaal in refusing to redress the grievances or give consideration to requests hitherto put in the most moderate language of a suzerain power. We say that this state of things cannot be tolerated. We have put our hands to the plough and won't draw back. With that statement I propose to rest content."

The editorials in the morning papers take a rather pessimistic tone in dealing with the references to the Transvaal in the queen's speech and that of Mr. Chamberlain.

Troops will be dispatched on Aug 24 to replace those sent from Cape Town to Natal.

It is said that after parliament rose most important telegraphic dispatches were received from Sir Alfred Milner at the colonial office.

Pacific Settlement Hoped For.

Cape Town, Aug. 10.—The Transvaal government has not yet forwarded to Alfred Milner its reply to Mr. Chamberlain's proposal of a joint commission of inquiry into the effect upon the outlanders of the new franchise legislation; but Milner still hopes for a pacific settlement. It is reported that a movement is on foot among the burghers to send petitions urging the volksraad to make further concessions. The Liverpool regiment sailed for Natal yesterday. While the transport was leaving the bay the crew of the United States cruiser Chicago loudly cheered the troops, who replied vigorously.

Disastrous Railway Wreck.

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—An Ottawa express for this city on the Canada Atlantic railroad was wrecked near Coteau Junction, while running at a fast rate. The engine left the track, taking with it the baggage car and a second-class coach. The first-class coach and two Pullmans did not leave the track. Seven persons were killed. A number were injured, but none of them seriously. It is not known what caused the accident, but it is believed that the rails had spread.

Third Assistant Postmaster General Madden has decided upon a plan for the registration of mail matter by letter carriers at the door in the residential sections of cities having the free delivery system.

Acceptable Immigrants.

St. John's, Aug. 10.—A deputation of Finlanders is here inspecting the country with a view to arranging for the immigration of thousands of Finlanders who are emigrating because of the tyranny of the Russian government. Joseph Chamberlain sent with them a special request to Governor McCallum that all assistance practicable be rendered them. The deputation started yesterday on a tour of inspection of the various sections of the island which seem adaptable to their needs.

A Nobleman's Mishap.

London, Aug. 10.—Viscount Castlereagh, eldest son of the Marquis of Londonderry, while riding yesterday at Wynard park, met with an accident, causing concussion of the brain, which will necessitate his keeping his bed for some time. The mishap will postpone the grand ball and fetes arranged in honor of his coming of age. Only yesterday his betrothal was announced to Miss Edith Chaplin, daughter of the president of the local government board.

Church and State.

St. Sebastian, Spain, Aug. 10.—The Republican and Socialist parties have agreed to organize a campaign demanding the expulsion from Spain of all the religious orders. Senors Salmeron and Iglesias and other Socialists are prominent in the movement.

To Have National Organization.

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—The shoe manufacturers who have been in session here yesterday decided to form a permanent national organization, and after electing officers adjourned, delegating the completion of details to the newly elected board of directors. The resolutions presented by the committee on permanent organization embodied the following recommendation: That a national organization be effected, its object to be to foster and promote the boot and shoe industry in the United States; to reform abuses, to promote uniformity and certainty in the customs of the trade; secure freedom from unjust exactions, promote confidence and a more large and frequent interest among those engaged therein. The preparation of a constitution for the national body, the fixing of a time and place for the new organization's next meeting and sundry other matters were referred to the board of directors.

Robberies of Frequent Occurrence.

New York, Aug. 10.—Almost all of the testimony elicited at the meeting of the Mazet investigating committee yesterday was for the purpose of showing how frequently men are robbed in this city while paying visits to sections of the city where groups gather after the midnight hour. Mr. Moss had difficulty in obtaining witnesses. The men who had been victims of this sort of crime appeared averse to appearing before the committee and telling about it. Nevertheless Mr. Moss was able to secure account after account of robberies alleged to have occurred in disorderly houses in this city. Occasionally the witnesses under oath told of facts which appeared to show collusion between the police and the feminine robbers.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

All applications for the construction of particular sewers and their entrance into common sewers shall be made upon blank forms to be obtained at the office of the Board of Sewerage Commissioners, and shall be signed by the owner or by the accredited agent of the premises to be sewered.

The size and materials of particular sewers and appurtenances shall be such as the Board of Sewerage Commissioners shall prescribe, and in conformity with the requirements of the Board of Health.

Said sewers shall be laid accurately to straight lines and grades. If angles along the lines thereof are unavoidable, manholes or other approved means of access shall be provided.

The materials and labor required in the construction of particular sewers and appurtenances thereof, shall be provided and the work done by the Board of Sewerage Commissioners or their duly authorized agents, and by no other person or persons; excepting that the applicant may make all of the excavation and back fill outside the street lines, excepting so much as will affect the proper bedding and securing of the pipe or other structure.

The plumbing of any building shall not be connected with a particular sewer until the applicant shall file with the Board of Sewerage Commissioners a certificate by the Inspector of Plumbing, that the said plumbing work is in suitable condition for connection with the public sewer.

No person shall be allowed to make any alteration in or make any connection with any particular sewer, except as stated in the original permit. Leave to depart therefrom must be obtained from the Board of Sewerage Commissioners on further application thereof to said Commissioners.

The Board of Sewerage Commissioners may at any time require such grease traps to be introduced along the line of any particular sewer, or on the discharge of any fixture connected therewith as he may deem necessary for the proper maintenance of said particular sewer, or of the common sewers.

No person shall throw or discharge into a public sewer or any of its connections, any steam or other matter or thing which may tend to, or cause, an obstruction thereof or a deposit therein, or any injury thereto.

No person shall cause or allow any roof water or surface water, by pipe or otherwise, to be conducted or to flow or discharge into any pipe or drain connecting with, or which indirectly through any other pipe or drain or directly discharges its contents into any main drain or common sewer.

All particular sewers shall be under the control of, and be maintained and kept clean by the city. The expense in cleaning and repairing any particular sewer shall be paid by the owner of the premises connected by said particular sewer, and pre-payment or security for the said expense may be required by the Board of Sewerage Commissioners, provided, however, that any labor on particular sewers occasioned by defects or obstructions in the common sewer shall be paid for by the city.

Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of these rules and regulations shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding Twenty dollars ($20.00) for each violation.

This ordinance shall take effect upon its passage and the ordinance in relation to House connections with the common sewer and regulating the same is hereby repealed.

WORK OF A HURRICANE.

Path Marked by Death and Desolation In Porto Rico and Leeward Islands.

Several Towns Reported to Be Totally Destroyed.

Food Supplies Destroyed, and Survivors Are In a Deplorable Condition.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Aug. 11.—A hurricane broke over the south coast Tuesday and swept northwest. There was no abatement for nine hours. The wires are down, and communication with the interior was for a time impossible. It is now chiefly carried on by couriers.

Here, at San Juan, four natives were drowned in the harbor, 80 houses were demolished and hundreds were unroofed. The damage to property is estimated at $500,000. Commissary stores to the value of $50,000 were destroyed.

A dispatch by cable from Ponce says the town was almost destroyed. Almost all the frame buildings are down, the bridge is swept away, and there is no communication between the port and the city proper. The damage to the port is estimated at $250,000. Two natives are known to have been drowned. The records and property of the custom house are ruined and all the vessels are ashore.

At Aibointo very little remains standing, except the cathedral and the barracks. Four natives perished and three United States soldiers were badly injured. As the town is without food government relief has been dispatched thither.

El Caney was leveled to the ground, 200 houses being demolished. Two United States soldiers were injured and many cavalry horses killed.

At Catano the entire plant of the Standard Oil company was ruined. The loss on the property is $200,000.

At Bayamon a majority of the houses were destroyed, and the rest were flooded. Two hundred cattle were killed and the railway was seriously damaged.

The village of Carolina was literally razed. At Caguas four persons were killed.

A courier, who has just arrived from Humacao, capital of the province of that name, on the eastern coast of the island, reports awful destruction there. The loss to property is estimated at $500,000, but this is the least item of the disaster. The courier brought an official report from Captain Eben Swift of the Fifth United States cavarly, who says:

"Humacao was totally destroyed by the hurricane. Forty-six bodies have been recovered, and there are many more in the debris. Eight privates of troop C were injured, two fatally. Sergeant King of the Eleventh infantry was injured. North, a discharged private, is missing. At the port of Humacao 18 bodies have been recovered. Eight hundred persons are starving here."

Three persons were killed at Las Piedras and five at Junco.

Couriers from other districts are anxiously expected at the palace.

Steamer Slocum, en route from Mayaguez to San Juan, was caught in the storm, but her passengers and crew were saved through the heroism of Mr. Single, the first mate. The coffee crop is ruined, and the loss will leach millions. Very great injury has been done also to the orange crop.

No definite returns have yet been received from the southern section of the island, apart from Ponce. It is certain, however, that the food supplies in the stricken districts have been destroyed, and in those quarters the quantity of government stores on hand is small. Relief wagons will be sent out tomorrow in different directions.

General Davis, the governor general, has cabled to the war department for assistance.

As late advices come in from Montserrat it is seen the first reports conveyed only a faint idea of the sufferings of the people and their deplorable condition. The administrator appeals for help.

At La Pointe-a-Pitre, Island of Guadeloupe, immense damage was wrought, and according to reports, not yet confirmed, 102 persons were killed.

In the island of St. Croix, the largest of the Virgin islands, the destruction was appalling. It was chiefly wrought at the west end, where the smaller houses are a tangled mass of wreckage. Thirty persons were killed, and the inhabitants are in great distress.

Leeward Islands Suffer.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., Aug. 11.—The island of Montserrat, British West Indies, was completely devastated by a hurricane Monday. All the churches, estates and villages were destroyed, and nearly 100 persons were killed. In addition many were injured and rendered homeless, and terrible distress exists among the sufferers.

Late advices from St. Kitts say that a hurricane with a velocity of 70 miles destroyed about 200 small houses in the towns and did considerable damage to the harbor. Antigua also suffered severely in damage to estates and buildings in the towns. Late reports from St. Croix increase the amount of damage done.

INTERVIEW WAS INCORRECT.

Canadian Premier Denies the Truth of Statements Attributed to Him.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—In a personal letter to H. H. Kohlsaat of the Chicago Times-Herald, Sir Wilfrid Laurier denies the truth of an interview recently given out by F. W. Fitzpatrick of the treasury department, Washington, in which Fitzpatrick asserted that Premier Laurier had stated to him he would not accept an invitation to the Chicago autumn festival, believing the somewhat strained relations between the two countries might result in some unpleasant incident during his visit. In his letter Premier Laurier says:

"You are at liberty to say that I have paid no attention to an interview published recently in a Washington paper, in which the reporter purported to give to the public words not spoken to him by me, but to somebody else. Life is too short for a busy man to take notice of this kind or any other kind of hearsay evidence. If I had any communication to make to the public I would prefer to make it directly and in my own words. It seems to me that I need hardly add that the invitation of the Chicago authorities will receive from me the most courteous consideration."

At the next meeting of the committee on invitations and arrangements the Canadian premier will be invited to attend the festival. This will be the first invitation extended to Laurier, as the members of the committee deny that Fitzpatrick had any authority to invite the premier or that he is in any way connected with the festival.

Hot Politics In Tarheel State.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The effort of Richard Pearson of the Asheville (N. C.) congressional district to unseat William T. Crawford, who holds the certificate of election, has resulted in some very plain talk between these two men. Mr. Pearson charges that Crawford secured the election through "intimidation, violence, bloodshed, corruption of voters, stuffing of ballot boxes" and all other kinds of robbery, while Mr. Crawford retorts that Mr. Pearson's political somersaults have never inspired the people of the district with confidence in his political integrity. Much more word slinging to the same effect is found in the printed testimony of the case, which has just been issued.

For Peace and Harmony.

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 11.—At the banquet given yesterday in honor of President Roca of Argentina by Campos Salles, president of Brazil, the latter, discussing international policy, said this must not be limited to the interests of America or of the South American republics. General Roca, in his reply, said that both governments desired peace and harmony in the sphere of international politics, and their policy was not concerned solely with people of the same origin or inhabiting the same regions, but rather expressed the universal aspiration of these people toward tranquility through reciprocal guarantees.

Dewey's Wish Finally Realized.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The announcement is made at the navy department that an examination of the files there failed to discover the letter written by Admiral, then commander, Dewey in 1873, asking to be assigned to the capture of the city of Manila in case war with Spain resulted from the Virginus trouble. It is highly probable that Commander Dewey's letter was not a strictly official communication, but that such a missive was sent to Washington at the time mentioned is a matter of knowledge on the part of those who were on duty on the Narragansett.

Hailstorm's Terrible Havoc.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 11.—Two million bushels of wheat are estimated to have been lost in yesterday's hailstorm, which partially destroyed the crop on nearly 250,000 acres of land in the state. Losses are estimated at from 25 to 100 percent of the crop. Several big farms were wiped out. The total loss will be $1,000,000.

Vanderlip's Good Work.

Washington, Aug. 11.—An increase in the salaries of about 180 persons in the bureau of engraving and printing has been made by order of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Vanderlip. Mr. Vanderlip, by the introduction of economies, has effected a saving of about $20,000 a year, which he can spend in deserved increases of salaries, principally among the poorer paid employes. Of the 180 who will receive advances, only six have heretofore drawn salaries above $1000 a year. All the others were paid from $300 to less than $900 annually.

Won't Do It Again.

New York, Aug. 11.—On the strength of the promise that he "would not take such a long chance again" Herman Hauser, treasurer of the Herald Square theatre and the latest to leap from the Brooklyn bridge, was discharged in court. Hauser appears to have recovered from the effects of his adventure.

TOO MANY INTERESTS.

Nothing Practical Expected to Result From Recent Meeting of Shoe Men.

Handicapped by Combinations Which Affect Them.

Public Unwilling to Pay Higher Prices Than They Have Been Accustomed To.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 11.—Doubt is expressed by the majority of the most prominent shoe manufacturers of Lynn as to any tangible results from the recent meeting of shoe men at Philadelphia, as far as obtaining higher prices for shoes is concerned, as, without some form of combination, or at least of concerted action, it will be found impossible to arbitrarily force up the prices. The difficulties in the way of combination were pointed out at the time of the formation of the American Hide and Leather company, when the practicability of a shoe trust was informally discussed by the manufacturers of this city, and the conclusion arrived at that it was an utter impossibility for the shoe trade, with its manifold and complicated interests, to take any common ground in self-defense from the operations of the powerful combinations in lines which most directly affected them.

"This is our weak point, as compared with other industrial lines in the struggle for better prices," according to Mr. Baker of the firm of A. F. Smith & Co. "We have too many interests involved in our different lines of manufacture to get a sufficient number of our men who want the same things, or for whose benefit any given action would be likely to serve. Of course, a rise in prices all along the line would benefit everybody. But how are we to get it, without agreement among the manufacturers? In isolated cases, a manufacturer will be found who will take a determined stand and refuse to accept orders at old rates. I fail to see how he gains by it to any extent, while scores of others are willing to cut the ground from his feet by their willingness to keep on selling their shoes at the same prices rather than refuse orders."

T. Corcoran of Thomas Corcoran & Sons says that he does not anticipate any direct result from the meetings of the manufacturers, but adds that indirectly he expects that good will result from such meetings and the publicity given to their proceedings. "The cause of insufficient prices for shoes lies in the unwillingness of the public to give any more for shoes than they have been accustomed to. The matter will adjust itself, as it is obvious that a reasonable profit must be made, but as I have said, the difficulty lies in the unwillingness of the consumers to recognize present conditions, and the more publicity is given to the facts of the case, the sooner will they understand that they will either have to pay identical prices for inferior goods, or consent to a small advance on previous rates, and the more will manufacturers be encouraged in making a determined stand against continuing to make goods at a loss, or at least a minimum of profit."

The Trolley Disaster Inquest.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 11.—The third session of the coroner's inquiry into the trolley catastrophe of last Sunday developed some sensational evidence. The feature of the inquest was the testimony of an electrical expert to the effect that the electrical equipment of the wrecked car had been tampered with since the accident, and the testimony of another witness as to the repairs that were made near the bridge the morning after the disaster and before the coroner's jury examined it. The latter witness exhibited some views which he took at the time showing the company's men tamping dirt along the track at the northern end of the bridge. The coroner and jury visited the hospital and took the statements of three of the injured, which, however, failed to bring out anything new as to the cause of the accident.

Survey Evidently Needed.

Boston, Aug. 11.—Much activity has been occasioned in steamship circles and at the chamber of commerce by the accident to the Cunard steamship Ultonia, which struck a hidden obstruction below Boston light while outward bound to Liverpool on Saturday last. The fact that the lighthouse tenders which have since been engaged in searching for the obstacle have uncovered some hitherto unknown ledges has somewhat allayed the anxiety, but the need of a resurvey becomes all the more imperative. Secretary Preston of the chamber of commerce sent a telegram to the coast and geodetic survey at Washington, asking that the Blake be ordered here to survey the channel.

A Victim of Neglect.

Bangor, Me., Aug. 11.—Coroner Finnegan and Deputy Sheriff Maloney went to Orono yesterday to investigate the death of Nazarine Perry at the town farm under circumstances indicating malpractice. They found evidence against a physician and others and further investigation will be made. It was found that the girl had been shockingly neglected, having been locked in a house for two weeks without attendants or medical care. Finally a physician was called in and he reported to the selectmen, who had her removed to the town farm. The evidence has been reported to County Attorney Smith.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ If the Pennsylvania professor who has discovered that asphalt can be made out of red herrings would now turn the process end for end and show how red herrings can be made out of asphalt, the process would possess an enhanced commercial value.—New York Tribune.

☞ It is only the greenhorn traveler who throws the car window wide open in summer in the belief that locomotive smoke, flying sand and hot cinders constitute "fresh air." Cars are always torrid these days when stationary, but as soon as the train is in motion plenty of air, and all the coolness obtainable come in through the screened ventilating transom overhead and the door windows at the end. Open side windows simply mean filth, danger to the eyes and wholesale discomfort to everybody.—Worcester Spy.

☞ During a year which has seen some of the greatest changes of history, the most wonderful thing in the manner in which the sororw of one man has drawn and held the sympathy of civilzation. The interest in the case of Captain Dreyfus is almost without parallel in history, and bids fair to continue as strong as ever for several months at least. The interest which the American people take in Captain Dreyfus is shown by the fact that the first edition of his letters to his wife was sold out almost on the day of publication. No one had thought that a book of this character would meet with such an usual and immediate success, and the increasing demand for it is in the nature of a surprise. One might think that a series of letters written in surrondings which gave not the slightest inspiration and covering a period of more than three years, might become monotonous. Instead, any one who as followed the tragic story through the newspapers of the last four years will find this last chapter more interesting than all that have gone before. The devotion and faith to his wife, and the determination to live for her sake expressed in them are sublime.—Hartford Times.

HERE AND THERE.

Local Brevities of the City of Presidents.

"The pride of heraldry, the pomp of power,
And all that wealth or beauty ever gave,
Alike, await the inevitable hour,
The path of duty leads but to the grave."

Mr. Alfred Nelson of Atlantic street is spending his vacation at Onset.

Peter Cunniff and family of Hancock street have removed to Charles street.

Prof. William Wilson, wife and daughter have returned from their trip to Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H.

Federal avenue is being built from Independence to Presidents avenue. This opens up a large number of house lots which are in good demand in that locality.

Miss Etta Gerry returned Thursday from a two weeks' visit with relatives in Lynn.

S. N. Wood of Old Colony street has recovered enough from his recent illness to be out again.

Sunday School picnic of the First United Presbyterian church will be held at Highland Park, Saturday, Aug. 12th. Cars leave Doble's corner at 9 A. M.

F. Monroe Perry, who has been connected with the Quincy and Boston street railway for many years, as motorman, conductor and lately as night starter, has been promoted to the position as assistant superintendent of the Boston, Milton and Brockton street railway.

Michael Burns, the court officer, captured Thursday, at his home on Washington street, with the assistance of several neighbors, what is supposed to be a genuine kissing bug. The bug is about an inch long, has large bulging eyes, long feelers, and is a wicked looking insect.

Rewarded.

So seldom is it that street railway men are rewarded for finding and returning lost articles, that when such a case does happen it is worthy of mention. On a recent trip through Braintree one of the motormen saw an umbrella upon a stone wall, where it had been left by its careless owner. Stopping his car he secured the lost article. Later he was waited upon by the gentleman, who had left it, who proving that he was the owner, it was handed over to him. The gentleman was very profuse in his thanks, saying that the umbrella was a valuable one to him and that he was very glad it had fallen into the hands of so honest a man.

The motorman blushed, as only men can who expect to be offered a reward, for the gentleman's tone had led him to believe that possibly a V might fall into his hands. True he was rewarded, but not with a V. As the gentleman turned to depart he stopped, turning back, and drawing his hand from his pocket again repeated his thanks, and extending his hand toward the waiting motorman, he said, "Here have a cigarette."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

KICKED BY HORSE.

Serious Injury Which May Prove Fatal.

William Martell a young man, about 17 years of age, residing with his mother on Filbert street, was kicked in the head by a horse at the stable of John Fallon and Sons on Commoh street Thursday evening, causing a compound depressed fracture of the skull. Dr. Ash was called and ordered the young man removed to the City Hospital. But slight hopes are entertained for his recovery.

The young man comes from a peculiarly unfortunate family. Some time ago his father was killed in the quarries by a large rock falling upon him, and last year a brother was thrown from a runaway team and received a compound fracture of the leg which confined him to the hospital for some weeks.

There is a large family and the widow has had an exceedingly hard time in making both ends meet since the husband was killed, and the accident of Thursday, if it results fatally will remove one of her chief supports. This is a case charitable people can well look into.

Q. Y. C. Anniversary.

One of noticeable features of the Quincy Yacht club's 25th anniversary celebration, which occurs next Wednesday evening, will be the illumination of the club house by several hundred Japanese lanterns. Thomas Mullaly and his orchestra of seven pieces will add to the gayety of the scene. The House Committee extends a cordial invitation to all members and their friends, including ladies, to be present.

Cup for Heiress.

The winners in the Corinthian race off Marblehead on Thursday were the Ashumet, Barton, Heiress, Arab IV, Tunipoo, Opitsah, Sally IV, Torpedo and Ugly Duckling. The Heiress and Arab IV had no competitors, and the former wins the cup by taking two races.

It has been facetiously suggested in many quarters that the State had better establish a Reform school at Wollaston. It would take but a short time to fill it with home talent.

—Congress will be asked to appropriate $1,000,000 for a stone dock at New York.

Important Advice.
It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.
If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

A SAFE VOYAGE.

John Evans Leads in Cheers for the Stars and Stripes.

R. M. S. Majestic
On the Deep Blue Sea,
Tuesday, Aug. 1, 1899.

Dear Editor: We are now nearing land, after being five days with nothing but the deep waters in view. We will let our friends know through the Ledger how God has led us thus far.

The first day, July 26, we made 392 miles; light breeze, hazy horizon. Second day, 434 miles; light northerly breeze with rain. Third day, 450 miles; light breeze, clear sky. Fourth day, 448 miles; strong wind, very heavy rain, rough sea. Fifth day, fresh breeze, rough sea, rather cloudy. Sixth day, 438 miles; light breeze and smooth, beautiful day.

We had all kinds of weather—fog, rain in torrents, and hot, clear, days. I never saw heavier rain than we had Saturday night and early Sunday. The sea was like a roaring lion, our great floating palace trembled like a leaf, but about 9 A. M. Sunday the storm abated and the rain stopped. The wind calmed and the sea itself acted as though it wanted to reverence the day of God by its hush. In the afternoon we had a union meeting, Salvation Army captains joining with others in the worship.

Today at 3 P. M., there was a grand concert on deck when Arizona Bill exhibited his snakes. There was singing, speaking, etc. The chairman called for three cheers for the Majestic, but there was no response. Then I jumped up and called for three cheers for the stars and stripes, and it would do your heart good to hear the thousand voices shouting themselves hoarse.

When in sight of foreign soil I called for three cheers for McKinley, and then for Dewey, and you would think that the big steamship was joining in the cheers, such was the volume of voices. I tell you I am so hoarse myself after the shouting that I can not speak loud enough to be heard. Maybe that will do at present. I will write again if you think this is worthy of notice. John Evans.

John Henry Gilbert, M. D.

The fellows of the Norfolk South District Medical Society have received with the deepest sorrow the announcement of the death of their beloved and honored associate, Dr. John Henry Gilbert of Quincy, who died on August 2d, 1899.

In his death this society has sustained the loss of an ardent fellow worker, a consistent member of the medical profession and a skilful physician and surgeon.

He was a faithful attendant at the meetings of the society and in its deliberations exhibited a mind well informed in the most advanced thought of medical science.

He filled the office of censor councillor and president with ability, zeal and faithfulness, and endeared himself to all the members by his kindly disposition, courteous manner, upright conduct in medical ethics and friendly interest in the welfare and success of his fellow physicians.

His reputation was not confined to the city of Quincy but throughout the state he was recognized by his professional brethren as an honored and honorable physician, who in accuracy of diagnosis, clearness of statement and judicious treatment was surpassed by none.

The memory of his pure life and devotion to the profession which he loved and honored will remain as a blessed heritage and an incentive to noble work by his associates in this society.

The fellows of this society tender to his bereaved family their sincere sympathy in this hour of deep affliction and loss.

Resolved, that this memorial be entered upon the records of the society and a copy of the same be forwarded to the family of our associate and also to the Quincy papers and the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal for publication.

HOUGHS NECK.

Another petition to the Railroad Commissioners is being circulated at the beach, and like former petitions the wants are many. Just who is the father of the petition is not known or rather no one seems to know, but it was circulated by a young man named Meyers, a son of Mr. Andrew Meyers, who recently appeared before the Commissioners with a petition in relation to the street railway. The present petition asks for five things, viz: through cars to Neponset bridge; an eight-cent transfer from Houghs Neck to any part of Quincy; fifteen minute cars during the summer months; cars during the winter months; and that the tracks be put in a safe condition.

Frank C. Perry, the marine artist, has returned from a sketching tour along the North shore and has some fine views.

George G. Saville and family are at their cottage in Germantown for the balance of the season. Mr. Saville is making extensive alterations in his residence. Mr. Warren S. Parker is doing the carpenter work.

Clarence Eaton is the guest of Mrs. O'Toole at the Shakespere Inn.

There are more people at the beach this year than for several years and there are others who would like to come but can find no cottage as all are occupied.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. O'Toole of Chelsea are the guests of his mother.

Herbert T. Whitman and family have returned to their Wollaston home.

L. M. Pratt and family are at Post Island.

Many at the beach are ill this week with cramps in the stomach and Jamaica ginger is in demand.

Mears' Great Hill House is regaining its former popularity. It is a quiet place where dinners are served at a all hours.

Recent arrivals at the Fensmere are Mae Leonard, Roxbury; John J. Allman, Chelsea; Frederick R. Proctor, Washington, D. C.; Anna J. Harmon, Chicago; Sadie Fitz Simmons, Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Haynes, James F. Snow, John Brown, W. W. Bliss, Fannie O'Brien, Boston; Virginia Fair, New York; Du Meroe Paris, John E. Heslan, Thomas R. Rooney, Frank Arcardi, George W. Moore, C. H. Brown Boston; George B. Armstrong, Henry W. Beals, Brighton.

Mrs. Owens of Dorchester is a guest at the Glan Y Don cottage.

All is not gold that glitters, and even a water paint can be made so that it has a high gloss. A poor paint often has its distinguishing ear marks, such as short measure, and a smell of benzine, and you must be careful and not leave it out over night lest it freeze up. When you open a can of Chilton Paint, it smells as paint should smell, it covers as no other paint will cover, because it is better made with better materials than any other paint, and it lasts longer, because nothing is put in it in order to cheapen it.

GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF

to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally indulged in and almost as universally injurious. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the stomach, ruins the digestion, effects the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

DEMANGE CONTENTED.

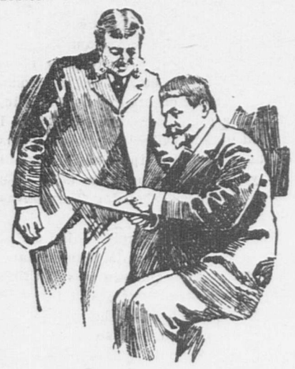

Says Full Light Will Be Turned Upon Accusations Against Dreyfus.

Esterhazy Reported to Have Written a Mad Letter

In Which Specific Statements of the Highest Significance Are Made.

Rennes, Aug. 11.—The members of the Dreyfus court-martial yesterday took the testimony of MM. Chanoine and Paleologue. The former was examined from 6:30 to 9:30, and the latter was on the stand from 9:30 to 11:45 a. m., when the court adjourned until today, when the examination of the secret dossier will be concluded. Colonel Jouaust, president of the court-martial, on leaving the court, said a public session would take place tomorrow.

Maitre Demange, the principal counsel of Captain Dreyfus, in an interview after yesterday's session, expressed himself as very well contented with the way in which matters are proceeding, and, judging from his manner, one may say that the defenders of the accused have have not yet met anything very surprising or alarming for him in the secret dossier.

MAITRES LABORI AND DEMANGE.

Naturally Maitre Demange declined to give any particulars respecting the contents of the dossier, but he declared that he and his colleague, Maitre Labori, were satisfied of the conscientious desire of the members of the court to thresh the whole matter out, and to have full light turned upon the accusations against their client.

This will take some time, and the end of the month will be reached before judgment can be given. Meantime the strain is telling on Dreyfus, who is showing evident physical distress.

Commandant Carriere, commissary of the court-martial which is trying Dreyfus, is said to have received a letter from Major Esterhazy. The letter is Esterhazy's refusal to return from London as a witness at the trial in response to a subpoena and guarantee of safe conduct from the French government.

The letter is a rambling and disjointed communication of 4000 words, evidently the work of a disjointed mind. That Esterhazy is practically mad everybody who has met him knows. His emaciated face, his burning, glittering eyes, sunken deep in their sockets, his deeply furrowed forehead, and his high, spasmodic, nervous tension, all show clearly to any allenist the incurable result of sleeplessness, dissipation and absinthe.

Before quoting from the letter, however, a word must be said as to the very extraordinary way in which partisan feeling and the long and varied discussion of the case have blinded all concerned to the simple facts which underlie the whole matter. The mystery is, why should a great conspiracy, including generals, statesmen and officers of all ranks, force itself on a simple captain of artillery, who, as far as has appeared, had done no one any harm or excited an enmity? Also, why should those conspirators, after condemning Dreyfus to unheard of torture, then commit perjury, forgery, suicide, and probably murder in the case of Lemercier Picard, in order to keep Dreyfus a prisoner on Devil's island, when few, in fact, practically none of them, had any personal acquaintance with him whatever?

It has remained for the Esterhazy letter to furnish the missing link, and any sane mind should have no difficulty in seeing the true state of affairs at a glance without giving Esterhazy's excuses, explanations and accusations against Dreyfus, all of which are twisted around a dead man, Colonel Sandherr, who cannot now deny them.

Esterhazy makes specific statements in the letter just received, which are of the highest significance, as follows: "I entered into relations with Schwarzkoppen, the German military attache, in 1894. Schwarzkoppen told me that he had in his service at the French ministry of war a captain of artillery. I told this to Sandherr, and he said: 'I know the man, and I've got him.' I wrote the bordereau on Sandherr's instructions, and took it myself to the German embassy when I knew Schwarzkoppen was away from Paris on leave. It was seized there by one of our agents, a German, and taken to Colonel Henry. Henry was my friend. I had lived beside him for a long time. He knew me very well. He knew my handwriting better than anybody. Henry said to me 'Our hands are full of proof against Dreyfus.'"

These are specific statements, and this was the absolute beginning of the action against Dreyfus. The two active agents in causing it were Esterhazy and Henry. Esterhazy wrote the bordereau and had it delivered by a spy to Henry, who knew he wrote it. The arrest having been made and the court-martial instituted, the further action of these two conspirators is full of the greatest interest. All the evidence against Dreyfus on which he was condemned, degraded and transported consisted of two things, the bordereau, now admittedly written by Esterhazy, and the secret dossier.

Concerning this secret dossier, which is now being considered with closed doors by the court-martial at the Lycee, Colonel Henry's testimony at the Zola trial seems to have been entirely forgotten. It was in answer to Labori. He testified: "I am going, in addition, to explain my position with regard to this dossier. I long ago assumed the responsibility of it. In November, 1894, Colonel Sandherr came into my office and said: 'I wish you would furnish me with everything you have concerning espionage since you have been in office here.' This period was a year. I went over my records and furnished him eight or nine documents."

In addition to communications of slight value enumerated in the bordeau, it is said that more than 160 documents of considerable importance were furnished to the German attache in Paris, Colonel Schwarzkoppen, at various times by Esterhazy, acting as intermediary for and accomplice of the late Lieutenant Colonel Henry. One of these documents contained detailed information relative to the general plan of mobilization for the French army. The proceeds of this traffic were divided between Esterhazy and Henry. In Parisian diplomatic circles the latter was known to be the real traitor for several months before his arrest and suicide, and, besides the power most directly concerned, namely, Germany, more than one European government received information to this effect early in 1898.

DEFENDER'S GREAT WORK.

Outpointed Columbia In a Race From Newport to Vineyard Sound.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Aug. 11.—It was not very promising for fair weather as the New York Yacht club fleet prepared for the third run of the cruise, to Vineyard Haven. The yachtsmen were up early, and those who were on deck at colors saw the flags go up on the largest fleet of yachts ever anchored in the harbor. Five minutes after colors boomed out from the flagship, signals were set directing the fleet to go to Vineyard Haven.

The old yacht champion, Defender, practically won a race against Columbia, if time allowance was given, in the dirtiest sort of weather for a yacht club cruise. But the victory was more than well earned, and the yachtsmen of the New York club and the guests never saw before such a sailing event.

The margin between the two famous sloops was 14 seconds over a minute in the 37-mile run from Brenton's Reef lightship, off Newport, to the West Chop buoy in Vineyard sound. Taking out of consideration the magnificent spectacle of the great fleet of craft sailing under heavy canvass only, some of the smaller ones with reefs taken in their mainsails, the race between Columbia and Defender was fairly soul-stirring. After both got away over the starting line it was nip and tuck, with eased sheets, for almost an hour, Defender slightly in the lead, with Columbia abeam. Even after Columbia made a gain so that Defender could cross under her stern, Columbia did not walk away, as the heavy breeze hove the latter down and made her lose distance on repeated luffs.

The race and the performance of Columbia was satisfactory on the score of heavy weather. She took all that came, and, while eased up several times, it was no evidence that she would have had too much of a good thing if a stake was pending on the outcome of the race.

All the other boats found that the weather was boisterous enough for the time being. Sloop Vigilant, which headed the fleet, finished first, with Navahoe second. All the craft finished in a nasty squall, which made the turn at the West Chop buoy particularly exhilirating for all hands.

Races Won by Americans.

Montreal, Aug. 11.—Another beautiful day and a crowd of 7000 persons greeted the riders at the world's cycle meet. There were two world's championships on the card, the 100-kilometer race and the mile professional. The former race was a gift for the Chicago rider, John A. Nelson, who had no difficulty in winning, beating Ben Goodson, the Australian, by nearly four miles, and Riddle of Winnipeg, the only other finisher, by seven miles. Time, 2:04:13 1-5. Major Taylor had but little difficulty in adding the mile professional championship to his laurels. All the preliminary heats were marked by good finishes except that won by the major, who easily rode his field down. Time, 3:03. Moran of Chelsea, Mass., won the two-mile amateur from Caldow, the Scotchman, coming out of the bunch at the head of the stretch and beating Caldow by a wheel. Time, 4:32. The five-mile tandem pursuit race was quite easy for the Butlers. Time, 9:59 4-5.

Scrappy Game at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Aug. 11.—Powell's only base on balls, followed by several long hits, won a game for the Orioles brim full of interest and excitement. The game was a "scrappy" one throughout. Burkett was removed by Umpire Hunt in the fourth inning for belittling remarks. Later Tebeau struck McGraw, but nothing came of it. At the end of the game bad blood developed between Lachance and Tebeau, but no damage was done.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

ALMANAC, SATURDAY, AUG. 12.
Sun rises—4:48; sets, 6:50.
Moon sets—9:14 p. m.
High water—2:45 a. m.; 3:15 p. m.

The general low pressure, with the main depression in Manitoba, has caused a continual high temperature in the south and west. The general showers in New England have prevented a decided rise over that district. There were showers and thunder storms generally east of the Mississippi and in the lake regions. In New England showers will be followed by fair and warmer; fresh to brisk east to south winds.

Hundred and Two Years Old.

Stafford, N. H., Aug. 11.—Solomon Leighton of this town yesterday celebrated the 102nd anniversary of his birth. The event attracted a large number of friends. The homestead where the celebration took place has been his residence since his birth, with the exception of a few years.

Railroad Firemen's Grievances.

Boston, Aug. 11.—Some friction has developed during the past few days between the officials of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. The firemen want more pay and a shortening of their runs. Communications addressed to General Manager Chamberlain did not bring forth any satisfactory answer or give any assurances of favorable action on the part of the railroad. It is understood that Grand Master Sargent of the brotherhood has laid the matter before President Clark, but no reply has been received yet.

A Message to McKinley.

Boston, Aug. 11.—The meeting of the Anti-Lynching society last night was attended by about 200 people. Resolutions were adopted and forwarded to President McKinley, the substance of which was that the society viewed with alarm the increase of lynching in the south, and prayed that the president refrain from appointing a postmaster at Lake City, S. C., until after the trial of the alleged murderers of Baker, and asked him to then appoint a colored man to the office. The resignation of Mrs. Jewell, as president of the society, was accepted.

Mutinous Chinese Overcome.

Seattle, Aug. 11.—Trouble that had been brewing on the United States transport Victoria for several days culminated in a mutiny yesterday. Nearly 60 of the Chinese crew were in open rebellion against the captain and his officers. A terrible battle appeared imminent and was only averted by the cool nerve of the ship's first and second officers, who stood in the face of the angry Celestials with drawn pistols. There was fighting for a time and the mutinous Chinamen fought their way from between decks forward up the companion ladder to the upper deck and thence back to nearly amidships before their onrush was finally stayed. Had it not been for the presence on board of carpenters and shipwrights armed with hatchets, hammers and saws, the Chinamen might have won. The reason for the mutiny is a demand for more money and shore leave on the part of the crew.

Go'ham a Thieves' Nest.

New York, Aug. 11.—More than 100 patrolmen in uniform filled the seats reserved for witnesses at yesterday's session of the Mazet investigating committee. Mr. Moss said that the only book furnished him by Captain McCluskey's detective bureau showing robberies was a record of property recovered. It showed that property from all over the United States was brought to New York and disposed of in pawnshops and other places. John R. Wood, one of the committee's detectives, testified concerning the opium joints in New York city. He also detailed many interesting facts concerning the existence of poolrooms in the city. The manner in which the police commissioners deal with offending poolroom men was the feature during the latter half of the day.

Spanish Ambassador Offended.

Rome, Aug. 11.—The warm reception given Admiral Dewey in Italy is regarded with mixed feelings by the government, which is almost morbidly anxious not to offend Spain. As it is, the Spanish ambassador protested against the toasts at the recent reception to the American admiral, in which the American victories over Spain were glorified. In consequence of the protest the government requested the Italian officers who proposed them to furnish explanations, which the ambassador accepted as satisfactory, but the incident produced a bad impression, and Admiral Dewey abandoned his intention to come to Rome.

Japan's Tobacco Trade.

Washington, Aug. 11.—Minister Buck has reported to the state department that the Japanese government has concluded arrangements for the purchase of tobacco through agents, and will obtain supplies generally from the United States. Japan has recently established the tobacco monopoly as a means of increasing her revenues, and Americans interested in tobacco have feared this might cut off the trade they have heretofore enjoyed with that country. But Minister Buck's report seems to assure a continuance of the trade.

Quarantine Raised.

Newport News, Va., Aug. 11.—The yellow fever epidemic is practically at an end. The quarantine established by this city against Hampton and vicinity was raised last night, following a conference between the health boards of Newport News, Richmond, Norfolk and Hampton with the state board of health and representatives of the marine hospital service. The local quarantine against Norfolk remains in force, but will be raised tomorrow evening. The record of the scourge to this date shows a total of 43 cases, of which 11 resulted fatally. Twelve cases were discharged as cured and 20 convalescents remain in hospital at the soldiers' home.

Won't Attend Club Dinner.

New York, Aug. 11.—Admiral Dewey has declined the invitation to a dinner extended to him by the officers of the Union League club of Brooklyn. The admiral excused himself on the ground of poor health and, although he had improved somewhat of late, his condition was not what it ought to be. In view of this fact he had concluded to decline all semi-private invitations extended to him. The admiral's letter is dated "At sea, June 15," and was mailed from Colombo.

To Investigate Woodward's Conduct.

Atlanta, Aug. 11.—Mayor Woodward, whose resignation was asked for last week by the city council, has declined to relinquish his office. The council met last evening. After a long and exciting wrangle, in which Dr. Roy, a councilman, and also Mayor Woodward's family physician, stated that the mayor was in no condition mentally to cope with his present troubles, the council decided that a committee should investigate the conduct of the mayor.

THE SOWING.

One wept that his harvest was small,
With little or fruit or of grain,
While his neighbor, with barns running o'er,
Still followed the full freighted wain.
"How much didst thou sow?" I said. "Friend,
A handful of wheat, less or more."
"And didst thou expect broad acres would bend
To thy sickle from such scanty store?
Who sparingly soweth must look
For little of fruit or of grain;
'Tis only the bountiful sower can reap
A bountiful harvest again.
A lesson," I said, "to the soul,
For harvest time soon will be here;
Sow with bountiful hands lest thou weep at the last,
When the Lord of the harvest draws near."
—Watch Tower.

When the Heart Is Young

How an Organist Sought Love Through a Medium and Found It Through Accident.

The vestry door of the church of St. John the Evangelist opened about an hour after the Sunday morning service, and a spruce figure passed slowly down the asphalt walk to the street pavement. It was M. Auguste, the little organist.

M. Auguste had come to a determination within the past hour. The sun of prosperity was beginning to shine upon this middle aged Alsatian, and he felt the elation of spirit. He had a good position as organist; he had a large music class; he had composed a successful march; he had a bank account. He would have more; he would share his happiness; he would marry.

Practical thought came back to him with the eating of his Sunday restaurant dinner. His pint bottle of cheap wine stimulated him to an act courageous. He would seek the wife of the minister and ask her help to find him a suitable mate. He had heard that she made many matches among the church people.

In this state of mind he went to the house of the minister, Dr. Dahl, and was announced to the wife of that gentleman, to her great surprise. She had merely a speaking acquaintance with the spruce little organist, but she came to him at once and expected to hear a tale of woe or distress. Her surprise may be imagined when the excited Alsatian, in a compound of bad English, German and French, poured forth his heart's desires, his thoughts, his hopes and besought her assistance in finding him a proper life companion. The hopelessness of the task struck her at once, but the earnestness of the organist gained her sympathies. She questioned, she deliberated, hesitated and was lost. Ere an hour had passed she had promised him her assistance.

"I will introduce you to such ladies as would be suitable, you understand," she said; "you must do your own courting, etc."

"Oh, yah, suitable," he nodded smilingly. "Zst iss suit you an suit me, as 'tis great affaire for me, you un'erstand."

Mrs. Dahl watched him away in the direction of the park with misgivings. Shrewd she might be, but she could not fathom the feeling of this poor alien, who felt that now at a late day he might build a nest and find a heart mate.

Mrs. Dahl was a sympathetic woman. She entered the interview in her diary and memorandum book. On Monday she discussed the matter for a half hour with her husband, then prepared a list from the church record of such widows and maidens of uncertain years as she thought suitable to M. Auguste's age and circumstances. The next step was to bring about meetings. She arranged some for a coming church social. She secured a widow as a piano pupil for him. She asked two spinsters to tea on a certain evening and invited M. Auguste to meet them. The seventh and last candidate she would ask to ride out with her and include the organist in a drive to a distant park. Then monsieur would confide in her his choice, his emotions. The rest could take care of itself.

No fault could Mrs. Dahl find with monsieur's conduct. He appeared at the church social, obedient to her hints as to appearance and deportment. He was soon presented to several ladies, whom he treated with reverential politeness, but his gaze kept wandering to the bouquet of young maidens who laughed and joked with the youths of the Luther league and the Endeavor circle.

At Mrs. Dahl's suggestion he even escorted one of the widows to her home, and was cordially invited to call upon her in the future. The widow pupil was exceedingly kind to him, but he regarded her with curious eyes—eyes that had something pathetic in them. On the occasion of Mrs. Dahl's tea M. Auguste met the two maiden ladies of good family upon whose virtues Mrs. Dahl had discoursed to him the day before. One played the piano for him very well; the other was a paragon as far as housekeeping qualities were concerned.

Still monsieur rewarded not Mrs. Dahl by a sign of preference. Quite puzzled by his reticence, the minister's wife chose the next fine day for her drive, and placed by the side of the sensitive organist the last of her seven eligibles. This candidate was younger, handsomer and more worldly than any lady the aspfring musician had met. She was merry, she was pleasant and exerted herself to please monsieur. He smiled freely. He was even voluble, but he made no sign to the astonished Mrs. Dahl that he had any choice. Instead his eyes kept their puzzled expression during the whole drive.

Mrs. Dahl requested monsieur to call upon her the next day, and at the hour swept into the room with something of indignation in her mind. The little organist stood at the window and bowed quite as gracefully to her as ever.

"Well, monsieur, and have you found a suitable lady among those you have met?"

Monsieur looked at the minister's wife as a terrified child looks at its tormentor.

"Good madame, are doze all ze ladies zu haf zelected for me?" he stammered.

"Why, you've seen seven. That is a great many to select from, is it not?"

"Zey are all old ladies, iss it not? Zey air not fraish, zu call it—not full of feeling."

"Man alive!" cried Mrs. Dahl, forgetting her politeness in her vexation. "Did you expect to meet young girls—to marry as if you were young and fresh yourself? Why, man, look at yourself! You are past middle age. You are not attractive to young girls. Look at yourself!"

She pushed him in front of the long mirror. The poor little organist looked long and hung his head. Then he sought for his hat, and as he took it he turned and spoke:

"Madame, zu haf been kind, verra kind. Zu speak truly. I am nicht young. Ze work, ze study, ze poverty has made me old, but I forgot, for ze heart has yet ze youth. I may nefer find ze lady dat I seek. I grow old. Madame, I will return to my musique. Forgive me, madame."

"I wanted to cry, and yet I never was so provoked," said Mrs. Dahl to her husband. "Is he or is he not a fool?"

Her husband did not reply.

In the dusk of the evening M. Auguste leaned from the attic window. The magnificence of sunset was in his face, the silvery moon rode high in the east. His eyes showed that he had wept. Now a calmness was in them, the calmness of a resigned hope. A pile of music lay on a chair near him. He would soon go down to the church and by the single gas jet lighted in the vast room give his whole soul up to his goddess, music. She would be richer by the death of a hope, the rude dominion of a foolish but ecstatic dream.

There was a timid knock at the door. When he opened it, there stood a tall, slight girl. She was very young and very timid. On her arm hung a basket, from which she took a bundle for him.

"Zanks to zu, Mlle. Marguerite. Could not ze small brozzer come wiz ze article? Nicht zu?"

The girl colored and tears came into her eyes.

"He is sick. There was no one else. Mother hopes the mending will suit you and that you will have more."

"Yah, oui, I mean yes," said M. Auguste gravely. "I will come to see small brozzer tomorrow. It will be ze great plazzir to me. Tell him. I will go down ze stairs wiz zu, mademoiselle. Zu air one brave girl—one goot girl."

They proceeded down three flights to the street door. In the light the organist saw the traces of tears on the girl's cheeks. His heart melted. Another wept in sorrow, one so young and who would, were it not for grinding poverty, be fair, be happy. His voice was very gentle.

"Go home, my child," he said. "Ve must all suffer mooch. I will not forget to see ze small brozzer tomorrow. If he is in great dangair, come to ze church for me zis evening. I play ze organ to ease my soul. Good night, mademoiselle, I will not forget to pray for ze happiness of one so young, so sorrowful."

He turned up the street, but as she hurried away the girl smiled at him through a very rainbow of tears. That smile went with him, and after he lighted the gas jet in the church gallery he turned to the organ and once more played out an ecstatic, improvised chant to love, to home, to peace, to his hungry heart's best wishes.—Chicago Herald.

Finger Nail Fancies.

In early times it was considered that bad luck would certainly attend any person who neglected to either burn or bury the parings of his finger nails. Among the Hebrews it was the custom to pare the nails on a Friday, and the operation had to be conducted in a certain manner. The little finger on the left hand had first to be operated on, then the middle finger, followed by the fourth finger, thumb and forefinger. The nail of the middle finger of the right hand had next to be cut. Then came the thumb, then the forefinger and afterward the fourth and little finger.

When fortune telling was more in vogue than at present, the shape and appearance of the finger nails were looked on as having reference to one's destiny. The nails were first rubbed over with a mixture of wax and soot, and after being thus prepared were held so that the sunlight fell full upon them. On the horny, transparent substance were supposed to appear signs and characters from which the future could be interpreted.—Woman's Life.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about 1-4 as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

MASTIC CLOTH WALKING COSTUME FROM HARPER'S BAZAR.

A late gown of mastic cloth is made with a plain-sheath skirt and slashed peplum, ornamented only by rows of close stitching, this is done in unbleached thread. The bodice is a tight fitting Eton, seamed in the back and worn over a deep belt of pale brown taffeta. The front of the Eton is fitted to the figure by one deep dart, and closed down the centre of the front by two rows of brown silk-covered buttons. The wide revers are of mastic cloth of so pale a shade as to be hardly distingishable from white. These are stitched with rows of silk, brown as the buttons that trim the front. The yoke is of cream taffeta, and is covered by a deep empiecement of rich yellow guipure. The high collar is made upon a similar foundation, the shape being preserved by thin white silk-covered wire, which also outlines the wide lace flaps that ornament the collar at the sides. The sleeves follow the general form of present-day sleeves fitting in closely to the arm with only a slight gathering at the elbow at the inside seam. This results in a sacquelike fullness which admits of free movement of the arm. The inside seam of the sleeve is left open almost to the elbow, the edges being finished by rows of stitching that serve to stay the buttons and button-holes that secure the sleeve from this point to the cuff.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 13—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—A service of promises.—John xiv, 1-14.

The preciousness, number and variety of God's promises in Christ are strikingly illustrated in this passage of Scripture. God's fidelity to His promises is also revealed, for some of them have already been fulfilled. Here are 14 verses, the dying words of Christ to His disciples. And yet laden down with the richest and most precious promises, in their extent embracing the end of time—yes, even the breadth of eternity. Let us study some of these invaluable promises here recorded.

1. The promise of a future home in heaven. "In My Father's house are many mansions. * * * I go to prepare a place for you * * * that where I am there ye may be also." What a precious promise we have here. Millions of dying pillows have been lightened by it and millions of broken, bereaved hearts comforted by these priceless words of Christ. No promise of Christ is more often read than this one. None has brought greater comfort and strength to His disciples amid the afflictions, bereavements, temptations and hardships of life.

2. The promise of His second coming. "I will come again." If they had only understood Him, how the disciples would have been comforted in the midst of their sorrows, how they would have been inspired to increased zeal and fidelity in His cause. Christ has gone from earth, but, most precious promise, He is coming again.

3. The promise of power, "He that believeth in Me, the works that I do, shall he do also, and greater works than these shall he do, because I go unto My Father." Divine power is here promised. The work that Christ did the disciples were to do and even greater works. Christ was going to His Father, the source of all power, and thence He would be able to give them even greater power. This promise was fulfilled to the disciples. The power of Christ became their power. They performed miracles, as He had performed them, and even greater spiritual works were performed by them after the Holy Ghost came. By belief, by faith we can possess this power to do wonderful works for Christ.

4. The promise to answer prayer, "If ye shall ask anything in My Name, I will do it." Oh, the privilege and power of prayer. We may not understand the philosophy of prayer, but we can accept the promise of Christ to answer our prayers.

How precious, how priceless these promises, but they are only so to those who believe them and act upon them. Let us do so, for "He is faithful who hath promised."

Bible Readings.—Num. xxiii, 19; Deut. vii, 9; Josh. xxiii, 14; Ps. lxxxix, 1-4; cv, 42; Luke i, 69-75; Rom. i, 1, 2; iv, 20, 21; II Cor. i, 19, 20; Eph. iii, 1-7; II Tim. i, 1; Titus i, 1, 2; Heb. vi, 10-20; viii, 6; x, 23; II Pet. i, 4.

Following Divine Leadings.

The temptation to believe that God doth not concern Himself directly with our individual affairs is incessant. In some cases it is due to our sense of being lost in the crowd, of the insignificance of an individual, no matter how important, in comparison with the millions of human beings whom God must have equally in mind with ourselves. In other cases it is due to genuine humility, to the conviction that we, at our best, are too humble to receive special divine aid. But God Himself has taught us the contrary. It is a characteristic of His infinite nature that He is able and willing to interest Himself in every one of His created beings, and that He literally does this. It is only acting the part of a true believer, therefore, to appreciate that divine leadings are vouchsafed to us for our following, nor does experience fail to confirm the fact. Thousands of believers have borne witness to it in emphatic language. Most of us, who have been Christians for any considerable time, have been conscious of it.—Congregationalist.

No Standing Still.

A perfect childhood is a growth. Jesus grew in stature and in favor with God and man. The child that does not develop is unhealthy. Growth is normal and necessary. So it is with a Christian. He must grow; there is no standing still for the child of God. Each new day should find him stronger and wiser—stronger to resist temptation and to serve the Master, and wiser in knowing his will and performing his work.—William T. Ellis.

Forgetfulness of Self.

A devout woman once wrote thus "In my own family I try to be as little in the way as possible, satisfied with everything, and never to believe for a moment that any one means unkindly toward me. If people are friendly and kind to me, I enjoy it; if they neglect me or leave me, I am always happy alone. It all tends to my one aim—forgetfulness of self in order to please God."—Catholic Universe.

Hold Sorrow.

Hold sorrow till its most selfish aspect passes, till it turns its religious side to you, till time and experience and faith do their work, till you feel not its gloom, but its glory; not its cross, but its crown. Do not through any device lose its sanctifying influence, the greatest loss the soul can meet.—J. F. W. Ware.

The Only Religion.

Christianity is the only religion with a child in its system of salvation, and therefore it is the only religion for childhood.—William T. Ellis.

The Wonder of It.

Knowledge can never take the wonder out of God's world.—Professor George A. Smith, D. D

MEN OF MARK.

Senator N. B. Scott of West Virginia worked at the trade of glassmaker for 12 years.

Senator Turner of Washington was one of the famous "Grant 306" in the national convention of 1880.

Senator Hoar is a whist player of no small ability and passionately fond of the game, which he plays nearly every evening of his life.

President Gilman of Johns Hopkins university is said to be a member of more boards and commissions than any other man in the world.

Levi Z. Leiter, the Chicago millionaire, usually works with a cigar in his mouth. This cigar is never lighted during business hours.

Henry Havemeyer, the sugar king, finds a hobby in amateur conjuring, at which he is an expert and has the best collection of apparatus in the country.

For a very big man Thomas B. Reed wears a small shoe so far as its width is concerned. His size is No. 11 A, a remarkably narrow shoe for even a man of ordinary size.

Bishop Doane of Albany, the new Episcopal churchman, is probably the only American who always wears knee breeches after the manner of the English country clergy.

Though the name of Collis P. Huntington is generally connected with railways, Mr. Huntington owns more coal mines than any other man in the United States, if not in the world.

Congressman Ketcham of New York has a strange hobby. He is an amateur lightning calculator, and nothing so delights him as to engage with his friends in a contest of that nature.

When Dr. Eliot became president of Harvard, he at once donned for the first time in his life a high silk hat. In all the years since that time he has never been seen out of doors in any other style of headgear.

Robert P. Porter has never forgotten the figures he learned while superintendent of the census in 1890. He can tell to the unit what was then the population of every large city in the country, and most of the towns.

Somebody asked President McKinley the other day why he always wore a black tie. He is said to have replied: "I don't know. I suppose because I like it, for I have worn nothing but dark ones for the last 20 years."

Admiral Dewey is an enthusiastic lepidopterist and has one of the best private collections of butterflies in this country. His many voyages have enabled him to secure thousands of magnificent specimens, which are insured for $8,000, only a fraction of their value.

The Earl of Onslow is probably the most quaintly dressed man in London. Occasionally, in the hot weather, he will turn up in white duck trousers, regulation black frock coat and deep blue or brilliant pink shirt, with collar to match. Patent leather shoes and scarlet socks, frankly exposed, make an effective tout ensemble.

THE HONEY HUNTERS.

It is a mistake to let a colony of bees be overstocked with drones.

The life of a bee depends upon the work it does. When it works, its life is shortened.

Each frame of comb in a hive should occupy 1½ inches of space, taking care to space with exactness.

A worker grub can be transmuted with a queen if it is as old as 5 or 6 days, but generally such queens are not fully developed.

At intervals during the summer, when the bees cannot gather honey, the queens quit laying and the strength of the colony is curtailed.

A swarm of bees hived upon a full set of combs at the opening of the honey season will fill ther hive full in a week, ready for surplus boxes.

Drones are the male bees. Their usefulness extends only to the fertilization of queens. If bees are allowed to build their own comb, there is always an excess of drone comb.

To introduce a queen a colony should be made queenless some three or four days prior to introducing the new queen. The bees will take more kindly to her.—St. Louis Republic.

THE WRITERS.

Sir Edwin Arnold says that he finds little inspiration in solitude.

George More, the novelist, says he can trace his ancestry back to Noah, because that patriarch had three sons, Shem, Ham and one more.

Upon being protested with for "turning out novels with the regularity of a railway time table" Sir Walter Besant has replied, "Why should not my business be as regular as any other?"

Rudyard Kipling is very much bothered by autograph hunters. Generally he returns no reply, but when a stamp is inclosed he sends it back in an empty envelope directed by a typewriter.

Marie Corelli, the novelist, says that whatever pride she has is not in her work, but that she has fought her fight alone. "I have," she says, "no thanks to offer to any one, save those legitimately due my publisher."

THE COOKBOOK.

The oil left from sardines is an excellent substitute for butter in mixing fish cakes.

Oatmeal is much improved if sugar is put in it while it is cooking instead of being put on it at the table.

When a baked potato is done, it should be wrapped in a towel and pressed until it bursts open, when it will be found mealy.

The knuckle of veal is the best part for soup, the neck and breast for stewing, and the fillet should be boned, stuffed and roasted.

If you are in a hurry and want a pudding sauce that you haven't time to make, try heating a cup of currant jelly until it is liquid and serve it with your pudding.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

Ballot boxes are too often stuffed with ignorance and prejudice.—Dallas News.

Congressman Ketchum of New York has served in 13 congresses and has never made a speech. No other person is assigned for the persistence of the people in keeping him there.—Denver Post.

Senator Stewart proposes a plan to prevent vacancies in the senate. A more popular plan would be one that would insure a great many more vacancies than there are.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Out-of-town patrons of the railroads using the new terminal station in Boston will rejoice at the decision of the police commissioners not to license liquor saloons in the vicinity of Dewey square. They have stated most emphatically that they will not allow the comfort and safty of those who use the new station to be jeopardized by the location of saloons in that neighborhood.—Milford Gazette.

☞ Despite what some of us may feel prompted to say, in our haste, regarding the sin of being rich, our sober thought convinces us that it is possible for some men to grow rich, and yet remain honest, at least we think that it could be so with ourselves were any such good fortune to come our way. It would indeed be a great sanity if, before judging others, we would get into the habit of placing ourselves in their positions. It would save the world from much that is harsh and heart-breaking and unworthy in criticism.—G. Grosvenor Dawe in Dedham Transcript.

Nearly every day some one says that people are driven away or would settle were the tax rate lower. Possibly so. Surely we cannot dispute it, because some persons turn away at the sight of a contribution plate or a paper for charity; but Milton's rate, which has been $9 per $1000, will be $11, this year, with prospects of another increase next year. Brockton's is $21.60, $1.40 higher than last year. Stoughton's is expected to be about the same as last year, which is well up. Avon's is $19 60, same as in 1897, and higher than last year; Randolph will be $21.-60, $1.40 higher than 1898; Braintree, $22.40, an increase over last year; Rockland's $22.30, same as last year; and so they go.—Randolph Register.

☞ Mayor Quincy of Boston positively and finally declines to be a candidate for re-election under any circumstances, and this leaves the Democratic party in Boston all at sea in regard to a candidate. The mayor pleads his increasing business interests as a reason for his declination, but it is supposed he is willing, if not anxious, to be a Democratic candidate for governor. As there would not be the slightest chance of his election, his business interests would not be at all affected.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ Our Militia has been demoralized by its experience in actual war. The officers, elective originally, became, as the men say, tyrannical under army rules, as they had to be, under conditions of war. But the volunteer is not a regular. And the volunteer officer is no more fitted for command in the field than is the drill sergeant of a group of Amazons on the stage of a theatre. They can march and march with precision. And then—oh, then. No knowledge, no experience of the provision for or care of the men under their control. The Santiago fights are exemplars. "Every man for himself, the devil for us all!" was the remark of one who was in the thickest of bullet showers. It was the individual man-pluck, not the commanders, who won Santiago.—Correspondent of Hingham Journal.

—Lowell's increase in valuation was but $310,129, and the tax rate is $19.60. Malden's gain was $395,000 and the rate is $16.40.

HOW THEY CROW.

A Comparison of Ward Valuations.

Gains in Real and Personal Estates.

Comments on Valuation, Tax Rate, Tax Levy, etc.

The increase in valuation of the city discovered by the Assessors is larger than was generally expected, after the inaugural address of Mayor Keith. In many cases, at private sale as well as at auction estates have sold below assessment. His Honor said: "Assessors should bear in mind what property brings or would bring if sold under ordinary circumstances." To be sure, in one ward, the valuation has been reduced, but in all the others there is an increase, and it remains to be seen whether it is warranted. By wards the increase in values have been:

Ward One,	$181,425
Ward Two,	64,900
Ward Three,	35,325
Ward Four,	*24,725
Ward Five,	122,600
Ward Six,	71,250
Total,	$447,487

*Loss

Over one-third of the gain was in Ward One, while the Wollaston ward is a good second. Atlantic which is growing rapidly, has strengthened her claim to third place, and the Quincy Point ward which is the smallest in valuation gained more than Wards Three and Four. The West Quincy ward lost nearly as much as the South Quincy ward gained.

There were increases in all the items which go to make up the tax levy. Norfolk county called for $692.56 more, and the Metropolitan water system raised the State tax $1,270.99. The increase in current city expenses was $12,269.93, while the debt cancelled was unusually large, exceeding the amount paid ie 1898 by $21,284 40. The current receipts were estimated over $5,000 larger, and the polls will help out nearly $1,000, but these were largely offset by the much larger sum raised for overlayings; hence the increase in the tax rate.

Every ward and every precinct of the city has more assessed polls than last year. Ward Six, the smallest ward of the city in population, made the largest gain, viz: Ward VI, 99; Ward V, 95; Ward I, 76; Ward IV, 68; Ward II, 25; Ward III, 13.

In 1890 and 1895 the population was three and one half times the number of polls. The same basis would give the city last May a population of 23,757.

Wards One and Six are the only wards where the land is assessed for more than the buildings, both wards being large in area. In the South Quincy ward, which is small in area-the buildings are worth fifty per cent. more than the land.

The large amount required this year to pay the maturing debt and interest may give non-residents the impression that Quincy has a big debt, but by an unfortunate apportionment about one third of the municipal debt fell due this year. Permission was obtained of the Legislature to refund some of it, but the movement was defeated in the City Council. Therefore while our taxes are higher than usual this year, the municipal debt will be reduced. Quincy is an exception in this particular, as most cities are plunging rapidly into debt.

The increase in valuation by wards, both of the real and personal, and total valuation is summarized below. It affords interesting comparison for one, two or ten years ago.

Death of Fred Miller.

Mr. Frederick W. Miller, who has been ill for some months with consumtion, died this morning, aged 27 years. Mr. Miller was at one time at the Quincy station of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R., and was later employed on the Quincy and Boston street railway as a conductor. It was while thus employed that he took a severe cold which settled on his lungs and developed into consumption. He was then obliged to relinquish his situation, since which he has been gradually failing. Some weeks ago an appeal was made through the Ledger and quite a fund was contributed to send him to a consumptives' home, but the aid came too late. He leaves a widow and one child.

AN ORDINANCE

in Relation to House Connections with the Common Sewer and Regulating the Same.

Engrossed Ordinance No 33, 1899.

CITY OF QUINCY.

In the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine.

Be it ordained by the City Council of Quincy as follows:

All applications for the construction of particular sewers and their entrance into common sewers shall be made upon blank forms to be obtained at the office of the Board of Sewerage Commissioners, and shall be signed by the owner or by the accredited agent of the premises to be sewered.

The size and materials of particular sewers and appurtenances shall be such as the Board of Sewerage Commissioners shall prescribe, and in conformity with the requirements of the Board of Health.

Said sewers shall be laid accurately to straight lines and grades. If angles along the lines thereof are unavoidable, manholes or other approved means of access shall be provided.

The materials and labor required in the construction of particular sewers and appurtenances thereof, shall be provided and the work done by the Board of Sewerage Commissioners or their duly authorized agents, and by no other person or persons; excepting that the applicant may make all of the excavation and back fill outside the street lines, excepting so much as will affect the proper bedding and securing of the pipe or other structure.

The plumbing of any building shall not be connected with a particular sewer until the applicant shall file with the Board of Sewerage Commissioners a certificate by the Inspector of Plumbing, that the said plumbing work is in suitable condition for connection with the public sewer.

No person shall be allowed to make any alteration in or make any connection with any particular sewer, except as stated in the original permit. Leave to depart therefrom must be obtained from the Board of Sewerage Commissioners on further application thereof to said Commissioners.

The Board of Sewerage Commissioners may at any time require such grease traps to be introduced along the line of any particular sewer, or on the discharge of any fixture connected therewith as he may deem necessary for the proper maintenance of said particular sewer, or of the common sewers.

No person shall throw or discharge into a public sewer or any of its connections, any steam or other matter or thing which may tend to, or cause, an obstruction thereof or a deposit therein, or any injury thereto.

No person shall cause or allow any roof water or surface water, by pipe or otherwise, to be conducted or to flow or discharge into any pipe or drain connecting with, or which indirectly through any other pipe or drain or directly discharges its contents into any main drain or common sewer.

All particular sewers shall be under the control of, and be maintained and kept clean by the city. The expense in cleaning and repairing any particular sewer shall be paid by the owner of the premises connected by said particular sewer, and pre-payment or security for the said expense may be required by the Board of Sewerage Commissioners, provided, however, that any labor on particular sewers occasioned by defects or obstructions in the common sewer shall be paid for by the city.

The term "particular sewers" used in this ordinance is intended to mean the house connections of the abuttor with the main or common sewer.

Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of these rules and regulations shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding Twenty dollars ($20.00) for each violation.

This ordinance shall take effect upon its passage and the ordinance in relation to House connections with the common sewer and regulating the same is hereby repealed.

WAS A HAPPY DAY.

An Outing of Boston Poor Children at Atlantic.

Just at ten o'clock Tuesday, the first car pulled into the Neponset barn. The children piled off like frightened turtles, but they were not frightened, only in a hurry to get some places before some one. They stepped on each others heals each vieing with the others to see which coud attract their leaders attention first, so as to learn where the beach was located. The older ones and those too sick to walk were carried on the Squantum car to the foot of Atlantic street, through the kindness of the Quincy Street Railway.

The children were in too much of a hurry to ride. They pushed each other acoss the bridge and after much tramping upon one another arrived at the beach. In loss than five minutes some of the smaller ones clad in nothing more than their innocency were paddling in the water.

Some of the larger boys were directed to a place at some distance where bathing suits would be an unnecessary encumbrance, so having none they used none. One boy seeing a swallow darting about over the water wanted to know if that were a sea gull. Another was greatly interested in some queer specimen of animals which on examination proved to be a cricket. Finding the water rather too cold for comfort they concluded to try riding in some boats which were kindly rowed about by Miss Burch and Mr. Hunt. This was huge fun. The only difficulty was to decide who should be first.

At noon time dinner was announced. It was remarkable to see the prompt response. Some things were to be carried to the place of eating and even the smallest tot insisted on carrying enough to tower above his head. When all things were distributed there remained two boxes and one package of crackers. Each wanted to carry it so badly that a quarrel arose forthwith, which had to be quelled in order to save the crackers. In a short time they were seated on the ground eating the bountiful lunch which the people of Atlantic had given. The soliciting and serving was done by a committee from both the Methodist and Congregational churches.

After lunch a bag of apples was distributed by throwing them up one by one and letting the boys scrap for them. Following this a potato race was indulged in and won by Ben Butler—a pickanniny.

The afternoon was occupied by a tug-of-war, tub race, wading and playing in the sand. About four o'clock lunch was again announced, and judging from the appetites none too soon. The principal features of this feast was the serving of the watermelon.

The white children were jubilant, but the black ones acted like cats in catnip. They fairly buried themselves in the slices of melon.

Then for Neponset, each boy carrying a box or pail of provisions to be distributed among the poor of the South Cove. The food sent in was ample for fully three times the number tha came, fifty-four.

Everybody pronounced it a royal good time. The people of Atlantic were more than generous. The committees from both churches deserve thanks for their faithful and competent service.

Why not have two of such excursions down here each year. It does the children a vast amount of good, and the people who provide for them, I dare say even a greater amount. Some money which was donated and not used for food will be given to Morgan chapel whence most of these children came.

$2,500 COTTAGE.

Designed to Economize Labor In the Household.

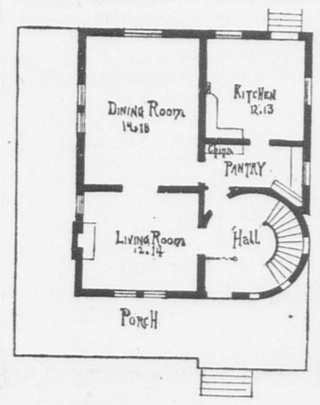

This design shows a rather square plan, which is the most convenient one for the housewife. The squareness is broken, however, by a circular room in one corner. This forms the hall and reception room. As we pass into the front door there is an ornamental screen, which serves as a hatrack and provides a little corner for an umbrella stand. This keeps out of the hall the articles which prevent its use as a room. Thus we have added a room to the other accommodations of this house. This is done by providing a simple vestibule. Having these two rooms together in this way, a large, distinct living room is not necessary.

Back of the hall is a pantry, and separating it from the hall are two doors, between which are formed the closet and passage. The purpose of the passage is to provide communication to the front door without passing through the dining or sitting room. In this pantry is a china closet, with glass doors in its upper part and panneled doors below. At the other end of the pantry is room for a dough board, a refrigerator and a pantry cupboard, in which is a flour bin. The passage from the kitchen to the dining room is through the pantry. In the corner of the kitchen is the dishwashing arrangement. It consists of a sink, with hot and cold water, and tables and drain boards on each side of it. The range is situated on the other side of the flue, near the tables, with the pantry in close proximity thereto. This kitchen and its accessories are quite as convenient as may be arranged. The dining room is liberal sized (14 by 18) and opens to a porch on one side.

Porches such as the one used in connection with this plan are desirable for southern homes particularly, and they are coming to be more popular in the north. A porch is something more than a room outside of the house in the summer time. From the hall and near the door which communicates with the rear part of the house is a stairway going to the second floor. It may be objected to by some that it is necessary for the servant to pass through the front part of the house to go to the second floor. This is true. However, this is not a dreadful matter. It will not hurt the servant if she is careful or any one else unless they are unduly sensitive. However, those who are particularly disturbed by an arrangement of this kind should get more money together and build a larger house with two stairways. Not having the money, we should accept the dictates of fate.

Not long since I made plans for a house in a northern city in which the servants' quarters were provided for in a very liberal way on the third floor. However, on their being finished, the boys of the family noticed their liberal character and laid claim to them. After this it was necessary to build a small house of two rooms in the rear end of the lot for the servants. To this family it was a very satisfactory arrangement.

This house is planned to be built of brick. The trimmings are of rough stone. However, it could as well be built of wood, though in this case the room which is now circular would either have to be made octagonal in form or, if left circular, would have to be covered with shingles. In either event it would present a very attractive appearance. While it is true that weather boarding can be worked out to go on a circular wall, its preparation therefor is attended with some considerable expense.

It may be well to remark that this plan is arranged for a locality where cellars are not used. In case one were desired and extra space for a cellar stairway was thought to be out of the question, we could start the stairs from the front side of the hall, run a partition across to the pantry wall and open a door from the pantry into a stairway which would lead down under the front stairway. In the cellar could be provided a laundry, fuel room, etc.

This house would cost about $3,200 built of brick and $2,500 well built of wood.

STORY OF A BRAVE DEED

Kansas Soldier's Daring Trip Across a Railway Bridge.

INCIDENT OF THE FILIPINO WAR.

How Corporal Arthur M. Ferguson of Company E, Twentieth Kansas, Crossed the Rio Grande de Pampanga Bridge to Learn if It Could Be Crossed by a Body of Men.

Arthur M. Ferguson, whose home is in Burlington, Kan., is corporal of company E, Twentieth Kansas. He is a real hero, too, for his was a daring deed on the night before the battle of Calumpit, April 26.

The Rio Grande de Pampanga flowed between the two forces, the Americans in the open and the Filipinos in the trenches. The great iron bridge placed there by the railroad company was the only visible means of crossing, and the sleepers had been torn from that. Colonel Funston was looking far away to get across and make a night attack, give the Filipinos a scare and practically turn the tide of battle before it began. The bridge stood there in all the glory of steel girders. But right across where the railroad track once ran was a Filipino trench, and there was every reason to believe it was there to defend the bridge. The night was cloudy and threatening rain. Once in awhile the lightning would flash, making all things as clear as noonday.

Colonel Funston called for a volunteer to go across the bridge with the object of learning if it could be crossed by a body of men and what they would find at the other end. Ferguson volunteered. The colonel shook hands with him as they stood in the shadow of the embankment. "Remember, I do not send you, Ferguson," the colonel said, "and if we do not meet again you know you have performed one of the most daring deeds of the war." Ferguson went. He pulled off his uniform, wearing only his brown underclothes and his belt and revolver. Ferguson told the story one day as we sat in the shade of a bamboo hedge at San Fernando, says the Chicago Record's Philippine correspondent.

"I don't think it was much of a trick," he said as he twisted a bamboo branch. It could easily be done in the daylight. Of course I didn't walk across or creep across. The lightning prevented that. I had to get out of sight. My underclothes would probably have blended me with the bridge in the darkness, but the lightning would come once in awhile and make everything light as day. I knew I would be seen. So I tried it another way.

"The bridge is strongly built of steel, with steel crosspieces running parallel to the girders, and just underneath them I made my way up over the stone abutment, and I hoped it would not lighten until I got well down under the irons. It did, though, and for the life of me I don't see how they missed me. But they never saw me, and the light gave me a chance to see where to put my feet. I could see, too, that the bridge had been stripped of everything that would do to put a foot on, with the exception of a couple of stringers alongside the hand rail. I saw that if this ran the length of the bridge a single file could come along by holding to the rail. I made up my mind to follow it.

"It was ticklish crawling along there, with the river right under me, but I knew if I was careful I could get across. I crawled along until I came to the first pier. Here I found the iron girder was broad and solid. It rested on the top of the stone pier, and I had something mighty solid under my feet. It was necessary to go around it, and that brought me out in view of the trenches again. There was no use trying to go fast. When it was dark, it was so dark I couldn't see, and when the lightning came I was partly blinded by the flash. So I had to depend mostly on touch and somewhat on my general knowledge of the construction of bridges.

"I managed to get around the big iron and then begun to crawl along the crosspieces again. By this time I had learned about how they ran and got along a little faster than I did at first. At last I came to the second or middle pier. All this time, of course, I was getting nearer and nearer to the Filipinos. I went around the second and third piers. There was but one span between me and the insurgents. I raised up and poked my head just a little way above the iron work—just enough to see—and waited for a flash of lightning. It came presently, and there, right in the center of the bridge, was a sentry, looking up the bridge for all he was worth. But he missed me. I guess I was too close. Then if they had opened fire they couldn't have done much hurt to me on account of the iron work. I made up my mind to go a little closer, so I crept along about half way across the span.

"As I raised up again my pistol struck the iron work. There was a 'hiss' from the sentinel, and every shovel was dropped. I could hear them digging before I raised up. I squatted down quickly, and I could guess that those fellows were doing a whole lot of looking. After awile they went to work again, and again I peeped over the irons. I could make out a trench right across the road commanding the bridge and all of its approaches. At this end I found a part of the footbridge that ran beside the railroad. In my judgment this was too far away for any body of soldiers to reach without being discovered.

"After I got all the information I could I started back. When I climbed over the bank, Colonel Funston was there waiting for me. He seemed glad to see me, but when I told him how he would have to cross—one hand on the rail and both feet on a six inch stringer—the colonel hesitated, and then said he would not try it. After that the colonel tried to cross on a raft and was discovered and fired on."

This deed of Ferguson's may or may not get into the histories, but it was as daring, as any one will allow who looks upon the 2,000 feet of iron work he crawled through that night.

MORE DREYFUS TORTURES.

Prisoner Was Penned and Even Deprived of Fresh Air.

The Paris Matin publishes an official report from the administration of the colonies to the minister on the sojourn of Captain Dreyfus on the Ile du Diable. Many of the facts are not new, but the document shows a recognition officially of cruelties practiced worthy of the middle ages and publicly establishes their authenticity, says the New York Telegram. From five columns devoted to the report the following are some extracts:

"During the first period of his confinement Dreyfus enjoyed a certain amount of liberty. His prison was of stone, four meters square. The door was barred, and there was iron on the window; also the door opened on a space 2 meters by 3. In this court was a guard. Five guards in all watched the prisoner, who only was allowed to walk out in the daytime in a very limited space. He was locked up from sundown to sunrise. His correspondence was examined. Silence was enjoined, except to the guards.

"At the end of 1896 the regimen was more severe. The prison was surrounded by a palisade, from which the prisoner was forbidden to go out. His correspondence was more rigorously examined and parts cut out. Captain Dreyfus was told that at the least demonstration on his part, or by outside friends, he would run the risk of instant death.

"In August, 1897, a new prison was built, to which the prisoner was transferred. It was divided into two parts. A solid iron fence partition was on one side of the prisoner. On the other side was the guard. The windows were barred. A pointed wood palisade two meters high surrounded the pier. More palisades before the little tambour kept out the air.

"In December, 1898, the prisoner was allowed to walk with his guards outside the palisade five hours a day. The pen became damp. Dreyfus was put in irons. Dreyfus cried, 'Ah, they're going to bury me here.' All the time he was in captivity the prisoner asserted his innocence. He spoke constantly of his wife and children. He wept and once cried, 'It is now ten months in which I have not received letters.' But in September, 1895, he received ten at once. He said, 'I would have lodged a bullet in my head if it were not for my wife and children.'

"It is said Colonel Du Paty de Clam, who promised to look up evidence in his favor, never thought it would take so long a time. He hoped he would be done soon. In December Dreyfus wrote a cablegram to his wife, and letters were received that his health was good, and he sent kisses to his wife. But the cablegram was not allowed to leave.

"When he learned that his appeal to the president was rejected, he said: 'They discuss when an innocent man is incarcerated in four walls. I would like to demolish everything, myself included, but no! I'll go on for my wife and children's sake.' At times in August, 1896, he asked for books. He tried to forget, for he could not think without great pain in his head. He could not reread his wife's letters, as his health would not permit.

"The report says he suffered from heart trouble in 1896, and he had nervous prostration, then fever and congestion of the brain. In December, 1897, he cried to the doctor, 'I'm at the end of my strength.' He suffered from heart palpitation, choking and hallucinations. Latterly he has been taking calming potions of chloral and opium. Now his health, though feeble, thanks to his moral energy, is satisfactory, and it is possible to hope.

"During the four years' imprisonment Dreyfus wrote more than 1,000 letters to his wife and brother, the president and the ministerial officers."

Pointer For Car Builders.

Consul Skinner writes to Washington from Marseilles, France, as follows: "I am advised that a project of law has been voted in this country, upon the suggestion of the undersecretary of state for the department of posts and telegraphs, providing for the building of 67 modern postal cars, each 13 meters (42 feet 7 inches) in length. The cars now in use follow a model adopted in 1857 and leave a great deal to be desired. The government will naturally prefer to have the new cars constructed in this country, but as the American postal cars have advantages greatly superior to anything known upon the continent it may be worth the while of American manufacturers to submit propositions."

Want Jugs on Their Engines.

In addition to an increase of wages the engineers of the Lake Shore railroad want permission to carry a jug of water on the engines, and, as they guarantee that only water will be used in the jug, the request will no doubt be granted, says the Pittsburg Post. There appears to be no good reason why the railroads should not furnish the engineers and firemen, as well as the engines, with good water.

REVIEW OF SITUATION.

Publicity of Secret Dossier Would Mean Pillory For French Officials.

Letters From High Diplomatic Personages Forged.

High-Handed Measures of Present Government Will Be More Than Justified.

[Copyright, 1899, the Associated Press.]

Rennes, Aug. 12.—All the notable Dreyfusites here are satisfied with the result of the examination of the secret dossier. They have urged their newspaper friends in Paris to clamor for full publicity, knowing that, if it is granted, the military and Nationalist parties will be utterly disgraced. They are convinced that the diplomatic and war office dossiers teem with forgeries. Of course their impressions are derived from the five counsel present at the examination of these precious papers.

Publicity would mean the pillory for General De Boisdeffre and company. They would be pelted with their own foul eggs, while Captain Dreyfus would be cleared in the face of the whole world. The military caste here is furious at the turn things are taking. The correspondent of a Russian paper told me that, in a cafe frequented by officers, he unfolded the Dreyfusite Aurore to read it. All the military men nearby scowled at him in a marked manner, and after coughing and otherwise showing their disapproval went in a body to the other end of the cafe, as if the Russian was a leper.

All the officers at the military club came on the club balcony when a bundle of Dreyfusite journals was being burned in the streets, and they approved the performance by unmistakable gestures. One now sees the wisdom of the order forbidding officers not attached to the garrison to stay here during the trial.

I hear that, in unclean imaginings, the secret military dossier exceeds the worst top-shelf literature. To secure secrecy, the scribes who work for Henry and his friends did not hesitate to forge letters from high diplomatic personages. Nearly a score of love letters from a lady high in the diplomatic sphere were supposed to have been seized in the dispatch box of an embassy during transmission to Berlin. The person who she is represented as having as a correspondent was an attache of an embassy there and much younger than the lady, who is made to appear impassioned. Of course, she mentions the Dreyfus affair and asks the attache to help to whitewash the unfortunate captain. M. Jaures expects that there will be a great exposure of a conspiracy against the republic, and that the high handed measures of the present government against certain generals will be more than justified by the coming revelations.

Examination of the diplomatic dossier was concluded yesterday morning. Dreyfus, on leaving the lyceum, looked brighter that he had ever previously appeared. Today's proceedings will be memorable in the history of the affair.

Maitre Demange has lost no opportunity to conciliate the seven judges. He has let himself be interviewed in order to say nice things about them. That astute advocate understands human nature. He remembers that the seven are ignorant of law, always ready to sacrifice equity to authority, quick to scout at the rules of evidence and are members of a caste who think they have been attacked by Jews, cosmopolitans and foreigners. Some of them boast of not having read the report of the inquiry before the court of cassation, because they thought it published at the cost of a syndicate and intended to cast odium on the army.

Maitre Labori is naturally sanguine and has always hoped; but I can gather that both counsel still see that the judges are deeply and strongly prejudiced against the prisoner and will try to condemn him on his looks, if all legal evidence breaks down.

All the officers now read The Petit Journal, which they had never looked at before the Dreyfus affair. The venom and vitriol of The Intransigeant are grateful to them, because employed against their enemies, real or supposed. They devour The Gaulois, Echo De Paris and Eclair because these papers respond to their own sentiments. Maitre Demange, therefore, has but a single fulcrum—the pleasure every human being takes in hearing himself praised.

I have just learned that the secret dossier contains shocking reports of the spies of a German prince, who has filled high situations under the empire during the last 20 years, and one of them in Paris, a city he often visits. There is only one prince answering to this description, Chancellor von Hohenlohe.

The police spies who informed the intelligence department at the war office of the prince's secret doings did not attempt to establish a connection between them and the Dreyfus case.

But one must suppose that the sole object has been to prevent the dossier ever being published. It would be necessary to go to Suetonius for parallels of the horrors with which this famous, or infamous, collection of documents reeks.

As matters stand, I think Maitre Demange now feels that the two dossiers furnish him with a case too strong for even the officers to resist. Anyway, he looks really hopeful.

Detroit Railway Fares.

Detroit, Aug. 12.—The common council yesterday adopted the amendments to the ordinances of the Citizens and Fort Wayne lines, changing the rate of fare from 5 cents to eight tickets for 25 cents. There will be a hot legal fight over the plan to reduce the rate. The company will undoubtedly refuse to obey the ordinances.

Another Car Blown Up.

Cleveland, Aug. 12.—Explosives were again resorted to last night on the Euclid avenue line near the corner of Cass and Euclid avenues. There were 25 passengers on board the car, but no one was injured. The car was badly smashed. The neighborhood is a very aristocratic one.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Further Expansion In Fall Demand For Staples. Railroads Show Big Earnings.

New York, Aug. 12.—Bradstreet's says: Crop reports and probabilities have constituted an important contribution to general trade, and business advices this week. Among the favorable features have been the reports regarding the corn crop, government estimates pointing to a yield of probably 2,200,000,000 bushels, a heavy increase over last year, and almost in touch with the record of 1896. Spring wheat indications apparently bear out earlier trade advices, showing a decrease in conditions during July. The reduction of 25,000,000 bushels in the probable outcome estimated, however, still allows of a total wheat crop of 535,000,000 bushels.

Cotton crop deterioration is indicated by the government's report, and prices are ¼ cent higher on the week. Reflection of the good business in American cotton manufacturing come from Fall River in the report of payment of increased quarterly dividends by a majority of the mills.

The iron and steel situation is particularly interesting at present. Though not specially active at eastern markets, western advices are of heavy demand, scarce supplies of material, higher prices and increasing volume of business boked for next year.

Hides, leather, boots and shoes are sympathetically strong.

Wool is firm on steady manufacturing demand, particularly for the finer grades of domestic, and advices from the manufacturing industry are generally favorable.

Lumber is firm, as is also sugar, for which an unprecedented demand is looked for during the current canning season. The outlook in the canned goods trade generally is reported a very good one.

Reports from leading markets tell of a further expansion in the fall demand for staples, notably drygoods, boots and shoes, hats and caps and clothing. Eastern drygoods markets are opening up well, and textile manufacturers are very generally busy.

Striking testimony to the volume of business doing in the country at large is furnished by the July report of gross earnings of leading railroads. The total earnings of 105 systems for July aggregate $48,995,515, a gain of 17 percent over those of July a year ago.

The prices situation is in the main encouraging to producers. A reactionary tendency in cereals, some few meat products, groceries and miscellaneous articles was noted in July, but a large number of provisions advanced, as did many raw and manufactured materials and products of industry generally.

Failures for the week have been 136 in the United States, against 196 last year, and 29 in Canada, against 18 last year.

Lynching "Quietly" Performed.

Port Gibson, Miss., Aug. 12.—Bill Wilson, colored, was lynched here yesterday. Last Tuesday Wilson was arrested in the Hermanville district on a charge of attempted criminal assault. The jailor, upon entering Wilson's cell yesterday, discovered the prisoner hanging to the county gallows with several bullet wounds in his neck and shoulders. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of death by hanging and shooting by unknown parties. The execution took place so quietly that none of the officials knew what was going on.

Clem, Ga., Aug. 12.—Will McClure, a negro, aged 18 years, was lynched a few miles from here yesterday by a party of citizens. The negro went to the house of George Moore and attempted to assault Mrs. Moore. She screamed and, assistance coming, the rapist was defeated in his purpose and captured.

SCOURING THE WOODS

For Burglars Who Shot a Deputy Sheriff and Watchman at Bourne.

Officers Looking For "Coon Too Smart to Catch."

Colored Man Said to Know His Hiding Place. but Will Not Reveal It.

Sandwich, Mass., Aug. 12.—The burglars who shot Deputy Sheriff Burgess and Watchman Smalley Thursday morning at Bourne are still at large, although several deputy sheriffs and a number of state officers have continued the search. The officers were assisted by a number of citizens armed with various kinds of weapons, and all the woods adjacent to Bourne were searched, but without avail. A number of people coming into Bourne reported seeing strange men in various sections, but in every instance the officers met with no success in running down these clews.

About 4 o'clock some children who were berrying on the Jefferson estate at Buzzard's Bay said that they had seen three strange men in the woods, but the officers could not find any trace of them.

Several officers visited the house of a colored man named Williams, who lives back of the Buzzard's Bay station. One of the officers saw Williams' daughter go into the woods back of the house and quickly return. He went to the place and found imprints of a man's shoes. The girl at first denied seeing anyone and then admitted that she had met a man, adding, "If you had been there you would have seen your man."

Williams was asked about the matter, and said that he could take the officers to their man in half an hour, but he would not do so, even under promises of a reward. He said: "That coon is too smart for you to catch."

What has become of the injured member of the gang is what people are asking. The great loss of blood which he suffered plainly evidenced that he was seriously hurt, and that he must receive medical aid is certain. Some have ventured the opinion that he is dead.

Sheriff Burgess came home from the hospital and was at the station here yesterday conferring with the officers. Burgess is confident that he can identify at least one of his assailants, who he says was a colored man. Burgess is feeling pretty sore, but his wounds are not serious, and he will be all right in a short time.

Officer Smalley's condition is far more serious than was at first thought. He was shot in the throat, and is now in St. Botolph hospital, where he will undergo an operation. The X-ray will be used to locate the bullet. His friends are much alarmed over his condition.

ADVERSE WEATHER CONDITIONS

Made Yesterday's Cruise of Crack Yach's Rather a Disappointment.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 12.—Yesterday gave every promise of being a fine one for the racing of the New York Yacht club fleet, although there were a few rain squalls in the morning, left over from the night before. Still the wind was strong from the east, and the yachts shortly after they went over the line off West Chop broke out their spinnakers. The run from Vineyard Haven to this port proved the most unsatisfactory of the cruise. All day the yachts wrestled with typical dog-day conditions, winds from all quarters and at all velocities, interspersed with calms, rain, sunshine and fog. Columbia beat Defender by many miles because of the shifting breezes and calms. In fact so far ahead was the new boat at the finish that the Defender gave it up entirely and did not round one of the marks, the Vineyard sound lightship.

At one time during the day it looked as if Defender had the mascot and might win, for she got a fine shift of wind and left Columbia becalmed two miles astern. But this seemingly fortunate shift proved Defender's undoing, the breeze leaving her entirely when off Tarpaulin cove, five miles from the start, and she lay there two hours, while her rival farther out in the sound picked up a nice southwest breeze and made the gain that effectually put Defender out of the race. Columbia was out beyond Cuttyhunk before Defender was moved, over 10 miles astern.

But Columbia had a hard time getting out to the lightship five miles further off and did not round until 2:12. Then she floundered about in another calm for half an hour until at last she caught a northeast breeze out of Buzzard's Bay that took her to the finish line. Columbia crossed the finish line about 5 o'clock, with Defender off Cuttyhunk light, at the entrance to Buzzard's Bay.

The other yachts of the fleet sailed a much shorter course than the two flyers, running in through Quick's Hole half way down to Cuttyhunk and finishing at the flagship, anchored in the middle of Buzzard's Bay, five or six miles outside of New Bedford. Navahoe was the first of the big ones over the line, Vigilant being three minutes after. The two '83 old-timers had a fine race up the sound, at one time Navahoe outsailing her rival. The soft spots in the wind and the frequent shifts struck them, and Vigilant slipped through Quick's Hole first. Colonia was the first at this point in the schooner class, while Gloriana led the little sloops. The wind left the boats entirely in Buzzard's Bay.

A Scarborough Beach Mystery.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 12.—The man whose body was found yesterday by the Point Judith life saving patrol on Scarborough beach was unquestionably a victim of foul play. An autopsy was conducted by Dr. Wilcox at Wakefield. The examination showed that a heavy blow had been dealt on the right side of the abdomen and another on the breast. Both hands had been tied to the legs, but one had slipped out when the body was found. The body surely had not been in the water more than from 12 to 15 hours, and possibly much less. The victim's clothing was nearly new. He was evidently well-to-do, and had not the appearance of a laborer. He was a man apparently of German descent, about 40 years old, weighing about 175 pounds.

Inquest Dragging Along.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 12.—After holding sessions for four days the jury conducting an inquiry into the trolley catastrophe last Sunday were unable to complete their investigation and adjourned until next Tuesday. How much longer the inquest will last is as yet uncertain. Every day new witnesses are heard of, and as the jury are desirous of ascertaining every bit of information that might throw light on the affair it has been decided to sit until every bona-fide witness has been summoned and heard. It is probable that the testimony of every person now alive who was on the car at the time the accident occurred will be taken as far as the condition of the injured will permit.

'Twas a Close Call.

Winsted, Conn., Aug. 12.—What threatened to be another trolley disaster, similar to the catastrophe at Stratford last Sunday, was narrowly averted here yesterday. A car of the Torrington and Winchester Street Railway company, in which were several passengers, mounted the rails as it was rounding the curve at the western approach to the bridge that crosses Mad river, and ran on to the bridge and along the plank flooring some little distance, and would have toppled over into the river were it not for an iron railing, which extended along the side of the bridge. The passengers escaped injury. The iron siding was badly damaged.

An Aged Man's Suicide.

Whitinsville, Mass., Aug. 12.—Moses Fairbanks, aged 80 years, of this town committed suicide by strangulation. He tied one end of a tarred rope around his neck, the other end being attached to a bedpost, and he then fell from the bed to the floor, his head being suspended on account of the short piece of rope. Mr. Fairbanks was one of the pioneer settlers of this section of the state.

Meekin Now a Beaneater.

New York, Aug. 12.—The announcement is made that the New York Baseball club has sold the release of Pitcher

JOUETT MEEKIN.

Jouet Meekin to the Boston club. Meekin was bought by the New York club from the Washington club in the spring of 1894. The local management at the time paid $7500 for the release of Meekin and Farrell.

The Montreal Races.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—At the extra day's racing of the world's meet, the principal feature was the five-mile amateur handicap, which was won by the Australian rider, Ben Goodson, who beat the Scotchman, Caldow, in a rattling finish, by half a wheel. Time, 12:29 3-5. There was a nasty spill in the third trial heat of this race. Large of Charlottetown went over the embankment at its highest part, bringing down three other riders. All were cut and bruised, but not seriously hurt. In the preliminaries of the five-mile professional handicap, Nat Butler made a great race in the first heat, being beaten out by only a short wheel by his brother Frank. Nat's time, 10:44 2-5, made a new handicap record for the distance.

Dixon Met His Match.

New York, Aug. 12.—George Dixon, the featherweight champion, and Eddie Santry met last night for 20 rounds at 125 pounds, and Referee White declared the bout a draw. The spectators numbered nearly 5000. While Dixon did not fight up to his old-time form, he put up a game exhibition. Santry showed wonderful improvement since he appeared here last. Santry's advantage in height stood him in good stead. Santry went right to his man from the beginning. The betting at the opening of the bout was 2 to 1 on Dixon, and in some instances as good as 4 to 1 was laid on the dusky boxer.

Sailors In Court.

Seattle, Aug. 12.—The mutiny of the Chinese sailors on the transport Victoria had a sequel yesterday in the United States district court. Sixty members of the crew petitioned for their release on a writ of habeas corpus, alleging that they are deprived of their liberty and unduly restrained. Judge Hanford ordered a hearing on the petition next Tuesday. In the meantime the Chinese crew will remain in the custody of the captain of the Victoria.

Two Sailors Killed.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—The steamship Ella Sayer, from West Hartlepool, was, while lying in the stream, collided with by the steamship Philadelphian, for Liverpool. The Philadelphian's bow entered the stem of the Sayer about eight feet, killing two sailors. The force of the collision drove the Sayer ashore and badly damaged her.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Sun rises—4:49; sets, 6:48.
Moon sets—9:49 p. m.
High water—3:30 a. m.; 4 p. m.

The low pressure continues general, except on the extreme north Atlantic coast, and as a consequence high temperatures still exist, except in New England, the middle states and the extreme northwest. There have been showers and thunderstorms in the lake regions, the middle Atlantic states, New England and in various scattered localities. Unsettled weather, probably with showers, brisk north to south winds, will prevail in New England.

PROMPT ACTION TAKEN

Secretary Root Appeals to Patriotism and Humanity of Americans.

Hundred Thousand Porto Ricans Lost Everything.

Larger Cities Asked to Contribute Necessary Supplies For Immediate Relief.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Secretary Root has issued an appeal to the people of the United States to aid those who have suffered in Porto Rico by the recent cyclone. The subsistence department of the army in Porto Rico has been directed to give such temporary aid as it can until supplies arrive. When the press dispatches and General Davis' advices made known the extent of the disaster steps were immediately taken to send supplies and the transport McPherson was ordered put in readiness to sail from New York on Monday next. She will carry rations and other necessaries. Secretary of War Root has sent the following appeal to the mayors of all cities of more than 150,000 population:

"The governor general of Porto Rico confirms the report that upon the 8th instant a hurricane swept over that island, entirely demolishing many of the towns, destroying many lives and reducing, so far as he can estimate, not less than 100,000 of the inhabitants to the condition of absolute destitution, without homes or food. Unless immediate and effective relief is given these unfortunate people will perish of famine.

"Under these circumstances, the president deems that an appeal should be made to the humanity of the American people. It is an appeal to their patriotism also, for the inhabitants of Porto Rico have freely and gladly submitted themselves to the guardianship of the United States, and have voluntarily surrendered the protection of Spain, to which they were formerly entitled, confidently relying upon more generous and beneficent treatment at our hands. The highest considerations of honor and good faith unite with the promptings of humanity to require from the United States a generous response to the demand of Porto Rican distress.

"This department has directed the immediate distribution of rations to the sufferers by the army in Porto Rico, so far as it is within the power of the executive, but in the absence of any appropriation we must rely largely upon private contributions.

"I beg you will call upon the public-spirited and humane people of your city to take active and immediate measures in this exigency. The government transport McPherson will be sent directly from the port of New York to Porto Rico on Monday, the 14th inst., to carry all supplies of food which can be obtained. Further transportation will be sent at future dates, of which public notice will be given.

"Any committee charged with raising funds will receive full information and advice upon communicating with this department."

The West Indian hurricane is rapidly approaching Nassau, Bahama islands, where the barometer has fallen considerably. While there is still a possibility that the storm may curve out to sea, the officials of the weather bureau now express the opinion that it will reach the coast of Florida, and that its influence there may begin to be felt today. Hurricane warnings have been sent out over the state by telegraph and telephone, and every measure taken to put the inhabitants on their guard. The storm is now traveling much slower than during the early period of its existence, the total distance covered having been but 1200 miles.

Weather bureau officials are surprised to hear that the town of Ponce was not warned of the approach of the storm, as stated in press dispatches from that city. The capital, San Juan, is the distributing point for the island of Porto Rico, and prompt notification of the approaching hurricane was given to the weather bureau officials there.

A report has been received from an officer at San Juan, P. R., estimating that the number of killed amounts to 500. The same officer says a very serious condition of affairs exists at Ponce.

Methodis Bishop Dead.

New York, Aug. 12.—Rev. James H. Cook, a bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal church, with headquarters at Wilmington, Del., died in the Presbyterian hospital yesterday from appendicitis. Bishop Cook was born in New York city 57 years ago. He was educated in the public schools here and spent a year at Lincoln university, but left the latter on account of his mother's illness. He, however, educated himself and was ordained to the ministry in 1871, serving various charges until eight years ago, when he was chosen bishop. Three months ago he came to this city to assume charge of a church whose pastor is ill.

Close Contest at Brooklyn.

Brooklyn, Aug. 12.—The Brooklyns played up to their old form and had a little the better of the Colonels, who put up a great game. Kennedy and Cunningham had a duel in the box, but "Roaring Bill" was invincible. A hit by pitched ball lost the game for Louisville.

Mexican General's Harsh Measures.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—A special from El Paso says: News was received from Montezuma that when General Torres learned that his nephew had been killed by the Yaquis he promptly ordered that 40 prisoners who had fallen into his hands during the engagement of three weeks ago be put to death, and they were accordingly shot. Only 20 Indians were killed in the battle, but the official returns gave it as 60.

CIRCULARS FROM ATKINSON

Intended For Perusal by Survivors of Regiments Returning From Manila.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Secretary Hitchcock and other government officials in this city have received copies of a circular signed by Edward Atkinson which, the author says, has been sent or will be sent to the commissioned and non-commissioned officers of each returning regiment of troops from the Philippines, together with copies of pamphlets containing articles on the Philippine situation from an anti-imperialist point of view.

EDWARD ATKINSON.

The circular is dated Boston, Aug. 8, is headed "The Anti-Imperialist" and is addressed to the suvivors of the volunteer regiments returning from Manila. Mr. Atkinson says that, having been informed that telegraphic messages from the mothers and sisters of volunteers from Nebraska, urging them not to re-enlist had been refused delivery, he thought he would test the question. He then recounts his efforts to send through the mails to prominent officials in the Philippines the pamphlets seized by the postmaster at San Francisco some time ago, for which the author of the circular says he was "threatened with prosecution for treason and sedition, because of this effort on my part to convey information to you, citizens and voters, which would inform you as to the work being done in this country to stop what we believe to be criminal aggression in the Philippine islands."

Mr. Atkinson adds that the three articles referred to, viz: "The Cost of a National Crime," "The Hell of War and Its Penalties" and "Criminal Aggression; By Whom Committed?" are included in one of the two pamphlets sent to the officers of the regiments, and he asks their views upon them and upon the whole course of the warfare in the Philippine islands, promising, if liberty is given to print the letters, to make a careful selection therefrom, "whether adverse to the position I have taken or sustaining it."

Youthful Lovers United In Death.

Arapahoe, Neb., Aug. 12.—Workmen repairing the high school building yesterday found the dead body of James Bloodworth, a revolver tightly clasped in one hand. Lying partly across the body of Bloodworth was that of Miss Grace Cooper. She was unconscious when found, and died shortly after. Both had been shot through the temple. Bloodworth was 21, and Miss Cooper was 15. They had been keeping company, to which the girl's parents objected. A note signed by both of them stated it was a case of suicide, and gave the opposition to their love affair as the cause.

ANIMAL ODDITIES.

The male ostrich at times utters a cry which sounds like an effort to speak with the mouth shut tight.

Vultures cannot discover a carcass by the sense of smell. They rely entirely upon their sight when in quest of food.

Bees are said to see an enormous distance. When absent from their hive, they go up in the air till they see their home and then fly toward it in a straight line.

The gorilla is furnished with a sort of air bag in the chest, over the lungs, connected with the windpipe. It is with the help of this organ that the animal emits its terrific shrieks and roars.

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

A Sporting Phrase.

"Johnson has quit playing poker, I notice."

"Yes; he said his wife cried about it so that he gave it up."

"Ah! I see. Game called on account of rain."

Excitement at Braintree.

At 8.40 last night, as Millard Drinkwater and Eddie Frampton were leaving Vinton's store, they discovered a fire in an ice house located on the T. B. Vinton estate, in the rear of the barn. They notified H. A. Vinton and rushed to ring in an alarm.

The fire deparment were there very promptly and in ten minutes from the call they had the fire under control.

This small ice house, which we understand is insured, was last used by Mr. Patten about two years ago.

It is not known how the fire was started but is thought to have been set by a tramp. If there had been a strong wind from the south and no rain the adjoining shed, barn and house might have burned in spite of our firemen.

Handsome Souvenir.

The Quincy Patriot Souvenir, a beautiful pamphlet of some eighty pages which four to five gentlemen have been busily engaged in compiling, arranging and printing, for the past three months, is now nearly completed. In two weeks, or less, it will be in the hands of the binder. It will be one of the most attractive works ever published in this city. It will contain eighty large pages, 11 by 14 inches, with about 200 handsome large half-tone engravings of public buildings, residence and prominent citizens of the city. The work has cost some $1500 to publish, and will retail at thirty cents per copy. To news agents and business men, who may want eight or more copies, they will be furnished at twenty-five cents.

The "Old Stoughton Musical Society's Centennial Collection" and the "Jubilee Book of '72" will be used. If you like to sing, or like to hear others sing, you are cordially invited to attend. The Park and seats are free at that time—from 1 to 3 P. M. Go and take your friends.

They numbered in all about 75. One part of the programme was well enjoyed by Corp 21 and that was a sail, also the bathing. A treat was a hay ride by Dr. Maria F. Drew from the Neponset bridge to the grove which was thoroughly appreciated the doctor being an expert with the reins. She is a member of No. 103. Dinner was served at two o'clock under the trees and one of Mrs. C. W. Moore's famous chowders, and hot coffee was heartily enjoyed. The grove and house were decorated in red, white and blue, with welcome to each corp, individually. Hammocks, swings and easy chairs were abundantly spread about. An Indisputable Fact.

The position that New Hampshire has attained as a summer resort is, that it is the foremost in the country, and every foot within the borders of the state is a part and parcel of the vast wonderland, the beauty and like of which does not exist. That part of the state known as the White Mountain region is, perhaps, as much as any in favor as an abiding place, and to reach it by any of the numerous routes one passes through a succession of scenic surroundings that are ever charming and diversified; and once in the mountains, one realizes then the grandeur and impressiveness of the peaks and their many attributaries.

Though not widely known, Dixville Notch presents a variety of attractions that are not found in any other section of the Granite State. The mountains hereabouts are rough and ragged formations, and with the beautiful lakes, cascades and waterfalls which abound in the region, there is a series of charming pictures in every direction, of which you will never tire and which delights and pleases the most critical, while the elevation, nearly 2,000 feet above the sea level, secures for it a temperature that is ever exhilarating. The heart of the mountains might well be said to be at Fabyan and Mt. Pleasant; from here one gets the best view of the Presidential Range, and from these points one may make short tours to Jefferson, Bethlehem, Maplewood, Profile House, Crawford, Jackson, Sugar Hill or to the summit of Mt. Washington, and to reach each of these places the tourist finds that he is surrounded with famed natural attractions and curiosities like "The Flume," "The Basin," "The Old Man of the Mountains," "Elephant's Head," "Echo Lake," "Silver Cascade," "The Notch" and a thousand other fully as interesting oddities of nature."

The accommodations for summer sojourners in the mountain region fairly rivals that of the great hotels of the big cities, so complete are the details, the larger mountain hotels being in themselves small cities, with every convenience, including thoroughly equipped gas, electrical, water and sewer systems. The methods through which the guest finds enjoyment besides the popular game of golf includes base ball, tennis, croquet, mountain climbing and coaching, while each hotel has its own orchestra, and concerts and dances are daily occurrences. If you are going to the mountains, you want to know about them, and a very complete guide is Book No. 4 of the Picturesque New England series, published by the Gen. Pass. Dept., B. and M. R. R., Boston, and which is sent to any address, together with a tour book, replete in travelling information, upon receipt of a two-cent stamp, while for six cents additional a portfolio of 32 mountain views is included.

Castle Square Theatre.

Elaborate preparations have been made at the Castle Square theatre for a production of the popular English melo-drama "The Sporting Duchess," as the attraction of the coming two weeks. This play created a sensation in the theatrical worlds of England and America a few seasons ago and was played to enormous business when it was produced, for the only time in this city, at the Hollis street theatre. The Castle Square Stock Company will be largely augmented to meet the demands of the cast, and a stable of twenty trained horses will be introduced in the race track scene. The regular fall and winter season at the Castle Square begins on Monday, Sept. 4th.

PORTO RICO'S DISTRESS

Was In No Wise Exaggerated In First Reports of Hurricane's Work.

Governor Davis Urges Prompt Response to His Appeal.

One-Fifth of Dwellings Destroyed and Owners Without Shelter or Food.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Two dispatches from Governor General Davis of Porto Rico, giving additional details of the fearful havoc wrought by the hurricane of last week, were received at the war department yesterday. They were immediately sent to Secretary Root, who already has taken measures for dispatching relief to the people of the island. The secretary expects the transport McPherson, with a large quantity of rice and beans, will leave New York today, and this will be followed by other vessels as fast as arrangements can be made for sending supplies. He thinks it is the duty of the government to make provision for feeding the people until the aid voluntarily given by the citizens of the country reaches them, and he will exhaust every means at his disposal to this end.

The secretary contemplates supplementing the appeal made last week to the mayors to assist in raising subscriptions and will issue an appeal to the governors of the states with a view to arousing general interest in the relief work. The dispatches received from General Davis were sent to the president at Lake Champlain last night.

The dispatches received from General Davis were sent to the president at Lake Champlain last night. They are as follows.

"The true state of affairs throughout the island not yet known because of total destruction of all telegraphic connections and great destruction on all roads. Not more than one-fourth of the towns yet heard from, but enough is known to warrant the statement that one-fifth of the dwellings in the island are totally destroyed and their owners are without shelter whatever, or any food beyond what has been saved from the debris. The coffee crop and most of the trees are ruined, and thus reliance for support is gone. Fully one-third of the people subsist entirely on fruit and a small degree on tubas. All the former is destroyed and much of the latter are rotting in the ground. A great many thousands of cattle are drowned and the debris carried down by the rivers is strewn over the ocean with the wreck of the storm and the dead bodies of animals.

"The deaths from falling walls and drowning will number more than 1000, and may be several times this number. The state of distress is very great, and when green fruits saved from the debris are consumed the suffering will be very great. I am relieving the suffering everywhere within reach as much as possible, but in out of the way places are many thousands who cannot be reached for some time. The supplies ordered sent by the government will help much, but will last only for a few days, while destitution must continue for some weeks or even months until the bananas grow up from the ground, for which five months at least are required.

"Food of all kinds is needed, especially rice, beans and codfish, which has been the main support outside of fruit. Cheap cotton clothing is also needed, for thousands rushed naked from their dwellings at night when the gale broke. Medicines are also needed most pressingly, especially quinine and other simple medicines. I estimate that at least 1000 tons of food will be required weekly for several weeks.

"I have constituted boards all over the island to regulate assistance and a general board here to conduct the relief work. While I have not yet full details I repeat the estimate that at least 100,000 people are homeless and destitute. Relief ration proposed one pound of food per day, composed of seven ounces of beans, seven ounces of rice and two ounces of codfish. In addition to the food ordered by the McPherson I ask that 2500 tons above proportions should be shipped next week. Before this is consumed I will have full data respecting future needs, but I fear extensive issues of provisions will be necessary for several months. I shall push work on the roads and give employment to as many as possible. I hope the charitable people of the States will contribute food, clothes, medicines and money. Colonel Hofer, chief surgeon of the department, is chairman of the board of relief, and auxiliary boards are organizing in all the towns. Five military posts not yet heard from.

"Further, but still incomplete reports, confirm previous cable reports as conservative. I suggest the appointment of an office in New York to receive funds and supplies, cabling quantities and kind shipped on each boat. There should be shipped this week not less than 2500 tons of food. Money will be applied in assisting to rebuild houses and huts and hire of help. I recommend that bags for sugar and coffee, all kinds of rough lumber for building and fencing, hooks, staves and hoops for sugar packing and galvanized iron and nails for roofing purposes be placed on the first list."

"Why do they speak of it as the hungry sea?"

"It takes the dinner right out of a person's mouth."—Brooklyn Life.

DR SIMPSON'S POWERFUL SERMON

Had the Effect of Bringing In Contributions Amounting to $55,000.

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 14.—At the Christian Alliance convention here yesterday, Rev. Dr. A. B. Simpson raised $55,000 for foreign missions. The greater part of the sum was raised during the forenoon service, but a second collection was taken in the afternoon, and pledges continued to come in at the evening meeting.

Dr. Simpson preached a powerful sermon in the forenoon on the subject of "Missions." He reviewed the work the Christian Alliance has done, showing that it has about 300 workers in 70 centres of heathendom. More than 1000 converts have been gathered in, as the first fruits of the harvest.

He appealed for a greater force of workers, and a larger contribution, to the end that the world may be evangelized, and the second coming of Christ hastened.

At the conclusion of his sermon, collectors were sent among the audience and pledge cards distributed. These cards, after being filled out by contributors, were handed to Dr. Wilson, who read the amounts, and the pledgs and cash were given in charge of Mrs. Simpson and one of the elders.

The pledges came in with such rapidity that at times Dr. Wilson had 25 or 30 to read at once. There were two pledges of $5000 each, two of $3000, one of $2500, two of $200, two of $1500, oneof $1300, two of $1000, five of $500, and many ranging from $100 to $400. More than 100 pledges of $1 each were received. The cash contributions of the day amounted to about $800, and to this was added checks for about $2000 more. The remainder of the $55,000 was in pledges, to be paid within periods ranging from one to 12 months. Several watches, rings and lockets, and a pair of bracelets were contributed by members of the audience.

Scarborough Beach Victim Identified.

Wickford, R. I., Aug. 14.—The body of the unknown man found on Scarborough beach Friday morning with the hands tied has been identified as that of Frank H. Shaw, 38 years old, who was employed as a railway inspector on the Brooklyn Elevated railway. The body was identified by R. H. Thomas of Brooklyn, who is a brother-in-law of the deceased. Thomas stated that Shaw left his home in Brooklyn on Aug. 7, supposedly to attend to his daily duties. Since that time nothing has been seen of him, and the railway people had instituted an inquiry as to his whereabouts. Shaw was not addicted to the use of intoxicants. He was an athlete. The affair is as much involved in mystery as ever.

Three Girls Drowned.

Bremen, Me., Aug. 14.—Mabel, Lizzie and Flossie Weston, aged 18, 15 and 12, and Lizzie Dodge, aged 14, went to the river near here to bathe and Flossie came running home over an hour later in a very excited frame of mind and unable to tell just what the trouble was. Her father ran to the river and was horrified to see the lifeless bodies of his two daughters and the Dodge girl floating in the water. He brought them ashore and summoned medical assistance, but life was extinct. Flossie says that she heard one of her sisters scream, "I am drowning," whereupon she started home for help. It is supposed that two of the girls went to the rescue of the other and that all three drowned.

Nude Lunatic at Large.

Bangor, Me., Aug. 14.—Considerable excitement has been occasioned in Brewer by the appearance of a nude man, who appears to be mad. He was first seen about 10 days ago. His continued appearance from day to day has alarmed the people. Nobody has been near enough to him to see what his face looks like. He is described as being entirely naked, with an old coat wrapped about his head. He has made no attack upon anybody, but seems to want to keep away from everyone.

Viewed With Suspicion.

Bangor, Me., Aug. 14.—The dead body of William Colbath, aged 30, and Harry Quimby, aged 16, of Exeter, were found in Stetson pond with their faces battered and bruised. They and Arthur Sargent of Stetson went fishing on Friday in Stetson pond. Sargent returned Saturday and reported that his associates had been drowned. Foul play was suspected, and a searching party found the bodies near where Sargent had indicated. Coroner Barrows has begun an inquest.

Drowned In Few Inches of Water.

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 14.—Scarcely half a foot of water in a small stream running underneath a mill floor was the cause of the death of William McKenna, 55, a mill watchman at the Dunnell Manufacturing company. McKenna walked into an open space in the flooring and fell to the ground, being stunned by the fall so that he was unable to prevent his rolling into the shallow stream.

ON THE AGGRESSIVE.

Filipinos, Under Flag of Truce, Fired a Volley at Detachment of Troops.

Three Columns of Americans Advance Upon San Mateo, Which Is Captured.

Manila, Aug. 14.—The insurgents have taken the aggressive in the neighborhood of the railroad. On Saturday night they unsuccessfully attacked San Luis, on the Rio Grande, near Calumpit, which is garrisoned by two companies of the Twenty-second infantry. The Americans had one man, a sergeant, killed and two privates wounded.

Yesterday morning a similar affair took place at Gringua, four miles west of Malolos, where another small garrison is stationed as a safeguard against a possible attack upon the railway. A special train took reinforcements to Malolos and Guiguinto, just north of Bulacan.

While the Seventeenth infantry, during last evening's battle, was approaching Calulut, along the road, the troops saw a group of 50 Filipinos outside the town under a flag of truce. Some, who were in white clothing, held up their hands, to signify that they were unarmed. Captain Hart, with a detachment, advanced cautiously to a point within 200 yards of them, when the Filipinos picked up their guns and fired a volley. The Americans dropped into the bushes unhurt on the first movement, and returned the fire. At this the Filipinos ran off.

Word has been received from Lieutenant Gillmore, of the United States gunboat Yorktown, who, with 14 members of the crew of the gunboat, was captured by the insurgents last April near Balor, on the east coast of Luzon.

LIEUTENANT GILMORE.

The message, which came through a Spanish prisoner, is to the effect that the officer and his men are at Vigan, in the province of South Ilocos, on the west coast of Luzon. All but two are well. Lieutenant Gillmore is allowed a house and a servant, and is fairly treated.

A reconnoissance by troops of General Samuel B. M. Young's brigade, with the object of discovering the whereabouts of the enemy near San Mateo, about 10 miles from Manila, resulted in the occupation of San Mateo.

The American loss was three killed and 13 wounded, including a lieutenant of the Second infantry. Twenty-three of the enemy are known to have been killed.

The Americans approached San Mateo in three columns. Major Cronin, with 150 men of the Twenty-fifth infantry, advanced from Novaliches, five miles west of San Mateo. Captain Rivers, with 100 men of the Fourth cavalry, and Captain Parker, with 280 men of the Twenty-first and Twenty-fourth infantry, and the Fourth cavalry, approached in two columns from the south.

Major Cronin experienced many difficulties arising from the condition of the country, and failed to effect a junction with Captain Rivers west of San Mateo, as had been planned.

Captain Rivers, advancing, took an outpost of the enemy two miles southwest of San Mateo. He then encountered strong resistance among the hills, the enemy firing from excellent positions. Having failed to connect with Major Cronin, and seeing that the town was already occupied by the Americans, Captain Rivers withdrew, covering his withdrawal by heavy volley firing. He lost a sergeant killed.

Captain Parker, on advancing, found the enemy strongly entrenched on the far side of some rice fields, about a mile wide, and covered with deep mud. Pushing forward rapidly, he routed the Filipinos, after 40 minutes' fighting, and then continued the march upon San Mateo, which he entered without serious resistance about 1:30 in the afternoon. Major Cronin entered the town about 4:30. The Americans were exhausted by the heavy marching.

Sunday Tragedy at Denver.

Denver, Aug. 14.—Two police officers were killed here yesterday by Wellington C. Llewellyn, a recruit belonging to company L, Thirty-fourth volunteer infantry, now stationed at Fort Logan. Three soldiers had been raising a disturbance in a saloon and Officer Clifford was notified of their action and asked to watch them. He followed them and was about to accost them when Llewellyn turned on him and sent a bullet through his heart. Clifford died almost immediately. All three of the soldiers then ran, but two were overtaken and captured. Llewellyn continued running, with Officer Griffith in pursuit. The officer shot at him twice, the soldier returning the fire, mortally wounding Griffith. He died a few minutes later. Llewellyn escaped.

Good Afternoon.

It is to be regretted that a gentleman who has done so much for Quincy in many ways as Mr. Faxon, should give the city such a black eye as was contained in an interview with him published in Saturday's Journal:

The whole article was sensational and almost malicious. If said of a person he would have good grounds for libel, but the city must suffer. Even an apology on the part of Mr. Faxon and the Journal would not repair the great injury which has been done.

It is not a fact, as the Journal reporter assumes at the outset, that "There is some variegated language floating about in the atmosphere of Quincy city today. There is a large collection of strong words on tap at every corner of the city, wherever men do congregate to caucus about the municipal doings; and if anybody should ask a taxpayer what the tax rate is this year, words would flow in a stream incessant, blue, sulphurous and volcanic."

The tax rate is no larger than expected for some months, and anyone who expresses surprise has had very little interest indeed in city affairs. There is good reason why the tax rate is large this year, and if well advertised it can do no injury. Let it be known abroad that the municipal of debt Quincy is but $265,505 86,—less than $11 per capita. That a special assessment of $14 per $1,000 would wipe it all out. That this debt was so apportioned when contracted that nearly one-third matures this year. That the payment of this $81,950 25 requires over $4 of the tax rate. That Quincy is reducing its municipal debt. That if it had paid but ten per cent. of its debt this year the rate would have been $16. That it is getting improvements and paying for them, and must ultimately come out near the top.

It is such paragraphs as this in the interview of Mr. Faxon that should not be advertised if a fact:

"What is the result of high taxes on real estate? It is depreciating in value. You cannot sell it, because people who have any money to invest always investigate the rate of taxation in a town before they invest, and they do not invest in cities where the tax rate is too high. There is no movement in real estate for that reason, except what is caused by mortgagee sales and sales for taxes."

But are they facts? Real estate is not depreciating in value much when its value has more than doubled in eleven years. It must be admitted that it has not been active in some parts of the city of late, because of the hard times generally, not locally. But at the same time there has been a good demand for land, and the number of transfers has really been large, probably 500 or 600 the past year.

A large number of new houses have been built in Quincy of late; many more, undoubtedly, than Mr. Faxon wishes. These show real estate activity. Today Quincy has 4,300 houses. In 1880 it had but 1,753; in 1885 there were 2,089; in 1890 they had increased to 2,766; in 1895 to 3,643; in 1898 there were 4,176, and the figures of 1899 have not been ascertained, but may go over 4,300 and perhaps to 4,400. Very nearly 2,000 houses have been built in Quincy since we became a city. These figures may surprise many who are too ready to find fault rather than to work for the upbuilding of the city for which they profess to have a great interest.

By "sidewalk crazy" Mr. Faxon probably means, "sidewalk extravagance." No one can claim that Quincy has been extravagant on sidewalk appropriations. More money is urgently needed for sidewalks. In the appropriation order this year is $2,000 for edgestone, where the abutters pay one-half the cost; and $2,000 only of the loan for sidewalks matures. This sum of $4,000 requires a tax rate of but 20 cents. Is there anyone who would prefer to go without sidewalks and reduce the tax rate to $19?

Drift of Opinion.

☞ One of the chief objections to the automobile on the part of the men who have been driving horses for years is the absence of reins and the sensation of control over something by this means. To appease this feeling there has been invented an attachment for these vehicles so that a driver of an automobile may sit and control his carriage by reins as he would a horse. This probably makes them happy.—Newburyport News.

☞ Love of fatherland is natural and proper and all honor to those who keep fresh in their minds "the old folks at home," but this is not the place to work up or pay off grudges of foreign nation against foreign nation. This is America, and no matter where a man comes from, if he is here to stay he wants to be an American, acting as such in all things.—New Haven Leader.

☞ Birds do an immense amount of drudgery for man, if they do now and then reward themselves by dainty tidbit of ripening fruit. A pair of robins have been watched while they carried a thousand earthworms to their brood. Woodpeckers destroy eggs and larvae which would develop millions of destructive creatures in forests and orchards; and one of the most inevitable foes of the canker worm is the beautiful oriole, were it but allowed to live and hang its swinging cradle to the elm. For every wing of b lack and orange on a young girl's hat an apple tree is stripped of leaves and young fruit, or an elm is denuded of its graceful foliage by the canker worm.—Farm Journal.

Kent-Barber.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Barber, daughter of the late Dr. Willett P. Barber of Lebanon, Conn., was married at the Congregational church, Willimantic, Conn., at 2 o'clock, Aug. 10, to Rev. Frederic H. Kent of Wollaston by Rev. Edward Hale of Cambridge. A large number of relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony.

The bride attired in a blue travelling dress, was accompanied by her uncle, Mr. William Peckham, of Milwaukee. From the church Mr. and Mrs. Kent drove to the station where they found many of their friends arrived before them with rice., etc., prepared to start them properly on their wedding trip.

They will reside in Buffalo, N. Y., where Mr. Kent has been called to fill the pulpit of the Parkside Unitarian church.

Among those present were: Mr. S. A. Peckham and Miss Mary Peckham, of Willimantic; Mr. and Mrs. William Peckham of Milwaukee; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Kent of Wollaston; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Kent and daughter of Braintree; Misses Mabrianna and Sarah Kent of Somerville; Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Cummings of Medfield, Mass.

Miss Agnes O'Neil played the wedding march. The ushers were Mr. Albert W. P. Barber, brother of the bride; and Mr. James Kent, Jr., and Mr. Gilbert R. Kent, brother of the groom, all of Wollaston.

After the ceremony, Mrs. C. L. Boss of Willimantic and Miss Lena Johnson of Philadelphia assisted Miss Peckham to receive the invited guests at her home on Church street.

The Morning Fire.

The alarm from Box 446 at 5.50 this morning was for a fire in the house on the corner of Crescent and Cross streets owned by Patrick Kelley. This same house was gutted by fire on the morning of May 25, and Mr. Kelley's son who lived in one side was with difficulty awakened and got out. No repairs of any kind have been made on the building since that fire and this morning's fire is thought to have been the work of an incendiary. When the fire was discovered a brisk blaze was in progress and it looked as though the fire would complete the work of destruction. The department, however, got to work at it in good season and soon had the fire drowned out. Chief Williams estimates the loss to be not over $60.

RACES AND SPORTS.

A Gala Day of the Wollaston Yacht Club.

Saturday was a gala day at Wollaston beach for not only did the Wollaston Yacht club hold its open races and water sports, but the Squantum club observed its annual Ladies' day.

The result of these two interesting events was the gathering of a large number. Many whose interest was centered in the races secured commanding positions on the hill where they had a fine view. The younger people who were interested in the water sports gathered at the waters edge and on the float, while those interested in sailing assembled at the Squantum club house.

The open regatta drew a large number of boats, twenty-four being in the fleet to compete for the cash prizes. Among these were nearly all the crack boats in Boston harbor such as the Hostess, Heiress, Recruit, Hermes, Little Peter, Eleanor, Privateer, Harriet, Arab IV, and the Thelma. The latter boat, however, arrived too late to enter in the race.

The regatta was scheduled for 2 o'clock, but it was half an hour later before the steamer Winona, with the judges and newspaper men steamed out from the float and took a position near the flag boat.

The course number was then hoisted and the preparatory gun fired. The course selected was twice over a triangle. From the judges boat to buoy 1 off Half Moon to buoy No. 2 off Moon island thence to the starting line.

There was a light easterly breeze at the start which freshened to a good whole sail breeze before the finish which made a very pretty race.

Class D got away at 2.40 the Hermes leading the way followed by Little Peter and Eleanor. The Hermes was right on the line at the gun and the little lead she then had was increased winning lead in the first round which was held to the finishing, Little Peter coming in second.

Of course the centre of interest were the cup defenders and challengers in the 21-footers for the two rivals Hostess and Heiress were there; also last year's cup defender, the Recruit which came over and was sailed by Commodore Rice. The Recruit made a good showing at the start, but she could not hold up with the others in light sails, and she fell behind.

The Heiress was the first to cross and led the Hostess the first time round by 53 seconds. Then it was that the wind freshened a little and the Hostess forced ahead, and soon cut down the lead and went to the front finishing with a lead of two minutes 33 seconds. The Hostess also lead out the fleet at the finish.

In the 21-foot cabins there was a pretty race between the Privateer and Harriet. The Privateer had the best of the race at the start, with the Harriet second, and Arab IV in the rear. The two leading boats had it nip and tuck on the first half. The second half was a repetition of the first. The two rounded the buoy off Moon island for the finish almost at the same moment. The Privateer pulled out to the windward, and set her spinnaker for the run home. Then it was that the race was seen at its best. Both run to the windward so far that it was necessary to come about in order to cross, and in doing so the Privateer crossed a few seconds in the lead. She was protested by the Harriet for fouling the stake boat, but it was not allowed.

In the eighteen footers there were but two starters Perhaps and Helen. They crossed at the start in that order and held the same relative positions throughout.

The handicap race had twelve starters and they crossed well bunched. Owing to the fact that several had not been measured the corrected time could not be given. They finished in the following order:

Thelma, Burgess, Muriel, Dorothy, Annie A., Ziska, West Wind, Sevat, Solitaire, Mabie L.

Cash prizes of $10 and $5 were given in the first three classes, and $10 in the eighteen footers.

The judges were: Commodore A. C. Gardner, James S. Whiting, William M. Chase, Walter J. Coombs, Charles F. Marr.

AN ORDINANCE

in Relation to House Connections with the Common Sewer and Regulating the Same.

Engrossed Ordinance No 33, 1899.

CITY OF QUINCY.

In the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine.

Be it ordained by the City Council of Quincy as follows:

All applications for the construction of particular sewers and their entrance into common sewers shall be made upon blank forms to be obtained at the office of the Board of Sewerage Commissioners, and shall be signed by the owner or by the accredited agent of the premises to be sewered.

The size and materials of particular sewers and appurtenances shall be such as the Board of Sewerage Commissioners shall prescribe, and in conformity with the requirements of the Board of Health.

Said sewers shall be laid accurately to straight lines and grades. If angles along the lines thereof are unavoidable, manholes or other approved means of access shall be provided.

The materials and labor required in the construction of particular sewers and appurtenances thereof, shall be provided and the work done by the Board of Sewerage Commissioners or their duly authorized agents, and by no other person or persons; excepting that the applicant may make all of the excavation and back fill outside the street lines, excepting so much as will affect the proper bedding and securing of the pipe or other structure.

The plumbing of any building shall not be connected with a particular sewer until the applicant shall file with the Board of Sewerage Commissioners a certificate by the Inspector of Plumbing, that the said plumbing work is in suitable condition for connection with the public sewer.

No person shall be allowed to make any alteration in or make any connection with any particular sewer, except as stated in the original permit. Leave to depart therefrom must be obtained from the Board of Sewerage Commissioners on further application thereof to said Commissioners.

The Board of Sewerage Commissioners may at any time require such grease traps to be introduced along the line of any particular sewer, or on the discharge of any fixture connected therewith as he may deem necessary for the proper maintenance of said particular sewer, or of the common sewers.

No person shall throw or discharge into a public sewer or any of its connections, any steam or other matter or thing which may tend to, or cause, an obstruction thereof or a deposit therein, or any injury thereto.

No person shall cause or allow any roof water or surface water, by pipe or otherwise, to be conducted or to flow or discharge into any pipe or drain connecting with, or which indirectly through any other pipe or drain or directly discharges its contents into any main drain or common sewer.

All particular sewers shall be under the control of, and be maintained and kept clean by the city. The expense in cleaning and repairing any particular sewer shall be paid by the owner of the premises connected by said particular sewer, and pre-payment or security for the said expense may be required by the Board of Sewerage Commissioners, provided, however, that any labor on particular sewers occasioned by defects or obstructions in the common sewer shall be paid for by the city.

The term "particular sewers" used in this ordinance is intended to mean the house connections of the abuttor with the main or common sewer.

Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of these rules and regulations shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding Twenty dollars ($20.00) for each violation.

This ordinance shall take effect upon its passage and the ordinance in relation to House connections with the common sewer and regulating the same is hereby repealed.

THE VINING VILLA.

It is Raided by Chief of Police of Hull.

Miss Floretta Vining, formerly of Quincy, was raided for liquor at Hull Saturday night by Chief of Police Mitchell of that town. All the officers found was a bottle of claret, a bottle of sherry and two barrels partly filled with empty bottles. These, however, they took, and summoned Miss Vining to appear in court at Hingham on Tuesday.

The Post has interviewed Miss Vining, who says: "The officials of Hull hate me, because of the part I have taken toward having the beach set apart as a public reservation.

"This spring I met Chief of Police Mitchell and he said to me: "You have ruined my business."

"What did he mean? Why, that the change will interfere with his selling ice and other supplies to the hotels when the State takes possession and clears away the places where liquor is now sold.

"When Mitchell came to my cottage he did not read any search warrant. When I said to him: "You don't think I would sell liquor, do you? he replied: "You'll find out Tuesday in court." And that statement is the only way I have of showing what he intends to do about the case.

"The bottle of sherry which he took out of my room had been given me as a present by a friend to be used in cooking, in pudding sauce. But it had never been opened.

"The claret had been used by some of my boarders in making lemonade. It was their own property, and they had used it after I had retired for the night.

"Whatever liquor was in my house was brought in by boarders for their personal use. I had no control over them. They will go into court Tuesday and tell the judge so.

"What was the motive for this action by the police? Well, those people do not like my action about the taking of the park. There is another reason, too.

"I paid $4,000 for that strip of land, and insisted that the 'squatters' upon it should leave. That made me enemies."

Miss Vining then told of her proposed action against the Board of Health, and continued:

"These town officials are all related, one to the other. Here is an illustration of the way they run things:

"They came in with a bill for counsel fees in their recent trial—I think the amount was $2,700—and the town has decided to pay it."

Miss Vining reiterated her declaration that her innocence would be promptly shown when the case came to trial. She seemed not in the slightest degree worried.

Miss Vining is the proprietor of the Nantasket Breeze and eight other newspapers for towns in that vicinity and her hot denunciation of town officials of Hull, undoubtedly caused the raid. In a recent issue the Breeze said:

"A careful concensus of the opinion of a majority of the citizens of the towns and cities comprising the metropolitan park district, familiar with Nantasket, and who have no pecuniary interests at stake, would show that reputed, if not actual, evil conditions have caused the place to become of little account to the masses.

The absence of intoxicants will eliminate the worst elements which now disgrace the beach.

"When it is known that the rum element has been removed, a larger number of the better class of people will throng the beach.

"Clean the rum out of Nantasket."

S. Y. C. LADIES' DAY.

The Fair Sex Taken Out For a Sail Saturday.

The Squantum Yacht club had an ideal afternoon Saturday for its annual Ladies' day, and many ladies improved the opportunity to don their yachting costumes and take possession of the club house, to whose use it is put on such occasions. The ladies began to arrive early, and at 3 o'clock a large number had assembled on the piazza and float, ready for the sail.

Commodore F. J. Stewart and an efficient committee had charge of the affair and the success was due to their untiring efforts.

There were more present than could be accommodated by the yachts at one time, and it was necessary for some of the yachts to take out two parties.

Those on shore at the club house were not "out of it," however, for they had a fine view of the race, and at the same time could enjoy the music by the orchestra which was stationed on the upper piazza.

On the return from the sail, refreshments were served in the upper hall, and in the evening there was a social dance the club house and float being illuminated in honor of the occasion.

The yachts to participate in the sail were:

Adieu, Commodore Stewart. Steamer Capt. John Stuart.
Wild Duck, Hamilton Flood.
Warnetta, Capt. Swain.
Mary C., Capt. C. H. Johnson.
Freckle, Capt. C. E. Henry.
Zoe, Capt. James McCarthy.
Agilis, Capt. F. C. Badger.
Maud, Capt. F. A. Locke.
Dafodil, Capt. George Glover.
Tomahack, Capt. G. S. Hallowell.

Commodore Stewart had as guests on the yacht Adieu: Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Stewart Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Ripley, Mrs. Whitier, Miss N. Lyons, Mr. Archie Briggs, Miss Jennie Wilson, Miss Mabel Wilson, Miss Eva Harris, Miss Ethel Harris.

Capt. Swain of the yacht Warnetta had as guests: Dr. Maria E. Drew, Mrs. Swain, Mrs. F. W. Wright, Miss Wright, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Drew, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stoddard, Miss Beatrice, Aston, Miss Josephine Pickett.

Capt. Hallowell had as guests on the yacht Tomahawk: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Freemans, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Corbett, Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. T. Raiche, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Granville, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Koppler, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Burns, Mrs. G. S. Hallowell, Miss Florence Koppler, Miss Belle Murphy, Miss Ida Marr, Miss Bessie Maxim, Mrs. Alex. Stewart, Nat Freeman and Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Coombs.

The other skippers were indifferent about securing a list of their guests for publication.

Bold Theft.

Nora Ballentine, a servant employed at Mrs. Brown's boarding house at the corner of Washington and Temple streets was paid $15 Sunday afternoon, the amount due her for a month's wages. She laid the money on the kitchen table for a few moments, but hardly had she done so before Michael Regan, who boards at the Quincy House and is employed on the sewer, grabbed the roll and ran across the street to his room at the Quincy House. Both Nora and Mrs. Brown saw the theft and the girl followed Regan to his room. Thinking that he would remain there she ran into the street and sent word to the police station. Officer Barry responded, but when he arrived Regan had gone out of the back door and disappeared.

The officers made an effort to locate the fellow, but were unsuccessful as no one seemed to know which way he had gone. Had the girl remained with him until the officers arrived she would probably have saved her money. A warrant has been issued for his arrest.

Queen of Toilet Powders

Is the name given Comfort Powder by M. J. Braden, Trained Nurse of Weston, Mass. "She says it produces a fine complexion." Cures pimples and all irritations of the skin. Keeps dress shields sweet.

☞ There will ever be degrees of wealth and poverty as there will ever be degrees of intelligence and thrift. It is a part of the divine plan. There are many compensations as well as obligations for all classes. It is a poor doctrine that recognizes only the dark side, and the missionary who preaches only despair is a curse to the people.—Kansas City Journal.

She washes her delicate laces
With Ivory Soap suds, soft and warm;
The frailest in bottles she places
And shakes them—it cannot do harm.
If thoroughly rinsed with clear water,
They're wholly uninjured when dry
Because, as experience has taught her,
Ivory Soap has no free alkali.

The vegetable oils of which Ivory Soap is made fit it for many special uses for which other soaps are unsafe or unsatisfactory.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. TIDE TURNING Lies of Anti-Dreyfusites Are Being Nailed.

Judges Likely to Acquit Dreyfus For Decency's Sake.

Political Bearings In the Case Now Cropping Out.

A Fierce Battle Without Possibility of Ending In a Draw.

Maitre Labori Waylaid by Assassins This Morning and Shot.

Rennes, Aug. 14.—M. Casimir-Perier gave to the court-martial on Saturday a history of the Dreyfus case. He spoke in an emphatic manner, with strong emotion and often in a strong tone of indignation. He appeared to greater advantage than I ever remember to have seen him before and was honest and truthful, though not free from poso unless when angered by the lies being told about him rendered him quite natural.

General Mercier was allowed to sit while giving his deposition. He spoke for hours in a scarcely audible voice.

Failing to demonstrate the guilt of Dreyfus, General Mercier turned toward the prisoner and said: "If I had the slightest doubt of the justice of the 1894 sentence, I would now say to the prisoner, captain, I have wronged you."

Dreyfus for the first time burst the bounds of his strict self-control. The blood rushed to his face, and, starting to his feet, he cried: "But that is what you ought to say." This brought down the house and the bar, the press and the public applauded. Dreyfus stood while the "bravos" were repeated, quivering with anger. Then the cowed look returned, and he sat down rapidly in the square military position he thinks respectful to the court.

General Mercier's deposition was in such contrast to the graphic, powerful story of M. Casimir-Perier, which had throughout the ring of truth, that the general was hooted as he left the stand. The proceedings were thrilling, a sign that the tide is on the turn. Colonel Jouaust, the president of the court-martial, who was so stiff with Dreyfus and ignored his salutes, returned them.

There were other depositions of great importance, though they were not sensational. Their importance lay in their covernig the anti-Dreyfusites with confusion, by nailing their lies to the counter. The evidence that Dr. Ranson, who is now in India, was said to be prepared with, was stigmatized in a letter from him as "futile inventions." He did not witness the search made of the person of Dreyfus for documents when the latter arrived at Isle de Re to be shipped to Cayenne, and he never heard of the search or the finding of concealed documents on him.

M. de la Roche-Vernet, a typical attache of embassy, now serving at Berlin, had been greatly boasted about by the anti-Dreyfusites as able to smash M. Paleologue's testimony, given on behalf of the foreign office before the court of cassation. Well, de la Roche-Vernet was summoned to Rennes as a witness for the defense. Everything he said confirmed Paleologue's testimony and confounded Mercier. His evidence related to interpretations sent to the war office in a cipher telegram to the Italian government about the arrest of Dreyfus. MM. de la Roche-Vernet and Pafeologue were confronted with the result of mutual confirmation.

I like to look at the counsel's bench. Maitres Demange and Labori and two more advocates were there. You could fancy Roentgen rays of intellectuality and strength of purpose to emanate from that bench. An advocates profession, rightly understood, is a noble profession. The military judges look, as such, contemptible, beside the wearers of the toga. They have each and all a something in them reminding one of Esterhazy. The minds of all move in the narrowest groves, and are bandaged up in action of military authorities and convention. The tone of the military bench is dull and unintellectual, and I prefer the treachery of a French civilian judge to the blockheadism of the military. The former tries at least to worry the evidence out of a prisoner, but the military judge disdains evidence and he does not mind letting the prisoner feel at the outset that he thinks him guilty.

The officers who judge Dreyfus may have, for decency's sake, to acquit him, but they will do so reluctantly, and with hearts filled with gall. They are not to be converted by evidence, but it may, and I believe will, overbear them.

It can now be said that the battle has begun in earnest. Its political bearings are shown in the arrest of Paul Deroulede, the deputy and poet, and 23 of his numerous royalists and Bonapartists allies who have pooled with him against the republic. As to the Boulangist conspiracy, the pool would be of little consetruthful, though not free from pose unhas found representative men in General Negrier and some other generals having great commands.

It is strange how the fight thickened around the shadowy and emaciated red-haired Jew, whose uniform of an artillery captain so ill-fits his figure and physiognomy. Last Monday's sitting of the court-martial and the subsequent non-public sittings were the first skirmishing operations; but Saturday was a field day, in which the two hostile forces into which France is divided, and has been since the revolution, set themselves in array of battle and drew the first blood. Each side stands committed to a certain course and has burned its ships. The actual Dreyfus trial is a trial of strength. I cannot see a possibility of its ending in a drawn game. It is now a "neck or nothing" combat, a desperate fight in which neither side will give in unless utterly routed.

The moral situation of the forces engaged reminds one of that of the armies of the French revolution and those they had to fight. The Dreyfusites have the brains, the forward impulse, the dash and the flexibility. At the same time they are raw recruits, gathered spontaneously from the four parts of the compass. Hatred of the military caste, and, it may be, the secret hope of rewards, have made them homogeneous.

The nationalists have social and other prestige, numbers and organization. Their center is composed of the majority of Frenchmen and Frenchwomen; their left wing is formed of 22,000 officers, and their right wing consists of the church. All profess respect for legality, but only from the lips out.

One side is just as unscupulous as the other; but the most active and less numerous side does really fight for the cause of humanity, justice and truth. The Dreyfusites have, at any rate, won belligerent rights, and they are sure of the friendly neutrality of the government.

Their adversaries can no longer make use of the rope that hung Lemercier Picard, or the razor that cut Henry's throat. The minister of war could not, if he wanted to, read a forged document in parliament. It is impossible now to stuff the dossier with fables fit for Mother Goose's tale. But organization, numbers, prestige and wealth mean staying power.

Doubtless the Dreyfusites are supplied with Jewish funds without accepting M. de Freycinet's estimate of 39,000,000 francs. The sums subscribed by English and German Jews must be enormous; but like wealthy gentiles, rich Jews are fond of the pomp and vanities of life, the titles of aristocratic society. Many of them are frightened already at the onward pace of the Dreyfusites.

General Mercier's deposition was inaudible unless to the judges and shorthand reporters. It fell flat, his voice and delivery being bad. But we have it now in print.

It has qualities for which we did not give it credit during delivery. They are easy, flowing statements, with plausibility and the art of lulling suspicion. As the deposition appears in full in the reports it will everywhere be read with delight by those already persuaded that Dreyfus is a traitor. Figuratively speaking, the deposition, which was really a speech for the prosecution, shows Mercier to be a flautist of the highest order. He never loses his way in the most intricate variations and keeps in view the motif, namely, that Dreyfus is a cool, calculating, well-informed traitor.

The immediate issue of the fight is the freedom of Dreyfus; but Saturday's incidents and episodes are the beginning of a struggle of far reaching consequence.

I must give the nationalists credit for having, from the very beginning, foreseen what revision would lead to. They, in many things, showed blindness. They accepted the madman, Quesnay de Beaurepaire, as their spokesman. But they had a keen insight for the ultimate trend of the revisionist movement.

Dreyfus is generally unfortunate in the use of the pen. He lacks artistic sensibilities and cannot disassociate himself from entering into the feelings of others. One sees this harsh egotism in his correspondence with his wife. He was never more unfortunate than in the letter complaining that Casimir-Perier did not keep a promise to him. It exasperated Casimir-Perier, who treated as a foul libel the assertion that he, as president of the republic, entered into a pact with an officer accused of treason.

Casimir-Perier has a habit of thinking morbidly. He has taken deep offense at several assertions of Mercier and will try conclusions with him. We expect fur to fly; in Casimir-Perier's case, canine, in Mercier's, feline. Some of Countess Marie von Munster's letters in the secret dossier were to Mlle. Lucie Faure. They may be forgeries. I cannot imagine that she gave them to the minister of war as proof that the family of the German ambassador took an interest in Dreyfus.

The Schwartzkoppen letter, speaking of the impetuous intervention in the affairs of the German emperor for reasons unknown even to Hohenlohe, is believed to be genuine. In this connection it is said in military circles that a lady in whom Emperor William took a deep interest had fished out for him Dreyfus as a person competent to inform his majesty on French military questions. This lady, it is said, was a relative of the late Jacques Saint Cere of The Figaro, who was condemned to 18 months' imprisonment for blackmailing the late millionaire, Max Lebaudy.

She came to Paris as a pictorial artist, as the story goes, and exhibited in the Solon.

There was such a lady, but I should be sorry to declare her the mistress of the German emperor and the temptress of Dreyfus. What the officers say about her may be another lie. Military credulity is boundless.

Maitre Labori left his house alone for the court at about 6 o'clock this morning. His residence is situated in the suburbs of the town, about a quarter of an hour's walk from the Lycee, the route being along a solitary road beside the river Vilaine. He had reached a point half way on his journey, when two men who had evidently been lying in wait for him rushed out of a narrow lane, and one of them fired a single shot from a revolver. The murderers were only a couple of yards behind their victim, and the bullet struck Maitre Labori in the back. The wounded man uttered an agonized cry and fell flat on his face. The murderers immediately fled.

At 7:30 o'clock it was announced that the bullet had entered the stomach; that there was no outward bleeding, and that the physicians believe that M. Labori will die from the wound.

A later story has it that M. Labori was shot in the temple by a man who fired a revolver at him outside the court. The miscreant was arrested.

MIDSUMMER POLITICS.

Talk of Possibility of Reed's Remaining in Congress to Oppose Expansion.

New York, Aug. 14.—The World says: The possibility that Thomas B. Reed will stay in congress and oppose expansion from the floor of the house of representatives is causing a discussion in Republican circles. Senator Platt, however, declined to discuss the possibility at the Oriental hotel yesterday, nor would General Henderson, who called on Senator Platt, say anything concerning the matter.

General Henderson, who is scheduled as the speaker of the next house of congress, had a long talk with Senator Platt at the Oriental hotel yesterday. The general came from Narragansett Pier with his wife and daughter and is on his way west. After the talk Senator Platt said: "The visit of General Henderson was purely of a social character."

General Henderson was asked concerning Richard Croker's statement published upon the arrival of the latter from Europe that it is almost incredible that a president of the United States is willing to shed the blood of the unfortunate Filipinos chiefly to keep himself and friends in office.

He said: "If I remember correctly some people accused Abraham Lincoln of a similar thing in the war of the Rebellion. But the American people did not believe it then of Lincoln."

Senator Platt said he had not read Croker's statement and, consequently, had no opinion to offer.

A Transport's Close Call.

San Francisco, Aug. 14.—The United States transport Centennial arrived here from Manila yesterday after an exciting trip. She narrowly missed a couple of typhoons, was ashore on a coral reef, where the entire crew barely escaped capture at the hands of the Filipinos; one of the sailors was killed by a parting hawser and one of the quartermasters was stabbed by a colored cook. During the lightening process, necessary to get the Centennial off the reef near Manila on her outward trip, a quantity of government stores, to the value of $13,000, had to be jettisoned, and were eagerly appropriated by the Filipinos, who swarmed about the reef, and made more than one attack for the purpose of capturing the vessel and crew. Upon her return trip to this port, the Centennial brought a number of invalided officers and men from various regiments.

Both Duelists Dead.

Dallas, Aug. 14.—A duel, fatal to both participants, took place here yesterday between Policeman A. P. Rawlings and Charles A. Daniels. Fourty-five-calibre revolvers were the weapons, the distance three paces. Rawlings lived 10 minutes and Daniels an hour after the shooting. Rawlings was drunk, and a friend was trying to induce him to go home, when Daniels crossed the street and sat down in front of a store. Rawlings pointed his finger at Daniels and said, with an oath: "There sits a coward." This was repeated three times before Daniels got up from his chair and approached Rawlings. Not a half dozen words were spoken before the shooting began.

SEVERE BLOW

Dreyfus Will Lose Case by Labori's Absence.

The Event Now Looked Upon as a National Calamity.

Advocate Had Just Recovered From Typhoid Fever.

Nerves Overcome and In Bad Condition to Withstand Shock.

Ex-President Casimir-Perier and General Mercier Snarl at Each Other In Court.

London, Aug. 15.—The correspondent of The Times at Rennes, who comments upon the "prodigious drama being enacted here," and the "loss to the Dreyfus cause through the disablement of Labori," says: There is a terribly suggestive timeliness in the crime. If the fates had been combining against Dreyfus they could not have armed a more efficient agent of their designs than the unknown man who shot Labori just as he was about to riddle with shot and shatter with his invective, irony and scorn the last arguments of the public accuser, Mercier.

It was a master stroke. The one indispensable man was thrown hors du combat just at the moment when most was expected of him. I do not exaggerate the general impression when I affirm that with Labori absent the bottom seems to have dropped out of the defense. The examination of Mercier by Maitre Demange was one of the weakest exhibitions of forensic ingenuity and presence of mind which it is possible to conceive. Mercier, Billot and Cavaignac, with the others, held the floor just as their predecessors in the trial of 1894, while the prisoner was left almost without defense.

Doubtless Maitre Demange is a great lawyer, and he may well have been upset by the terrible events, but his formal and antiquated methods stood him in sad stead yesterday, and it was yesterday that was most dreaded by all the adversaries of Dreyfus.

Then, to cap all, Mercier called upon Mme. Labori to proffer his sympathy. It must be remembered that M. Labori had but just recovered from the typhoid fever; and his ardent, nervous organization, overstrung by the tension of this trial, is in a bad condition for combatting a fresh shock. The worst news would surprise no one. For reasons which I am bound not to give the event is a national calamity.

Emily Crawford, in a copyright Associated Press dispatch, says that the drama at Rennes grows tragical by the well-nigh successful attempt to kill M. Labori. The would-be assassin was evidently a crank, and looked like a workman. His weapon was a revolver, the theatre of the crime the quay Pichemont. It was while Labori was going to the court, with Colonel Picquart and his cousin, M. Gast.

Colonel Picquart describes the would-be murderer as swarthy and thick-set, resolute and intelligent looking. The country around Rennes is a country of small, patchy fields, separated by hedges, which he was evidently familiar with. Apparently he knew places in the thicket into which he could dive, and, in doing so, remained concealed for some time from a pursuer. The gendarmes that Colonel Picquart met joined in the pursuit, but fleet running and knowledge of the locality enabled the would-be murderer to escape.

Maitre Labori is young, fair, handsome and full of lusty life and high spirits. His talents as a speaker are not of the highest order, but no other member of the Paris bar knows better how to use law to defeat its object. He can drive a motor car through the code. Until he pleaded for Zola his luck was uninterrupted. He then had an attack of typhoid fever, which greatly weakening him, and forced him to neglect business. The Zola affair was a great advertisement, but it brought him no direct profit, and created for him endless enemies. He refused the handsome fee the novelist offered; nor does he accept pecuniary reward from Dreyfus.

I heard of the attempted assassination as I was entering a corridor leading to the hall of justice in the Lycee. There I saw Madame Labori rushing from the opposite direction, with a surgeon in military uniform beside her, and a following of other persons. All had an air of intentness. Their thoughts certainly did not run on the Dreyfus case. Then officers and police rushed out of the guard room, and ran in the same direction.

The president of the Association of Legal Journals, M. Taunay, well known as the organizer of the international press congress, jumped upon a table and exclaimed: "M. Labori has been fired at and wounded."

The announcement caused a deep hush. Solemn silence reigned for perhaps three or four minutes. Possibly it was the silence of stupor, for all seemed stunned. At length the nationalists and Dreyfusites declared their horror of the crime and their sympathy with the victim.

The sitting was adjourned for a short time to enable Maitre Demange to inquire after Labori's condition. During the proceedings pending the inquiry the ladies grew excited and communicated their nervousness to the gentlemen. As a precaution against canes and parasols being used in a faction fight, a gendarme was sent around to take them into his care. This led to masculine protests and much feminine cackle, but the gendarme insisted.

The court then entered, Colonel Jouaust, the president of the tribunal, alluding to some manifestation of opinion last Sunday in the press tribune, threatening to clear it if either approval or disapproval of any witness was expressed there. He then ordered the confrontation of M. Casimir-Perier and General Mercier.

These witnesses were more a cat and dog than before. Casimir-Perier seemed like one of those fussy mongrels that one sees on the box of a French peasant's market cart. The dog sits beside the driver, looking intently forward and ready to pick a quarrel with no matter whom. He seems to think he runs the whole concern.

Casimir-Perier spoke of himself only—of what he did and said when president. He often snubbed Mercier verbally and by almost turning his back upon him. He had little to say of the Dreyfus affair.

General Mercier paid him back in scratches that almost drew blood.

General Billot sat while making his long deposition. He still believes Dreyfus guilty, but gave no strong reason. He said that Colonel Picquart systematically, as head of the intelligence department, kept back all new facts unfavorable to Dreyfus and stifled inquiry.

How Tupper Would Have It.

London, Aug. 15.—Sir Charles Tupper, who arrived at Liverpool yesterday, when interviewed regarding the Alaskan affair, strongly urged two alternatives, either that the United States should submit the controversy to arbitration or that Canada should construct a railway to Dawson City, thus opening up a purely Canadian line of communication with the gold fields. There was little doubt, he contended, that the United States would recognize the force of the latter alternative and would accept arbitration. Otherwise he would favor closing the gold fields against citizens of the United States.

Paris Leaves Falmouth.

Falmouth, Eng., Aug. 15.—The American line steamer Paris, recently pulled off the rocks near Coverack, left here under her own steam yesterday, aided by several tugs. She is bound for Milford Haven, where she will be docked for repairs. Divers have been working on her day and night for weeks past, sheathing and caulking the damaged portions of her hull.

Meteor Dropped Out.

Portsmouth, Eng., Aug. 15.—The Royal Albert Yacht club regatta, off Southsea, opened with a race between the yachts Bona, Rainbow, and Emperor William's Meteor. While trying to weather the Bona, the Meteor carried away her foresail gear, and gave up the race.

An Alleged Traitor.

Vienna, Aug. 15.—August Hosetig, a government railroad official, has been arrested for stealing the emergency mobilization plans, which he delivered to a man named Pziboworski, who is said to have communicated them to agents of France and Russia.

Henderson Didn't Consult Reed.

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 15.—A trusted friend of Mr. Henderson denies the statement in a Washington special to the New York Tribune that Henderson wrote ex-Speaker Reed on the subject of the speakership committees and other matters and received no reply. He says that to his personal knowledge Mr. Henderson, though his relations with Mr. Reed are still most friendly, has not written to him on this or any other subject since becoming a candidate for speaker.

Ohio Town Badly Scorched.

Cleveland, Aug. 15.—Fire destroyed a large part of the business section of Berea, a village 14 miles southwest of this city. Twenty-one business places were burned. They were mainly two-story frame structures. The fire started from an explosion of gasoline in a bicycle repair shop, and as a high wind was blowing the flames spread with great rapidity. The loss will be about $100,000, with no insurance.

SHOT DOWN HIS WIFE

Vermont Man Than Killed Her Mother and a Man.

Tried to Murder Latter's Wife, but Failed.

Went Gunning For His Brother-In-Law and Then Left Town.

Middlebury, Vt., Aug. 15.—Last evening a man named Eastwood hired a team here and went to East Middlebury, a short distance from here, to the residence of his wife, who lived with her mother there, and shot his wife and her mother, killing both.

He then rapidly drove back to this town, went to the residence of Frank Fenn, driver of a team for Marshall & Co., and deliberately shot him through the heart. He next fired at the murdered man's wife, but did not kill her, the bullet grazing her head.

He then went to the residence of E. D. Brown, brother of his wife, and tried to find Brown, evidently with the intention of shooting him. Eastwood has not been seen or heard of here since. A watch is being kept around here for him.

An officer boarded the sleeper here last night going south, but did not see anyone he suspected until a few minutes before the train arrived at Brandon. This man was outside the door of one of the vestibule cars, when Conductor Amblo saw him and shouted to him to come inside. The man began to cry, and the conductor tried to drag him in, but he refused to come.

Mr. Amblo then called the officer, who threatened to shoot the man if he did not come in. Just as the train was slowing up at Brandon the conductor made another effort to drag the man in, and in the scuffle which followed the man would have fallen off the train if the conductor had not held to his wrists. Just as the train stopped the man broke away, jumped from the car and fled. Conductor Amblo describes the man as a large person, wearing a brown coat, light trousers and a calico shirt. His hat was blown off during the scuffle.

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Growth In Northern New England Retarded, but Southern Portion Benefited.

Boston, Aug. 15.—The following bulletin is issued by the United States department of agriculture, New England section, climate and crop service, for the week ending Aug. 14:

The weather during the past week was favorable to crop conditions in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, and in some sections of Vermont. The rain of the 10th and 11th was, in most instances, generous in amount and timely, resulting in great benefit to all vegetation. Little rain fell in the northern portion of the district, where it is greatly needed. The weather, especially at night, has been too cool in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont for corn and potatoes, and crops generally.

The temperature ranged several degrees lower in all sections than during the preceding week. The average for the district was 65 degrees, which is 6 degrees lower than for the week ending Aug. 7. The mercury fell to the frost point in numerous sections of Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire, but without damage to vegetation. It dropped to within 4 to 6 degrees of freezing in several localities in the lowlands of Maine.

Copious rains fell in southern New England on the 10th and 11th; also in coast sections north to Portland. The largest amounts were noted in eastern Massachusetts. Only light showers occurred in the more northern sections of the district. The average precipitation for New England was one inch, or double that of the preceding seven days.

The seasonal temperature of the week with the plentiful supply of rain of the 10th and 11th has improved the general conditions of all growing crops in southern New England. With few exceptions the precipitation was sufficient for present needs and in many cases to last corn and vegetables to maturity. In many sections the rain was most timely, and without which certain crops would have suffered great injury and in others total loss. More moisture will be shortly needed for pastures and meadows and for fall plowing and seeding. Also to replenish streams, springs and wells.

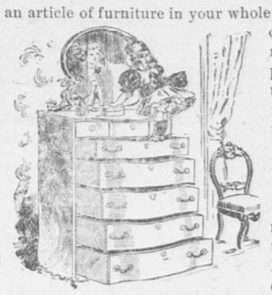

The conditions are less satisfactory in the greater portion of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. There are some sections in these states where little or no rain has fallen for the past two to four weeks, and some crops have reached a critical condition. The drought is becoming especially severe in parts of Piscataquis, Washington and Waldo counties, Me. The correspondent at Foxcroft, Me., reports that the ground is like an ash heap; in other sections it is described as a bed of dust.

The dry weather is also seriously felt in many sections of New Hampshire and Vermont, though the need of rain in these states is not so great as in Maine. The cool weather has also served to retard crop growth in the northern states. Reports indicate that light frosts were of general occurrence in favorable localities on the 8th and 9th, mostly in lowlands of northern New England.

Van Wyck For President.

Saratoga, Aug. 15.—Augustus Van Wyck left Saratoga last night, and it is announced that friends who have been interested in the presentation of his name as a candidate before the Democratic national committee for the presidency will hold a conference at the Hoffman House, New York city, next Friday night. The conference, it is announced, will be presided over by Judge Joseph J. Willett of Alabama.

Chiffonieres

There's a world of comfort in owning a chiffoniere. Not an article of furniture in your whole house adds more to the convenience of living, and nothing is so pleasant as to possess the "know where to find things." The chiffoniere idea was a happy thought—in it you have a lots of drawer room, with a place for everything and everything in its place. To own a chiffoniere, makes one wonder how they ever lived without one. In beautiful golden oak, quartered oak, mahogany, bird's eye maple and birch we have a large variety.

Principal Assessor Hodges, in his interview with a Boston paper, makes a fatal admission when he says the valuation is excessive this year. If the property is over-valued, as he says, who is to blame but the Assessors of 1899, of which he is chairman. As assessors it was their sworn duty to tax property for what it was worth, not what it was assessed for in the flourishing times of a few years ago. The taxpayers were led to believe this would be done when Mayor Keith said in his inaugural address:

"Equalization of taxes is the great point to be accomplished. This is not gained by raising or lowering of valuations indiscriminately. Regard should be had to what property will bring if purchased for investment. Regard should be had for what property will produce or may be made to produce. * * * The fixing of the tax rate is only an incident, not the object of the Assessors. They are sworn to assess the property of the city according to law; they should do thatand let the tax rate take care of itself. I hope to be able to notify you soon of the appointment of a board of Assessors who will make their assessments in harmony with these views."

The Mayor of Quincy in his appointments has sole authority; no confirmation by City Council being required. When Mayor Keith on January appointed Hon. William A. Hodges principal assessor, and the following as assistants—John Federhen, 3d, Thomas F. Drake, John Curtis, James A. White, Henry G. Fay and Elijah G. Hall—it was supposed that he had appointed a board "in harmony with his views."

The questions now arise: Has the board fulfilled expectations? Did it have regard for "what property will bring if purchased for investment? Has it by poor judgment valued property for more than it is worth?

Taxpayers must wait for their tax bills to find out. But in his interview, Principal Assessor Hodges makes fatal admissions. If the tax rate should be $20, as he is inclined to think it ought to be, why is it not $20? Instead of a reduction in the valuation, the Assessors of 1899 made an increase of $447,487, the largest gain with two exceptions for six years. A larger increase than in the big city of Lowell with a population of 35,000. A larger increase than in the cities of Malden, Newburyport, Marlboro, Woburn, Melrose, Salem, Haverhill, Northampton, Taunton, Gloucester, Lynn, or Chelsea. The 1899 increases of valuation in some of the cities and large towns may be of interest:

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Those who find fault because of the number of vacations taken by the president do not stop to think that they are merely a change of scene and air. The president cannot excape from much of his responsibility, no matter where he goes, and he probably does much more work every day of his so-called vacation than his critics do. Emergencies are constantly occurring and the president must be ready to meet them, no matter where he is. —New Britain Herald.

☞ One does not need to read the cheap stuff which is offered as summer reading. There are, indeed, good books put forth every summer, but there are more poor ones. And it is so easy to find in the treasurers of the past works which moth and dust do not corrupt, though where they are thieves do break in and steal. But those who have not tried the plan of reading over some of the old standard works in the summer will find it a scheme well worthy of consideration.—New York Times.

☞ It seems rather queer to read of a private corporation willing to light the public street of the town where it is situated with electricity, free of charge, and yet that is what the National Enameling and Stamping Company of Portland, Conn., proposes to do. It has the plant and the willingness, and as the streets which it proposes to light are mostly occupied by its own employes, we suppose its for their benefit the company does it. But its a rare thing, and ought to be set down to the credit of the concern.—Ansonia Sentinel.

☞ Secretary Root has given the country a refreshing inspiration in his announced change of plans, which will substitute aggressive Americanism for dilly-dallying officialism. If the war can be brought to a close in early winter, the whole question of the future government of the islands will come before congress and rest with that body to settle. President McKinley still has the confidence of his countrymen, and it has been greatly stengthened by the recent change in the war department and the avowal that the war is going to be vigorously prosecuted.—Beverly Times.

☞ If San Franciscos' new system of primaries has resulted in turning down both the Republican and Democratic bosses, as claimed, it should be instantaneously adopted thoughout the county. Under boss rule it is next to impossible to secure an honest expression of the sentiment of the people, and the best efforts of the voters are often thwarted by the manipulators of party machinery. Instead of the attendants at a caucus conducting it according to the concensus of opinion there represented, as a rule the voters merely give mechanical assents to men and measures that have been selected and brought forward by some boss, or a few men who are enabled to agree on the lines of bossism, whether they like it or not. —Lynn Item.

Over 700 Trains per Day.

The trains of the Providence division of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. will leave the Terminal station within three weeks, Sept. 3 being the date set. The passenger business on the Providence division is handled by 271 trains on week days and 72 trains on Sundays, while in addition a number of specials are run from time to time. The present service at the big terminal requires 466 trains on week days and 123 on Sundays, and when the Providence division trains are added the total in the first instance will be 737, and in the second 195, which mean a greater number of train movements at the South terminal than is made at any other railroad station in the world. The tracks set apart for the exclusive use of the Providence division are 8 to 15.

—The Plant line is careful for the safety of its passengers and La Grande Duchesse which started from Boston Saturday for Halifax, laid at anchor near Long Island that night because of the fog.

Both Discharged in Court This Morning.

House Was Moved Because Contractor Could Not Collect.

The celebrated case where Alfred Shaw and William Cavanagh were arrested for the larceny of a house at Norfolk Downs has finally been disposed of by the discharge of the defendants.

In this case it will be remembered that Mr. Shaw, a builder took a contract to build a house at Norfolk Downs. When the building had reached a certain stage, a payment was to be made. When that time came Mr. Shaw was unable to get any money. He then found that the land and building had been mortgaged for more than it was worth and seeing little prospect of getting any money for his work he appeared upon the scene one afternoon with Mr. Cavanagh. The latter gentleman brought a gang of men, several teams of moving blocks and preparations were made to move the building. The building was jacked up, and while some kept watch for anyone who would interfere with the proceedings, the house was moved off the land. The crowd, who sympathized with Mr. Shaw encouraged the workmen by their cheers. It was a bright moonlight night and before midnight the house was on another lot of land.

Not long after both Mr. Shaw and Mr. Cavanagh were arrested for the larceny of the building. The case was never heard in the criminal court, as civil action was brought. While this action was pending the criminal case was continued from time to time, until this morning, when it was disposed of as noted above.

The civil side of the affair was a bill in equity brought by Anderson and the mortgagee to compel Shaw and Cavanagh to move the building back. The defendants offered in court to move the building back if the amount of Shaw's claim was paid, and if proper security was given for the payment of the balance of the contract to complete it.

A compromise was made and the building moved back, the mortgage held by one King, on the house and land, were assigned to a friend of Shaw's, who promptly foreclosed and the property was purchased by the A. T. Stearns Lumber Co. who had advanced $700 in lumber.

While Mr. Shaw will not get all the case has cost him, he has the satisfaction of knowing that he came out victorious in the case.

W. W. Jenness, Esq., appeared as counsel for Messrs. Shaw and Cavanagh.

Work of Quincy Artist.

The wisdom and generosity of the first mayor of Boston will be appreciated by a grateful public, says the Transcript, when the old stone statue of Colonel Cass, commander of the "Fighting Ninth" during the civil war, is replaced in the Public Garden by a new bronze figure, designed and cast in Paris. The new statue, which is paid for out of the Phillips fund, for the establishment of statues in the parks of Boston, is the work of Richard G. Brooks of Quincy, whose studio is in Paris. Mr. Brooks, the only American sculptor to be thus honored for some years, was given a medal by the Paris Salon for a plaster model of the Cass statue. Mr. Brooks was also given an honorable mention by the Salon in 1895 for the excellence of his work.

The Cass statue is the first public monument that Mr. Brooks has made. It has been in the custom house for several months now, waiting for the pedestal to be finished. Above the pedestal the statue will stand eight feet.

L. A. W. in Quincy.

The first party of L. A. W. wheel men, who are making the run to Nantasket today, arrived in Quincy at 10.45. There were a few over one hundred in the party. A brief halt was made at the fountain in City Square, where they refreshed themselves with Nashua river water. Others visited the soda fountains in the vicinity and dropped a few nickels for soda. Some of the riders seemed surprised and disappointed because they could not get a glass of beer. A second party of over two hundred was to leave Boston this afternoon for a run to Nantasket and if they are on time should reach Quincy by 3 o'clock. Over 5,000 had registered at the headquarters in Boston up to Monday night.

—Republican caucuses will be held in Boston, Sept. 26, the first of the two dates allowed.

WHO WILL ANSWER?

Some Knotty Questions Relative to the Boulevard.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Could the public be informed through your columns if the appropriation made by the Legislature in the spring is to be used for the construction of the Quincy boulevard?

If it is to be used for that purpose, why is not work already begun on it?

Has not Quincy been waiting long enough for something decisive to be made in the arrangement? Since the boulevard was originally projected for Quincy there have been extensive completions in other quarters of boulevard structures. Why were these latter accomplished and Quincy left out in the cold?

Is it not true that interested and public-spirited citizens in the favored localities have pushed matters and secured the improvements? Have we such in Quincy who are interesting themselves? or is this appropriation doomed "to go up in smoke," to be grasped for the benefit of some other location where public spirit is alive?

Surely about this matter which has been kept very quiet since the spring, the public has a right to have some information. If we have right-up-and-going citizens looking after it, it will do no harm to know it, and if we have not, it seems as though we had better have some appointed as soon as possible, that the boulevard may be accomplished without subjection to further delay. Boulevard.

Paper from Natal.

A copy of the Natal Mercury of Durban, Africa, of April 20, has just reached the Ledger. Herbert May, a brother of Ethel May of Altantic has been at work on the paper. He was about 1860 a compositor in the Quincy Patriot office. The Mercury is a 12-page daily paper printed in English; and numerous advertisements show considerable business. Nearly a page was devoted to the unveiling ceremony of the diamond jubilee statue to Her Magesty Queen Victoria which cost £1900 exclusive of freight. An editorial comment of the Mercury is of interest:

"It is almost a truism that the Colonies are in every sense as loyal to her Majesty as is the Old Country itself. The large measure of freedom enjoyed in British Colonies—greater than that obtained under any other rule—has naturally given free play to national sentiment and the Jubilee and Diamond Jubilee of her Majesty afforded ample evidence of the patriotic appreciation on the part of British subjects the world over of the mild and benign sovereignty of the Queen. In Natal these celebrations were as heartily entered into as in larger and more thickly populated parts of Queen Victoria's dominions, and a statue of her Majesty, unveiled in the Durban Town Gardens by his Excellency the Governor, yesterday, is the outcome of the Diamond Jubilee celebration."

Natal is on the southeastern coast of Africa. The Transaval republic and Zululand are on the north, the Orange Free State on the west, and Kaffraria on the south.

BEAUTIFUL TRIP.

Mr. Albert Keating Writes from Newfoundland.

Current Island, Newfoundland, August 8th, 1899.

Editors Quincy Daily Ledger:

I left Boston, Saturday, July 29, upon the S S. La Grande Duchesse and arrived at Halifax, N. S., Sunday night. Sailed Monday morning and arrived at Hawksberry Monday night. Took the Steamer Marion same night through "Bras de Or Lakes" and arrived at Sydney Tuesday night, at 10 o'clock, then in the morning took Steamer Harlaw for Newfoundland and I am still on board, and have just got to her journey's end two hundred miles beyond the last place I can mail a letter. We have just turned her bow, on her return.

The Labrador coast can be plainly seen from the ship's deck. I have not slept on shore but one night since I left home ten days ago. There are only three other passengers on board; they got on when I did at Sydney. We have taken on and left, a great many at the different points along Newfoundland coast going up. The other three are Mr. and Mrs. Frazer of West Virginia, who are just taking the round trip for pleasure, and Mr. Reed of Quebec, who has a large wrecking steamer working upon the wrecked English steamer Gangus. We passed her on our way up, the weather being so rough we could not stop, but will in the morning going down.

This trip is one of the most beautiful that one can take. The whole coast is attractive. Mountain after mountain, over one thousand feet high, and a great many two and three thousand feet above the level of the sea, and covered with snow. While in one of the ports Mrs. Frazer and two gentlemen climbed to the top of one, twenty-four hundred feet high. In their ascent they passed large fields of snow, which could be plainly seen by us. The inhabitants have christened it Frazer mountain, in honor of her; she being the only woman known to have gone to the top.

If any one contemplates a sea trip next summer they should take this one The steamer makes only one trip a month. It is getting rather cold here. now to take one this season. At Bay of Islands we took on the member of Parliment for this district and he was assigned a berth in my state room and jolly good room mate he proved to be. We left him at the last port, port Saunders.

On Tuesday evening, Aug. 8, we left Current Island and put into a cove inside of where the wrecked steamer lay, and came out a little after daylight next morning and went to the wreck and anchored in order to put Mr. Reed, the owner of the wrecking steamer on to the wreck. The captain of the Harlaw and the four passengers mentioned above, went out on to the wreck and it was a grand treat.

The wrecked steamer was very large, and had on a valuable cargo; was bound from Quebec to England. This steamer the Harlaw, was the first one to go to her after she was wrecked and took off all on board, and five thousand boxes of cheese. While on board the wrecking steamer, Mrs. Frazer was very much attracted by the divers suits and said she would go down to the bottom if they would put it on to her. So the diver did and she was lowered over board; went to the bottom and brought up shells. It was a very courageous act, and one never known to have been done by a woman, or at least by any of the diver's officers or passengers.

At every port or stopping place, for not half of them have wharves, we just dropped anchor. Lobster and salmon canning factories are at every place, and we have taken on hundreds and hundreds of cases; brought out to the steamer in boats.

If one wants to see human nature as it is nowhere else, you ought to come here. We are picking up a great many workmen who are going home, as the canning season is over.

I only wish I could describe to you as I see it. I have come up the coast over four hundred miles and stopped at a great many places, and have not seen one horse. All their travel is by boats in the summer and by Esquimo dogs in the winter, most every family have from one to five dogs. There are no streets—just narrow foot paths from house to house.

On our up trip we had on three explorers; one going to Labrador one to the main land of Newfoundland and one was set off in his boat for an island without a living person on it. He had his provisions and his man Friday. The passengers were all very intelligent and interesting.

It was my intention to leave the steamer at Bonne Bay and join my nephew Mr. Edward Sheldon, whose business, is along the Newfoundland coast in a forty-five ton yacht. I found him there Sunday and as he was not to sail till Thursday, the officers and passengers urged me to go on with them as the steamer would stop there on her way down.

Too much cannot be said for the comforts of the steamer and of its pleasant officers. They give a great deal of time and attention toward making it pleasant and interesting to passengers. The table is excellent. When I get back to Bonne Bay, and join Mr. Sheldon, we will go right over the same route that I have been in the steamer, and if it is not too rough, or cold, we shall go to the Labrador coast.

I am going to send this letter by the steamer to be mailed and I don't expect to see another chance to send a letter home for a great while.

Albert Keating.

LOUISIANA LYNCHING

Brings Up a Controversy Over the Subject of Naturalization.

Review of Compacts Regulating Rights of Immigrants.

Exceptions to Section Requiring Five Years' Residence Preliminary to Citizenship.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The controversy now in progress with Italy over the lynching affair in Louisiana promising to turn upon the question whether the victims have duly transferred their allegiance from Italy to the United States, it is of interest to review the understandings between the United States and various foreign powers on the general subject. Treaties regulating the rights of naturalized immigrants have been concluded with Austria, Baden, Bavaria, Belgium, Denmark, Ecuador, Great Britain, Hesse-Darmstadt, the North German Union, Sweden and Norway, and Wurtemburg.

The treaties with Austria and the states now included in the German empire provide that their citizens or subjects who have become naturalized in the United States and resided here "uninterruptedly" for five years, shall be held and treated as citizens of the United States. The treaty with Sweden and Norway provides for similar treatment of immigrants who have resided here "for a continuous period of at least five years and during such residence become naturalized citizens of the United States." All the other treaties recognize citizenship whenever acquired under our laws.

We require five years' residence preliminary to naturalization except in five cases, and in these consists the difference between the terms of the two sets of treaties. Our exceptions are: First, soldiers honorably discharged from our army, who are permitted to naturalize without any previous declaration of intention or more than one year's residence here; second, seamen who have served three years on an American merchant vessel after declaration of intention; third, the minor children of naturalized persons, if dwelling here; fourth, the children of citizens, though born out of the country; fifth, the wives of citizens and of immigrants who have declared their intention.

The treaties generally provide that "the declaration of the intention to become a citizen of one or the other country has not for either party the effect of naturalization." Besides this, our laws forbid the issue of passports to persons who are not full citizens. Some of the treaties provide that if a citizen or subject of the other power, after naturalization here, renews his allegiance without the intent to return to the United States, he shall be held to have renounced his naturalization here. Renunciation is assumed in the case of even native-born citizens who leave the country obviously with no intention to return.

As to the countries with which we have no naturalization treaties, all information must be gathered from their works of jurisprudence, their statute books, etc. In France, Italy, Russia and Turkey, it is held that a citizen or subject cannot expatriate himself without obtaining the consent of his government. In Switzerland there is a modified assumption of perpetual citizenship, which takes the form rather of preserving to a Swiss citizen and to his descendants certain rights and privileges there, than of preserving to the government its right to make demands upon him; indeed, it has been held in Switzerland that naturalization in the United States, when preceded by an accepted renunciation of Swiss allegiance, dissolves such allegiance.

AN APPEAL TO COVERNORS

To Ask Citizens of Their States to Contribute Toward Relief of Porto Ricans.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Secretary Root has sent an appeal to governors to aid in furnishing relief to the Porto Rican storm sufferers. General Weston, chief commissary, is establishing supply stations at Savannah, Atlanta, New York and Chicago, for the purpose of receiving and caring for relief stores. The following has been sent to the governors of the several states:

"I enclose herewith copies of two telegraphic dispatches received from the governor general of Porto Rico, by which it appears that the devastation wrought by the recent hurricane in that island is even greater than was at first supposed. It is evident that a great multitude of people, rendered utterly destitute by this awful calamity, must be fed and cared for during a considerable period, until they can have the opportunity to produce food for themselves. Enormous quantities of supplies of the kinds indicated by the governor general must be procured.

"The magnitude of the work to be accomplished leads this department to supplement the appeal already made to the mayors of the principal cities of the country, by a more general appeal, and I beg you to ask the people of your state to contribute generously to the relief of the people of Porto Rico.

"Swift steamers have been provided to leave the port of New York to carry the supplies directly to Porto Rico as rapidly as they can be collected.

"Contributions should be either in supplies of the character indicated or in money, in order that the supplies can be purchased. The supplies should be sent to Colonel F. B. Jones, army building, foot of Whitehall street, New York city, in packages plainly marked "Porto Rican Relief," and he should be consulted as to time of shipment. Money should be sent to the National Bank of North America, New York city, which has been designated as a depository for the relief fund."

Our Imports and Exports.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The monthly statement of the imports and exports of the United States shows that during July the imports of merchandise amounted to $59,925,178, of which nearly $26,000,000 was free of duty. The increase, as compared with July, 1898, was about $9,000,000. The exports of domestic merchandise during July amounted to $92,958,468, an increase of over $20,000,000. During the seven months of the calendar year the dutiable imports of merchandise exceeded those of the corresponding period in 1898 by nearly $33,000,000, and the domestic exports were nearly $8,000,000 less than for the corresponding months in 1898. For the seven months the gold exports exceeded the imports by nearly $4,000,000. For the seven months the silver exports exceeded the imports by nearly $14,000,000.

Not an Unmixed Blessing.

Washington, Aug. 15.—E. S. Holmes, Jr., an expert of the statistical bureau of the department of agriculture, has just completed a report embodying the results of a tour of the flood devastated region of Texas and making a careful estimate of the damage done, the aggregate of which he places at $7,414,000. The number of farms submerged is estimated at 8100, with a total area of about 1,380,000 acres. Of this area there was about 503,000 acres under cultivation. While the crops over a very large area were practically destroyed, the effect of the rains on the upland crops will be highly beneficial.

Quiet In San Domingo.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The navy department has been greatly relieved by a dispatch from Captain Lengnecker, who commands the cruiser New Orleans, now at San Domingo, referring to his vessel and the Machias. The dispatch gives definite assurance that all is well with the two ships. It also states that quiet prevails in San Domingo, at least at those points which can be reached by the warships, as the Machias has been patrolling along the shore for some distance.

Bids Were Too High.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The navy department has decided to reject all the bids made Saturday for the New York navy yard engineering shops, which will replace those destroyed by fire, as all the bids exceeded the appropriation by about $200,000. The lowest was $519,306, but the limit of appropriation is $325,000. New specifications will be made and new bids called for.

GRAND FIELDING CONTEST

In Which the Porkopolitans Are Finally Vanquished by the Champions.

Boston, Aug. 15.—After a record achievement of 14 straight wins from clubs of all degree, Buck Ewing's Cincinnati Reds ended their spurt in a brilliant engagement with the Bostons. A lively crowd saw the battle. It was a grand fielding contest. A triple play by Steinfeldt and McPhee in the first inning was the brightest bit of the day in a fielding way. Coming with the bases full, it was calculated to put a damper on Bostons' hopes.

Theory of Brooklyn Detectives.

New York, Aug. 25.—Detectives in Brooklyn are reported as expressing the opinion that Frank H. Shaw, whose body was cast up by the tide at Scarborough beach, R. I., may have been killed in a catboat that was seen off Ulmer park at Bay Ridge the night of the day he disappeared. Two men came to the pier at the park in a catboat, had some drinks at a hotel and afterwards reappeared with a third man answering somewhat to Shaw's description. The third man was drunk, and his companions took him aboard the catboat, which sailed away and went up the East river. Officers are following this clue.

Wheelmen Having a Good Time.

Boston, Aug. 15.—The arrivals to the L. A. W. meet yesterday were rather smaller than had been anticipated, numbering probably not more than 1000. Philadelphia sent a large delegation, and a numerous party came from Montreal. Headquarters were formally opened at Hotel Brunswick, and the various committees were busy assigning quarters to the delegates, distributing badges and attending to minor details. The local press committee gave a banquet last evening to some 25 visiting press representatives at the Revere House, and there were several moonlight runs through the Back Bay Fens and the suburbs. A number of the clubs gave lawn parties or entertainments last night, and everything possible is being done for the comfort and enjoyment of the visitors. The first races occur tomorrow.

Columbia Takes the Cup.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 15.—Columbia added another victory to her record yesterday by defeating Defender 13m. 7s. over a 38-mile course, and Amorita defeated Colonia, Quisetta and Ariel in the schooner class, finishing 12 seconds ahead of Colonia, which was second boat, and winning the race by 1m. 14s., corrected time. These races, which brought together the fastest sloops and schooners on this side of the water were given in conjunction with the cruise of the New York Yacht club. The prizes were two cups, valued at $500 and $1000 each, for the sloop and schooner classes.

Un Co-operative Plan.

Toledo, Aug. 15.—The Brotherhood company, incorporated yesterday at Columbus, has been organized to place in operation the greatest co-operative scheme ever attempted in the country. The brotherhood proposes to distribute stock over the country in small amounts, the investor being protected by co-operative life insurance. The plan includes a great amount of educational work, and it is proposed to do much in the way of building cities and placing co-operative farming communities. In every place where the sentiment has developed, the projectors propose establishing a colony. The first of these colonies will be established on the shores of Lake Erie, near this city.

Possible Solution of Race Problem.

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 15.—E. J. Young, colored, general secretary for the People's Benevolent and Relief association of North Carolina, has a practical method for solving the race problem. He proposes to organize a colonization society in North Carolina. The society proposes to buy up waste land where it can be secured in large tracts, far away from any railroad, and to divide this land into 10 and 20 acre farms and settle families there, where they may thrive by honest toil.

Appeal to Charitable Women.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 15.—The wife of General Henry, former military governor of Porto Rico, has issued an appeal to the women of the United States to form auxiliaries of the Colonial Aid society of the United States and have made immediately garments to be sent to the destitute women and children in Porto Rico.

Yellow Jack Squelched.

GIVE THE CHILDREN A DRINK

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about 1-4 as much as coffee. 15 and 25c.

ECONOMICAL

Cheap, common soaps are the most expensive in the end. They slowly but surely rot the threads, fade the colors and eat holes in your clothes.

FAIRBANK'S FAIRY SOAP

is absolutely pure and safe. It contains no resin to gum the clothes, no alkali to rot them or fade the colors, no impurity of any kind to injure the daintiest fabric. FAIRY SOAP is, therefore, the cheapest in the end. It is the purest and best floating White Soap made—the soap of the century.

Three convenient sizes for toilet, bath and laundry use.

It is claimed that, while it has the required properties of ether, chloroform, nitrous oxide gas, it lacks the disagreeable and dangerous qualities of these drugs. It is certainly a boon to suffering humanity to be relieved of the nausea too often following the administering of sedatives of the old school.—Boston Transcript.

HIS POCKETS RIFLED.

Labori's Assailants Tried to Gain Possession of Valuable Documents.

Evidence of Plot In Which Many Were Implicated.

Doctors Extremely Hopeful of the Advocate's Speedy Recovery.

Rennes, Aug 16.—Complete corroboration has been obtained of the statement that the pockets of Labori's coat were rifled while he was lying on the ground. Not only were the pockets of his coat emptied, but an attempt was made to steal a wallet in which were important papers referring to the court-martial, including his notes for the cross-examination of General Mercier. M. Labori has himself related the incident. He had just fallen and saw one of two men run to his side and heard him say, "His coat must be taken off. He will be too hot."

The speaker then took the wounded lawyer's coat off, and another man seized the wallet. M. Labori, however, retained his presence of mind, and refused to let the wallet be taken out of his hands, putting under his head for a pillow, and holding it with one hand. The coat was shortly afterwards put on again. On arriving at his residence M. Labori asked his wife to look in his pockets to see if their contents were safe. Mme. Labori found the pockets completely emptied. Luckily, the pockets contained only personal letters, including menacing letters received on the previous day. The rifling of the lawyer's pockets, of the papers, and the attempt to steal the wallet, while no effort was made to appropriate his watch or money, are regarded as clear evidence of a plot in which several men were implicated.

The man who actually fired the shot, it appears, was only one part of the machinery of the conspirators. In spite of the extensive search made for the would-be assassin he is still at large, and the impression is gaining ground that he is being aided by the anti- Dreyfus country people, who are concealing him somewhere.

M. Labori was removed last evening to the residence of Professor Bach, in a suburb of Rennes. He stood the journey well, although naturally fatigued. The doctors are extremely hopeful of a speedy recovery, but consider it would be unwise for him to return to court until there is absolutely no danger of a relapse.

Maitre Demange has decided therefore to ask for an adjournment, which has necessitated a written application by both Demange and Dreyfus, who have already sent letters to the president of the courtmartial. Colonel Jouaust will undoubtedly accede to the request, but he cannot grant an adjournment for more than two days, when the application must be renewed. Dreyfus wants the sessions postponed until Monday next, when it is hoped that Labori will be able to be present.

M. Labori lies on his back, unable to move, but life is returning to the leg which was thought to be paralyzed. He has no fever, and continues to discuss the trial. His wife has remained at his bedside practically ever since he was wounded. Naturally she is much relieved at the optimistic reports of the doctors, who hope to see the distinguished lawyer on his feet before the trial is ended.

The doctors in attendance upon M. Labori have sent to Paris for an X-ray apparatus in order to locate the bullet.

The Matin asserts that M. Fabre, the magistrate, now has proofs of a conspiracy against the republican government, and that the Orleanist party has expended considerable sums in Nationalist propaganda.

Discouraging Reports From Philippines.

Manila, Aug. 12, via Hong Kong, Aug. 16.—Arrivals and mail advices from Negros and Cebu agree that the insurrection is gaining strength remarkably in both those islands, which had hitherto been counted as the most friendly in the archipelago, and which received with the greatest cordiality Professor Schurman at the time of his memorable tour. Outbreaks are feared particularly in Cebu, where some of the leading men have gone over to the insurrectionists. Many of the wealthy inhabitants are preparing to leave the islands. Two supreme court justices from Negros and Cebu have gone thither from Manila to use their influence against the insurrection. The results of the autonomist government in Negros are disappointing. Insurgent bands are operating there, destroying much plantation property, claims for which are being presented to General Otis.

San Domingo Is Tranquil.

San Domingo, Aug. 16.—According to government officials tranquility reigns throughout the country. The assassins of President Heureaux are still at large. It is said that the band numbers 16. Although the rate for drafts is falling and there are some signs of returning confidence, business continues dull, and imports are very limited. The school situation is bad. The problem of taking up the paper currency has not yet been solved, as the people in general do not wish it taken up. This is the real cause of the dullness in business. The United States cruiser New Orleans has left San Domingo harbor for Porto Rico. The United States gunboat Machias is still here.

ONE TO NOTHING.

Cincinnatis Too Fast For Champions In a Closely Played Game.

Boston, Aug. 16.—The Boston champions again found the Cincinnatis too fast for them. The only run of the game was scored by the visitors in the first inning, McBride being the lucky rungetter.

Taylor held the champions down to five singles, and never allowed a home player to pass second base. In the last half of the ninth, with Stahl on second and Lowe on the initial base and one man out, there was a chance to tie the score with a base hit, but Taylor made two strike outs.

For Boston Jouett Meekin did the box work, it being his debut with the home team. Meekin pitched good enough to win ordinarily. There is a chance that the ex-giant would not have lost his opening game if a throw of Stahl's in the first round was shot to the mark. Counting out the play the score would have been nothing at all at the finish of the ninth.

Dominican Junta at Gotham.

New York, Aug. 16.—Work of great importance, according to the men interested, is going on here in connection with the revolutionary movement in Santo Domingo. A junta has been formed, whose members are in conference almost constantly, and are supposed to be communicating daily by cable with General Jiminez. The latter, who is in Havana, is directing the work of the revolutionary forces, and arrangements are understood to be in progress for the sending of expeditions from points in the West Indies, and possibly from the United States, to aid in the overthrow of the existing government.

Whitecaps at Work.

Greenwood, S. C., Aug. 16.—The sheriff has appealed to Governor McSweeney for aid in suppressing whitecap outrages. The governor will come to Greenwood to investigate. For more than a week whitecaps have been whipping negroes in this county nearly every night. Certain white men, it is said, desire to get control of the valuable lands leased by negroes and are trying to drive the negroes away. The negroes are said to be in a state of terror and many hide at night in woods and swamps or at the homes of their landlords.

An Extraordinary Ice Blockade.

St. John's, Aug. 16.—The mail steamer Labrador, from Labrador, reports that the entire coast is blockaded with ice floes from the northern extremity south to the straits of Belle Isle. Such a condition is unprecedented in the history of the northern waters. It will not only seriously injure the cod fishing industry, but greatly increases the difficulties for ocean steamers making the passage by way of the straits.

A Bluff From Kruger?

London, Aug. 16.—The Johannesburg correspondent of The Daily Mail, who confirms the report that warrants have been prepared for the arrest of 147 members of the reform party in the Transvaal, of which 22 are urgent, says the date for executing the warrants is uncertain, and that the whole thing is regarded as a bluff.

THE SILVER QUESTION.

Bryan Maintains That It Still Remains the Paramount Issue.

Money Trust Declared to Be Biggest Trust of All.

His Opinion of the Difference Between a Republic and an Empire.

Des Moines, Aug. 16.—An audience of 4500 persons listened to an address by W. J. Bryan here last night. Mr. Bryan reviewed the record of the Republican party, accusing it of putting the dollar above the man. He then took up the silver question, saying prosperity did not set in until six months after the election, when the Klondike gold mines began to be heard from.

The Republicans, he said, who claimed that times were better because the balance of trade was in favor of the United States, gave away their own position and admitted that the Democratic view of the quantitative character of money was correct. The financiers of England controlled the English government, through England the rest of Europe, and through Europe the United States.

The 6,500,000 Democratic voters of the Democratic party in 1896 were for silver. The 7,000,000 Republican voters were for a platform which called for international bimetallism. Only the Palmer and Buckner voters were for the gold standard—less than 1 percent—yet now the Iowa Republican platform went a step farther and was mainly for gold alone. Moreover, the Republicans threatened to retire the greenbacks, though they had never been before the people on that issue.

The speaker next went after the trusts, but said that if the Democratic party neglected the silver question to attend to trusts it would rightly forfeit the confidence of the people. The money trust was the biggest trust of all. He was glad that traveling men were fighting the industrial trusts now, but sorry they had not seen the logic of events in 1896 and helped to fight the money trust then. The men who made trust speeches and applauded them were bankers.

A new danger of the trusts had just been developed. When a trust got control of all of the factories in a given line and the hands in one factory struck the trust would close that one establishment and make its goods at the others. When the workmen at that place were starved to the point of working for any wages offered, that factory would be reopened and a lockout to reduce wages would be inaugurated at another factory.

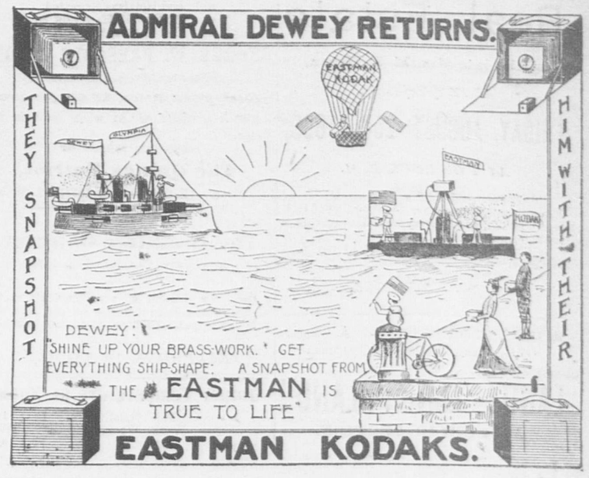

Mr. Bryan closed his speech by a lengthy discussion of imperialism. The difference, he said, between a republic and an empire was this: A republic needed an army of 25,000 for 70,000,000. An empire needed four times that large an army, when 10,000,000 population was added. This suited the young men who got fat jobs in the army, but not the people who paid the $1500 a year needed to maintain each soldier in the Philippines.

Mr. Bryan gave figures to show that England and other nations did not colonize rapidly, and said that with 20 people to the square mile in America, and 60 to the mile in the Philippines, there was no opportunity there. Even if we succeeded in killing off all the natives we could not get young Americans to go there—they preferred to live in Iowa and Nebraska. The profit would not equal the cost and the profit would not go to the right people, but to investment syndicates. Even if any man was willing to trade for pottage, and did not have a taste for birthright, he had better investigate the pottage. As the Tagals were largely Christians and our native allies were mostly Mohammedan, we ought to ask the Sultan of Sulu to help subdue the Christian insurgents.

This government ought to make a declaration of good intentions towards the Philippines, as it did toward Cuba. The president ought to have done so, or if he did not have the power should have asked congress for it. Now he might call a special session to ask for the power. Cleveland called a special session to repeal the Sherman act and McKinley called one. A special session now would cost money, but not nearly so much as the continuance of the war.

Good Afternoon.

The Boston Journal makes amende honorable in publishing the greater part of the Ledger's editorial of Monday, relative to Quincy's city debt and tax rate, under the caption:—"Sharp retort—Quincy Ledger makes warm reply to Faxon interview on increase of tax rate." By the way of preface, in the opening paragraph the Journal says: "The Quincy Daily Ledger of Monday takes vigorous exception to the statements made by Mr. Henry H. Faxon in the interview printed in the Boston Journal relative to the increase of $1.20 per $1,000 in Quincy's tax rate this year." Then follows in full the three paragraphs relative to the tax rate, number of new houses, and sidewalks.

That the people of Quincy appreciate the efforts of its local paper to place the city before the public in a proper light, is shown by the number of endorsements of the Ledger's editorial.

Quincy is not going to the dogs as some pessimists would have the country believe, but quite the reverse. Quincy is one of the most flourishing cities in the East, and is passing others in the race. It is making rapid, yet healthy gain in population, valuation, voters, polls, new houses, taxpayers, public buildings, churches, streets, and all city improvements, and is a desirable residential city. It has pride in its early history, as the birthplace of two Presidents, and of John Hancock, the Quincys and others, but there is need of a little more loyalty and city pride of today. We have a good thing and should advertise it.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ An enterprising Chicagoan with an eye for trade purposes that the Alaskan boundary dispute be settled by exchanging Alaska for Jamaica. This scheme would have some advantages. Jamaica is more in line with our recent stock of tropical possessions, but as Uncle Sam prides himself on the variety of his possessions, it would seem a pity to lose the stock of icebergs and avalanches furnished by Alaska.—Beverly Times.

☞ It shows how our manufacturers can supply the world when Germany comes over here and buys 10,000 tons of pig iron. She goes right by England to do it, which is another proof of the way that American inventiveness and industrial skill are able to make better terms than the slower brains and less intelligent labor of the old world. This purchase occurs when the price of iron is high and going higher, and it is remarkable condition though it does not follow that it will be permanent.—Fitchburg Sentinel.

☞ It is not extremely unwise to make declarations that the white man is bound to "rule" the black man, and that he "ought to?" Such language must needs do far harm more than good. Superior intelligence and virtue need no coarse and rough declaration of purpose to subdue those who do not represent it. This form of speech is essentially selfish, unchristian, and unwise. Yet it is freely employed by men who ought to know better.—Morning Star.

Mr. Eugene Keniley passed away Tuesday night at his home on Quincy street, after a few weeks' illness. Mr. Keniley's trade was that of a stone cutter, which he followed up to a few years ago. He was a great reader, and was well informed upon all matters relating to Quincy, as well as possessing general knowledge on all topics. He leaves four sons and two daughters. Mrs. Keniley passed away several years ago. One of his sons, Jeremiah J. Keniley, is the present Inspector of Plumbing in Quincy.

Gunning and Fishing.

Ex-Commodore Pettengill, Dr. Marden and Bill are off today on a gunning and fishing expedition to Peddock's Island. The commodore and Bill are to catch the fish, and the doctor to shoot the birds. A large catch of fish is expected, which the Commodore will remove from the hooks with his peaked toed shoes, which he has been saving for this occasion. Dr. Marden is an experienced gunner and any birds that he fails to kill with shot, he will finish by biting in the neck, which is a patent way he has. The boys at home are in hopes they will have good luck and bring back a lot of fish and birds.

BEAUTY OF QUINCY.

Seen by Town Officials of Hyde Park and Dedham.

They Were Entertained by John R. Graham.

Trolley Ride, Fish Dinner and Other Attractions.

General Manager Graham of the third division of the Massachusetts Electric Co., entertained the town officers of Dedham and Hyde Park, Tuesday, by a trolley ride to Squantum and dinner at the Squantum Inn, and it is hardly necessary to say that the party thoroughly enjoyed the trip. They were surprised at the charming scenery of the country through which they passed. The ride was a beautiful one and it is safe to say that not a few of those fortunate enough to take the trip will take their families and friends over the same route in the near future.

In the party from Dedham were: Selectman Lester A. Newcomb Overseer of the poor, J. V. Abbott, Joseph Wilson and Andrew J. Noris, assessors, Eben Paul, Henry D. Humphrey; park commissioners, Thomas J. Hannum and Arthur Clark, school committee, Preston P. Mansfield, Don Gleason Hill, Frederick B. Kingsley and Francis L. Babcock; Chief of Police, William F. Drugan; Superintendent of Streets, Joseph Sweeney; George W. Rounds, Superintendent of the West Roxbury and Roslindale railroad; John H. Jennings, Superintendent of the Norfolk Central railroad; Erastus Worthington of the Board of Health, and Postmaster Henry Hutchingson.

From Hyde Park there were Representative W. S. Weston; Selectmen F. B. Rich, F. Y. French, John Johnson, E. O. Dyer and Albert Dunbar; Assessors Thomas E. Faunce and C. F. Morrison; Town Clerk, H. B. Terry; ex-Selectman, S. E. Newall; Superintendent of Streets, Henry Phipps; Chief of Police, Daniel O'Connell; James McKay and E. A. W. Hammet of the State Police, W. H. Tucker Superintendent of the Norfolk Suburban railroad; Postmaster S. A. Moseley, Henry A. Rich and Frank P. McGregor of the Hyde Park Times.

Aside from these there was General Manager John R. Graham, Superintendent Weeks, Treasurer Smith and a representative of the Ledger.

A special car containing the party left Dedham at 10.30 and Hyde Park at 10.45. From the latter place a trip was taken over the Boston, Milton and Brockton road through the Blue Hills Reservation to Randolph, thence to South Braintree and Quincy, where the car arrived at 1 o'clock. From Quincy the party went to Squantum, where they climbed the hill, enjoyed the view, and inhaled the ozone from the salt water which served to sharpen their appetite for dinner.

The dinner was served at Squantum Inn, and Landlord Lee kept up his well-known reputation, the dinner being as fine a one as was ever set before a hungry party of men.

There was little after dinner speaking. Manager Graham spoke of the electric roads; what they had done in the way of developing property and bringing such beautiful places as Squantum within easy reach. He believed the public would be benefited by the consolidation and thought another summer would see through cars from Quincy to Dedham.

Time was limited and but two others were called upon. Chairman Rich of the Hyde Park Selectmen and Chairman Newcomb of the Dedham Selectmen. Both gentlemen spoke briefly.

The car was then taken and the trip continued through Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Montello to Highland Park. A stop was made in Quincy at the Adams houses where the visitors were shown through the birthplace of President John Quincy Adams by W. G. Spear, librarian of the Quincy Historical society. The house is filled full of rare old antique articles and although but a few moments was allowed for inspection as many hours could have profitably been spent.

At Highland Park a stop of half an hour was made while the party enjoyed themselves in the merry-go-round and looking at the animals in the Zoo.

They really enjoyed themselves here and no one would for a moment have thought that these gentlemen who entered with zest into the childish diversions were town fathers. One of the gentlemen was particularly interested in the bear den and unfortunately got too near, for suddenly out came a hugh paw and in an instant that gentleman's straw hat was torn to pieces and he had a narrow escape from losing his scalp.

From here the trip was continued through Avon, Randolph, Milton and Hyde Park to Dedham where they arrived about 8 o'clock having had a sixty mile car ride, a good dinner and a grand good time.

Mr. Graham left the party at Randolph, and as this car started for South Braintree, the cheers must have astonished the natives.

Willard Street Lines.

Now that the lines of Willard street have been defined, it is seen that several of the abutters have unintentionally encroached upon the street. It is an old thoroughfare which has received but little attention.

On the westerly side, about 202 square feet will be taken from Michael Fanning, 285 from the Dunphy estate, 1,015 from John Vogel, 1,120 from Tobias H. Burke, and 274 from Thomas F. Burke.

On the other side Joseph H. Vogel will lose 750 feet, and Mr. Guadino J. Kane and William Glennon must part with a little of their lawns.

A retaining wall will be necessary opposite Hayden street, and fills at other points.

OPEN TO THE WORLD.

Czar's Imperial Order Concerning Harbors of Ta-Lien-Wan and Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—Emperor Nicholas has issued the following imperial order to the Russian minister of finance, M. de Witte:

"Owing to the great possessions of Russia in Europe and Asia it has been possible, with the help of God, to effect a rapprochment between the peoples of the west and east. Through the friendly attitude of China we have succeeded in attaining our historic aim, having obtained the use of two Chinese harbors, Ta-Lien-Wan and Port Arthur, with a large territory, whereby an outlet for the Siberian railway to the Yellow sea is secured.

"Thanks to the wisdom of the Chinese government, we shall, through railways in course of construction, be united to China, a result which gives all nations the immeasurable gain of easy communication, and lightens the operations of the world's trade.

"In our unwearying care for the general weal, we have deemed it necessary, after completing the railway, to declare Ta-Lien-Wan a free port during the whole period of the treaty for the merchant ships of all nations, and to build a new city in the neighborhood of the said port."

The Printers' Convention.

Detroit, Aug. 16.—A feature of the first session of the International Typographical union convention was a warm discussion over a constitutional amendment, reported favorably by the committee on laws, providing that "Non-printer members shall only be permitted to work at the particular sub-division of the craft in which they were employed at the time of admission." The amendment was stricken out by a vote of 121 to 33. A proposition for biennial instead of annual convention was rejected by the convention. Amendments providing that no one except journeymen printers and apprentices in the last six months of their apprenticeships shall be eligible as machine apprentices and fixing their term at two months was referred to a special committee.

First Choice For First Place.

Troy, N. Y., Aug. 16.—The Chicago platform Democrats of eastern New York today sent out an invitation for a conference to be held in Saratoga Aug. 22 for the purpose of organizing a "Bryan League of the Empire State." It is a long document and disclaims emphatically that it is intended to create discord in the forces. Among other things it says: "We recognize the necessity of wise leaders, but repudiate the dictations of a boss. We believe that if a fair expression of all Democrats in this state can be had, inside all our political organizations, Mr. Bryan would have an overwhelming majority as Democracy's first choice for first place.

France In the Scramble.

BLAME ON PRESIDENT

For the Existing Condition of Affairs In the Philippines.

Pronunciamento From Anti-Imperialist League.

It Rejects In Advance Any and Every Scheme of Compromise.

Boston, Aug. 16.—The Anti-Imperialist league, at a meeting yesterday, voted to issue a pronunciamento, which was given out last night through its president, George S. Boutwell. The document asserts that the Anti-Imperialist movement has made rapid progress in the past five months, and declares that:

"The league is now carrying on the contest, and it will continue to carry on the contest, upon the idea and in the belief that the United States—that the President of the United States, especially—is responsible for the war, and that President McKinley, at any moment, or the United States, acting through him or through a successor, can bring the war to an end. It is our purpose to aid in bringing the war to an end, and, in advance, we reject any and every scheme of compromise.

"We are gratified by the fact that the laboring populations, with singular unanimity, have resolved against the un-American policy of the administration. All that men can have at stake they now have at stake in the issue that is before them. Their own right to self government is involved in the claim to self-government, now made by 10,000,000 artisans and land-workers in the Philippine islands. The annexation of those islands to the United States, in whatever form it may come, whether as states or as colonies, means free and full competition by the American laborer, of every trade and condition, with the underpaid and half-clad workers of the tropics.

"Henceforth the plain people are to enter upon the task of saving the republic. Of their disposition we are already well informed, and of their capacity we are not in doubt. In general it may be said that events rather than men have been our teachers, and henceforth, even if the country should disregard the principles, events will become our masters.

"We have carried on a campaign of a year, including the winter months, in the Philippine islands, and a disastrous campaign it has been. A force of 30,000 men has been wasted as an army for an aggressive movement, and the remnant is now limited to the environs of the six or 10 cities and towns that we are able to occupy.

"The war goes on, the public debt increases rapidly, the tax getherer demands daily contributions from every household for the support of the war, and for the same purpose he collects a percentage upon every business transaction and upon every industry of the country.

"But, outweighing all other events, is the demand for an army of 30,000 or 40,000, or, as some friends of the administration say, of 100,000 men, to be kept constantly in the islands as an effective force to meet the casualties of the field and to countervail the ravages of disease in the camps.

"There is only a possibility that an army of 50,000 can be raised by voluntary enlistments and placed in Luzon by November, and there is only a slight probability that such an army would remain an aggressive force beyond the month of May next.

"Is the country prepared for a conscript system that shall run through years and decades of years, and can a congress be elected and continued in power that will vote men and money for the further prosecution of the war? Herein is a peril of which the country and the public men of the country may wisely take notice.

"Our information and experience justify the opinion that the body of anti-imperialists, the country over, will disregard the claims of domestic questions, subordinating them one and all to single purpose of comprehensive public policy—the purpose to bring the army of the United States out of the Philippines, of Cuba and of Porto Rico, the right of self-government agreeably to the principles of the Declaration of Independence, and as a pledge of the permanent policy of the United States."

Vermont Murderer Arrested.

Middlebury, Vt., Aug. 16.—Fred Eastwood, who unsuccessfully attempted to kill his wife and her mother, and then went to the residence of Frank Fenn and deliberately shot him through the heart, next firing at Fenn's wife, surrendered himself to Deputy Sheriff Cobb yesterday. Before surrendering himself he attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself through the heart, but the shot was too low, and he will probably recover. Mrs. Eastwood is the only one whose injuries are dangerous. Eastwood was employed by the Fitchburg Railroad company as one of a construction gang, and he had also worked for the town of Greenfield, Mass., as a common laborer. He is 45 years of age. His wife was a frail, delicate woman, and owing to his brutal treatment of her, she wanted to leave him, but he threatened her life if she did so. Finally, she left him last November, going to her mother's home, promising, however, to return. Her failure to do so is the supposed cause of the shooting. Eastwood left Greenfield last Friday. He had a pass over the Fitchburg railroad to Troy, and he went that way, although his trunk was sent over the Boston and Maine, direct to Middlebury. Eastwood appeared to be an intelligent fellow, and not an excessive drinker.

A Beautiful Scene.

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 16.—It is estimated that between 75,000 and 100,000 people witnessed the grand river carnival held in this city last evening, the event being arranged for the entertainment of the League of American Wheelmen, now holding its 20th annual session in Boston. The shores lining the Charles river were a perfect blaze of light, while upon the placid stream were hundreds of boats gaily decorated with Chinese lanterns and electrical devices, stretching as far as the eye could see in a procession of fire. The fires flamed upon the banks, the fireworks shot forth at intervals and there were tasteful groupings of lights in the mansions that border the banks, while on the river the brilliant procession passed in review. Factories were illuminated, and the three bridges on the route under which the hundreds of canoes passed were handsomely decorated.

Sensational Developments.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 16.—The enquiry into the causes of the trolley catastrophe of Aug. 6, which is being conducted by Coroner Doten and a jury, was resumed yesterday. Coroner Doten had William Kelly arrested on the charge of perjury. Kelly was a witness last week and claimed that he was on the ill-fated car. He testified that the car was running slow, and that the motorman applied the brake when the car left the rails. Yesterday, however, he admitted that he lied, and that his story was an invention. Editor Beach of The Scientific American declared the guard rails inadequate for safety, and claimed that the construction of the approach was faulty. In his opinion the high speed of the car and the springiness of the roadbed caused the accident. Many other witnesses were examined, and the investigation will be continued for a few days longer.

May Visit Lynching District.

Boston, Aug. 16.—The Post says: Miss Lillian Clayton Jewett states that in a short time she expects to go south to carry on her campaign against lynching, which, she says, has not by any means ended with her bringing the Baker family north. She will probably proceed first to Georgia and deliver addresses. Miss Jewett had a long talk yesterday with a young negro named Robert McGraw, who escaped from a mob which sought to murder him in Cedartown, Ga. McGraw was an eye witness to the lynching of Sam Hose, and to Miss Jewett he told the terrible story of what he saw.

August Frosts In Vermont.

Chester, Vt., Aug. 16.—Frosts during the past week in some parts of the state have done considerable damage to the corn crop, in some places acres of the growing crop being badly damaged, although the actual loss will not be so great, as the farmers are converting the injured growth into ensilage.

Wheelman Badly Hurt.

Boston, Aug. 16.—Captain Williams of the Pawtucket, R. I., delegation of the L. A. W., while riding a wheel on Commonwealth avenue, was run down by a horse attached to a buggy. Williams was removed to a hospital, where it was found that he was suffering from dangerous injuries.

Samoan Commissioners' Proposals.

London, Aug. 16.—The correspondent of The Times at Apia, in a letter which appears this morning, gives the report of the Samoan commission, in extenso, showing that, in case of a failure on the part of the three powers to agree as to a governor or administrator, this functionary will be nominated by the King of Sweden and Norway. The correspondent expresses the opinion that the report offers the best security ever afforded for order in Samoa, and a maintenance of good relations between the three powers, but, he says, he cannot believe that this, or any other scheme which depends for its success upon the absence of domestic and foreign international intrigue, can serve any purpose but that of a stop-gap.

Peace at Any Sacrifice.

Plattsburg, N. Y., President McKinley yesterday visited the Catholic summer school of America at Cliff Haven, on Lake Champlain. He was warmly received, and made a short speech, in which he said: "Loyalty to the government is our national creed. We follow, all of us, one flag. It symbolizes our purposes and our aspirations; it represents what we mean to maintain; and, wherever it floats, it is the flag of the free, the hope of the oppressed; and wherever it is assailed, at any sacrifice, it will be carried to a triumphant peace."

Burglars' Big Haul.

Montreal, Aug. 16.—Seven thousand dollars in bank bills were stolen from the Canadian Pacific railway station at Joliette, Que., last night. This is the third time within three years that the station has been robbed. On the first occasion the safe was cracked for $6000. The second time $3200 was taken, and the station was burned to cover the crime.

Will Decline to Vote.

Springfield, O., Aug. 16.—Prominent colored Masons of Ohio met here last night and expressed dissatisfaction concerning President McKinley's silence on the lynching question, and his refusal to commission colored officers. They threatened to remain from the poles in a body at the coming elections.

For Negroes Only.

Anniston, Ala., Aug. 16.—By a vote of 18 survivors of the Edmonton trail have son City, the only exclusively negro town in the country, yesterday decided to be incorporated. The town has 400 population, all negroes, and has no saloon. Within five days the negroes will elect colored officials.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Sun rises—4:53; sets, 6:43.
Moon sets—12:23 a. m.
High water—7:15 a. m.; 7:45 p. m.

The storm centre off the Atlantic coast has moved slowly northward. Storm signals have been extended on the Atlantic coast as far as Portland, and advisory messages issued to all concerned that northeast gales will prevail along the middle Atlantic coast, causing high tides and dangerous seas. The high pressure area in the north has caused a continuance of the moderate temperatures in the north and east states. There will be rain in the Atlantic states from North Carolina northward, continuing in New England.

Fast Cycling at Waltham.

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 16.—There was an attendance of over 10,000 people to witness the grand circuit meet of the National Cycling association at the Waltham bicycle park. There were three world's records broken. Tom Linton won the 25-mile motor-paced race, time 42m. 41 1-5s., breaking the world's record by four-fifths of a second. The record was previously held by Elkes. Linton continued around the track after making this record for a 60-minute run, making 34 miles and 1633 yards, which breaks the world's record by 410 yards. This record was previously held by Taylore. Everett Ryan of Waltham defeated Farnham of the Metropolitan Wheelmen in a 10-mile paced race, breaking the world's record held by himself by 1 4-5 seconds. The two-mile N. C. A. championship professional race was won by Tom Cooper and the one-mile handicap professional race by Earl Kiser.

Still Another For Columbia.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 16.—In as fine a topsail breeze as one could desire Columbia put the finishing touch on her series of trial races against Defender in the presence of the New York Yacht club fleet, winning the 21-mile race by 8m. 52s. In addition to the races between the schooners and sloops, the 30-footers had a little match of their own, the trophy being a handsome silver cup. There was considerable interest in the schooner class, in which Amorita and Quisetta competed. Amorita won easily from her rival, but for a time it looked like a close match. The 30-footers had a good time by themselves, sailing a 14-mile course, and it was through the skillful work of Carolina's skipper that she won.

Cyclers' Big Day.

Boston, Aug. 16.—The races at Waltham were the chief attraction for the visiting wheelmen last night, and no special entertainment was provided for them in the city outside of the various clubhouses. The first races in connection with the meet will be held this afternoon, and include a one mile novice; quarter-mile amateur, national championship; two-mile tandem, handicap, amateur; two-mile multicycle, professional; one-third mile, national championship, professional, and a five-mile team pursuit race. The classes are well filled.

Comptroller Thinks Money Overdrawn.

Albany, Aug. 16.—State Comptroller Morgan has refused to recognize a draft for $40,280, drawn by the superintendent of public works in favor of the firm of McDonald & Sayre, for a balance due them for improving the Erie canal on a contract let in November, 1896. The comptroller says he is satisfied that the illegal and improper payments already made are in excess of the money on hand to the apparent credit of the contract.

Made Nothing by Striking.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—After an idleness of three weeks, all the south side brickyards resumed work today, in accordance with an agreement drawn up yesterday. The workmen secure no concessions, and return to work under the old conditions. The strike was brought on by the efforts of the union to crowd out non-union laborers. About 1800 men have been out of employment because of the strike.

Evidence of American Enterprise.

Glasgow, Aug. 16.—By a vote of 7 to 6 the Glasgow tramway committee accepted the tender of E. P. Allis & Co. of Milwaukee for the engines to supply electric power. The figures of the successful tender are £114,544.

It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the stomach, ruins the digestion, effects the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

Tom Butler Wins Third-Mile Professional Ceampionship.

Five Men Finished In a Bunch In Quarter-Mile Championship For Amateurs.

Boston, Aug. 17.—Weather gods and wheelmen have dwelt in the most complete harmony thus far in the 20th annual meet of the League of American Wheelmen, and while storm signals have been displayed at the local weather bureau, tornadoes predicted from the signal service towers in Washington, the visiting and local members of the great organization have enjoyed thoroughly delightful trips in Boston and suburbs. There were runs yesterday to many important and historical points, and the city entertained the visitors with a band concert and fireworks on the common last evening. Bicyclists are in evidence everywhere throughout the city and suburbs.

The racing program, which is an important part of the meet, began at the Charles River park. Two events were of great interest, the one-third mile national championship for professionals and the quarter-mile national championship for amateurs. The former went to Tom Butler by a few inches over Major Taylor in a sensational finish. The amateur event was captured apparently by E. W. Peabody of Chicago, with Albert Tallandier of Paris second and Lester Wilson of Pittsburg third. Five riders had finished in a bunch, and it was immediately claimed that Ben Goodson of Australia had crowded the others on the home stretch. After appeal to the referee it was announced that the final was a dead heat between Peabody and Tallandier, and it will be ridden again.

The racing conditions were excellent, but the attendance was small. Eddie McDuffee started behind motor pace for a five-mile exhibition, but quit at three miles. Several other events, of local interest chiefly, combined to give a fairly good program. The Associated Cycling clubs of this vicinity is conducting the racing.

The two national events furnished the only excitement of the afternoon. In each the contestants represented wheelmen from all over the globe, but the foreign professionals were not the equal of the New Englanders.

In the one-third mile professional the field was put into four heats, and those qualifying went into the semi-finals. In the first heat Major Taylor had an easy win; time, 49 seconds. In the second heat Tom Butler, by taking the lead, thought he had a good thing, but McCarthy of St. Louis beat him at the tape; time, 44 3-5 seconds. In the third heat Nat Butler was expected to win, but after leading the bunch all the way Hammer of Philadelphia won; time, 44 seconds. The fourth heat went to Frank Butler easily in 44 3-5 seconds.

The semi-finals were made interesting by a Butler in each. In the first one Frank Butler and Major Taylor loafed in the rear, watching each other. Then McCarthy shot out and stirred up the rest. It was a great finish, Taylor getting the heat by half a length, Butler second and McCarthy third; time, 46 seconds. In the other semi-final Frank Butler pedalled for dear life all the time and won in 44 2-5 seconds, with Hammer second and McLeod third.

The prettiest fight was in the finals with two Butlers against Taylor. At the pistol Frank Butler shot ahead, drawing McCarthy and McLeod after him, leaving Taylor watching Tom Butler. Rather than risk the result, Taylor, at half the distance, spurted. He caught the leaders in the stretch, but Tom was with him and the finish was at a terrific clip, the major losing by a few inches. Frank Butler brought up the rear.

The quarter-mile amateur championship had enough entries to keep everybody guessing. Moran of Chelsea, who has been doing great work, finished third in the first heat, but couldn't qualify in the semi-finals.

The two-mile multicycle handicap was an easy affair for Poutch and Wilson of Louisville, the limit men. Their handicap was not reduced during the first mile and then other machines slackened up to making good running for second and third places. This brought Taylor and Casey against two Butler boys, and the last half mile was a warm one. Taylor's machine won out for second place.

The other races had no special interest.

One of the features of the day outside the runs and racing was the untiring efforts of a large delegation from Milwaukee to persuade the league to meet in that city next year, and there seems to be little doubt that the movement will be successful.

During the day President Keenan talked interestingly to the newspaper men, and said that the L. A. W. was in a most satisfactory condition. The great aim in the future must be centralization of power and thus benefit the majority of the members. The league has lost its "boom" membership, and is now on a healthy basis, with a membership of about 60,000.

DOUBLE HEADER AT BOSTON.

Champions Treated to a Coat of Whitewash by Colonels In the First Game.

Boston, Aug. 17.—The Louisville colonels were the opponents of the Bostons in a double-header at the South End grounds. Phillips' superb pitching in the first game kept the champions guessing from start to finish, and, aided by good backing up in the field, the colonels shut out the home team. Willis pitched excellent ball for the champions, and if his work had been backed by a little cleaner fielding, the visitors would have scored only the run made in the fifth inning. The surprising let-down in the batting by the Bostons caused their admirers anguish in the first game, following close upon the heels of the inability to hit shown in the Cincinnati games. With any of the surplus hitting shown by the boys in the second game worked into the initial battle, the champions would have had a fair chance to win.

The Wonderful Gentry.

Rochester. Aug. 17.—The grandest pacing race, perhaps ever witnessed in this country, was pulled off at the Rochester driving park yesterday, and as a result the little bay stallion from Goshen, N. Y., John R. Gentry, is still king of the light harness racers. More than 8000 persons assembled to see the three great pacing stallions of the American turf, John R. Gentry, 2:00 1-2; Joe Patchen, 2:01 1-4, and Searchlight, 2:04 1-2, wage a battle royal for the supremacy. The first heat was the best of the race. The time of the two heats was 2:03½; 2:04¼.

Weir, president; Frederick Smith, a director, and Ferdinand Lemieux, accountant, of the suspended bank Ville Marie. The charge against them is making false returns of the bank's affairs to the government.

"KILL THE TOLBERTS."

How Ben Tillman Would Use the Cudgel In Behalf of Poor Negroes.

Boston the Head and Center of All Devilment.

Appears to Be Greatly Disturbed by Miss Jewett and "Nigger Postmaster's Family."

Greenwood, S. C., Aug. 17.—The second day of the farmers' institute was enlivened by a speech from Senator B. R. Tillman. At the beginning of his talk, Senator Tillman pitched into the white-cappers who have been terrorizing a portion of this county for the last 10 days and whipping inoffensive negroes.

The senator called them white cowards, and said they were a disgrace to the county. He thought that if the Tolberts, the Republican party leaders in this section, were still stirring up the negroes they ought to be dealt with. If you want to uproot this evil and kill the snake go kill the Tolberts, but don't abuse the poor, innocent black wretches, said the senator.

SENATOR TILLMAN.

"The Yankees," continued the senator, "are watching us closely, and the eyes of the whole world are now on the race problem in the south. They will take advantage of everything of this kind to abuse the south. You are just playing into the Yankees' hands. They are waiting to cut down our representation in congress because of our new election laws, but otherwise there is little bitter feeling now between the two sections. This sort of thing, if continued, will arouse bad feeling.

"Why, just look at that Jewett woman coming down here and taking away the nigger postmaster's family. She comes from Boston, the head and center of all devilment. The Yankees are ready to take up any such deviltry as this white-capping business, and you people ought to put a stop to it."

Senator Tillman denounced the war in the Philippines and closed with some choice invectives against newspapers.

Rice May Be Promoted.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 17.—It is probable that one of the five new regiments to be raised under Secretary Root's recent order will be recruited at Plattsburg barracks. According to semi-official authority, one of the regiments will be raised in New England, and the recruits will be sent here to be organized and made ready for service. This regiment, with the Twenty-sixth regiment already here, will then form a sort of New England brigade. Colonel Rice, it is said, may be assigned to the command of this brigade. Lieutenant Colonel Duvall is mentioned as his successor as colonel of the Twenty-sixth regiment in case Colonel Rice is made a brigadier general.

But Three of Crew Saved.

Norfolk, Aug. 17.—A dispatch from Kityhawk, N. C., states that the three-masted schooner Aaron Reppard, Captain Wessel, lumber-laden, from Savannah for Philadelphia, was totally wrecked off Gull shoals, on the North Carolina coast, yesterday and went to pieces. A life-saving crew was sent to the rescue but, of the eight men on board the schooner, only three were saved.

Ex-Convict Charged With Murder.

New York, Aug. 17.—Detectives last night arrested William Neufeldt, an ex-convict, on the charge of murder of Mrs. Nathan Kronman in her home here Aug. 7. The woman was killed with a hatchet and a large amount of valuable jewelry was stolen. Her husband was arrested, but was released. Neufeldt, the police state, has been pawning jewelry that was stolen from the Kronman residence.

Rebellion Practically Ended.

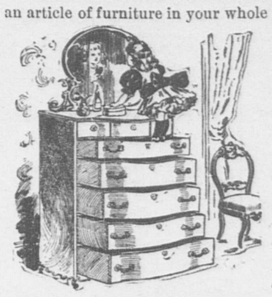

Chicago, Aug. 17.—A special from the City of Mexico says: The federal troops under General Torres surprised and routed the Yaqui Indians between Potam and Medano. The Indians left seven killed and a large number of wounded. The loss to the federal troops was one killed and one death from sunstroke. The rebellion is now practically at an end.

A Terrible Affliction.

Alexandria, Aug. 16.—All of Egypt is infected with the foot and mouth disease. There have been 1827 cases reported since July 18.

Chiffonieres

There's a world of comfort in owning a chiffoniere. Not an article of furniture in your whole house adds more to the convenience of living, and nothing is so pleasant as to possess the "know where to find things." The chiffoniere idea was a happy thought—in it you have lots of drawer room, with a place for everything and everything in its place. To own a chiffoniere, makes one wonder how they ever lived without one. In beautiful golden oak, quartered oak, mahogany, bird's eye maple and birch we have a large variety.

Good Afternoon.

A Taxpayer asks, Will the Daily Ledger tell how the city debt is reduced, etc?

It is reduced by paying off maturing debt which amounts to more than the new debts of the year. This year the maturing debt amounts to $81,950.25, and will be paid off. The new loans authorized by the City Council of 1899 amount to considerable less than this amount. Some further loans may be authorized this year, particularly one for a new school house, but they should be kept within the $81,950.25.

The municipal debt Jan. 1 was $265,505.86. The payment of $81,950.25 would reduce it to $183,555.61, and the new debts may put it back to $225,000 or $250,000.

On Jan. 1 there were 46 outstanding loans. Not only will one-third of the amount be paid this year, but one-third of the loans will be cancelled. These include last payments as follows: Willard schoolhouse, $7,700; Willard school land $1,580; Wollaston schoolhouse, $1,000; widening Squantum street, $500; Sea street, $1,000; Ward Four hose house $6,500; Squantum causeway, $5,000; Neponset bridge, $2,000; Phoebe C. Harris award, $3,336.25; Faxon road, $500; brooks and bridge, $500; house connections with sewer, $500; removal of snow $3,000; fire alarm whistle at Wollaston, $400; maintenance of water supply, $1,000.

If the City Council is anxious to reduce the tax rate of 1900 it will not further increase the amount of maturing debt of that year. The amount on Jan. 1, 1899, maturing in 1900 was $62,700, and it has already been increased to about $70,000. The valuation of the city is, in round numbers, $19,500,000, so that $1 per $1,000 will raise $19,500. If the maturing debt of 1900 is $19,500 less than this year, the tax rate of 1900 should be $1 less.

If the present city government increases all the valuation, the tax rate and the muncipal debt,—it cannot hope for a reelection. The municipal debt reached high water mark Jan. 1, 1894 when it was $339,730.00; during the year it was reduced to $311,091.00, and in 1896 to $264,895.61. It advanced under Mayor Adams in 1897 to $306,335.61, and dropped in his second year to $277,515.61. The administration of Mayor Sears last year reduced it to $265,505.61 on Jan. 1, 1899. No adminstration has been compelled to pay off so much debt as that of 1899, and therefore no administration has had the opportunity offered this year to reduce the debt.

Mr. James J. Myers of Cambridge has very few friends among the newspapers of the State in his candidacy for speaker. Most of them have no use for mugwumps, reformers and legislators who have opposed a just libel law. As the Haverhill Gazette tartly says: "Opposed to Mr. Myers is Charles R. Saunders of Boston, a young man who has neither the time nor the inclination to listen to the condemnatory speeches of the members of the Massachusetts Reform club; who has worked long and faithfully to promote Republican party interests; who was loyal when Mr. Myers proved himself disloyal; who has youth, an honorable ambition, strict integrity and untiring industry to commend him to his party. Such a man it would be an honor to choose speaker. If his friends do for him one half as much as he has done for his party he will be chosen without a dissenting vote. Mr. Myers should retire for a season and make room for an abler and better man. If the Republicans can do no better than to reward year after year men who have proven faithless, or those who have been in office since when the memory of the oldest inhabitant runneth not to the contrary, they cannot expect loyal support from newspapers that would ordinarily support their candidates."

The rich city of Newton, with a population of 30,000, made a gain of only $1,092,020 this year. Newton is fortunate in having assessed personal property to the value of $12,251,120 in a total valuation of $56,407,320. Retrenchment has, however, been the watchword this year, and the tax rate was reduced eighty cents. When rich cities cut down expenses, those less fortunate should not be extravagant.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Doubtless Spain views the near approach of Admiral Dewey to her shore with much more equanimity than she would have felt a year ago.—Topeka State Journal.

☞Strangers visiting the city of Boston should keep off the grass on the common. Twenty-one over sleepy people ventured to spend the night there recently and were fined $3 each. Hotel accommodations are cheaper.—Beverly Times.

☞Just now the baseball pitcher who can hold the other side down to one or two hits in a nine-inning game is the lion of the hour. Next fall, he will get a job as a motorman or night watchman and be forgotten until the season of 1900.—New London Day.

☞The trust problem is not going to be unravelled by glittering generalities. It was planned by the brightest minds and the brainiest lawyers in the country, and its solution is going to require statesmanship of the highest order.—Nashville American (dem.)

☞If the America's cup should be captured by the Shamrock, an event hardly presumable, Uncle Sam might be as much as a week or 10 days getting it back. There is no small advantage in the racing conditions on the side of the holder of the trophy.—Lynn Item.

☞No observing person who has had occasion to take the train, even in a city no larger than Manchester, can fail to have noted the delay and annoyance which comes from the irregular method in vogue, almost universally in America, of trying to board the cars at both ends and leaving them in the same happy-go-lucky fashion. This evil has grown up apparently without thought by any one; at any rate, if railroad officials generally have thought about it, they appear, in most cases, to have kept their thoughts to themselves.—Manchester Union.

☞One may figure on being told of "the wildest enthusiasm" whenever certain enthusiatic speakers and emotional audience get together at Old Orchard. In one sense, religion is common, for it is for every one who will have it. In another sense, it is not common and should not be tossed about with flippant remarks and silly gestures. Religion and dignity go well together, and the customs of the centuries are well to bear in mind on sacred occasions concerning the responsibilities of the people of this world to the King of Kings.—Bangor Commercial.

☞Whatever view one may take of postal savings bank, from the standpoint of the theory of government, one cannot fail to be impressed by the proof they give of the gigantic thrift of an industrial nation in these modern days. All the world wondered when the peasantry of France emptied its stockings and rifled its armories to pay the vast indemnity exacted by the Iron Chancel or; less spectacular, but no less convincing demonstration of the financial power of the masses is afforded by the marvelous growth in the deposits of the postal savings banks of Great Britain, France and Germany. This is only another way of saying that the mass of small capitalists outweigh "la haute finance," just as the many dominate the few in the decision of the larger political questions of the day. Thus, the lines of democracy converge from many directons in the supremacy of the people, just as, in the days of old, all roads were said to lead to the Eternal city.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

—Take a pencil and multiply—twice two are four—twice four are eight—etc., and you will find that in the twentieth generation you had one million forty-eight thousand five hundred and seventy-six ancesters without counting the intermediate generations and in the thirtieth genera tion you had over a thousand millions of ancestors, without counting those between yourself and the thirtieth. Every man, woman and child in the world can claim to have descended from a great ancestry.

QUINCY YACHT CLUB.

Its Quarter-Centennial Observed Last Evening.

Illumination, Concert and a Society Event.

Sketch of Club History, Officers, Yachts, Etc., Etc.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the Quincy Yacht club was observed at the club house at Houghs Neck on Wednesday evening with a concert by Thomas Mullaly's orchestra of eight pieces and the illumination of the house and wharf with scores of Japanese lanterns. The hall and piazzas were packed with people long before the concert began.

The concert was an exceedingly brilliant one, the music going off with a dash. The programme was as follows:

March, "Hands Across the Sea," Sousa
Overture, "Pique Dam," Suppe
Waltz, "Roses from the South," Straus
Solo, for Xylophone by Mr. John Campbell, Demare
Selection from "Runaway Girl," Monckton
"The Intermezzo," Violin obligato, Mr. Theodore Cook, Mascagni
"Smokey Mokes," Holgeman
"Telegraph My Baby," Cohen
Cornet Solo, by Mr. Thomas Mullaly, Arban
Selection, "Belle of New York," Kerker
Morceaux di Concert, "La Cinquataine," Hunt

The history of the club is an interesting one. On July 23, 1874, a few yachtsmen met at the small boat house owned by Mr. Herbert M. Federhen, located at the rear of his residence at Quincy Point. The meeting was appointed to be held at that place by Mr. Federhen, Mr. George T. Bigelow and Mr. James H. Slade, who had previously thought that it would be advisable to start a yacht club as the number of yachts in Town river and adjacent waters was considerable.

After an informal discussion it was voted "that it is expedient to form a yacht club to be known as the Quincy Yacht club. That such a club be inaugurated by the enrollment of the gentlemen present: George T. Bigelow, Jr., H. M. Frederhen, James H. Slade, Marshall Whiton, M. R. Newcomb, George F. Cleverly, Charles F. Lapham, I. B. Bent, Frank House, and William F. Maybury,—and that all yacht owners in Quincy, Weymouth and Hull, and such persons as are interested in yachting, but who are not owner of boats, be also invited to join the club."

It was also voted that George T. Bigelow, Jr., H. M. Federhen and James H. Slade be a committee of three to prepare rules and regulations for the government of the club," and also that "the admission fee shall be one dollar," and that "a committee of five" consisting of Charles A. Lapham, Albert W. Arnold, Amber Cleverly, William F. Maybury and George F. Cleverly, be appointed to notify yacht owners and and others of the formation of the club and unite membership."

On that Thursday evening the foundation was laid for the Quincy Yacht club, a yachting organization which today has a national reputation for sportsmanship and a proverbial one for square dealing.

The next meeting to further the organization of the club was held at the home of James H. Slade on July 30. At this meeting ten new members were admitted and a constitution and by-laws were adopted. The meeting was adjourned to Aug. 8, when the organization was completed by the election of these officers:

Commodore—James H. Slade.
Vice Commodore,—H. A. Keith.
Secretary,—H. M. Federhen.
Measurer,—William F. Maybury.
Regatta Committee,—John Shaw, H. M. Federhen, Freeman Whitmarsh, Charles F. Pierce and Marcus E Wight.

Of the original members but three are on the rolls of the club,—Harrison A. Keith, John Shaw and George W. Morton.

The commodores of the club have been,—James H. Slade, H. A. Keith, the late John Quincy Adams, the late Sigourney Butler, George W. Morton, Charles F. Adams, 2d, Henry H. Sheen, John Shaw, Henry M. Faxon, Charles F. Pettengill, John W. Sanborn and Fred B. Rice.

The vice commodores,—H. A. Keith, W. H. Nicholson, A. J. Clark, Benjamin F. Bass, Charles H. Porter, C. F. Adams, 2d, Henry H. Sheen, Alfred H. Torricelli, George G. Saville, John W. Sanborn, William H. Shaw and Edwin E. Davis.

The secretaries,—H. M. Federhen, H. A. Keith, Charles H. Porter, George W. Morton, N. B. Furnald, Henry M. Faxon, George E. Pfaffmann, James S. Whiting and Harold B. Faxon.

The measurers,—W. F. Maybury, Peter B. Turner, C. F. Colby, Henry H. Sheen, A. B. Lelois, H. W. Bumpus, W. E. Waterhouse, George Crane and William C. Harrison.

From the time of the early '70's the members of the club were dubbed all over the coast as "mug hunters," and such they have been from that day to this, from the days of the pewter mugs for one race to the $500 perpetual challenge cup.

The club always has had famous racers in its fleet, among them being the Rocket, Wildfire, Mab, Flora Lee, Diadem, Tartar, Idler, Opechee, Elf, Alpha, Elear, Erin, Beatrice, Swirl, Cleopatra, Amy, Mudjekeewis, Moondyne, Pet, Posy, White Fawn, Zip, Omeme, Eleanor, Folly, Sunbeam, Kayosh, Little Peter, Chatha, Hustler, Vexer, Sphinx, Supero, Recruit, and Hostess.

The club has always taken the lead in small boats racing on the Massachusetts coast. From year to year it has been gradually extending its fostering care in that particular class of boats until it finally reached the logical climax of the offering in February, 1898, of the $500 perpetual challenge cup to be known for all time as the "Quincy Yacht Club Challenge Cup."

The club has increased so in membership and yachts enrolled that it has outgrown its present building and is confronted with the problem of a new club house.

It is rumored that the regatta committee of the Quincy Yacht club will amend the "declaration of trust" of challenge cup so that hereafter the challenging boats will be compelled to race among themselves, and from those races select a representative which will race against the defending boat.

Hard Pushed by Thelma.

The Heiress and Thelma were the only yachts entered in the 21 foot class at the open race of the Annisquam yacht club on Wednesday. The Thelma stayed night with the Heiress on both the reaching legs, and was only a half minute behind at the leeward turn, but unfortunately the Thelma carried away a spreader and had to stop and reef down. This allowed the Heiress to cross the line at the finish 16 m., 55 sec. ahead.

In the 21 class for cabin boats the Privateer owned by A. H. Doble outsailed Arab IV over 3 minutes but was protested on foul and lost the prize.

In the other classes first prizes were taken by the Meemer, Cartoon, Snap Shot, Lynx, Cinch, and Tabasco.

Highway Robbery.

Boston papers report Fred Edwards of Quincy, a coachman in the employ of Mr. John C. Randall at Chatham this summer, to have been held-up Monday night and robbed of $65. The report says Edwards has been to town expecting to get a suit of clothes at the tailors, but the work was not completed. About 11.30, when he had nearly reached home, and was riding on his bicycle up a hill, he was stopped by two men, who demanded his money. A bluff that he had no money did not work, for they said they knew he had. After some resistance the robbers took from him the sum mentioned. No search was attempted for the robbers that night, and there is no clew.

Quincy Veteran President.

At the reunion of the Fourth Massachusetts Veteran Infantry Association at Nantasket beach on Wednesday Franklin Jacobs of Quincy was elected president. The new first vice president is the Department Commander of Maine, U. V. D. George M. Lovering. The second vice president, Lieut. Horatio C. Sampson, and the secretary and treasurer, J. Elmer Talbot.

The reunion was held at the Ocean View House, and the veterans were accompanied by their families. At the dinner there were speeches by Gen. Luther Stephenson, C. C. Collins, G. M. Lovering and others.

In Highland Costume.

All the officers of the Royal Clan O. S. C. were reelected on Wednesday at the convention in Boston viz:

Royal Chief—W. H. Steen.
Royal Tanist—John F. McKnight.
Royal Counselor—George Taylor.
Royal Secretary—Peter Kerr.
Assistant Royal Secretary—James W. R. Collins.
Royal Treasurer, John Hill.

The reception given by Clan McKenzie was a brilliant affair. About 200 couples enjoyed the dance, many in full Highland costumes.

Hotel Duped.

Nantasket hotel men are greener than many supposed. Two bicyclists made arrangements Wednesday morning for dinner for a club of 300 in the evening. In the afternoon because of the non-arrival of a third party they needed $57 for decorations. The hotel clerk advanced it and the advance agents left for Boston. They nor the club have not been seen since.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about 1-4 as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

It will be good news to Wollaston people to know that the sewer which has blocked the street cars all summer on Farrington street is all completed but one man hole, which will be finshed today. Work has been commenced relaying the track that was torn up and cars will be running through Sunday.

Two bicycle riders came in collision the head of Chestnut street last night and were "spilled." They were on the point of rolling up their sleeves when the moon passed a dark cloud and revealed their identity. Hello, said Harry. Hello, said Frank; a fine night, come down to the house and wash the dust off your whiskers, and they talked it over through the smoke of two Key Wests. No damage was done.

Quite a movement is developing in the west in favor of government making of freight rates on interstate commerce. Much will be made of the matter at the national convention of railroad and warehouse commissioners to be held this week at Danver, and congress will probably be petitioned to authorize the interstate commerce commission to establish rates and enforce their maintenance. This would bring the government far more deeply into the railroad business. When it begins to make rates the private managers of the roads should begin to think of retiring altogether.—Springfield Republican.

HOUGHS NECK.

The Sojourners This Year are for the Season.

Last year it was the rule for families to come to the beach, and after remaining a week or two depart when others would take their places. In that way there were new families arriving every week. This year it seems to be different, for the families that arrived early in the season are still here. Not many new families are now arriving for cottages cannot be rented.

Recent arrivals at Pierce's hotel are James Whipple of Worcester; F. E. Gray and family of Hyde Park, Mrs. J. D. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith of Norwood.

Edward Small and family of Brockton are in the Grapevine cottage.

A. F. Engley and family of Walpole are in the Daisy cottage.

Fell Into Sewer Trench.

A Boston paper reports an injury to a Quincy man. It says, one of the numerous openings being made on Washington street by the Sewer Department was the cause of an accident to Frederick H. Barker of Quincy last night. Mr. Barker was hurrying to catch a car at the corner of East Brookline street, and owing to his haste and the darkness, did not notice the hole. He fell several feet, and received numerous contusions about the body. He was taken to the City Hospital.

Cellar Fire.

The alarm from Box 76 at 11.45 was for a fire in a lot of old wall paper in the cellar of a small house, situated in the rear of Charles Hall's store. The house was occupied by Edward Budrue, who had recently papered the house and thrown the old paper into the cellar. Children were playing there and in some way started the fire. Loss $5, the cost to clean out the cellar.

About thirty of the young friends of Miss Marcella Grant attended a farewell party given in her honor by her aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. Berry of Billings street, on Wednesday evening. The pretty lawn was ablaze with Japanese lanterns and convenient settees were scattered here and there. Dancing and various games were indulged in and during the evening a collation was served. Ten Blossoms.

Scores of persons will testify as to having witnessed one of the handsomest sights of a floral kind at the house of Mr. George Sherwin on Botolph street, Tuesday evening of this week, in the shape of a night blooming cereus having ten full blossoms which filled the whole house even on to the piazza with its rich rare perfume.

The plant is fifteen years old and grows better and more floriferous every year having produced sixteen blossoms this summer. Such an elegant specimen of this beautiful plant is seldom seen outside of the largest conservatories. The fact of the blossoms opening only in the night time and lasting but a few hours renders the occassion an uncommon one and it is no wonder that Mr. Sherwin was the recipient of many gratifying remarks. But these were well deserved as he had taken pains to notify his neighbors and others, that those interested might participate in examining the exquisite blossoms.

Oil Stove Overturned.

The alarm from Box 27 at 10.45 this morning was for a slight fire in the house at 100 Washington street, owned by Mrs. Perez Chubbuck and occupied in part by her and George H. Hardwick. The fire was in Mr. Hardwick's kitchen, and was caused by the accidental overturning of an oil stove.

Two rugs were burned and the lower part of the house was filled with smoke. Early arrivals threw the stove and burning rugs out the back door, and began to carry the furniture out the front door. No water was used in extinguishing the blaze. The loss by smoke and water will not exceed $25.

Populists's Endorse Democratic Ticket.

Des Moines, Aug. 17.—The Democratic state convention nominated the following ticket: For governor, Fred E. White; lieutenant governor, M. L. Bevis; judge of supreme court, A. Van Wagenen; commissioner, W. H. Calhoun; superintendent of public instruction, B. P. Holst. The Populists' state convention also met and endorsed the above ticket. All the nominees are Democrats except Calhoun, who was the Populist candidate. The Chicago platform was endorsed in its entirety. White was the candidate on the fusion ticket two years ago, being defeated by Governor Shaw, who is the Republican candidate again. The convention was very turbulent throughout and the business was transacted with difficulty, but the results are satisfactory to the radical silver element, which was in control. It is not probable, however, that the sound money element will make an attempt to maintain a separate organization this year. The platform, after endorsing the Chicago platform, "in the whole and in detail," expresses admiration for the loyalty to William J. Bryan.

Possible Murder at Boston.

Boston, Aug. 17.—What may possibly develop into a murder is now being investigated by the police. Mary Ann Pinton, 40 years old, was found dead in her bed at 410 Commercial street, and marks and contusions on her body caused the police to make an investigation. It seems that the woman was acting as housekeeper for Joseph Leavey, 78 years old. One of the inmates of the house claims to have been aroused about midnight and to have heard the heard the woman say, "Don't kill me, Joe." Leavey was placed under arrest, charged with the murder of the woman.

The Typos' Convention.

Detroit, Aug. 17.—Milwaukee was victorious in the contest for the next convention of the International Typographical union by a vote of 84 to 78 for Birmingham, Ala. A report from the committee on laws, favoring the levying of a special assessment upon members of not more than 50 cents in any three months by the executive council whenever the strike fund of the union shall fall below $20,000, was adopted after much argument.

Jamestown's Big Fire.

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Nearly $300,000 worth of property was destroyed by fire here last evening. The flames originated in a cane seat chair factory and spread rapidly, burning this factory, a livery stable, the factory of the Jamestown Axe company and the Brooklyn flouring mills, with all their contents. Two dwellings were also burned. Two table factories and the Humphrey House were badly damaged.

THE ABSENCE OF LABORI

Makes Proceedings In Dreyfus Court Martial Unfavorable to Prisoner.

Colonel Henry's Widow and General Roget Testify.

Dreyfus and the Audience Affected by Recital of Tortures on Devil's Island.

Rennes, Aug. 17.—The general impression left by yesterday's court-martial proceedings is unfavorable, owing to the absence of such cross-examinations as M. Labori would have submitted M. Lebon and M. Guerin to, and owing to the facts that General Roget's arguments received no reply. This, however, it is hoped, will prove damaging when M. Demange cross-questions him, although M. Demange cannot be said, up to the present, to have shown up to any great advantage.

The feature of the day's proceedings was the story of the sufferings of Dreyfus on Devil's Island, his prison, off the coast of French Guiana.

Dreyfus wept in court when the clerk read a document recounting the details of his incarceration.

The proceedings opened with the application of M. Demange for an adjournment.

This was followed by the deposition of M. Guerin, the former minister of justice, who, however, only repeated the evidence he had given before the court of cassation.

M. Lebon, the former minister of the colonies, a big, red-bearded man, then testied in justification of his instructions to treat Dreyfus rigorously, declaring that the extreme stringency only dated from the time he thought an attempt would be made to rescue the prisoner.

Colonel Jouaust, president of the court martial, asked Dreyfus if he had any questions to put to the witness, and he replied in an emotional voice:

"No, I am here to defend my honor. I do not wish to speak of the atrocious suffering, which, for five years, I, a Frenchman and an innocent man, suffered on the Ile du Diable."

M. Demange here asked that the ofcial report of the treatment of Dreyfus on the Ile du Diable, which was published in the newspapers last week, should be read. The clerk of the court did so, and, in a sympathetic tone, recounted the harrowing tale of Dreyfus' mental and physical sufferings and inhuman treatment on the island.

Dreyfus at first watched the faces of the judges with his usual composure, but gradually, as the story proceeded, and incidents of his awful existence were brought up before him, his eyes grew dim and tears glistened in his eyes. Then they slowly trickled down his cheeks. Dreyfus could stand it no longer, and for the first time during his trial gave way to his emotions and silently wept.

The faces of the audience expressed sympathy with the prisoner's emotion, and even the captain of the gendarmes sitting beside Dreyfus turned and gave him a look of concealed compassion.

Gen. Mercier, who, with M. Lebon, was seated in the front row of the witnesses' seats, listened to the reading of the report unmoved, while Col. Jouaust followed it with an air of bored tolerance.

M. Lebon afterward returned to the stand and added a few more words in justification of his conduct, and then Col. Jouaust ordered the next witness to be brought in.

All eyes were turned toward the door on the right of the stage, and, a moment later, the form of a woman, dressed in deep mourning, appeared in the doorway, and, accompanied by a noncommissioned officer, advanced to the platform.

It was the widow of Col. Henry, the French officer who committed suicide in prison after confessing to forging certain documents in the case. With pale face and hand upraised before the crucifix, she took the oath to tell the truth.

She admitted the frequent visits of Esterhazy to her husband, and declared her husband told her he had forged one document "in order to save the honor of the country." She gave her evidence in a very matter-of-fact way, and was in nowise the sympathetic figure the anti-Dreyfusards have tried to make her. Her evidence, however, was of very little weight.

Gen. Roget, in undress uniform, followed. His evidence was a vitrolic diatribe against Dreyfus from beginning to end.

General Roget spoke for three hours without adducing any new facts, only reiterating in the most forcible terms what has been bandied about in the anti-Dreyfusard press for a year past. The most interesting part of his testimony was his attack upon Colonel Picquart, which will undoubtedly lead to the confrontation of the two men.

He treated Dreyfus without mercy, both in words and attitude. In fact it seemed at times as though he would provoke the prisoner into striking him. The general's manner was most passionate. In his outburst at the end of his testimony he uttered the most ruthless attack, with the air of one delivering a pleasant Sunday school address, leaning over the front of the witness rail, sipping from a glass of water, wiping his lips and mopping his brow with perfect self-satisfaction. But again and again he would half turn in his chair, and pointing his finger at Dreyfus would repeat some cruel accusation, at the same time fixing his eyes on the accused man, his body inclined forward like that of a cobra awaiting the moment to strike.

Dreyfus, however, steadily returned his gaze, sometimes throwing a glance at the president of the court, as though appealing for permission to reply. Once, when General Roget had flung one of these darts, he stopped and deliberately paused. One could see the fire in Dreyfus' eyes, and in his tightly-clenched jaws could be divined the struggle that was going on within him. The captain of gendarmes, seated beside Dreyfus, watched him closely.

The seconds passed like hours, and the spectators held their breaths. General Roget seemed purposely to prolong the silence in order to make a deeper impression. It was a perilous moment. But Dreyfus won the battle over his passions, and when Roget's voice was at length heard again everybody knew the danger was past, and a deep-drawn sigh of relief came from the audience.

Colonel Jouaust then addressed the prisoner, asking him if he had anything to say in reply to General Roget. Dreyfus replied:

"No, my colonel. It is frightful that, day after day, for hours, I should thus have my heart, my soul and my very entrails torn out without being permitted to reply. It is a terrible torture to impose upon an innocent and loyal soldier. It is a frightful thing, frightful, frightful.'

This outburst caused a great sensation. The audience, profoundly stirred, began to applaud, but the applause was quickly suppressed. Colonel Jouaust pointed out to Dreyfus that the court had given him an opportunity to speak at the end of every deposition.

The court then adjourned. As the prisoner passed out in front of the seats assigned to the representatives of the press, his face was pale, but animated. He seemed to be in a state of great nervous excitement, and in a furious temper.

Maitre Mornard, who represented Madame Dreyfus in the revision proceedings before the court of cassation, has been summoned to replace Maitre Labori until the latter is able to return to his post. M. Mornard is expected to appear in court today. He is, however, a poor substitute for Labori.

New England Delegates Withdrew.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—At the very end of the convention of the National Association of Colored Women of America serious trouble arose over the election of officers, and the final crash came in the withdrawal of all the delegates from the New England states. The unpleasantness started over the re-election of Mrs. Terrell of Washington as president of the association, a motion prohibiting re-election of officers having been previously carried. Mrs. Terrell was re-elected after a long struggle. An attempt was made to propitiate the New Englanders by proposing that a new office of assistant secretary be created and Miss Carter be chosen to that position by acclamation. Mrs. Ruffin of Boston stated that there was no such office provided for in the constitution. In spite of this the delegates chose Miss Carter to the office of assistant recording secretary. Miss Carter said she did not want the office and would not take it. The New England delegates, she said, had been unfairly treated, and she announced the withdrawal of the northeast faction, comprising the New England states and its 1000 members, from the association.

Anti-Gobelites' Convention.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 17.—The anti-Goebel Democratic state convention assembled here yesterday. Over 3000 men were in the hall, of whom over 900 were delegates. John W. Greene was chosen chairman. He made a strong speech. Congressman Owens and others also made addresses. Resolutions were adopted, declaring that the Louisville nominees were not the nominees of the Democratic party; demanding the enactment of a law giving effect to the section of the state constitution yhich provides deprivation of office for any person who, to secure his nomination or election, has been guilty of fraud or intimidation, bribery or corrupt practices, etc; endorsing the Chicago platform and Bryan for president; denouncing the Goebel election law, and condemning President McKinley for alleged advancement of the interests of trusts. John Young Brown was nominated for governor by acclamation.

Blow to Methods of Faith Healers.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Mrs. Henrikka Blatch was charged with violating the medical practice act in administering to Mrs. Anneta Flanders, who died under the faith "divine healing" treatment of Alexander Dowie, who claims to possess the power of healing the sick by the laying on of hands. Mrs. Blatch was found guilty, and a fine of $100 and costs was imposed. Justice Everett held that within the law the followers of the faith healer must resort only to spiritual and mental means of treating the sick. When material means are used, then the state law governing the practice of medicine had been violated.

With regard to the employes of the New York, New Haven and Hartford, the officials of the Federated Board of Railway Employes, who settled the Boston and Maine affair, state that they have no official knowledge of any grievances on the Consolidated road.

SERIES OF BRUTAL ASSAULTS.

Five White Women of Little Rock the Victims. Fears of Lynching.

Little Rock, Aug. 17.—Five brutal assaults by negro men on white women have occurred in Little Rock in the past 24 hours. The victims of the assaults are all highly respected white women of this city. They are Mrs. Belle Aiken, Mrs. Milton Young, Mrs. Kennedy, Emma Longcoy and a young woman whose name is withheld.

All the assaults occurred in the suburbs. The first was that on Mrs. Aiken. She was passing by Twenty-first and High streets when the negro seized her and dragged her to the woods. She resisted and cried for help. A passerby frightened the negro away after he had severely beaten his victim.

A few blocks from the scene of the first crime Mrs. Young was assaulted in about the same manner. The negro knocked her down with such force that a rib was broken, causing serious internal injuries. He choked and beat her about the head and on the side. The negro finally seized her purse and fled. Mrs. Young is in a precarious condition. Her clothing was torn almost entirely off in the struggle.

An hour lafer Mrs. Kennedy was attacked at her home near West End park. She was knocked down, beaten and choked. Her child ran for assistance and the negro fled. Mrs. Kennedy's injuries are very painful.

Emma Longcoy, 11 years old, was attacked and beaten by a negro half a dozen blocks from West End park.

The fifth assault occurred on a well-known young woman at Twentieth and Cross streets. She was knocked down and badly beaten.

Governor Jones has offered a reward of $100 each for the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties.

Four negroes have been arrested as suspects and lodged in jail. They each answer the description given by some of the victims. They are Ed Wright, Joe Gardner, Will Morgan and James Randle. Wright has been positively identified by Mrs. Kennedy as the man who assaulted her. As soon as darkness fell men began flocking toward the jail, and by 10 o'clock 2000 were on the streets. About 11:30 o'clock an attempt was made to storm the jail. The leader of the mob was arrested by Sheriff Kavanaugh on a charge of inciting a riot and lodged in jail. The sheriff has placed a heavy guard at the jail.

Fifteen Hundred Rebels Routed.

Manila, Aug. 17.—The Twelfth infantry left Calulet at sunrise today and advanced up the railway. Captain Evans' battalion deployed to the right of the track and Captain Woods to the left. Two companies remained on the track with the artillery. The insurgents were found well entrenched in front of the town. At a distance of 1500 yards the Filipinos, with an estimated force of 1500, opened fire. The enemy sent heavy volleys against the whole American line. Most of their shooting was high. Colonel Smith kept the whole line moving rapidly, with frequent rushes. The insurgents attempted to flank Captain Evans, and therefore two companies were sent to the right and drove them back. Unable to stand our continuous volleys the Filipinos abandoned the trenches and retreated through the town northward. It appeared that they had only received their supply of ammunition this morning. Had they been attacked sooner they could have made little resistance. The intense heat caused much suffering among the Americans.

Rushing Troops For Otis.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Secretary Root has been in consultation with the officers of the quartermaster's department with a view to expediting the movement of the Philippine reinforcements, and as a result he has directed that four additional transports be chartered. They are the Pueblo, Belgian King, Columbia and Charles Nelson. These four ships have a capacity of 2550 men. It is expected that all of them will be ready to sail for Manila by Sept. 10. It is secretary Root's desire that the entire body of reinforcements for General Otis' army may reach the Philippines for service during October at the latest. It is now believed that all of the 10 regiments will have landed at Manila by the time the dry season opens. A short and successful campaign by this new army would obviate the necessity for sending any additional volunteers to the Philippines.

Talk of Cotton Mill Combine.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 17.—The indications in local mill circles point to the formation of a cotton mill combine, with its financial end in New York, which will absorb $35,000,000 worth of Fall River manufacturing property. The trust movement appears to be spontaneous in its origin. It has been felt here for weeks, and even months, and promoters seem almost ready to tell all about it. In event of a combine of the mills the prices to be paid for the stock will be based upon the earning capacity of each mill per spindle. A mill trust will be welcomed by many and deprecated by some, but middle men will view it with distrust until its selling agencies are fixed upon.

Convention of Anti-Imperialists.

Boston, Aug. 17.—Secretary Winslow of the Anti-Imperialist league, in an interview, said that while it was not likely that the league would organize a national party and put a ticket in the field, it is proposed to call a national convention in October for the purpose of demonstrating the opposition of the people of the country to the present policy of the administration.

Bicycle Accident Proved Fatal.

Boston, Aug. 17.—Professor George A. Heuch of the University of Michigan died at the city hospital yesterday after undergoing an operation. He was brought to this city from Twin Mountain, N. H. He was riding down a hill on a bicycle when he fell foremost, striking on a mass of rocks, sustaining a fracture of his skull and several contusions.

Sixty-Seven Years of Widowhood.

Newburg, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Mrs. Mary B. Clasby died here yesterday, aged 94. She was a widow for 67 years. In 1832 she married Captain Frederick C. Clasby, commander of the whaler Meteor, sailing from Nantucket. Two weeks after marriage, her husband sailed and was drowned in an encounter with a whale.

FALL RIVER CONCERNS

Likely to Go Into the Hands of a Syndicate With $135,000,000 Capital.

To Embrace All the Cotton Mills of the Country.

Situation Has Developed Into What Appears to Be an Auction Sale.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 18.—No sooner had the fact of the offer by a syndicate to purchase the Fall River cotton mills been announced than it became known that another and much larger syndicate had entered the fields and was busy through a New York man in arranging matters preparatory to making a larger offer than that of the English people. At present the names of the men who compose this new syndicate, styled the national syndicate, are unobtainable, as it is their desire not to become known to the public until affairs are in the proper condition, but it is stated that the capital of this new concern is to be $135,000,000 at least, and the aim is to consolidate all the cotton mills in the country under one management, the purpose being to reduce the cost of production.

The New York man, who declines to state his name to the press, was in the city yesterday in consultation with mill directors and stockholders. He states that he will confer with the backers of the national syndicate, and within 48 hours will offer a bid in competition with the English concern.

From present appearances it seems that the situation may develop into an auction sale, to all intent, of $50,000,000 worth of Fall River cotton industries to the highest bidder. At present, however, the only bid in evidence is that of the English syndicate.

No offer is made for the Bourne mill, because the present owners have announced that they will not sell anyway. The Barnaby mills, which make ginghams, and the Stevens mills, which manufacture quilts, being out of competition, have been overlooked. The Globe yarn mill and the Sanford spinning mill are not included in the offers because of their connection with the yarn trust, so-called. Although no offer is made for the Robeson mill as yet, it is stated that it will be included with those already chosen by the syndicate.

There is much strong objection to the scheme among interested parties, the point being taken that good mill securities have, for the past 10 years, paid an average of 5 percent. If the amount which has been offered is paid into the banks it would only pay its holders about 3 percent. Naturally the question presents itself, to them at least, of the advisability of selling out their present stock simply at a slight advance of the present market price. In this connection the action of the national syndicate will undoubtedly be awaited with considerable interest, especially as it is intimated by its representatives that the offer will be larger than that of the English concern.

TALENT SHOWED UP WELL.

Continuance of Cycle Racing at Boston---Peabody Wins the Run-Off.

Boston, Aug. 18.—The wheelmen's racing program was continued yesterday at Charles River park. The amateur events were of a good quality and the professional events were fought out, excepting the final heat in the mile handicap, in which the three Butlers practically pocketed "Major" Taylor, with the result that [illegible] handicap men got such a lead that the four crack riders were badly distanced, and Nat and the "major" quit before the finish.

The two-mile national amateur championship was run in five heats, owing to the big field. The finishes of each heat were done in sprints in great style and at furious clips. The trials brought some of the best riders in the country together in the final, which went to Jimmie Moran of Chelsea in beautiful shape.

The half-mile amateur championship, final, which had been declared a dead heat between Peabody of Chicago and Tallander of Paris, was decided by the run-off between the men. Peabody won the honor.

The one-half mile L. A. W. championship race for amateurs was given to Dan Goodson, the Australiann, on a foul. Moran finished first, but his win was protested for swerving off his course.

Over 4000 members of the L. A. W. have registered at headquarters, and a large number of the visitors renewed their membership or joined the league.

The racing, of course, was the special event of the day, but the address of President Keenan to the local consuls in the morning was one of the principal features, and his announcement that Tom Linton, who made a new hour record this week, had come back to the L. A. W. from the N. C. A., proved a sensation.

In all its arduous labors of entertainment, the local committee has been so far ably assisted by the weather, and the visitors have been treated to pure Boston east wind, cool, invigorating air, with clear skies.

Charged With Criminal Carelessness.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 18.—The jury which has been holding an inquest into the cause of the trolley car accident rendered their verdict, finding that the motorman, George S. Hamilton, who was in charge of the ill-fated car, was guilty of criminal carelessness, and that the Shelton Street Railway company was very negligent in allowing the roadbed to be in the condition existing on the day of the accident, and in not enforcing the order for slow speed and constant inspection at the point where the accident occurred. The jury recommends that the governor call a special session of the legislature for the passage of laws requiring the use of inside and outside guard rails on all trolley car bridges, the licensing of motormen by a competent board, the reduction of the number of working hours of motormen and conductors, and the establishment of a state board to have supervision of the construction and operation of all trolley roads.

Discussed "Imperialism."

Ashfield, Mass., Aug. 18.—The 21st annual dinner of the Sanderson academy yesterday developed into a joint debate over the policy of the administration in dealing with the Philippines, and for a time the discussion was decidedly warm. The audience was about equally divided, and at first some of the speakers, notably Professor Norton of Harvard, who presided, were hissed. More feeling was displayed than ever before at these meetings. Besides Professor Norton, State Senator Parsons of Greenfield, Rev. J. W. Chadwick, Unitarian clergyman of Brooklyn; Charles Dudley Warner and Morefield Story of Boston—all spoke against the policy of the administration, while Rev. Dr. Plumb, president of the Boston Congregational club, pleaded eloquently for expansion.

Bicyclist Porter's Mishap.

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 18.—Arthur W. Porter, the well-known bicycle rider, was thrown from a tandem during a practice spin at the Waltham track yesterday, and probably fatally injured. Porter and Lee Hammond were spinning around the track on a tandem, with the latter steering, when the machine suddenly left the gravel and ran on to some rough ground. Both riders were thrown heavily to the ground. Porter struck on his head, and was picked up unconscious. He was conveyed to the Waltham hospital, where an examination showed that he had sustained concussion of the brain and other injuries. Hammond was not seriously hurt. Porter is the holder of several records. He is 36 years old.

Fractured Skull From Knockdown.

Boston, Aug. 18.—Jacob Falkoff, a Polish Hebrew, and driver of a victoria, had a dispute with William Costello on Avery street last evening, and bystanders said Falkoff knocked Costello down, fracturing his skull so that he is not expected to live. Falkoff, taking the unconscious man in his arms, placed him in his victoria, and drove with all speed to the emergency hospital, where he left Costello. Falkoff then drove to his stable, where he left his team, and the police are looking for him.

Wagon Ran Over Baby.

Boston, Aug. 18.—Harry Claxton, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of a child 8 months old on Oswego street by running over it, was held in $5000 by Judge Burke. According to testimony presented either the shafts or wheels of the wagon that Claxton was driving struck the baby carriage in which the child was sitting and knocked it out, and the wheels of the wagon ran over the baby and killed it.

Alleged Shovers of the Queer.

Pittsfield, Mass., Aug. 18. — Abbie Roberts, a colored girl 16 years of age, of Hinsdale, is under arrest, charged with passing counterfeit money, and her stepfather, James Grant, was arrested on a similar charge. The prisoners were brought before United States Commissioner Wood, waived examination and were held in $200 each for examination later in the week.

Jiminez Leaves Havana.

Havana, Aug. 18.—Colonel Bacallao, chief of the police detectives, reported to General Ludlow last evening that General Jiminez was still in Havana. Unless he has returned this is a mistake, for the correspondent of the Associated Press saw him enter a train and the train move off with him on board. It appears that during the last few days General Jiminez has received American credits amounting to nearly $1,000,000, which were much needed to further his plans. His son is much elated over the father's success in leaving the city without being discovered while so many were watching for him.

May Not Carry Out Threat.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—The closing session of the convention of the National Association of Colored Women of America was held here yesterday. Peace reigned. Mrs. Elizabeth C. Carter, representing 1000 members of New England, was in a mollified frame of mind, and it is thought that the threat of withdrawal made by the eastern women will not be carried out. Numerous resolutions in line with the purposes of the association were adopted. The death of Colonel Ingersoll, who in his will left $1000 to the Brown monument fund, was deplored

TEN MORE REGIMENTS.

Philippine Rebellion to Be Wound Up In Shortest Possible Time.

Activity In All Branches of the War Department.

Will Increase the Strength of the Army to Nearly a Hundred Thousand Men.

Washington, Aug. 18.—An order has been issued directing that 10 additional regiments of infantry volunteers be organized for service in the Philippines. The regiments will be numbered from Thirty-eight to Forty-seven, and will be organized at the following places in the order named: Fort Snelling, Minn., Fort Crook, Neb., Fort Riley, Kan., Fort Niagara, N. Y., Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., Fort Leavenworth, Kan., Jefferson Barracks, Mo., South Framingham, Mass., Camp Meade, Pa.

"The policy of the war department," says Secretary Root, "is to furnish General Otis with all the troops and supplies that he can use, and which are necessary to wind up the insurrection in the Philippines in the shortest possible time."

The secretary was speaking of the 10 regiments which were called out yesterday by order of the president. He said that no delay would be allowed in enlisting, equipping and supplying the new regiments, nor in transporting them, as well as the other regiments already organized, to the Philippines, as soon as they were needed for active operations. If the present number of transports is insufficient more will be procured.

The men already enlisted for the Philippine service will be sent at once, and the new regiments will be forwarded as fast as they are organized and needed. While there has been some suggestion that the new regiments will be used as a reserve force, it may be stated positively that these regiments, as well as more, if they can be used, will be sent to reinforce General Otis.

Secretary Root sent a copy of the order to the various departments of the army, and they at once began preparations for supplying the new organizations. Within half an hour the ordnance bureau had sent orders to the different arsenals directing that complete outfits of arms and ordnance supplies for each regiment be sent to the rendezvous where they are to be organized. The quartermaster's department gave orders for supplying tents, clothing and other equipments furnished by that department, while the commissary department ordered a sufficient supply of rations to be on hand to feed the troops as fast as they arrive. The medical department was also directed to see that supplies were sent.

The districts which were not very thoroughly covered in recruiting for the first regiments will be visited by the officers in the new organizations. It is the intention of the department to have the regiments give more attention to firing than to any other feature of the drill. The men will be armed as are the regular infantry regiments, with the magazine army rifle.

The selection of the majors and company officers for the regiments is now occupying the attention of the secretary, and the men are being chosen from among the volunteers who were called out in the Spanish war. The officers will be distributed as equitably as possible among the different states, but the efficiency record of the men will govern to a great extent in their selection.

It appears from the orders that the new regiments are to be mainly recruited in New England and the middle and central western states. Kansas and Pennsylvania have apparently been selected as the best field for recruits. It is said that no special effort is to be made to secure recruits in the southern states. This is due, it is said, to the experience of officers who operated in that quarter for recruits for the 10 volunteer regiments just organized. The only places where difficulty was experienced in securing men was in Georgia, Alabama and the Carolinas, and the gulf states and the two northwestern Pacific states.

Yesterday's action will add 13,000 men to the enlisted strength of the army, and increases the strength of the army to 95,045 men. The total number of volunteers called into service is 30,170 men, being only 4893 men short of the total authorized volunteer establishment of 35,000. It is stated at the department that the number of volunteers already called into service is regarded as amply sufficient to meet all possible needs of the army, and that there is no possibility that the remaining 4893 volunteers will be called for.

Wednesday's recruiting for the volunteer army amounted to 289 men, making the total recruitment to date 14,122, or 1032 in excess of the number required to complete the 10 regiments organized under the order of July 5.

All of these regiments have secured their full quota, except the Twenty-ninth regiment at Fort McPherson, Ga.; the Thirty-third at Fort Sam Houston, Tex, and the Thirty-fifth at the Vancouver barracks. These three regiments will be filled by the use of the overflow from the more successful regiments. The remainder of the excess will be used in filling the volunteer regiments being slowly organized in the Philippines, which are about 1800 men short.

Good Afternoon.

The postal cards sent out by Francis Batchelder,—asking, "Will you buy a beautiful home in the city of Quincy?—have the right ring. "Model homes" and "sure increase in values" are what the people are looking for, and they are to be found in Quincy. Mr. Batchelder shows foresight and we welcome him.

Had the refunding order for $40,000 passed the City Council, the tax rate this year would have been $2.05 less, or probably $17 per $1,000. Without refunding in 1900 there is very little show of reducing the rate much that year. Present indications are that after 1900 the tax rate will be considerably reduced. Refunding may be an issue in the election of Councilmen and Mayor this fall.

The tax rate of Boston will be fifty cents less this year, but how was it accomplished! By big loans and an increase of $53,708,702 in valuation. Just think of it over one milion dollars per week. The real estate in every ward was marked up; in one ward alone $13,635,500. Costly improvements, which were voted, don't enter at all, but are carried to sinking funds which will mature in ten, twenty, thirty and even forty years from date, when this generation have passed away.

The increase in valuation alone nets the city $703,584.00, but this does not begin to meet the current expenses. Loan orders for current expenses are made annually to the full limit of the city debt allowed by law, and special loans have been authorized greatly in excess of the limit.

The increase in the debt of Boston is alarming and it is of some concern to the taxpayers of Quincy, for some kind of union is probably within 30 or 40 years. Quincy cannot afford to "pay-as-you-go" and then be gobbled up and help Boston pay old debts. Although the sewer maintenance special assessment law was repealed and Boston must refund about $500,000, the maintenance of sewers is not paid for out of the tax levy this year, but borrowed. The finanical condition of Quincy is much better than Boston.

Quincy is fortunate in having gentlemen of business integrity who are willing to serve the city as Mayor and Councilmen. The salary of the Mayor is but $1,000 and is but little compensation for the service and time required of the executive of a city the size of Quincy; while the Councilmen receive no salary not even expenses, and are apt to receive as much criticism as honor. Mayor Keith will undoubtedly be the Democratic candidate for reelection but as he was admittedly elected by chance last year it is doubtful if he can be successful, as party lines will be drawn and the Republicans have a majority and need only to be united.

It must be admitted, however, that there are but few gentlemen upon whom the Republicans will unite. The one most prominently mentioned at this time is John O. Hall the City Auditor, but Thaddeus H. Newcomb, James Thompson, Roger H. Wilde and John Shaw are also suggested.

All have had experience in city affairs, but none more than City Auditor Hall. Economy and reduction of the tax levy and tax rate are necessary in 1900 and perhaps no one knows more about "the leaks" from the public treasury than Mr. Hall. It has not been his duty as City Auditor to check extravagance, but he has been strict in preventing misappropriations of funds, be it a Republican or a Democratic administration.

Mr. Hall will always be found on the side of good government. Again, he is a believer in Quincy and its future, and would purchase all supplies when possible in the city, even at a slight advance in cost, for it would benefit Quincy. Mayor Hall would be an honor to the city.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Three-cent car fares are to be tried in Detroit, if a hot legal fight does not prevent it. The common council has adopted by a vote of twenty-four to one, the amendment to the ordinaces of the Citizens' and Fort Wayne lines, changing the rate of fare from five cents to eight for a quarter. Chromos do not go with the tickets. —Brockton Enterprise.

☞Mr. Edward Atkinson has recovered from his recent humiliation sufficiently to announce that he will send his Circular of Shame to all officers returned from the Philippines. Mr. Atkinson is therefore preparing not to become acquainted with many Americans whose friendship would elevate him socially and nationally.—Pawtucket Times.

☞That George and Sanger Pullman, sons of the late parlor car king, were recently admitted to a Keeley institute in New York for treatment for drunkenness, is a sad commentary on the life led by these young men, whose every wish was gratified, and to whom money was no object. The poor, young man who works his way in life has many advantages, after all, as he is aware that an indulgence in dissipation will ruin his prospects for advancement, and consequently, if ambitious, he avoids temptation and buckles down to hard work, later reaping the reward and enjoying that which his own efforts have attained.—Haverhill Gazette.

A Contrast.

The contrast between the park like manner in which the grounds of the Massachusetts Fields school are kept up and the manner in which the grounds of the Wollaston school are looked after, is exceedingly painful to the residents of Wollaston. The Wollaston school building is surrounded by lawns and shrubbery, which, if properly cared for, would make the spot a beautiful one. As it is, the lawns are not properly cut, giving the entire property an "abandoned farm" appearance. In connection with this subject it has been suggested from various quarters that it would seem to be for the interest of the city to consolidate the janitorship of the two schools, thus allowing one man adequate pay so that he can devote his entire time to the proper care of the two buildings.

TO ILLUMINATE.

The Houghs Neck Improvement Society

Elect Committee With Full Powers.

Improvement of the Resort Discussed.

The annual meeting of the Houghs Neck Improvement Society was held Thursday evening at Shakespeare hall. While the attendance of cottagers was not as large as could have been desired, the meeting was such as to leave no doubt that the cottagers are fully alive to the needs of this section of the city. President John Cavanagh presided and Albert H. Taber was secretary.

W. W. Wilcox, treasurer of the society, made his annual report which showed that the total receipts of last year were $310.10. All bills against the society had been paid, and there was a balance in the treasury of $76.61.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President,—John Cavanagh.
Secretary,—Albert H. Taber.
Treasurer,—W. W. Wilcox.

Committee on Public Affairs,—Thomas Downey, Jr., W. H. Shaw, Sidney Squires, W. H. Packard, Ira Whittemore, W. F. Macey, Mr. Creber, George W. Morton and Mr. Leonard.

Committee on Sanitary affairs,—Ira Whittemore, Albert H. Taber and W. H. Taylor.

President Cavanagh said the association had done considerable good work and should be continued. The most of us are not voters of Quincy but the City Council has always been ready and willing to listen to any committee from the association. The Council had made an appropriation widening Sea street, which he considered a good beginning. The only way to get anything is to kick until we get what we want. In Quincy they get a reduction for water if not used, but we do not here. We should have cheaper rates and get all we can for our money. We have only one public street the balance must be cared for by abutters. He had consulted at different times with members of the City Council and advised them to what was best to do.

Mr. Leonard said he understood that Sea street was only to be built to Germantown road. He hoped there would be some way to get it widened way through as the expense now would be small. He advised a petition.

W. F. Macey, thought it best to get the part already provided for before anything else was tried.

Mr. Leonard did not think Quincy was doing anything for Houghs Neck. It was right that this should be forced. We are not getting benefit for what we are paying our money. The boulevard was for the benefit of the city.

W. H. Packard said the committee is scattered in winter, and it almost impossible to get it together. Work should be done in the summer. He had recently met a number of the City Council who had showed a good feeling toward Houghs Neck and made a number of good suggestions, advising a petition to the City Council signed by the residents, setting forth our needs. He also advised raising a fund to have Counsel who would watch the doings of the City Council and represent us. We should have street lights here; if not electric lights at least a few oil lamps. We have not been used square and it was much our own fault. John Cavanagh was the only man who had done anything, and we should do something to show the City Council that there is more than one man at Houghs Neck.

ILLUMINATION.

The matter of illumination was then taken up, and it was voted to have an illumination.

President Cavanagh hoped all would take hold and make the affair a success.

It was voted that a committee of two be appointed to present a list of seven for executive committee, who should have entire charge of the affair. This committee reported the following list which was adopted: President, John Cavanagh, secretary, A. H. Taber; treasurer, W. W. Wilcox, Thomas Downey, Jr., A. A. Meyer, W. H. Cavanagh, Waldo Turner and James Cavanagh.

The date for the illumination was left to this committee, who will probably fix upon Monday, Aug. 28, as the date.

The meeting then adjourned.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Mary P. Gainor of Randolph, for violation of the liquor law, was called and again continued until Aug. 28.

Patrick Costello was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Cornelius Sullivan was sent to the house of correction for ten days for assault on his wife Margaret at Quincy.

OUT DOOR MEETING.

Socialists Arrange a Rally and Invite the Public.

Arrangements are being perfected for the greatest gathering of Christian Socalists ever held in this State and possibly in this country in an outdoor meeting to be held at Bellamy grove in this city Sunday, Aug. 27, when speakers from all over the State will address the people upon the ethics of Socialism.

One of the peculiar features of this great meeting is the fact that citizens of all shades of political opinion are liberally subscribing to the funds to make this affair a grand success, that they may go and listen to this new thought which at the present time is attracting the attention of citizens from all sections of this country.

Such speakers as the Rev. F. O. McCartney of Rockland, Mayor John C. Chase of Haverhill, Representative Carey and Scates, Winfield P. Porter of Newburyport and a long list of others will be present and make addresses.

This organization which teaches the brotherhood for man, believe in doing unto others as you would be done by, in consequence of which they invite the public generally to come and hear these speakers, furnishing to all good music and refreshments without charge.

Mayor Harrison A. Keith of this city has been invited to be present and to extend the hospitality of the city to the mayor of Haverhill and others.

LATEST!

A LIVELY BLAZE.

Barn and Shed on North Street Destroyed.

A Connecting Dwelling House Saved.

Furniture, etc., Damaged by Smoke and Water.

The alarm from Box 74 at 12.46 this noon called the department to a lively fire on North street owned by H. H. Faxon, and occupied on first floor by Myers Abraham, who sub-lets the upper floor to John F. Connell.

The property consisted of a large house with L and stable and sheds adjoining.

As near as can be learned the fire started in the stable by the heating of new hay. The first the family knew of the fire was a dense cloud of smoke which came pouring from the building.

In the barn besides a quantity of hay were two wagons, two bicycles and some live stock. A bull and two calves were rescued. The wagons were got out but the bicycles were destroyed.

The box from which the alarm was sounded was over half a mile away, which caused some delay in getting the department to the scene. When they arrived the barn was a roaring mass of hot flames. It had communicated through the L to the back of the house and it at first looked as though the house would go.

There was a large quantity of furniture in the house, and this was hustled into the yard by willing hands.

Three lines of hose were quickly laid the first by Hose 4, and tons of water were soon being poured into the burning buildings. The first work was to save the house and to do this a line of hose was carried into the building and the spread of the flames was checked. Other streams were getting in their work upon the barn, and it was soon seen that the firemen had become masters of the fire.

The barn was badly gutted, having burned through the roof and sides and but little remains other than a skeleton, that will not pay to repair.

The L connecting the barn with the house was also badly gutted and completely burned out inside.

But little fire reached the house proper, other than in the rear end, and but little fire damage was done here. The house, however, was completely saturated with smoke, and the water damage will be heavy.

It is hard to estimate the exact loss but that on the barn and contents can not be far from $800, while the loss to the house will possibly reach $200. The house was probably saved by the slate roof.

The old members of Hose 4 rendered valuable service at the fire. They arrived long before the regular members, and worked with a will.

Call for a Mass Convention.

Realizing the necessity of organizing the Christian Young People of our country against the legalized liquor traffic is proof of the tremendous war that must be fought before our country is free. The voice of God and the American flag are calling for volunteers.

The time seems ripe when the cultivated ability of women should combine with the power of the ballot in the hands of men; that they, as common brothers and sisters, enlist as soldiers for God and his sacred war to save men and women their manhood and womanhood; that they, to save the home and the nation against the saloon, should stand shoulder to shoulder in this great battle to dethrone the arch enemy of humanity and the desecration of our flag of liberty.

With this end in view, Young People's Christian Temperance Unions are being organized throughout the country. Frances Willard said to the young people, "Thank God for the fresh, young lives coming to the rescue," and as one of the greatest temperance leaders in the world, it would seem that no greater tribute could be paid to the memory of her who appreciated these lives, fresh with the vigor of youth and warm with its enthusiasm, than to have them bring into life on her birthday a national organization to welcome the Twentieth Century.

Hence the undersigned extend a cordial invitation to all young people's societies to send representatives to a mass convention to be held in Chicago, Ill., on September 27th and 28, 1899.

Entertainment is being arranged for by the Chicago local Union for all regular attendants upon the convention. Send your name at once to Adah Jenks, 1119 The Temple, chairman of the Entertainment Committee.

NO. 7 IN TRANSFERS

Quincy Ranks High in Real Estate Conveyances.

Last week's record of real estate conveyances in Quincy aggregates 23, which is at the rate of 1196 per year.

Only six Massachusetts cities and towns reported more conveyances for the same time,—Boston, Worcester, Springfield, Somerville, Fall River and Lynn, all large cities. Some pessimists say that the Quincy conveyances are only by tax collector's sale or mortgagee sales, but none of the following list was by collector and only one by mortgagee. Even if some were, the same would be true of many of the other cities. No better comparison of transfers can be made, and the progressive city of Quincy ranks No. 7. The conveyances were:

Grace L. Ford to Henry H. Mathews, $1.
City of Quincy to Henry H. Mathews, $35.
Eugene S. Taylor to George Sears, $1.
George Sears to Fannie M. Taylor, $1.
Herbert T. Whitman to James Riley, $1.
Chas. C. Barton et al, trs., to Ann Daley, $1.
Seth W. Fiske to J. Winthrop Pratt, $1.
John A. McDonnell to Mary L. Cunniff, et al, $1.
Mary V. Boyington to Helen S. Philips, $1.
Franziska Wittich to Stephen Kusser, $1,100.
Henry H. Savage et al, trs., to Walter L. Merrill, $1.

THE TROTTING RECORD.

Judge Cosgrove's mile in 2:19½ at Readville gives Prodigal another 2:20 performer.

The Atlantic City horse show will be made an annual event in view of the recent great success.

The 2:12 pace at Dover had four starters, all geldings, and three of them grays —Chelsea, Peter Turney and George G.

Kitty R, 2:08¼, by Kermiss, and Shade On, 2:10, both Peoria records, make two more 2:10 performers for the descendants of Onward.

In the first heat of the free for all at Nashua Terrill S. broke the track record by stepping the mile in 2:13½. He also held the previous track record.

Joseph O'Calloday has a bay filly in his stable at Belmont track, Philadelphia, named Miss Fewclothes. The unfortunate young miss is a trotter by Pretense.

M. H. Goodin, Philadelphia, will soon try to lower the world's team record, pacing, with Brightlight and Bellewood A. John R. Gentry and Robert J. set that mark at 2:08.

I. R. Blumenthal, Hartford, has exported a Chimes mare to Austria on an order recently sent him for that blood and sex. The purchase was made from Mr. Ringrose.

The guideless pacer Albatross, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Flynn, and Fred Burns, manager of "Mile a Minute" Murphy, the cyclist, have arranged to tour Europe, giving exhibitions.

In the sixth heat of the 2:30 trot, Marshalltown, Ia., the bay mare Gertrude A., by Little Moak, dislocated an ankle and was distanced. She had won two heats of the race, the first and fourth.

The chestnut mare Temper, by Elyria, who won the 2:18 trot at Elyria, is the famous Cleveland matinee performer, property of W. M. Commer and winner of the Gentlemen's Driving club challenge cup for trotters last season.—Horseman.

THE FASHION PLATE.

Red and pink have taken very many of the foremost seats in fashion's court this season.

The pale gray swiss muslins worn this summer are exceedingly delicate and beautiful in tint.

The mania for braiding dresses, and, for that matter, for braiding nearly every article of wear, is likely to continue.

There will be no end of fancy shirt waists this autumn to wear with tailor made coats and skirts of cloth, tweed or cheviot.

"Venetian pink" is the name of a new, peculiar and becoming shade of rose that appears among tulles, velvets and ribbons for collars, bows, rosettes and millinery uses.

Some of the newest shirred tunics, matching the open bodice and sleeves in fabric, are rounded at the lower edge and are so short that they look extremely like the panniers of other days.

The new supple weaves of taffeta silk will be in great use this fall both for gowns and accessories, to say nothing of the pretty dotted and striped patterns and the weaves barred with satin in contrasting colors for fancy waists.

To combine with the lustrous peau de soie silks and soft corded failles will be set forth rich, beautiful autumn broches and pompadour matelasses in lovely colors mingled with pale gold or olive gray and woven in rare designs which could have originated nowhere outside of France.—New York Post.

REVERSIBLE SENTENCES.

Carefully boiled eggs are good and palatable.

Scandalous society and life make gossips frantic.

She sits lamenting sadly, often too much alone.

Badly governed and fearfully troubled now is Ireland.

Man is noble and generous often, but sometimes vain and cowardly.

Politics and religion avoid arguing in. Here is good and sound advice.

Adieu, darling! Time flies fast, sails are set, boats are ready. Farewell!

Honesty and truth are good and admirable qualities, as sympathy and love are endearing traits.

Love is heaven, and heaven is love, youth says. All beware! says age. Trying is poverty, and fleeting is love.

Solomon had vast treasures—silver and gold things precious. Happy and rich and wise was he. Faithful served he God.

Matter and mind are mysteries. Never mind. What is matter? Matter is—never mind. What is mind? Mind is—never matter.

Exercise care; excess beware;
Rise early and breathe free air;
Eat slowly; trouble drive away;
Feet warmish keep; blend work with play.

BEAUTY SPOTS.

The too frequent use of greasy preparations on the face will cause a growth of down.

Cocoanut oil brushed over the brows will promote their growth and give them a glossy appearance.

A valuable lotion for strengthening the color of the hair and useful in retarding its turning gray is made of four ounces of bay rum and one ounce of sulphur.

A frequent cause of the hair falling out is a deficient state of the circulation. Rubbing the scalp for a short time every night with the fingers will stimulate the circulation.

There is nothing better than sage tea to prevent the hair from falling out. This should be well rubbed into the roots three or four times a week. Bran water is also good for the scalp where there is dandruff. After rubbing it in the hair must be well washed, or it will stick together.

JEWELRY JOTTINGS.

The solitaire was once considered the only proper thing for an engagement ring. Now the fad is for colored stones. The birth or favorite stone is considered best.

Old fashioned jewelry is being utilized to great advantage at the present time. Lockets are worn on the Cyrano chains, and earrings are converted into studs and belt pins.

Anklets are being worn by a few women who have courage and love for the conspicuous. They are of dull gold set with uncut stones and are worn with short skirts for bicycling and tramping. They should be worn on the left foot.

TO CLEAN CARPETS.

If you have a carpet that looks dingy and you wish to restore it to its original freshness, make a stiff lather of Ivory Soap and warm water and scrub it, width by width, with the lather. Wipe with a clean damp sponge. Do not apply more water than necessary.

The vegetable oils of which Ivory Soap is made, and its purity, fit it for many special uses for which other soaps are unsafe and unsatisfactory.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

ROGET WAS CORNERED

But He Knew How to Speak to Specialized Military Minds.

Dreyfus' Cause Helped by the Testimony of Picquart.

Intimates to the Court Martial That De Clam Is the Real Traitor.

Rennes, Aug. 18.—With the usual attendance and without any noteworthy incident, the second trial by court-martial of Captain Dreyfus was resumed yesterday in the Lycee. General Roget, M. Bertullus, the investigating magistrate; the widow of the late Lieutenant Colonel Henry and Colonel Picquart were on the stand. Mme. Henry, after M. Bertullus had deposed, asked leave to speak. She stood up in a stagey manner, raised her left hand and asked to be heard. She wanted to contradict what Bertullus had said regarding the friendship of her husband and Esterhazy.

She wanted to show that Bertulus could not possibly have wrung an avowal from Henry that he and Esterhazy formed an association of traitors. Her story coincided with what General Roget said on this subject. So far from Bertulus appearing to suspect Henry and crushing the latter with words of suspicion, she said her late husband had described that magistrate as "charming." She said that Bertulus even embraced Henry when the latter was taking his leave, a circumstance which struck the wife when she heard of it, as boding no good. She jumped to the conclusion that falsehood lay behind the kiss, and that Bertulus was a Judas. This idea she then developed in a passionate peroration that seemed a lesson learned by heart. Bertulus felt that it would never do to argue with her, for tears were standing in her eyes, and the judges were looking sympathetic. So he said that he preferred saying nothing to a lady whose grief he respected, and whose angry excitement he pardoned.

General Roget again showed extraordinary forensic ability. I do not know what the military worth is of the generals who are acting here as witnesses, but I do not wonder at the old judges of the court of cassation being jealous of their argumentative capacity, their skill in turning a case inside out, in puzzling innuendo, in casuistry and in elegant verbal facility.

Dreyfus was under Roget as an outsider at the general staff, and seemed tortured by his arguments and the points he made, points that went home to the military judges, and were intended to poison their minds. Finally he could stand it no longer, and, starting up, his eyes gleaming with anger, he cried: "You deal only in argumentation. I have listened to you for hours without hearing a single fact."

There were, nevertheless, some facts, but they were adduced to destroy the credit of Colonel Picquart, who was represented, when head of the intelligence department, as playing a crooked part, and keeping back every piece of information unfavorable to Dreyfus.

Maitre Demange made many happy points in putting questions to General Roget, who dodged them with presence of mind and adroitness, and, when in a corner, with cool impudence. Still Roget had the ear of the court. He knows how to speak to specialized military minds.

General Roget was unable to conceal his annoyance and anger when M. Demange scored. The ends of his fingers twiched nervously, and he frequently turned for consolation toward Generals Billot and Zurlinden, former ministers of war, who were seated on the witness seats behind him. The general also threw glances of savage resentment at the audience when, as happened several times, suppressed titters went round the court room when M. Demange cornered him. Finally General Roget became quite red in the face, and answered M. Demange in a hollow voice, contrasting strangely with the confident tone of Wednesday.

The evidence of M. Bertulus was, on the whole, favorable to Dreyfus, in the judgment of civilian listeners. Unfortunately, his reputation is blown upon. He belonged, when at Nice, to the south railway gang, and as the magistrate sent to investigate their swindle, played into their hands.

Roget alluded to this and to other doings of Bertulus, and showed that he did not respect him. M. Bertulus is an epicurean, and has rather shocked Rennes people by his rather gay relations with a former actress, who, somehow, rolls in riches.

Colonel Picquart protested most formally against all suspicion of having caused the disappearance of any document relating to Dreyfus. Documents had disappeared, but he was not connected with their disappearance. He also repelled with scorn the assertion that he had endeavored to put another officer in the place of the real author of the bordereau.

"It is true," the witness continued, "that the name of Captain Dorval being mentioned to me as a dangerous man I had him watched, and do you know, gentlemen, by whom Dorval was watched? By his own cousin," continued Picquart, "Major du Paty de Clam" (sensation).

Colonel Picquart then next proceeded to reply to the various attacks made upon him. "These tactics," he said, "are evidently pursued with the object of lessening the value of my testimony."

The colonel next outlined his connection with Dreyfus at the military college, and afterwards at the ministry of war, where, owing to anti-Semite prejudices of the general staff, he first appointed Dreyfus to a department where probationers had no direct cognizance of the secret documents. He then described the consternation in the war office when the treason was discovered and the relief experienced when it was thought the guilty person had been discovered. It was then the witness discovered the similarity between the handwriting of Dreyfus and that of the bordereau, and he had recourse to du Paty de Clam, "who was supposed to have graphological knowledge."

Then the witness described what he characterized as "the irregular steps" taken by General Mercier to accomplish the arrest of Dreyfus.

Referring to the dictation test, the witness earnestly and emphatically affirmed that he saw no signs of perturbation in the handwriting of Dreyfus on that occasion and, moreover, shortly afterwards du Paty de Clam admitted he had not found a fresh charge against Dreyfus. "Beyond the bordereau," added the witness, "there was nothing against Dreyfus—absolutely nothing."

His impression during the investigation was that the accused man's acquittal was probable, as the evidence was insufficient. Witness believed he had even told the minister of war that the condemnation of the accused could not be secured unless the court-martial had been shown the secret documents which it had been agreed to submit to the court.

The colonel next declared that in 1894 he did not know the contents of the secret dossier. But he believed, like all other officers, that it contained frightful proofs against the prisoner. But, when he became acquainted with its contents, he found that his "earlier impressions" were entirely wrong. (Prolonged sensation.) Picquart then recalled the vehement protests of innocence which the prisoner had not ceased to recall during all phases of the degradation. The witness declared he was quite ignorant of the confessions Dreyfus was alleged to have made to Captain Lebrun-Renault.

working on the plan of the concentration of troops and the Madagascar expedition. He added: "It was in De Clam's department that the search should have been made, or rather in his private room, where he worked quite alone." (Sensation.)

De Clam, continued the witness, had been guilty of grave imprudence in having, contrary to the regulations, had confidential documents copied by simple secretaries, non-commissioned officers and even private soldiers, whereas the custom was that such work was done solely by officers.

Later on the witness said he wondered if it was not to avoid the risk of punishment that Paty de Clam advanced the date of the reception of the bordereau at the intelligence department so as to make it prior to the date of his (Paty de Clam's) arrival in the third department. (Sensation.)

A few minutes later the court adjourned for the day.

Continuing, Colonel Picquart defended himself against the charge that he had always directed his efforts towards the rehabilitation of Dreyfus. He said he had only directed the investigations made to that end when he became aware that the writings of Esterhazy and the bordereau were identical, and that consequently the charges against Dreyfus no longer existed.

During the course of his deposition, Colonel Picquart asked to be confronted with Major De Clam and to be permitted "to deal with some of his peculiarities" when De Clam is in the witness box. Next the colonel examined the bordereau and declared Dreyfus could not have disclosed part of it.

Colonel Picquart then declared he had never seen Dreyfus copy the smallest document in the war office. In the opinion of the witness the department where the bordereau was discovered ought to have been searched when the discovery was made. This, he explained, was the department in which De Clam worked, and that was the department which was

M. Labori's assailant is still undiscovered. At the convent of Marists at Cesson, near Rennes, the brothers vainly searched for him. This has won sympathy for the clerical party, as it was thought a brotherhood might shelter him.

An hypothesis that seems nearer to the truth is that he is a soldier, who was given a suit of clothing and told where to exchange it for a uniform, which he could again don as soon as Labori was shot. I can imagine a Breton soldier, brimful of hatred to the Jew and "that traitor Dreyfus," taking his life in his hands and going resolutely to kill Labori.

Unfortunate Picnickers.

Rockford, Ills., Aug. 18.—Two hundred persons were poisoned at Oregon yesterday by lemonade which they drank at a picnic. As yet no fatalities have been reported. In the office of one physician 30 persons were stretched upon the floor at one time. Many were taken ill while driving to their homes and lay helpless along the roadsides. Doctors were summoned from neighboring villages to care for them. The poisoning is supposed to have been the result of citric acid in the lemonade.

Alleged Dynamiters.

Cleveland, Aug. 18.—Another arrest was made yesterday in connection with two attempts to blow up cars here on July 23. The prisoner is Ray Folger, an 18-year-old boy, who, it is alleged, was associated with a gang of four other lads. There were serious disturbances on the south side Wednesday night. A dozen cars were attacked during the night.

Killed on a Crossing.

Buffalo, Aug. 18.—While George Frank, Jay Gould and two young ladies were crossing the Lake Shore tracks in Erie their carriage was struck by an engine. Gould and one of the ladies were so badly injured that they died later. The other woman is in a precarious condition. Frank was not seriously injured. Both horses were killed.

For the Defense Fund.

Detroit, Aug. 18.—By an almost unanimous vote the delegates to the International Typographical union adopted a constitutional amendment increasing the union's regular monthly dues 10 cents per capita, the increase of revenue to go to the defense fund. The action must be ratified by the general membership.

Back From the Arctic.

Tromsoe, Norway, Aug. 18.—Walter Wellman and the survivors of the Polar expedition led by him arrived here last evening on the steamer Capella, having successfully completed their explorations in Franz Josef Land. Mr. Wellman has discovered important new lands and many new islands.

DROPPED INTO THIRD PLACE.

Bostons Split Even In Two Slow Games With the Louisville Aggregation.

Boston, Aug. 18.—The Bostons in two slow games split even with the Louisvilles, thereby dropping in third place, while the Philadelphias, who won yesterday, moved up a peg. Brooklyn also won.

The first game, which the champions won, was hard fought from the start, the visitors hitting Nichols hard and frequently, Boston finally winning in the ninth.

In the second game Lewis did a coaching stunt on the lines, while Bailey was sent out to pitch. Dowling and Bailey vied with each other in firing the ball wide of the mark. The Colonels got two hits off Bailey, Kelly's homer and Clingman's single, but hits weren't needed. Seven bases on balls and two men hit by pitched balls explains the rest. On two hits the Colonels scored two runs. Boston on eight hits tallied once. By killing enough time Dowling got the umpire to call the game in the eighth while Louisville was at bat.

Owing to orations by Dowling, Duffy and Hamilton, small fines were imposed, but Dowling's was remitted. The Colonels several times tried to rush both umpires off their feet. The kicking only served to prolong matters and make the bad ball playing stand out the more vividly.

Teeth extracted absolutely without pain by the use of the

"BOSTON VEGETABLE VAPOR."

It is claimed that, while it has the required properties of ether, chloroform, nitrous oxide gas, it lacks the disagreeable and dangerous qualities of these drugs. It is certainly a boon to suffering humanity to be relieved of the nausea too often following the administering of sedatives of the old school.—Boston Transcript.

Chiffonieres

There's a world of comfort in owning a chiffoniere. Not an article of furniture in your whole house adds more to the convenience of living, and nothing is so pleasant as to possess the "know where to find things." The chiffoniere idea was a happy thought—in it you have lots of drawer room, with a place for everything and everything in its place. To own a chiffoniere, makes one wonder how they ever lived without one. In beautiful golden oak, quartered oak, mahogany, bird's eye maple and birch we have a large variety.

THE FLOWER OF FAME.

He sought it before the billow of spring on the meadow was seen,
When only the flush of the willow was tracing the river with green;
He scanned to the edge of the fraying snows that dappled the mountain slope,
And ever too late the March sun rose, for he searched the world with hope.

I saw him at noon of the summer day, and that was the favorite hour
To one who had hunted from March to May and never had found a flower,
For the light was full, as though the sun were aiding his eager quest,
And there were no warning shadows to run o'er his path from east or west.

And still in September's purple and gold he was hunting the grudging ground,
But not with the steady eye of old or the spring-time's joyous bound;
If he stopped in his feverish roaming, 'twas to question the darkling air.
Too early came the gloaming; he was searching with despair.

And while, for a chance of the rarest, he wanders in storm or heat,
He is blind to the charm of the fairest he is crushing beneath his feet
The flower of every valley, the flower of all the year,
Deep in whose broken blossom the dew lies like a tear.

ALMOST A BURGLARY

An Old Lady Has Her Way and Her Niece Has a Wedding Present.

Mrs. Driscoll had a mind of her own.

Some uncharitable people went so far as to say that if she had not had so much mind her husband might have been living today. Be that as it may, he died and left her sole mistress of a handsome property, with no one to oppose her will.

She adopted one of his nieces and loved her as well as she could love any one but herself.

The niece grew up a winsome lassie and had lovers, as maidens will.

Luckily her choice was her aunt's as well, and the day was set for her marriage with Harry Winship without opposition, the only condition being that they should return to Mrs. Driscoll's home after a brief wedding tour.

"Well, Kate," said the stately lady the day before the wedding, "everything is ready, and I must say that I never saw preparations more complete—not even for your uncle's funeral, poor man! I always meant to give you a handsome marriage portion. So get your hat. We'll go to the bank."

What girl would delay under similar circumstances?

The carriage was speedily ordered, and soon stopped before the bank.

Except the bank officials, there was in the building only George Travis, one of Kate's discarded suitors, who was getting an insignificant check cashed.

Mrs. Driscoll was not slow to see an opportunity to flutter her sails, as her worthy husband had been accustomed to say.

Drawing her checkbook, she smilingly wrote a check for £2,000 and presented it to the cashier.

"Payable to Miss Kate—a marriage portion, I presume. Ah, very generous of you! Miss Kate, I congratulate you," said the cashier. "Shall I make the new book in your own name?"

"She wants no book—at least not yet," retorted Mrs Driscoll sharply. "When I give a thing, I give it. I want good, solid money for that check—bright, yellow gold."

"But—why—you live fully a mile from a neighbor. Have you—do you think of the temptation?" he said hesitatingly.

"Did I ask your advice?" snapped Mrs. Driscoll. "I am able to take care of my own property, and if it will not break the bank I want it in gold."

"Certainly, madam. My conscience is clear if you wake up to find yourself murdered tomorrow morning. This bank can pay ten times that sum at sight, madam," was the dignified reply, to which Mrs. Driscoll listened in curt silence.

The cashier went into the vault, closing the door behind him.

George Travis, having counted the money received on his check, went out without a glance at the two ladies.

"There! Now I reckon Travis begins to realize what he has lost," nodded Mrs. Driscoll.

Kate blushed slightly.

"But, aunt," she said uneasily, "wouldn't it be better for me to take a book with the money left to my credit? Harry will not be here until tomorrow, and—and think of the risk! It is unsafe."

"How long is it since I came to be told my duty by a miss of 18?" breathed Mrs. Driscoll scornfully. "What a coward you are! If you don't want the money, say so, and I'll let it remain where it is. If you do want it, hold your tongue and help me take care of it until I can give you both into Harry Winship's keeping."

Further conversation was prevented by the cashier's return.

He carried a strong iron box.

"Count it!" commanded Mrs. Driscoll.

One by one the golden coins were counted under her admiring eyes.

"There, that is money! That is like a wedding gift!" she ejaculated in a satisfied tone.

"Better let me give you a receipt for it and put it into the safe tonight," suggested the cashier.

"Put it into my carriage!" was the sharp order to the bank porter.

The man obeyed and watched with a puzzled face the carriage out of sight.

"She beats all I ever saw," he said. "I don't wonder her husband died."

Meanwhile Mrs. Driscoll returned home well satisfied with the world and herself in particular.

She had had her own way.

"I shall not put this under my pillow as I generally do," she said to Kate. "This box is harder than feathers. I shall put it under the corner of your bed."

"Thanks, aunt! Iron is as soft as feathers for me to lie on," laughed Kate.

"You needn't lie upon that side of the bed at all," was the cool reply.

"There's a man in the kitchen as says he's had not a mouthful to eat for ten days," said Norah, the servant, appearing at the door.

"The farm is only a mile farther on. Send him about his business," answered her mistress.

Norah went out.

Soon a figure clothed in rags went by the open window.

The man turned and shook his clinched fist at the astonished lady.

"Of all things! The impudent thing!" she gasped.

"Oh, but, aunt, I'm sure he has heard all that we said about that horrid money!" faltered Kate.

Mrs. Driscoll's face told the concern which she felt, but she turned her back upon her niece and took up a book.

Darkness came.

The lights in the house were extinguished at the usual time.

Kate could not sleep. In vain she counted slowly from 101 and said the letters of the alphabet backward.

She heard the village clock slowly strike the hour of midnight, then 1, 2 and 3.

Kate's apartment was dark, but the moon shone dimly into her aunt's room just across the hall.

Suddenly a form stood in the doorway, then vanished within.

Was it the tramp? Was that something in his hand a knife?

Kate stole softly through the doorway, listening breathlessly. Then she darted into a small room near Mrs. Driscoll's door.

Suddenly the door was noiselessly closed and a man stood so near her hiding place that she could hear his hurried breathing.

The faint odor of chloroform told why the door was closed.

What if he gave an overdose?

Kate loved the stern woman, and notwithstanding her timidity that thought nerved her to action.

She sprang from the room with a shrill cry, clinching both hands in the hair of the intruder. It is needless to say that he was startled out of what little common sense he possessed.

He threw her violently aside with a muttered oath and fled. But he left a generous lock of hair in her hands.

Her head struck a corner of the door in falling, and it was dawn when she awoke to full consciousness of what had happened.

Womanlike, she rushed to see if the iron box was still safe. It had not been disturbed. Then she threw open the door of Mrs. Driscoll's room. That lady was unconscious, but breathing evenly. Kate's courage returned.

Silently she opened the window, letting the fresh morning air draw freely through the room. Then she crept into her own bed to await developments.

Before sunrise Mrs. Driscoll awoke.

"Mercy on us!" she screamed. "Norah did not shut the window last night. I shall get my death of cold, Kate!"

But Kate did not stir until her name had been called several times. Then she answered drowsily.

"Get up, child! It's your wedding day, too, and I in danger of pneumonia," called her aunt.

Kate shut the window and helped the irate lady to dress, touching her hair with dainty, soothing fingers as she arranged it.

The household arose and went about its tasks. Visitors came and went. Kate kept her secret well. The ceremony was over which made her a wife. The bridal dress was exchanged for a traveling costume.

"I shall take the iron box to the bank as we go to the train, auntie," Kate said as she bade her goodby.

"As you please. I've had my say about it, and no harm came of it either," was the tart reply.

No one knew of the tragedy which did not take place in the silent watches of the night.

No one knew until Kate, nestling in her husband's clasp as the train sped onward, told him the story in her own way and time.

"But the hair—did you save it? It is a clew," he said quickly.

"I burned it," was the calm reply. "I did not need to save it, for I knew whose it was. I always thought he liked aunt's money better than me. Now I know that he coveted the dowry more than the bride. But the money is safe in the bank, and wasn't it strange that he should be there to see it deposited?"

"Not George Travis?" ejaculated Harry.

"Yes; let him go," she whispered softly, nestling closer. "Think what he lost—what you gained, Harry, dear. Let his own conscience punish him—if he has any. We'll never let aunt know. We will keep our first secret forever."

Harry Winship was a man. He could not refuse his wife's first request, and Mrs. Driscoll does not know to this day what danger menaced her.—Fred Small, Jr., in Cincinnati Herald.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 20—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The leaven and the meal.—Math. xiii, 33; Dan. ii, 31-35, 45. (A missionary meeting.)

The ultimate diffusion of Christianity throughout the world and its triumph over the kingdoms of the world are assured. Christ's parable of the leaven and the meal bears testimony to the first statement, and Daniel's interpretation of the dream of Nebuchadnezzar to the second. But these references also point out some of the characteristics of the worldwide spread and triumph of Christ's kingdom.

1. Christ's kingdom is to spread gradually throughout the world. Small in the beginning, yet gradually the leaven diffuses itself throughout all the meal. One part is leavened, and it leavens another until the whole is leavened. How characteristic of the growth of Christ's kingdom. First two disciples called; then 12; at the ascension, 500; at Pentecost, 3,000; today millions under every clime in the world. First Asia Minor, which touches continental Europe, which in turn leavens England, which leavens America, and today England and America are touching and leavening the world. Gradually, but surely, the kingdom spreads, and, if discouraged that it is not fast enough, let us recall the parable of the leaven.

2. The spread of Christ's kingdom is to be universal. The spread of the leaven was gradual, but at last it leavened the whole lump, and the stone not only smote the image, but became a great mountain and filled the whole earth. Christ's kingdom is to be a worldwide kingdom. Men have tried to found universal kingdoms, but have failed. Worldwide empire has been the dream of more than one earthly potentate, but has always failed of realization. But Christ will not fail. His kingdom shall extend from sea to sea and from the rivers to the ends of the earth.

3. Christ's kingdom will triumph over all other kingdoms. In Nebuchadnezzar's dream the kingdoms of the world were represented by an image composed of various metals. Christ's by a stone cut out without hands, and the stone smote the image, and break in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver and the gold. Thus symbolizing the final triumph of Christ's kingdom over the kingdoms of the world. The kingdoms of the world that oppose the kingdoms of Christ shall be overthrown. Those that accept Him shall be governed by Him, and thus all kingdoms shall be conquered by Him.

What a blessed privilege we shall esteem it to have some part in this universal spread of the kingdom of Christ. Are we doing our part of the work? If we have been leavened, are we leavening others at home, abroad, that the whole world may be leavened? If not, may we not question our own leavening? Can we be saved and not interested in the salvation of others?

Bible Readings.—Ps. ii, 1-12; Isa. ii, 1-3; ix, 6, 7; lii, 7; lxii, 1-12; Dan. ii, 44; iv, 3; Neh. i, 15; Mic. iv, 1-3; Math. vi, 10; xxviii, 19, 20; Luke xxiv, 48; Acts i, 8; Rom. x, 14, 15; Rev. vii, 9, 10.

A Minister's Business.

A minister of the gospel should be looked upon as as much of an authority and as skilled an adviser in things spiritual as a doctor is in matters of health and a lawyer in matters of property. And it is the minister's business to be as well informed and able to advise those in his care as the family physician or the family lawyer. To be such he must be not only familiar with his doctrine, but saturated with the spirit of the Bible, imbued with the mind of Christ, have the heart and genius of a pastor and such knowledge of human nature and fact in dealing with all classes of men as will enable him at once to know and appreciate the needs of his people and satisfy them by dispensing to them the rich treasures of truth and grace over which Christ has made him a steward.—Reformed Church Messenger.

A Time For Common Sense.

Now is the time for the sober, thoughtful, intelligent body of the American people to assert itself. We must not be stampeded in either direction or by any leaders, no matter how distinguished. No false glitter of patriotism must be allowed to dazzle us into losing sight of what true patriotism means. Now is the hour for common sense—shrewd, hard, dogged common sense, which cannot be fooled or cajoled or browbeaten—to assert itself. Whatever our decision, let it be made calmly, intelligently and as in the Divine sight. Thus only can we reasonably expect the Almighty to bless the United States henceforth, as heretofore.—Congregationalist.

"Desperately Wicked."

["The heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked."]

We talk much about "victory over self."
Is self, then, sin?
Ah, me! There lurks not greater foe without Than dwells within.

We gird us for life's conflict and go forth
Seeking our foe,
Nor dream that he has met and vanquished us
Long, long ago.

But we are proud, so slow to learn the truth
The Master taught—
That deadlier enemy to self than self
Mortal hath not.

Life's issues or of good or evil trend
Lie all within;
He who would not lift up holy hands must guard
His heart from sin.

Oh, Thou Eternal One, whose searching eye
Sees everywhere,
Burdened with conscious guilt, to Thee we come
In mute despair.

Cover our mortal weakness with Thy strength
And make us bold
To rid of every evil tendency
The heart's stronghold.

Thus, with life's fountain head made clean and pure,
Life shall be pure,
Nor can deceit or wickedness long vex
Heart so secure.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the *U. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

TO COKE WESTERN COAL

Chicago Company Is Starting a New Industry.

EARLIER EXPERIMENTS FAILED.

Low Grade Product of Illinois and Iowa Mines Will Be Made Available In Steel Manufacture—Novel Blowpipe Process—Testing Ovens Already In Place.

For the first time since the development of the coal mining industry in the states of the middle west coke is about to be manufactured on a large scale from low grade Illinois and Iowa coal and of a quality good enough to make it usable by the big steel mills. Levi Z. Leiter is about to launch this new industry and expects to reap large profits for as well as help immeasurably the iron and steel industry in the west by furnishing the mills with cheap coke. Levi Z. Leiter is president of the new Universal Fuel company, just incorporated in New Jersey with $1,000,000 capital, which will control this coke industry and which has begun operations.

Down on the marsh at Thirty-fourth and Iron streets, close to the south branch of the Chicago river, four large coke ovens of the "beehive" type familiar to Pennsylvania and West Virginia are almost completed and will begin operations in a few weeks, says the Chicago Tribune. These ovens differ from those in use in Pennsylvania in one respect, however. Instead of depending on direct combustion Mr. Leiter's ovens, which are made to burn a low grade coal, are fitted with a new invention in the shape of a blowpipe apparatus which will make it possible to "coke" coal of the poorest grades where coking always has been considered impossible.

These four ovens, which will be the beginning of the plant of the parent company, are to be used only for testing the various grades of coal sent in from mines in the western states. The preliminary testing of the blowpipe apparatus has been going on for months in another oven at Forty-fourth street and Wentworth avenue, and in the opinion of Mr. Leiter and of scientists who have been called in to watch the test it already has gone beyond the experimental stage.

So confident are the promoters that they are about to revolutionize the coke industry for the middle west that subsidiary coking companies are being organized at several of the mining towns in Illinois, Iowa and Indiana, and it is the expectation that the erecting of coke ovens will be begun in all these states within a few weeks. At the office of Levi Z. Leiter it was said that contracts for the building of the ovens were partly made out and probably would be signed within the next few days.

The Chicago coke ovens are being erected for Mr. Leiter under the supervision of Joseph Hemingway, the inventor of the new coking process, and the consulting engineer of the company, W. J. Warr, is secretary and treasurer of the new concern, and W. E. Rothermel is general manager. An office has been opened at the location of the ovens. Two of the ovens are completed, and fires were recently kindled in them for the first time to dry them.

Mr. Leiter is taking up what the Illinois Steel company tried fruitlessly for years to accomplish. Ever since the first steel mill was erected away from the Pennsylvania coalfields efforts have been made to devise some process for economically coking the cheap grade of coal mined in the middle west, so as to save the heavy freight charges on the West Virginia and Pennsylvania product. In every case the experiments have failed, either on account of the inferiority of the coal or the expensive processes of coking.

The statement is made that almost all of the $1,000,000 capital stock of the company has been subscribed. The subsidiary companies, which will be organized either in the coal mining towns or in localities where the by-products can be disposed of easily, are to have the same relation to the original company as the state automobile companies have to the automobile trust. The Universal Fuel company will control the Hemingway patents.

"We have been making a test of Professor Hemingway's patents for months," said Mr. Leiter. "The company at last has taken definite shape. We have found that by using the blowpipe to aid combustion we can make as good coke out of the better grades of Illinois and Iowa coal as is made in Pennsylvania or West Virginia. Of course we do not claim to be able to make the best coke out of coal that is half slate, but we shall make the cheaper grades of coke out of that too.

"There is nothing secret about the process, but I do not feel like giving out the details just now, as some matters relating to the patents are still pending. We expect to have coke ovens built at various points of Illinois and Iowa before many months. The byproducts, like gas, will be salable in Illinois and Iowa, where they would be of no use in Pennsylvania.

"We have made no contracts yet with any of the western steel mills, as we intend to have our plant in working order before we begin selling the products. But we intend to furnish as good coke from Illinois coal as can be bought in Pennsylvania. That means an enormous saving for the steel mills in the west. We shall not invest in any coal mines, but simply buy the western coal and coke it."

COLONY OF MILLIONAIRES.

Mr. Peck's Plan For Muckross Estate and Lakes of Killarney.

Mr. A. Peck of Cohoes Falls, N. Y., in an interview regarding his recent purchase of the Muckross estate and Killarney lakes, said to the New York Journal correspondent: "Yes, I bought the estate outright. I have bought about 14,160 acres, including a manor house. I propose to live in the house and to lay out about 1,500 acres surrounding it as a home park."

The interviewer then asked, "What is to become of the rest of the property?" To this Mr. Peck replied: "I propose to cut up the remainder of the land into 80 plots of 15 acres each and to build on each plot a sumptuous mansion, which will be sold for $1,000,000. Each house will have a frontage on the Killarney lakes."

"Isn't that a prohibitive price?" asked the correspondent. "Listen," said Mr. Peck. "I propose to found a colony of American millionaires in Ireland. I only want millionaires. It will be a grand thing for Irishmen. They said the land was to be bought and presented to Ireland. What would be the good of such a plan? One of the most stringent conditions which will govern the purchase of the 80 plots is that 50 Irishmen must be employed on every estate at $1 a day."

"That's a large number of men to care for 15 acres, isn't it?" "Of course," answered Mr. Peck, "these millionaires will each be compelled to buy about 100 acres of land at the back of their plots."

"Are you sure Americans will support you?" "Why, we have sold four sites already," said the new owner of the lakes, "and three more purchases have been promised." Who these four millionaires are Mr. Peck declined to say.

"How much did I pay for the lakes?" he went on. "Something between £1 and £1,000,000. At any rate, I outbid all the others who meant to purchase the lakes."

GARNER TO EDUCATE APES.

Will Try Kindergarten and Deaf Mute School Methods on Them.

Professor R. L. Garner, who has made two trips into the French Kongo for the purpose of studying the language and habits of apes, is in Cleveland for a few days. He is soon to make another journey to Africa for a further investigation, and the other day he gave a reporter of the New York Sun some account of the work he is contemplating.

"My first trips to the French Kongo," said he, "were made in 1892-4 and 1895-6. During the time that I spent there I was chiefly occupied in studying the means of communication which the apes have. Within a few months I shall make another trip to the same part of Africa for further study. This time I am going for the purpose of looking into the psychic character of apes, with the intention of teaching them human speech and of finding how far they are able to distinguish numbers and colors, and so on.

"I shall take along phonographs and appliances which are used in teaching feeble minded children. Indeed, I hope to give them a regular kindergarten course, using blocks, geometric figures and the other things with which children are taught. I shall also use some of the methods which are applied in the education of deaf mutes."

Professor Garner's home is in Chicago.

Saw an Iceberg 75 Miles Long.

The presence at this time of the season of icebergs in the straits of Belle Isle has given rise to a rumor that steamships would leave this shorter route to travel through the south channel only. The presence of these icebergs at this time of the year is indeed extraordinary, says the Montreal Herald. When first navigation opens in May, and up to the early part of July or the end of June at least, all ships come through the channel south of the island. But in July the strait of Belle Isle is usually free from the ice. This year, however, has been an exception, and on its inward journey the Parisian, which arrived in Montreal the other evening and left again for Liverpool the other morning, encountered several icebergs, one of which was over 75 miles in length. This ice was not in the strait proper, but well on its way to the ocean, or some 160 miles east of Belle Isle. Captain Brown has had many experiences with icebergs. He has seen all kinds, but none to equal the one which met the Parisian on its way through the northern channel to Montreal. This one, the captain claimed, was 75 miles long and rose several hundred feet above the water.

AMERICA WILL NOT MIX.

Has No Desire to Meddle In European Affairs.

HARRISON ON FOREIGN RELATIONS.

Former President Tells France That the United States Are Not to Be Regarded as a Menace to Older World Powers—Will Fulfill Our Responsibilities.

General Benjamin Harrison, former president of the United States, who is in Paris as counsel before the Venezuelan arbitration commission, was asked by The Petit Bleu whether the United States must be regarded as a menace to European states, says the New York Journal. General Harrison replied forcibly and fully to the fears of the French, saying:

"The United States have no desire for war or conquest. Their attitude is limited outside their own boundaries to the safeguarding of liberty. At home the country is devoted to the various pursuits of labor and the development of commerce. There is for Europe, then, no American question nor American menace.

"As opposed to France the question could exist least of all. France will remain for us always the country of Lafayette, whose genius, truth and justice made our independence one of the grandest manifestations and one of the most complete conquests of right ever known.

"America knows what she owes France, and she is far from ready to deny the obligation. If she was capable of such a misunderstanding of her first duties, she would have indeed degenerated. She would be also lost for the future, as she would have become absolutely incapable of any international friendship.

"We have not arrived at that point. True, we have in the world other friends, but we have none for whom friendship could possibly lead us to become the enemies of France.

"You become disturbed over the speeches of our politicians and our party leaders. You are led to believe from their utterances that we are an ambitious people who dream of war and conquest. That is a mistake. Our written constitution is so constructed that no act of the party in power can become an actuality without the consent of the people, and the people are peaceful, industrious and opposed to new ventures. They prefer to consult their own intelligence and reason things out for themselves rather than listen to the clamor of their leaders. Americans can be patriotic in their feelings without being in favor of any precipitate action.

"Ideas on colonization have been attributed to us that are not ours. If such plans could find a place in the minds of our statesmen, they would of necessity be modified by geographical conditions, both physical and political of the continents and islands to be conquered. No, the United States do not dream of taking for themselves islands that from their position could be considered as prolongations of the American continent. Our relation with the world should remain peaceful; America wishes to grow by the expansion of her commerce by exporting her products and not by force of arms.

"Why should any one fear that we shall mix ourselves up with European affairs? Our attitude has never justified such a suspicion. In Greece, in Armenia and in South America we have deplored the cruelties practiced there and the persecutions that have existed, but no one can say that we have ever shown any tendency to police the universe or to interfere in quarrels that do not concern us.

"In Cuba, even, America would have welcomed an arrangement which would have assured the island a liberal and just government under the control of Spain. For our true position, I repeat, is to guarantee the liberties of people, but not to dictate their laws.

"We have been forced there, as in the Philippines, to assume great reponsibilities. But we will not fail to discharge them, you can rest certain, as soon as the course of events will permit.

"We have undertaken the responsibilities that were Spain's, and we will find a way to fulfill them in all loyalty. Any quarrels in which Great Britain might be involved would in no way alter the policy of the United States. The United States want peace more than ever and sympathize with every idea which tends to diminish the influence of the armies in a settlement of international questions.

"The policy of arbitration has not yet been established because of the difficulties in finding an important tribunal. But, as the principle of arbitration has been accepted today with confidence by all states, we will stand by it with enthusiasm. When a proper court of arbitration has been created, a great step will be made toward the disarmament, and the great struggles which prevent the economical development of nations will be ended. Then will the dream of peace be realized. America longs anxiously for that great day."

Mythology For August.

They tell how hasty Phoebus took the chariot of the sun,
And thought that he'd get out and speed the fliers, just for fun,
And how he got a hot box and the horses run away
And burned a gaping hole in space and smashed the milky way.

Olympian sports declared that "that would hold him for awhile,"
But the mercury is mounting in a wild and reckless style,
And we have a fierce foreboding, as we feel the weather's pain,
That he's got an automobile and is on the turf again.

MERRY MOMENTS.

When Alfred Austin Sings.

Alfred's taken up his lyre;
He has twanged the same once more;
Once again we hear his cuckoo
Call as it has called before,
And his "maid, with mien majestic,"
Lightly trips across the lawn,
As she has to trip whenever
Alfred feels 'em coming on.

Alfred sings again of scepters
And of loftiest, longest reign;
"Wifely mother," widowed empress,"
In the old familiar strain;
Sings again about the roses
That come forth in June, as though
He imagined that he had to,
Else the roses wouldn't blow.

Alfred sings of "loving subjects"
And of "glory" on the side,
Sings of "helms" and sings of "tridents,"
Sings of "island realms" and "tide,"
Sings of "good the greatest greatness,"
Sings of "loyal hearts that throb,"
Sings his little old songs over,
And they pay him by the job.

Goodness mercy! Goodness gracious!
What would Alfred ever do
Should they take his old stock figures
And destroy them ere he knew?
Could he sing on if June roses
Got to blowing out in May?
Could he sing without his trident
Or his cuckoo? Who shall say?

—Chicago Times-Herald.

Reduced to Extremities.

The Referendum.

"I remember the referendum here in Indiana when I was a small boy."

"I don't, and I have lived in the state alk my life."

"You have a very poor memory. Didn't you ever get into a dispute with another boy and finally agree to leave the decision to the crowd?"—Indianapolis Journal.

Hobson's Complaint.

Oh, fickle public, friends of mine
Of not so very long ago,
Why have you passed me down the line?
Why keep bouquets you once did throw?
Just bear in mind I'm on deck yet,
Lest you forget, lest you forget.

When wild war waged about your ears,
Who bottled up Cervera's fleet?
Who listened to your frantic cheers?
Who kissed your maidens young and sweet?
'Twas I, and I am on deck yet,
So don't forget. No, don't forget.

Far sent, they've got me exiled here
To tinker busted battleships—
Me, the great hero, who last year
Could give the whole department tips;
Me, who was once the nation's pet,
You now forget, you now forget.

For politicians turned me down,
In spiteful envy of my fame;
The papers mocked my fair renown
And gibed at my euphonious name.
But I'll get even with them yet,
Don't you forget. Don't you forget.

And, though each day he'd go for it,
He'd say he'd time a-plenty;
Yet 'fore he'd get half way he'd hear

An just as she was startin out
Pa'd come in callyhootin.

He vowed then that the eight nineteen
Would do him, and he tried it,
But all the same each time he had

And ma said t'other day, before
She went to town to visit,
That if he'd start the day before
To catch a train he'd miss it.

Good Afternoon.

Now the weekly newspapers are rubbing it into Quincy because of the interview with Mr. Henry H. Faxon, published in a Boston paper. It is a great injury to the city, such advertising.

Although City Auditor Hall became a grandpa this week, he is still the young man's candidate for Mayor. His head indeed may be gray, but his heart is young, and he is open to new knowledge, new progress and new theory.

The city of Taunton lost this year in valuation, both on real etsate, personal property and resident bank stock. The city levy was reduced to meet it, and the tax rate is $19.20, the same as Quincy. Should there be a loss in valuation in Quincy some year the result might be serious.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The kissing bug seems to have disappeared, but the kissing buggy is still on the road.—Lynn Item.

☞ Worcester has entered upon a new and phenomenal era of prosperity. Its permanency must needs be determined as much by political conditions as any other. Understanding this, there need be no doubt as to whom the people prefer for the presidency. It is not a time for cheap money or cheap principles.—Worcester Spy.

☞ Lowell's tax rate has gone up by $1.60 this year, and is now $19.6 per $1,000. In looking about for a cause for this disquieting phenomenon, it is found that if liquor licenses had been granted the rate would have remained at the figure of last year. However, it is also found that the appropriations of this year were sufficient to account for the whole increase, so that the absence of the license revenue is not the only cause of the added taxation. Taxes in general are high or low according as expenditures are large or small. A community may feel for a year or two the variations which are caused by changes in the policy of license, but in the long run it is the lavishness or the economy of expenditure which causes taxes to go up or down.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ The new man—aged—protests against the fossil tendency that makes men find the admirable things only in the buried past—that vague and limitless term called "the good old days." The new man may indeed dig in the ancient stratifications of life, but his tendency is to discover in the past of humanity, just as the scientist does in the rocks, mainly saurians, ichthyosauri, mastodons, pterodactyls—things that tore and lorded it through fear and that affrighted. He says that the good times are these times; that there never were any better; and, with the eye of a seer, he fortells that, though in the conceit of our own doings, we think the pinnacle of humanity has been reached, yet there are times still to dawn that shall transcend ours much of ours have transcended those that went before.—Dedham Transcript.

☞ The movement towards the superseding of Senator Hoar does not proceed very fast. It is, indeed, becoming retrograde in character. However desirous certain Republicans may be to see the seat vacated they dare not publicly assume responsibility for their suggestion.—Peabody Star.

☞ The Earl of Yarmouth is a new type among the visiting scions of nobility who come to this country. He actually feels that he owes something to his entertainers at Newport, who have done so much to give him a good time, and that is why he is working with might and main for the success of the theatricals which will be given for charity. Ordinarily, the titled visitors who are entertained by the Four Hundred regard their condescensions in coming to this blawsted countwy at all as a sufficient recompense for any trouble or expense which may come upon their entertainers.—Lewiston Journal.

☞ Dr. Simpson seems to have lost none of his old-time power in charming dollars out of the pockets of attendants at the Old Orchard meetings of the Christian Alliance. It has frequently been the case in the past that persons have made pledges, in the heat of enthusiasm, which they could not well fulfil, and have made contributions which were afterwards regretted. Wonder if this year's list will be minus such instances?—Salem News.

☞ At one of the open parliaments held by the New England Woman's Press Association the subject of street car etiquette was brought up. "Shall women move over and allow newcomers to have the end seats?" was talked up and down, and finally dismissed without having been satifactorily settled. If the woman who has an end seat on an open car knows her business she will stay right where she is. People may keep her busy dodging their feet when they climb in, but she won't have to crawl over the whole line when it is time for her to leave the car, and she won't be crowded and squeezed by strangers on both sides all through the ride—and squeezing in summer may be too much of a good thing.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ Various advertising fakirs are going the rounds of the cities and large towns and taking money out of business men, for which no adequate return is given. These advertising schemes are ingenuous and ofttimes very attractive—to look at, but in 99 cases out of 100 they are practically worthless. As a rule, these fakirs do not "catch" men who really understand advertising and know its value. They get their results generally among men who don't believe in advertising" and have, therefore, little idea as to what is effective in that line. Therefore they get pulled in on worthless schemes, and throw away their money, when if the same amount were put out in legitimate channels of advertising they would reap some appreciable results. It isn't much credit to a business man to be caught as a person who doesn't know how to advertise. The men who pull him on laugh at him behind his back and call him "easy."—Exchange.

The Electric Switch.

The well-known general contractors, The Continental Construction Co., whose offices are in the Wentworth building, 170 Summer street, Boston, and who make a specialty of constructing, equipping and operating electric street railways and who at present are engaged in building the Buffalo, Hamburg and Aurora Electric Railway, a railroad which is privilege to carry in addition to the regular passenger traffic, freight, express, baggage and mail and which is to have all its equipments first-class and up-to-date in every respect, has notified the Boston Electric Switch Co., that they have decided to equip this road with their self-cleaning switch as being the best in the market.

The reputation of this company now to undertake to build any road that is not certain to be a positive success and a dividend payer from the start, is a guarantee of the success of the road.

The Boston Electric Switch Co. feel, that, the ultimate adoption of their self-cleaning switch by all electric roads is an assured fact, when a company of the standing of the Continental Construction Co., decides after careful investigation to adopt their switches.

New Teachers.

The board of managers of Adams Academy, at their meeting yesterday accepted the resignation of Mr. Linfield, and extended him a vote of thanks in appreciation of faithful and unwearied services for five years. A substantial increase in salary was voted Mr. John O. Hall, Jr., the accomplished assistant.

Two new teachers were enagaged, Mr. Evans Webster of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mr. Charles Elliot of Cambriegeport, both graduates of Harvard.

The indications are that there will be a greatly increased attendance at the academy.

Eye Sore on Fire.

The alarm from Box 172 at 5.05 this morning was for a fire in an old unoccupied house on New road, known as the George L. Baxter house, but now owned by the Horace Eaton estate. The house has long been an eye sore to residents of that vicinty, for all the windows and doors in the building have been smashed and the house almost torn to pieces. Last night a gang of prowlers slept there according to the neighbors, and in some way must have started the fire. When the department arrived the inside of the house was burning briskly. Many would have liked to have seen the building burned down but a stream of water soon put the fire out. The loss will not be over $25.

At Private Sale.

It is understood that the mortgagees' sale of the Nelson V. Titus property at Squantum, Quincy, which was announced to take place yesterday was withdrawn, all obligations having been met. It is stated that an interest in about one hundred acres of the land, sold by Mrs. Titus to a syndicate for development, is retained by her, and also that she reserves the homestead estate of twenty acres, including the Squantum Inn. The syndicate that has bought the hundred-acre tract proposes to carry on the development as planned by the late Mr. Titus.

Chance of a Life-time.

In a two-column report full of praise of Quincy and its street railway officials, the Hyde Park Times says in part:

"In view of the high tax rate in this town it has been a doubtful question with our town officials how to get a chance to go on a junket, at no expense to our tax payers. Whether or not, General Manager Graham of the third division of the Massachusetts Electric Company, which includes quite a number of street electric car lines in this vicinity actually knew the pressing needs of these worthy town authorities for an outing has not been told, but be it as it may, there was great joy expressed this week on the receipt of printed invitations signed by this efficient head street railway official, and addressed to our town officials, and the editors of the local papers, requesting the pleasure of their company at an outing to be held at Squantum last Tuesday. In the same mail our sister officials, in the shire town of Dedham, were happily surprised at the same recognition. Of course no declinations were in order, as it was surely a chance of a life time with some of these gentlemen, who may never come back to the chairs around the town tables, ere another election is held."

The many friends of Harry Sturtevant will be sorry to learn that he has been laid off duty by the Quincy and Boston street railway, for his accident in Randolph last week. Harry was very popular with the patrons of the road, and was considered the best conductor that went out of the Braintree car house. Harry was at the time of the accident running as motorman.

PULLED FOR DRUNK.

But Must Also Face Charge of Arson on Monday.

William J. Keegan and Joseph McCarthy, two Quincy characters, celebrated Friday by filling up with fire water. Just where they got full is not known, but at 7 o'clock this morning they were s een laying in a field near Job's lane on Water street. Chief Hayden and Officers Nicol and Carter took compassion on the two and took them to the police station, where they were given a bed in one of the cells. Their conditions at 9 o'clock was such that they could not be taken to court and unless bailed they will remain until Monday morning.

Later this morning information was received that two men said to be Keenan and McCarthy were seen coming from the old house on New Road, and that their exit was almost immediately followed by a cloud of smoke from the building which was on fire.

Acting upon this a warrant was issued charging them with arson which has been served upon them. Monday morning they will be arraigned in court upon this charge as well as for drunkenness.

Lost Money and Pension.

Mrs. Perez Chubbuck of this city, who married some months ago Mr. Harvey of Brockton, was the victim of a conspiracy. The Brockton Enterprise says:

"A hearing is to be held in Boston before Judge Harding, upon the application of Mrs. Harvey of Quincy for an injunction against Mr. H. C. Bentley of this city, restraining the latter from making any disposition of his business, or from paying any money to Mr. Harvey, the husband of the petitioner. It appears to be a case in which Mr. Bentley is a victim of circumstances.

"Mr. Bentley came to this city some time ago and established a millinery store under Hotel Belmont. He had associated with him the Mr. Harvey referred to above. During their business relations Mr. Bentley borrowed $1000 from Mr. Harvey, giving his note. Lately Mr. Harvey left the city, and it was alleged that his whereabouts were unknown. It is evident that this was true so far as Mrs. Harvey was concerned, for the Enterprise told at the time of her visit to this city, and her efforts to have the local police arrest him. She was advised to procure a warrant in Quincy if she had any grievance and to have it sent to this city, being assured that the man would then be arrested if he could be found. She returned home, but no warrant was ever forwarded.

"Mrs. Harvey now claims that she was to have been a partner in the company of H. C. Bentley & Co., in consideration of money which she advanced, and she avers that her marriage to Harvey was part of a conspiracy to get her money. She has retained Ex-Gov. Powers of Maine as her attorney, and Chamberlain & Fletcher will appear for Mr. Bentley."

Mrs. Harvey has not only lost her husband and money, but also a pension and State aid.

Polly Wog Outing.

The Polly-Wog club held its annual breakfast and outing Friday at Sawin's grove, Dover. The three barouches, which contained the members of the club, left Quincy at 5 o'clock in the morning and after a pretty drive across the country they arrived at their destination, and were seated at breakfast as the clock struck nine.

Polly-Wog, from which the club derives its name is a water bug or animal, and it was therefore natural that water was freely used. There was spring water, city water, water in charged bottles, distilled water, apollinaris, Vichy and in fact almost every known water or things in which water is used was served. Water sports were the only games indulged in, and as might be expected the day proved to be one of great enjoyment to all. The return to Quincy was made in the early evening.

—The Boston Courier says: The monthly debt statement of the city of Boston took people's breath away when it appeared in the Auditor's Exhibit for August 1. Within the month, the gross debt had jumped from $81,503,078 to $85,330,378, and the net debt had increased from $53,551104, to $57,817,737. Also, the "redemption means" the sinking funds had fallen off nearly half a million dollars. For a single month this is indeed rather startling. The gross debt is seen to have been swollen by $3,827,300 and the net debt by the larger sum of $4,266,633 in that short period, or at the rate of nearly $140,000 a day."—It is fortunate for Quincy that it was not annexed to Boston a few years ago, as some citizens desired, for this city is rapidly reducing its indebtedness.

A union picnic of the Massachusetts W. R. C. and G. A. R. will be held at Highland Park, next Thursday.

Louis W. Arnold rode home on his Orient bicycle from Springfield, Mass., last Tuesday, covering 119 miles. The roads were very good most of the distance and he did not tire much in the long trip.

A fine day and an elegant time was the verdict of those who attended the picnic of Amana lodge, Daughters of Rebekah, which was held at Ponkapog pond, Canton on Wednesday. About forty attended. They were conveyed by Thomas J. Cain and D. H. B. Thayer. They reached the grove about 11 o'clock and returned at 7.30. The day was spent in boating, fishing, bowling and playing games.

The new barn owned by Elmer Thayer on Pond street was a scene of another grand party Thursday evening, when a invitation dance was given by Michael Levangie. About twenty-five couple were present and had a most enjoyable time. Dancing was enjoyed from 8 till 11.30 to the music of Delorey's orchestra of North Weymouth. W. Levangie, prompter.

Frank Parker of Hancock street caught a large mud turtle in Little Pond, Monday morning, which would just fit in an ordinary wash tub. He weighed 28 pounds.

The Cary family annual reunion gathered at Highland Park to the number of a hundred or more last Wednesday. The Keiths and Bryants of Braintree were in attendance.

Capt. James T. Stevens, Thomas B. Stoddard, John R. Carmichael and A. L. Frazer of Company C, 4th Massachusetts Regiment, in the time of the civil war, attended the reunion at the Ocean View House, Nantasket, Wednesday. Luther Frazer enlisted from this town, and had not been seen by his comrades for several years.

HOME FROM THE PHILIPPINES

WAS IN THE BATTLE OF MANILA.

Harry T. Whitman returned to South Braintree as a guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Whitman on Pond street, Wednesday noon of this week.

Ten years ago Harry left this town to go into the confectionary business in Omaha, Neb., and was doing a fine business at the time of the breaking out of the Spanish-American war. At that time he being a member of the Thurston Rifles of the 1st Nebraska Regiment, U. S. V.

With the first call for volunteers he enlisted with his regiment, and was sent to the Philippines. He was in the thickest of the fight for the city of Manila and after four days of hard fighting the boys captured the city.

Mr. Whitman was placed in the Custom House after the city had surrendered, and was assistant cashier and bookkeeper until his discharge.

He came home with his regiment on a transport by the way of Japan. They left Manila on July 1st.

Mr. Whitman will remain east until the first of September, when he will return to Omaha, Neb., and resume his business.

He has about seventy-five valuable and highly prized relics of his travels both in the Philippines and Japan.

They are on exhibition in the window of the Braintree Clothing Company and are attracting a great deal of attention. The most valuable one is a bamboo cane with a sword through the centre, and is known by the natives as the sword cane.

A dagger in a fan is quite a novelty, for a lady could fan herself all day and no one would know that she had such a weapon. The shoes worn in the Philippines are quite unique. A Chinese robe of Chinese linen is an attraction for the ladies.

A handsome piece of workmanship is the toilet set made in Japan. There are a large number of articles, among which are species of Spanish-Philippine and Japan coins.

Mr. Whitman does not show any signs of having gone through what he has; and he says he never felt better in his life.

Harry came from good old fighting stock. His father, Henry B. Whitman, past-commander of Gen. Sylvanus Thayer Post, G. A. R., is a veteran of the civil war and saw active service.

Harry has two brothers, Robert and Charles living in South Braintree, and George residing in Concord, N. H.

—Cambride made a gain of $1,986,705 in in valuation this year, but its tax rate also increased 70 cents. The valuation is $91,537,795, and the tax rate $17.10.

M'COY PUT TO SLEEP.

Knocked Out In the First Round of a Bout With Jack McCormick.

Shamrock Ends Her Journey Across the Atlantic.

Bostons Capture Both Games In a Double Contest With the Louisvilles.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Jack McCormick of Philadelphia knocked out "Kid" McCoy in about one minute last night. The bout was to have been for six rounds, and it was generally thought that McCormick stood no show at all. The fight was so short and so quickly over that there was almost nothing to it but the punch that put McCoy to sleep. The fight was under strict Queensbury rules, hitting with one arm free permitted.

"KID" M'COY.

When the gong sounded, McCormick started in to rush things, relying on his greater weight and superior strength to offset McCoy's science. He received a straight left in the mouth the first time he tried it, and a second later a savage left hook on the side of the head halted him a second time. He then rushed twice more, carrying McCoy to the ropes both times. The first time he hit McCoy over the kidneys with his right. The second time, as they came from the ropes, still clinched, McCoy freed his left hand and sent a hook to McCormick's cheek, dropping him to the floor. McCormick lay quiet, making a pretense of claiming a foul, although none had been committed. McCormick rose on the order of Referee Hogan, with a sheepish grin on his face. The knockdown had not injured him in the slightest.

The men squared off once more, and then came the end, like lightning from a clear sky. McCoy was moving cautiously around McCormick, both hands low down, neither being as high as the belt. McCormick suddenly let fly his right, and it landed full on the jaw. McCoy went down like a dead man, flat on the back, legs and arms outstretched, his face pointing squarely to the ceiling. It was evident the instant he struck the floor that his fighting was over for the night at least.

Pandemonium broke loose in the hall, and there were wild yells for McCormick, shrieks of "Get up, Kid, get up." Hogan went down on one knee by the side of McCoy and shouted his call of the seconds in the fighter's ear, but McCoy was past all hearing. At the word "ten" he raised his head slightly, and Hogan paused an instant before he shouted "out." But McCoy was still out of it. Thirty seconds would not have brought him into condition to fight again.

The instant Hogan shouted the word that gave the fight to McCormick, the yelling in the hall increased until it was deafening. Te end had come so quickly that it took the crowd a few seconds to realize that McCoy had been beaten. The seconds of McCormick fairly hugged their man in their delight, and the big fighter from Philadelphia stood with a smile on his face.

McCoy was helped to his feet by his seconds, and walked slowly to his corner. He was rapidly getting strength, and by the time he reached his chair he was ready to fight again. He took his defeat very much to heart, but did not say anything.

IN AMERICAN WATERS.

Shamrock Arrives at New York---Was Towed Two Thousand Miles.

New York, Aug. 19.—Cup challenger Shamrock, towed by a tug and followed by Sir Thomas Lipton's private steam yacht Erin, arrived in New York harbor yesterday and proceeded directly to quarantine. There both vessels were boarded by an officer and promptly cleared.

In the trip across the Atlantic the Shamrock carried a loose-footed mainsail of heavy canvas, having besides three sets of reef points a "bonnet" in the foot of it. Her jibstay sets up with a turnbuckle to the end of a bowsprit, extending not more than four feet outboard. No gaff was carried on the jigger mast, the sail being of the leg-of-mutton type. Straight as a reed and very strong is the Shamrock's mainmast. It is held by three steel wire shrouds on each side, set up with turnbuckles.

A great deal of the green paint has been washed off the bows of the yacht where she pounded in the heavy swells, leaving her bronze plates bare, and showing the fine rivetting work done by the builders. Besides a big lapstreak the cutter carried on a pair of flat brass davits, the Shamrock carried two collapsible lifeboats on deck. Her long tiller with which she was steered is covered with canvas.

Conspicuous on the yacht's deck amidships, between the skylights and waterways, are four very large hardwood cleats, secured by brass bolts. There are two on each side. Presumably one is used for belaying the main sheet and one for the forestaysail sheet. Two smaller wooden cleats, forward of those named, are for the jib sheets.

The deck itself is of steel, covered at present with tarred canvas. There are fore and aft battens like those used on Columbia and Defender to prevent the crew from sliding overboard during a race.

The crew are a sturdy looking lot of Scotch and Englishmen. They wore blue jerseys, bearing on the breast the words "Shamrock, R. U. Y. C." The same words appear on the yacht's stern.

The yacht is commanded by Captain Hogarth, who is assisted by Captain Wrige and Navigator Hamilton. The yacht had light westerly and northwest winds. The Erin towed her about 2000 miles. She sailed something more than 1200 miles. The best day's run under canvas was 268 knots. Most of the towing was done after passing the Azores, Aug. 9.

REGAINED SECOND PLACE.

Champions Move Up a Peg by Administering Two Defeats to Colonels.

Boston, Aug. 19.—The Louisvilles received two defeats from the Bostons, the champions thereby regaining second place through Philadelphia's defeat.

Meekin was in the box for the champions in the first game and pitched better ball than the young star Phillippi, who threw the champions down hard in this city the first day of the series. Just four men hit Phillippi, but their hits, aided by his wildness, tallied all of Bostons' runs. The champions backed Meekin up, and piled up a safe margin from the first inning, and the ex-giant had the pleasure of figuring in his first successful battle with the Boston club.

Bernstein Whips Smith.

New York, Aug. 19.—Joe Bernstein of New York won almost as he pleased from Solly Smith of California in their fight last night and beat him down to unconsciousness in the 13th round. All that was exciting and dramatic came in the 12th and 13th rounds, and when Referee White counted off the significant 10 seconds the ring was surrounded by a crowd that howled itself hoarse. Beyond a clever display of science, speed and shiftiness on the part of both men the opening rounds were not exciting.

Political Franchises For Women.

HANDSOME DWELLING.

Sensible Country House to Be Built on a Large Plot.

A tall house, or one with a tower, upon a small lot in the country, is out of keeping with the surroundings. Besides, a low house, somewhat rambling in its external appearance and simple in design, is more restful to the eye, giving an air of comfort and liberality and of genuine hospitality within. Simplicity and unconventionality are the real charms of country life and were best illustrated in New England home life in the days of the colonies, when the spinning wheel instead of the modern piano occupied the time and attention of the girl of the period; when our grandfathers cracked nuts and drank cider by the open wood fire in a temperature of 65 degrees F. by the light of a "tallow dip" instead of eating swell dinners and drinking champagne in steam heated apartments at 90 degrees F. in the glare of the electric light.

I would not raise my voice against progress in the arts and sciences, but is there not a happy medium between the extremes whereby the modern love of luxury and display may be tempered with more of the sweetness of home life, as it was in the "olden days?"

The accompanying cuts represent the plans and perspective view of a sensible and comfortable country house, which is designed to be located in the middle of a large plot of ground. The building has an extreme frontage of 70 feet and is 1½ stories in height, with the roof prettily broken with gables and dormer windows. The main entrance is protected by a broad porch, which opens into the large staircase hall. The latter can also be used as a reception room. The staircase and finish of the hall are of oak. The main newel of the stairs extends to the ceiling, with a corresponding pilaster against the wall, with an ornamental frieze of spindlework, which, with the three stained glass windows and the handsome front door, gives to this feature of the house a most pleasing effect.

At the right of the main hall is the parlor, 15 by 22 feet in dimensions, lighted by three full windows at each end, with headlights above and two smaller windows in the side. The chimney, with a large, open fireplace, is placed on the side of the room, as shown. The parlor is separated from the hall by a sliding door. The woodwork in the parlor is of ash, finished in the natural color of the wood. At the left of the vestibule is the study, 8 feet wide and 12 feet long, with an open fireplace at one end, and lighted by three triplet windows similar to those in the parlor, with a door opening into the main hall. At the left of the study is the dining room, 15 feet in width and 20 feet in length, lighted by triplet windows at one end similar to the parlor and a single window at the other, with a door on one side communicating with the main hall and a door on the opposite side opening into the servants' hall. An open fireplace is placed in one corner, with a china closet in the opposite corner to balance the same. This room is finished in antique oak.

Between the servants' hall and kitchen is an unusually large pantry, fitted up with shelves. The ground plan is completed by the kitchen, 15 by 18 feet in dimensions, which forms a wing projecting from the main building. The wing, with the gable over the parlor, rear veranda and dormer windows, gives a very picturesque effect to the rear of the building. In the second story are three large chambers and two smaller bedrooms, bathroom and closets complete. The woodwork of the kitchen, servants' hall and pantry is of yellow pine, except the shelves and doors, which are of white pine. The woodwork of bathroom is of ash. All floors are of yellow pine. The ceiling of main hall is of oak, neatly paneled, with timbers exposed. All other inside woodwork, except that before indicated, is of white pine, painted in two coats.

There is a cellar extending under the entire building, with walls laid up in cement mortar. The cellar bottom is cemented. The frame of the building is of spruce. The side walls and gables are sheathed with tongued and grooved stuff and covered with waterproof building paper. The first story is clapboarded with white pine beveled siding. The side walls and gables and cheeks of dormer windows are shingled with cypress shingles and stained with a mixture of burnt sienna and venetian red. The roofs are shingled with best quality of white pine shingles, nailed to 1 by 3 shingle lath, left unpainted. The chimneys are of hard brick, painted with venetian red and oil. The outside woodwork of the first story is painted a dark green, to which is added a little burnt sienna to give it a harmonizing tone. The linings of valleys and gutters and all flashings are of I. C. charcoal tin, painted two coats with metallic paint. With the exception of the ceiling of the main hall, all side walls and ceilings in both first and second stories are hard finished on two coats of brown mortar. The cost of erecting this house complete would be about $4,000.

HOW LUNA WAS KILLED.

Story of the General's Death as Told by a Manila Paper.

The Manila Freedom is in a position to give the first really true story of the death of General Luna that has yet been published.

General Luna, as is well known, has been the backbone of the insurrection. He has been especially relentless in his hatred for everything American and has even gone so far as to imprison a great many insurgent officers and soldiers for their suspected sympathy with the American cause.

These imprisonments were without the authorization of Aguinaldo and entirely unwarranted and consequently made Luna unpopular with many in the army. Luna, accompanied by his aid-de-camp, Colonel Romana, came to Cabanatuan to confer with General Aguinaldo with a view to obtaining his sanction for these wholesale arrests and to have orders issued that all men suspected of a friendly feeling toward the Americans or their cause might be severely punished. Arriving at the chief's palace, Luna demanded of a captain, who was acting as officer of the guard, if Aguinaldo was at home, failing to refer to him as president or general. This angered the captain, who looked at Luna for a moment and then, turning on his heel, remarked, "Yo no se."

Luna stepped up to him, took him by the shoulder, turned him around, commanded him to salute and stand at attention and proceeded forthwith to censure him in the strongest terms he could command for his discourteous conduct. While the captain stood listening his hand wandered to his revolver, and Luna, thinking he intended to draw, whipped out his own pistol and fired, and in much less time than it takes to tell it the captain did likewise. Neither shot was effective, and before others could be fired Romana interposed with his drawn sword, whereupon the sergeant of the guard ran him through with his bayonet. The whole guard was by that time inflamed, and one struck Luna on the head with a sword, and another thrust him in the abdomen with a murderous bolo.

The guards were not even satisfied with killing Luna and his aid, but they hacked them to pieces in their now thoroughly aroused blood passion. And thus did Luna die, a victim of his own insane pride and cussedness.

JAPAN'S ELECTRIC ENGINES.

Two Locomotives For Use In Coal Mines Shipped From Philadelphia.

Two electric locomotives built at the Baldwin Locomotive works in Philadelphia for the imperial government of Japan, and now on their way thither, where they will be used in the coal mines, are the first engines of the kind that have ever been exported from America.

While the electric locomotive has not as yet made much headway in supplanting steam locomotives in hauling trains on surface roads it has sent the mine mule to the rear, and, in competition with compressed air locomotives, will soon retire him altogether, says the New York Herald. These locomotives are made to haul trains of small coal cars from the distant workings, hundreds of feet underground perhaps, to the base of the shaft, or in bituminous mines to the mine opening. They are necessarily made small to pass through the tunnels. They take their current from a trolley wire suspended from the roof of the tunnel, the same as a street car.

Some idea of the locomotives on their way to Japan may be gathered from these dimensions: Height from the rail, exclusive of trolley, 2 feet 10 inches; width, 4 feet 2 inches; length over end bumpers, 11 feet 8 inches; driving wheels, 28 inches diameter; wheel base, 3 feet 8 inches; track gauge, 2 feet 6 inches.

There is a 15 horse power single reduction motor geared to each axle. All the apparatus, including the wheels, is inclosed with heavy iron plate. The locomotive complete weighs 12,050 pounds. It is adapted to continuous running under the conditions of mine service, and at a speed of eight miles an hour has a capacity of 30 horse power. It has a drawbar pull of 1,500 pounds.

Spaniel a Great Swimmer.

The swimming qualities of the water spaniel were demonstrated in a little incident which occurred the other day, says the Detroit News. One of the crew of the ferryboat Hiawatha owns one of these dogs, which travels on the boat every day. The animal missed the boat the other day and swam to the Canadian shore. He ran along the bank, and, when opposite the boat, plunged into the river and endeavored to swim alongside. The boat passed him, and he returned to the shore, when he again caught up with the boat and tried to reach her again by swimming. This was repeated several times, until Sarnia was in sight, when the dog disappeared. The boat reached the dock, but the spaniel had been waiting there several minutes to greet the crew with a wag of his tail. The dog had won the race, besides having several swims. The race was watched with interest by the passengers.

"To Be or Not to Be."

No less than seven female Hamlets are announced for the next dramatic season, says the New York Press. For the happiness of the profession in general it is to be hoped that the number of them will not make it any the more difficult for the ghost to walk.

Merely One of Anguish.

The chief difference between the "automobile face" and the "bicycle face" seems to be that in one case it is worn by the pedestrian and in the other by the rider of the machine.—New York Press.

PRINT CLOTH COMBINE

A Matter of Great Import to Manufacturers of Rhode Island.

Conflicting Interests Difficult For Trust to Handle.

Men Running Plants at a Profit Do Not Care to Sell at Market Price.

Providence, Aug. 19.—The news of a definite offer being made for the Fall River print cloth mills was received with varying degrees of interest by manufacturers in this state. Providence and its vicinity, next to Fall River, forms the most important centre for these goods, and whatever effects the Border city, has naturally an influence upon the industry in this neighborhood. Besides, there are various mills scattered throughout the state making print cloths, which have, it is claimed in Massachusetts, the advantage which comes from longer hours of labor and less restrictive legislation than is in force in the Bay state. There has, naturally, always been a good deal of rivalry between the Fall River mills and those on this side of the state line, and the question as to how a shut-down or the bringing about of a curtailment of product in any way would be met by the mills here has always entered into the discussions of the Fall River treasurers when methods for bettering the industry have been talked over between them.

But, while Rhode Island cotton manufacturers are interested in everything that concerns the industry in Fall River, they have not yet been brought to seriously consider what effect the probable amalgamation of the factories in that city would have on their own future. Some of the smaller mill men were inclined to believe that, after the syndicate promoters had secured the Fall River mills, they might turn their attention to the Rhode Island plants. However this may be, it is stated that, so far as known, no Rhode Island manufacturer has as yet been approached by representatives of the syndicate.

At the office of Robert Knight it was definitely stated that nothing whatever was known of an attempt to bring Rhode Island mills under the control of the syndicate.

At several other mill offices in this city the report was that up to this time the subject had not been broached, although there had been talk of it heard on the street. In general, the mill men seemed to think that the promoters might succeed in making a successful combination in Fall River, but would find the many conflicting interests in Rhode Island far more difficult to handle.

"Any combination of today that is to succeed must purchase the plants at the market price," said a mill man, "and it is doubtful if any of the mill men who are running their plants at a profit today care to sell at that figure. In order to buy the plants here in Rhode Island, the price offered would have to be equal to their earning capacity; in other words, the intangible assets would have to be paid for, as well as a fair valuation of the machinery. Now, many of the mills running today are not up to date on machinery, and it would not be good business for any trust to buy up a lot of old machinery at an advanced valuation, because with new machinery a better mill could be built at a lower cost, and up-to-date machinery is required in the business today in order to make a profit on cotton cloth."

About the Fall River Mills.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 19.—The figures prepared by the English syndicate are regarded as accurate as to the relative values of the mills to be bought by the combine. A strong opposition, as expected, is coming from mill treasurers, brokers and middle men. Their arguments are largely personal ones. The general concern lies in the probable movements of the trust once it gets the local mills in hand. In view of the prospects of the combine going through all mill stocks have been withdrawn from the hands of brokers, and prices of cloth are stiffening. The stock of the corporations being reached for is $17,893,000, and the offer is $22,672,000. About 2,157,000 spindles are represented, so that the offer is over $10 a spindle. The possible savings, as figured, amount to about $1,500,000, without considering a reduction of the salary list which may follow in the event of concentration.

DUE TO FAMILY TROUBLES.

An Armenian at Fitchburg Charged With Murder of His Brother-In-Law.

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 19.—The body of an Armenian named Mahan Hartinian was found Friday morning on Ashburnham street, near the McIntire road. His brother-in-law, Karap Copegian, is under arrest, charged with murder.

Hartinian worked in the Cleghorn mills and was seen going home from work about 7 o'clock Thursday evening. A few minutes before that hour another Armenian was seen going in that same direction. On the Robinson farm lives a colony of about 18 Armenians, of which Hartinian was the head. He married a sister of Copegian's, and for some time there has been trouble between Hartinian and his brother-in-law. This finally resulted in Copegian and his wife being ordered away from the colony, and Copegian is said to have sworn vengeance in true Armenian style.

Mrs. Hartinian, remembering the family troubles, at once suspected her own brother, Copegian, of the murder, and drove to the police station and reported the crime. She named her brother as the probable assailant, told where he lived and an officer went to his home and placed him under arrest.

Copegian speaks no English and takes the matter very cooly. He was arraigned in court today and the case was continued, pending the result of the autopsy.

Walter Holman, who lives on Ashburnham street, saw two Armenians going past his house Thursday evening. One he identifies as the dead man and the other as Copegian. Other people saw them pass, but have not yet been called on to identify the men.

The police are inclined to think that the two had a row in the road and that Hartinian got the worst of it, as he was somewhat the smaller man. The assault was committed with a small club, which, covered with blood, was found near the body.

Alleged Abuse of Children.

Hartford, Aug. 19.—An investigation into the management of the county temporary home at Warehouse Point was begun yesterday and a number of witnesses testified to alleged cruelty and parsimonious conduct on the part of Superintendent Adams. The home shelters upwards of 100 children, boys and girls. Richard McTighe testified to seeing the superintendent knocking the head of a little girl between 4 and 5 years of age against a stone because she had taken a piece of ice from the cart; and again, after beating a small boy, Adams took him by the heels and ducked his head in a pail of water twice. Adams also choked children, and the imprints of his fingers were visible on the throat of a 12-year-old girl and a boy of the same age. He also knew of Adams tying up a boy with a chain to a door knob. Two small children, for playing in the ash heap, had their heads forced into a wheelbarrow half filled with ashes, and the ashes were rubbed into their faces so hard as to bring blood. A common punishment, the witness said, was to lock children up in the washroom and give them a half slice of bread and some water for dinner, and Arthur Johnson, one of the boys who had been punished in this manner, told the witness that he ate stuff which he took from the swill pail in order to appease his hunger. Other testimony was in the main similar to that of McTighe.

Agreement With Canadian Wheelmen.

Boston, Aug. 19.—There being no formal races yesterday, the visiting wheelmen took advantage of the beautiful weather and enjoyed runs to points of interest. Mayor Quincy gave an informal dinner to the executive officers of the league and other guests. The chief item of interest was the announcement that the international touring agreement between the League of American Wheelmen and the Cyclists' Touring club of England, which was ratified several years ago, has been extended to the Canadian Wheelmen's association, the terms of the agreement having been accepted by President Rubenstein of the latter organization, who is in this city.

The 3000 people at Charles River park last night saw Tom Linton ride the fastest 10 miles, motor paced, that have been placed on record, his time being 16:57 3-5, thus taking 3 4-5 seconds from the previous world's record, which was also held by himself. The professional half-mile championship was an easy win for Taylor, in slow time. The amateur races provided the most interesting contests, and Moran and Goodson were the particular stars.

Temperance Folks Puzzled.

Waterville, Me., Aug. 19.—A great liquor seizure by members of the Waterville Enforcement league at Fairfield has a sequel over which the members of the Enforcement league are very much aggrieved and the saloon keepers are rejoicing. It seems the Fairfield seizure was made at the driving park. Those having the matter in charge went to secure the necessary libilant papers, being from the scene nearly an hour. Upon their return every barrel of liquor had disappeared. This liquor is a part of the lot seized at Waterville, and together probably makes the largest consignment of alcoholic goods ever coming to this section at one time, there being 62 barrels.

Freight Cars Wrecked.

Portland, Me., Aug 19.—A Boston and Maine freight, bound from this city to Boston, was badly wrecked at Grand Beach, as it was being coupled together, after breaking apart. The accident was caused by the brakeman's lantern going out, after he signalled the engineer to back up. Two cars were demolished and seven others derailed. H. W. Steady, a brakeman, was badly injured.

Evidently Not Appreciated.

Boston, Aug. 19.—The emergency hospital, one of the most hospitable institutions of its character, and which had depended on voluntary subscriptions, has closed its doors through lack of funds, and with liabilities said to be $25,000. The hospital was managed by Dr. Galvin, and being located in the heart of the wholesale district, was the handiest of any hospital for victims of accidents in the business section of Boston.

Caught at Cienfuegos.

Havana, Aug. 19.—In view of the fact that Colonel Bacallao, chief of the secret police, persisted in his declaration that General Jiminez was in Havana—either not having left or returned—the military authorities telegraphed to Cienfuegos instructing Captain Stamper, collector of customs there, to ascertain whether Jiminez was on the Menendez steamer, and to place him under arrest if that should be the case. Just as the steamer was about leaving Cienfuegos, Captain Stamper located Jiminez, and arrested him. Jiminez denounced the arrest as an outrage. He said he had broken no law, and would not yield except to force. Captain Stamper replied that he was ready to use force, if necessary, and Jiminez then yielded, remarking that he did so only because he could not help himself. General Jiminez will be kept under police guard until further advices are received from the governor general.

A Sad State of Affairs.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Surgeon General Sternberg has received the report of Major Hoff, chief surgeon of the military department of Porto Rico, giving a complete survey of the conditions throughout the island from the standpoint of a medical man and an officer. The chief surgeon speaks of the alarming prevalence of private diseases among our soldiers, and says that the indications are that it will not be long before a large percentage of them on tropic stations will be as thoroughly infected as the native population. The most serious phase of the situation, he points out, is the danger of spreading the contamination at home by the returning troops.

LIKE GUARDIAN ANGEL

Picquart Stands Between Dreyfus and His Implacable Enemies.

Gives Evidence In Lucid and Convincing Style.

Hated For Disregard of Military Discipline In the Search For the Truth.

Rennes, Aug. 19.—The trial of Captain Dreyfus was resumed this morning at 6:30, no special incidents marking the opening of the proceedings.

The first witness was Captain Cuignet, an aide-de-camp at the ministry of war, who was commissioned by General Gorse last year to classify and arrange the different documents dealing with the Dreyfus, Esterhazy and Picquart affairs. Cuignet expressed his belief in the guilt of Dreyfus.

The presiding judge yesterday rubbed Colonel Picquart against the grain, and often begged him not to be diffuse, not to speak so much about his own concerns, but to keep to the Dreyfus affair. Picquart respectfully accepted these reproofs, saying that he only spoke of his own concerns in order to vindicate his character, and to prove himself a credible witness. He spent two hours Thursday and four hours yesterday in giving evidence, and remains the guardian angel of Dreyfus, standing between him and the implacable enemies who sit on the front seat of the witnesses.

The colonel gave his testimony in the same loud, fearless tone of voice. He commenced by declaring that he thought it necessary to reply immediately to General Roget's veritable arraignment of him while on the stand. At the outset of Colonel Picquart's remarks, General Roget interposed and said he would reply to them.

Continuing, Colonel Picquart proceeded to discuss the secret dossier as being the mainspring of the condemnation of Dreyfus. He took up the documents successively, referring to the writters and addresses of the letters as "A" and "B."

Among those present in court were Generals Zurlinden and Billot, former ministers of war. Maitre Mornard, who argued the case in behalf of the Dreyfus family, for the revision of the successively, referring to the writers cassation, was present to assist M. Demange, of counsel for the defense.

Colonel Picquart practically occupied the whole of the day's sitting with a masterful presentation of his side of the case. He spoke for five hours. His testimony was followed with the closest attention, and during the brief suspension of the court, Generals Mercier, Billot, Roget and De Boisdeffre and other witnesses sauntered together up and down the court yard of the Lycee or gathered in a little group, animatedly discussing Picquart's evidence, which, although it contained but few new facts, was so cleverly placed before the tribunal and was spoken of so effectively that it could not fail to repeat the impression he made Thursday.

Dreyfus, naturally, drank in all the witness' words, which came as a balm to the wounds inflicted upon him by Mercier and Roget, and the prisoner frequently and closely scanned the faces of his judges, as though seeking to read their thoughts. From the standpoint of the spectators, the session was the most monotonous one since the opening of the trial. Even the confronting at the end lacked the dramatic force of the similar incidents which have marked almost every previous sitting.

Picquart's deposition was a fine performance. He spoke without notes, and, in view of the mass of facts adduced, it must be ranked as a feat of memory.

The witness turned to the newspaper attacks on Dreyfus, saying that the information regarding the bordereau contained in them convinced him that they had been inspired by someone closely connected with the Dreyfus affair. "They could not," he added, "be attributed to the Dreyfus family while they contained expressions familiar to De Clam, whom it would be interesting to hear on the subject." Witness next said he asked permission to inquire into the sources of the articles, but was forbidden to interfere in any way whatever.

Describing his interview with General Gonse, Sept. 15, Picquart said: "When I asked General Gonse for permission to continue the investigation, insisting on the danger of allowing the Dreyfus family to proceed with their investigation alone, the general replied that it was impossible in his opinion and in the opinion of General de Boisedeffre and the minister of war to reopen the affair. When I pressed the point, in order to make General Gonse understand that nothing could prevent its reopening if it could be believed Dreyfus was innocent, General Gonse replied: 'If you say nothing, nobody will know.'

"'General,' I replied firmly, 'what you tell me is abominable. I do not know what I shall do. But I won't carry this secret with me.'" (Great sensation.)

"I at once left the room," added the witness. "That is what occurred. I know my account is disputed, but I positively swear it," said Picquart, as he emphatically smote the bar in front of the witness box and looked in the direction of the generals.

Maitre Demange's cross examination compelled General Mercier somewhat reluctantly to enumerate the secret documents submitted to the first court-martial. Among them was the "cette canaille de D—."

When asked why the commentary of Guenee was not attached to the document, Mercier replied: "It was supplied for my personal use."

"Then," said Maitre Demange, triumphantly, "you must have known that that 'D—' could not have meant Dreyfus, but did mean Dubois."

M. Demange asked General Mercier why it did not occur to him to append to the comments information of the existence of the man named Dubois, who was suspected of having communicated information to foreign powers.

General Mercier replied: "Because we had discovered that he could not have been the author of the documents mentioned in the comments."

"Ah," said Maitre Demange, "because you considered that Dubois could not be the author after study of the dossier of the divulgations, consequently you did not reveal the fact that there was a person called D—, who might be meant."

General Mercier—Quite so.

Colonel Picquart's speech of five hours was delivered without notes or leading questions from Maitre Demange, and in the most lucid and convincing style. It was a tour de force, which in any civil court would certainly insure acquittal.

But Picquart himself is the object of such intense hatred and prejudice at the hands of the whole general staff and the bulk of the officers for his integrity, independence and utter disregard for military discipline in his search for the truth, that the effect of his speech is greatly discounted.

Colonel Jouaust treated him disdainfully, in marked contrast to the deference he displayed toward Generals Mercier and Roget. It is this evidence of partiality, and the fact that, by acquitting Dreyfus, the courtmartial would virtually be convicting their superiors, which leads many people to believe that he will be recondemned. In any event, if he be acquitted, it will have been Picquart who saved him.

EXPANSION CONTINUES.

Scarcity of Iron and Steel Supplies Becoming Serious---General Strength of Prices.

New York, Aug. 19.—Bradstreet's says: The trade situation gathers strength as summer wanes. Reports of expanding fall demand arrive, accompanied by cheerful advices as to the outlook in most parts of the country. In manufacturing lines, production appears to be at a maximum, and the price situation retains most of its old strength. Notable in the matter of added strength are most of the cereals, and iron and steel in many forms. Judging from numerous reports, the scarcity of supplies of iron and steel is becoming increasingly serious, supplies of structural and shipbuilding material being reported inadequate at a number of points.

There is an appearance of quiet at eastern markets, not shared in, however, by western centres, where sales are reported large and price advances numerous. Liberal bookings are reported for the first quarter of 1900, with some southern engagements reported running as far ahead as autumn a year from now.

A notable exception to the general strength of prices is found in raw cotton, which has disregarded almost unanimous reports of crop deterioration and lost all of last week's advance, owing to the issuance of a bearish crop estimate, which seems at least prematurely issued. The strength of the cotton goods market is maintained.

In woolen goods, orders for lightweight men's wear goods continue heavy, and raw wool, though less active, is no less firm, and high grades are particularly well held.

The advance in boots and shoes seems to have been felt but little, and the slight gain in leather prices imparts a firm tone to hides. Most staples, aside from those mentioned, are firm and unchanged on the week.

Lumber still reflects activity in building, and advances at western markets are again reported.

Current railroad earnings show little reflection of the falling off in the grain movement, and make excellent comparisons with preceding years.

Most western markets report better trade in dry goods, clothing and, indeed, nearly all branches of fall trade.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Sun rises—4:56; sets, 6:40.
Moon rises.
High water—10 a. m.; 10:30 p. m.

The indications now point to the general disappearance of the tropical storm which has prevailed on the Atlantic coast for the past six days. High temperatures prevailed generally, except on the Atlantic coast, due to marked low pressure which covers almost the entire country. For New England generally fair weather with comparatively high temperature is indicated; fresh east to southerly winds.

That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." CITY BREVITIES.

A Local Budget with the News in a Nut Shell.

Three of the boxes on Washington street have been pulled for fires since sunrise Thursday, Nos. 27, 76 and 74, also Box 172 this morning; an unusually large number for Ward Two in one week.

One of the men who works for Myers Abraham had a room in the shed between the house and barn where the fire was yesterday. He left early in the morning, leaving a new suit of clothes, a gold watch and quite a sum of money. All were lost.

The annual picnic of the Catholic parishes, postponed from last Saturday is being held today at New Downer Landing. The programme includes concerts, dancing and a series of outdoor sports, for which suitable prizes will be given.

The Privateer and the Heiress were in the same class at the open regatta of the Corinthian club at Marblehead yesterday, and the former was but 3 m., 27s. behind on corrected time. First prizes were taken by the Meemer, Cartoon, Heiress, Pirate, Spy, Rowena and Agnes.

Miss Margaret Thomspson of Wollaston, Miss Bessie Carter of Quincy Point, Mr. Walter C. Sampson of Quincy, Mr. Wolstan A. Brown of Braintree and John G. Pattee of Randolph are a committee on the fall social of the Y. P. S. C. E. at Randolph.

Handsome Souvenir.

The Quincy Patriot Souvenir, a beautiful pamphlet of some eighty pages which four to five gentlemen have been busily engaged in compiling, arranging and printing, for the past three months, is now completed and in the hands of the binder. It will be one of the most attractive works ever published in this city. It will contain eighty large pages, 11 by 14 inches, with about 200 handsome large half-tone engravings of public buildings, residences and prominent citizens of the city. The work has cost some $1500 to publish, and will retail at thirty cents per copy.

To every subscriber to the Patriot, whose name is on our books, the publishers will take pleasure in presenting a copy. The work will be on sale at the principal news stands in a few days.

Crowds Still Gather.

To see the happy vacationists take their departure for the Provinces over the Plant Line from North Side of Lewis Wharf, and the number who are going every trip seems not to diminish a particle. Tourists from all over the country have availed themselves of this delightful sail, while there seems to have been a regular exodus from New England. Those who catch the fever should not hesitate because it's late, for Autumn is the most delightful season in the Provinces. Complete information of J. A. Flanders, New England Agent Plant Line, 290 Washington street, Boston, or E. H. Downing, Agent, 20 Atlantic ave., Boston.

—Rockland has touched high water mark again in the tax rate, the same as last year. $22.30 on $1,000 is a pretty stiff rate, but if we see the results of our money in wise expenditures for the public good it is not so bad. Still it is too high to be healthy. A town with a tax rate as high as ours does not commend itself to business enterprise.—Standard.

WEYMOUTH.

Herbert Curtis is enjoying his annual vacation in the woods of Maine.

Mrs. George H. Hunt entertained friends from Hingham and Weymouth, Friday evening.

A party of young people enjoyed a clam chowder at Wessagussett beach today.

The James L. Bates Firemen's association, as the guests of Willard T. Dunbar, will be treated to a Rhode Island clam bake at Oak Grove cottage, Hockley.

Miss Maude W. Kendrick of Chatham, visited guests in town, Thursday last.

Superintendent of Schools, I. M. Norcross is at home from a visit to Maine.

The roller polo season is near at hand and in another month will see some games. The managers of the South Eastern Massachusetts League meet in Plymouth this afternoon to make arrangements for the coming season. Manager Cummings will represent East Weymouth and Plymouth. Taunton, Brockton, Pawtucket and possibly Fall River will be represented. The East Weymouth management will sign as many men of last year's team as they can.

Value of Book Titles.

It is said that Samuel Richardson on his deathbed told his wife that she would find among his effects some excellent titles which only needed to have books written for them to give her an income. There is no question of the great importance of a well selected name for a book as for a person. Some very wretched books have achieved at least a profitable sale by means of a taking title, and, on the other hand, many a good book has been handicapped by an awkward or an insignificant title. Yet it would be unfortunate if authors should come to regard the title as having any considerable weight besides the contents of the book.

Perhaps many people do not know that one can copyright a title without having written a page of the book. We know a man who never wrote a book in his life, and probably never will, who has copyighted a score of titles for novels which he would like to write. Some day he will hold an auction and sell off his titles.—Kansas City Journal.

Hurricane Caused Hundreds of Deaths.

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 19.—According to a Niami dispatch the town of Red Bay, on the island of Andros, 20 miles southwest of Nassau, was swept away in the recent tropical hurricane and about 300 lives lost. An eye witness estimates the loss of life on the island at fully 600. Scattered through the wreck of houses at Red Bay after the storm subsided, he said, were hundreds of corpses of persons of all ages and classes.

—And now it is being demonstrated that poor Lo is not dying out as fast as he was thought to be. It is said there are about 300,000 of him still with us, and the freedom from Indian wars the past ten years has served to arrest the decimation that was going on. It seems thatall he needed was to be given a chance, and he would grow if he would forgo his natural love for fighting long enough.—Rockland Standard.

Keith's Theatre.

The business being done at Keith's Boston playhouse this summer is simply phenomenal This is accounted for by the double facts that it is always refreshingly cool within the walls of the auditorium and the best shows that money can procure are being offered. For the week of Aug. 21, Amelia Summerville, who used to disport as the merry mountain maid in "Adonis," will be the headliner, supported by that excellent comedian, Charles Bowser, in the laughable farce-comedy, "Kydd's Bride." There will be the usual long list of other clever artists, including Howard and Bland, the "rube" pianist and living doll, in an interesting specialty; the Everett trio, two women and a man, in a wonderful acrobatic and equilibristic performance; Francelli and Lewis, two of the best singers in the varieties; Anna Kenwick, soubrette, and Frederick Howard, singer and instrumentalist. Bertha Walzinger, who made such a pronounced hit as soloist with the Symphony Orchestra players this week, will be continued, both the instrumentalists and singer making an entire change of selections. The biograph will have some more of the views recently secured in the White Mountain region, and other interesting motion pictures.

Castle Square Theatre.

There have been few more popular successes at the Castle Square theatre than that which has attended the production of "The Sporting Duchess" and the immense patronage given its performances shows the good judgment in continuing it as next week's attraction. The play appeals easily to a vast public and its stirring features are all splendidly brought out at the Castle Square. The staging of the several scenes is capitally done, the realism of the scene of the "Derby" being particularly effective. The members of the company, and the extra people associated with them in this production, are all doing excellent work and giving the full worth of the several scenes. The great stable of trained horses, introduced in the auction seen at Tattersalls, and the Derby race scene has proved a very prominent feature of the production and add a most interesting attraction.

A TALK WITH MERCIER.

Says Foreign Newspapers Have Been Bribed by Jewish Syndicate.

Declares That Dreyfus Will Certainly Be Condemned

And That Mass of the French Nation Will Applaud It as Just and Merited.

Rennes, Aug. 21.—An Associated Press correspondent yesterday called upon Maitre Labori, who lives within 200 yards of General Mercier, the houses of both being guarded by gendarmes and detectives, who sit in chairs in the roadway in front of the houses.

Maitre Labori was taking the air in the garden. He has been suffering severely from insomnia, and is feverish and excited. The wound itself has not made the progress the doctors hoped for, although there has been no relapse. In view of his general condition his medical advisers oppose his going to court today, as he had desired. They predict that exertion would so overtax his strength as to compel him to take to his bed, which he probably would not leave, in that event, for a month. Wednesday, therefore, will probably see his reappearance in court. He will be provided with a specially constructed chair that will enable him to conduct the cross-examination at the outset without rising from his seat.

Maitre Labori is intensely anxious to return to court, even if he has to be carried there in an ambulance. He is dissatisfied with Maitre Demange's conduct of the case thus far, and, on his return, he intends to have General Mercier and the other generals back upon the witness stand. After reading their evidence he is confident of his ability to crush Mercier, and he expects to use the Schneider and Panizzardi telegrams also to confound Mercier.

General Mercier, who was minister of war when Captain Dreyfus was condemned, and who, in the present trial is the virtual prosecutor, was called upon and invited to make a statement of the position of the anti-Dreyfusards. Although unable to receive the correspondent in person, General Mercier sent his eldest son to convey the following expression of his views:

"General Mercier considers it useless to attempt to controvert foreign opinion regarding the Dreyfus question, in which, moreover, foreigners have no right to intervene.

"Foreign people have been misled by their press, which is violently Dreyfusard, for the very good reason that a majority of the foreign newspapers have been bribed by the Jewish syndicate. General Mercier considers anything he might say explaining his position, which is that of a majority of the French people, would be useless. The best reply to Dreyfusard statements abroad will be the condemnation of Dreyfus.

"This condemnation is only a matter of 10 days of a fortnight, for condemned Dreyfus certainly will be. Foreigners will then see that their journals have deceived them: for they will recognize that the mass of the French nation—who will receive the news of the conviction of Dreyfus as joyful tidings—is not composed of fools, and that, if the majority of the French applaud the condemnation, it will be because it is just and merited."

The stage was occupied Saturday successively by three enemies of Dreyfus, Major Cuignet, General De Boisdeffre and General Gonse, who mainly devoted themselves to reiterating what they had said in evidence against the prisoner, who followed them with composure. But, when the moment came for him to reply, the prisoner delivered one of those brief utterances of indignation which have had such a powerful effect.

The telegram of denial as to the authenticity of a certain letter sent by Colonel Schneider, the Austrian military attache, to The Figaro, which it was generally thought would be discussed Friday, was introduced by General Cuignet, who was very emphatic in his testimony. But he did not show up to great advantage in the cross-examination.

Major Cuignet evidently deemed it necessary to emulate Picquart in giving his testimony. Apparently, however, he committed the indiscretion of dragging in Colonel Schneider's name, which caused a sensation in court. The judges began to lean their heads together, and look serious. Then Major Carriere, the government commissary, rose, and with a praiseworthy absence of his usual barnstorming gestures, and carefully avoiding mention of Colonel Schneider's name, made a few remarks, refusing, in behalf of the government, to assume responsibility for Major Cuignet's indiscretion, the fact being that the government has begun to get apprehensive of trouble if the names of foreign attaches continue to be bandied about the court as has frequently occurred since the opening of the trial. Other parts of Cuignet's evidence evoked smiles of incredulity and suppressed laughter. When M. Demange took the major's cross examination, not a very brilliant performance in itself, Major Cuignet immediately showed uneasiness, which was accentuated every time counsel for the defense asked a pointed question, and especially when the latter threshed out the contradictions with Cuignet's evidence before the court of cassation. Dreyfus, too, was effective, when he rose and protested against Cuignet's bitter attacks.

The most interesting portion of the proceedings was the last half hour, when Gonse, Picquart, Billot and Dreyfus were on their feet in a series of confrontations, a move which had dramatic elements, and which produced such emotion in court as to occasion from Dreyfus unexpected outbursts of pent up feeling. The prisoner spoke several times, with an indignation which rang sincere. The confrontations of Dreyfus and then Picquart with General Gonse and General Billot with Picquart were on side issues which did not raise questions of fundamental importance, and cannot be said to have had much effect either way, so far as the testimony itself is concerned. But, from the point of view of the prosecution, it is always a clever game to bring the generals on the stage in the role of indignant defenders of the honor of the army, for, as superior officers, their appearance is bound to exercis a certain impression on the judges, all of whom are of junior rank.

Moreover, Saturday gave General Billot the opportunity for one of those melodramatic speeches on the loyalty of former ministers of war, which always go down with the crowd, and which elicited an outburst of cheering from the public in court, which demonstration was quickly suppressed by the gendarmes.

CHURCH BURNED FOR REVENGE.

Opinion of Churchmen Opposed to Dr. Briggs' Ordination to the Priesthood.

New York, Aug. 21.—The Herald today publishes the following: More surprising than any other feature of the controversy excited by the entry of Rev. Dr. Charles A. Briggs into the Episcopal church is the suspicion of anti-Briggsites that broad churchmen inspired the burning of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal church, Westchester, on Wednesday last. In proof of their belief that the fire was of incendiary origin, the vestry and rector of the church have united in offering a reward of $2000 for the apprehension of the incendiary. In addition, Rev. Frank M. Clendenin, rector of the church, declares that the reward will be increased to $10,000 if necessary to clear up the mystery.

St. Peter's church and its rector have figured most conspicuously in the dissensions caused in the Episcopal church by the announcement that Professor Briggs was to be ordained to priesthood. It was in this church that Bishop Potter intended to perform the ordination services. Rev. Dr. Clendenin, one of the strongest opponents of Professor Briggs in the diocese, refused to allow the use of St. Peter's church for the ordination service.

It is the belief of members of the vestry that the fire was started by some person who wished to be revenged for the defeat of the plan to ordain Dr. Briggs in St. Peter's.

Brushes With Insurgents.

Manila, Aug. 21.—Lieutenant Alfred W. Drew of the Twelfth infantry was killed and Lieutenant Willis Uline was seriously wounded while reconnoitering Saturday evening north of Angeles. There were no other casualties. The Americans encountered a large force of insurgents and drove them from their positions. Lieutenant Cole of the Sixth infantry, with 80 men, encountered 100 insurgents entrenched in the mountains of the island of Negros and routed them after an hour and a half of severe fighting. The Americans had three men slightly wounded. Nineteen dead insurgents were counted in the trenches.

Lynching In Kentucky.

Fulton, Ky., Aug. 21.—Squab Boline, colored, was hanged last night by a mob. Three weeks ago Boline and another negro named Henry Stewart robbed Gail Hamilton of $13 and then shot and killed him. Boline escaped at the time, but Stewart was captured and hanged by a mob the night after the murder. Boline was captured at Milan, Tenn., and brought here by officers. Before they could place their prisoner in prison they were surrounded by the mob, which lynched Boline.

Jumped to His Death.

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 21.—George M. Bailey, a patient in the Burbank hospital, jumped from the second story window yesterday and was almost instantly killed. Mr. Bailey had been in the hospital for two months, and is believed to have been slightly deranged.

HAD POLICE AT WORK.

Boston Man's Yarn of a Kidnapping Case Was Thoroughly Believed.

Told of Mysterious Woman and Anonymous Note.

Neglect to Disguise Handwriting Uncovered a Most Peculiar "Mystery."

Boston, Aug. 21.—A case which, at the outset, promised in every way to eclipse the famous Baby Clark kidnapping affair in New York, had its denouncement in the home of John F. Thomas, a young architect, residing at 37 Delle avenue, in the Roxbury district, last night, when that young man himself produced the infant, and, with many sobs and tears, finally confessed to the police that he alone had been guilty of taking the baby away.

Thomas had reported to the police that his 10 months old boy had been kidnapped. A general alarm was sent out, and for 10 hours every effort was made to locate the child. Late last night the father notified the police that he had snatched the child from the arms of the kidnappers, but when closely questioned admitted that the whole story was a lie. He gave no excuse for his action in spiriting away his own child, but it is believed that there were domestic complications.

The story told by Mr. Thomas to the police was extremely ingenious. his grief, apparently sincere, was so marked that they thought they had another Marion Clark case on their hands. In the story told by Thomas, a note, which he claimed was left by the kidnappers in the baby's carriage, figured quite prominently, but it happened that it was this very note which proved his duplicity. About 9 o'clock last night he notified the police that the child had been found, and at the same time wrote a letter to one of the local papers, asking that the story of the kidnapping be suppressed, claiming that it would shock his mother-in-law. The two letters were compared, and the writing found to be identical, and his confession followed.

If Thomas desired to create a sensation, he certainly succeeded, for his story was believed absolutely by the police. Thomas told the officers that he left the child Saturday afternoon in its carriage in the parlor of his house. He went out for 20 minutes, and when he came back the child was gone, while in the carriage was a note.

The note was as follows: "I have got your boy and am going to keep him, whatever you do. I am acquainted with you and Mr. Thomas and have been determined that I would steal Ralph. I think that is his name. Now I dare you to say a word outside so I will have your child at my disposal to clear myself, and you will be a sorrowful woman. If you don't say a word the boy will be happy and have an education, for I am a wealthy woman. I have never had any children and you can have another, so be reasonable and keep quiet, as the boy may suffer and you will be sorry."

He gave no excuse for waiting nearly 24 hours before calling for assistance to find the child, but instead told a long story about a mysterious woman, who frequently admired the child while its mother was pushing it about in its carriage in the parkway. He gave the police to understand that the woman was somehow connected with the kidnapping, and for a number of hours every effort was made to locate the woman described by Thomas.

About 9 o'clock last evening, Thomas suddenly notified the police that he had recovered his child, and gave as thrilling an account of his rescue as he did of his loss. He said that he was walking on the street when he saw two men driving by with the child in the arms of one of them. He said that he rushed to the side of the carriage and snatched the boy away and then ran home with his prize. At the same time he notified the police he sent the letter to a local paper, and it was an easy matter to compare the writing with that of the alleged note left in the carriage, and detect the similarity of the writing.

Thomas is being held by the police, but has not yet been formally arrested, though it is difficult to see what the actual charge could be.

Bad Youngsters Escape.

Boston, Aug. 21.—The north wing of the city reformatory for boys at Rainsford island was burned Saturday evening, and, amid the excitement, 16 of the youngsters seized a rowboat and escaped to the mainland. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin, and some of the officials on the island are inclined to the belief that it was started by some of the boys. There were over 100 boys in the building when the fire was started, and all were hustled out in safety. The building was valued at $20,000.

Atkinson on Expansion.

South Carver, Mass., Aug. 21.—Edward Atkinson spoke before 500 people at a clambake in Triangle park upon his views in relation to national expansion. He made an attack upon President McKinley's administration, and prophesied that the dangers ahead would bring into life a new political party. He said that the attempts to enlist additional troops would fail, and that the statements issued from time to time as to the enlistment of recruits were false.

Ambigity — (Scene, A Highland ferry)—Tourists: "But we paid you sixpence each as we came over, and you said the same fare would bring us back."

Skipper—"Weil, well, and I telled ye nothing but the truth, and it'll be no more than the same fare I'm wantin' the noo for bringin'ye back,"—Punch.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The brief announcement of the formation of a "switch trust" has thrown consternation among at least three classes of people, the railroad men, small boys and women to whom nature has not been wholly kind. Nobody seems to know which is switch.—Kennebec Journal.

☞ The patriotism of the people is of a robuster type. It is in full sympathy with the scheme of a greater broader and a stronger United States. It glories in the achievements of American arms in the far east and it loyally favors the undertaking to suppress the insurrection of the natives in Luzon — Kansas City Journal.

☞ Prof. Charles Eliot Norton adheres to the sentimental side of the war discussion, just as he did when we were in conflict with Spain; but there is nothing sentimental about war, however much that humane point of view may call for attention when the solution of the problems that follow the dawn of peace claim consideration.—Brockton Times.

☞ Occasional remarks dropped by well-to-do people of the Old World while in this country show how difficult it is for them to understand that there is no "peasant class" in the United States of America and that the condition of the most fortunate in Europe has no comparison with that of the same classes of toilers here—Malden News.

☞ It is suggestive of the fact that the time is not far distant for the reopening of the schools when the school committee holds a meeting and elects teachers. Possibly there are those among the young people who regret that the vacation time is drawing to a close; but many are already beginning to find the recreation period somewhat monotonous and will welcome the return to their studies and the associations of schooltime. How many there are, who having long since left their school day period behind them, would gladly welcome its return if only for a little while.—Brockton Times.

☞ Purpose in life is of the first importance to any degree of success. Whoever is simply working from day to day barely accomplishes anything of value. But with a purpose, however humble, whatever that purpose may be so long as it is honorable, something is being accomplished. The reason is simple. With a purpose one's efforts are directed into certain effective channels. To read a book it is necessary to read its pages consecutively; haphazard reading amounts to nothing. To gather a financial competence it is necessary to live within one's income without regard to the amount of the income. To influence the world for the better it is essential to live an honorable life from day to day. To accomplish that which will make the ways of men pleasanter or easier it is necessary to direct effort toward some particular end. Purpose is like the breath which swept over the dry bones and gave them the life for which the people longed.—Westerly (R. I.) Sun.

Bessie Norris—"Oh, dear! I wish I could ride a bicycle."

Grace Quint—"Well, there's no law to prevent your doing so."

Bessie—"Only the law of gravitation."—The Standard.

WOLLASTON FENCE.

It Will be Replaced by a Neat Iron Fence.

The preliminary steps towards affording the people of Wollaston more convenient access to the railroad station were commenced on Saturday. The New Haven road has decided to remove the obnoxious stockade which abuts on Newport avenue and replace it with a suitable iron fence built just inside of the old concrete sidewalk which borders on that street. There will be gates in the fence.

In connection with this improvement the city will build a footway on the northerly side of the Beale street bridge, outside of the present structure, so that hereafter pedestrians will pass from Newport avenue to the top landing of steps without danger from passing teams. Mayor Keith obtained the Railroad Commissioners' consent to build this addition to the bridge last week.

Residents of Wollaston still insist that these two changes are but a small part of the improvements in the approaches to the station to which by right they are entitled.

A subway running from outside of the iron fence beneath the track to the station itself is where the fight now comes. The New Haven road has seen fit to build subways at Brockton, Montello and Campello. As the passengers and freight receipts of Wollaston make the station rank second on the main line between South Braintree and Boston, and gives Quincy itself a close rub for first place, it is claimed on behalf of the citizens that in view of this large and ever increasing traffic that if the management of the New Haven road will not build the subway of its own accord that the city through its City Council, Mayor and Solicitor should petition the Railroad Commissioners. The citizens of Wollaston openly claim that if city government had the necessary amount of sand in its make up, that the Wollaston fence would have been eliminated a long while ago, and that in its place an iron fence would have been erected, together with a subway beneath the tracks.

Interested in Quincy.

It is evident that the Souvenir Patriot, about to be issued will supply a long felt want. The following letter is an indication of it. Also of the fact that Quincy is widely known, and the people at large are anxious to know more of us:

Conger, Pa., 18 Aug., 1899.

Editors of the Patriot.:

I see by a copy of the Patriot, forwarded to me here, that a Quincy Souvenir is about to be published. I have wished a dozen times since I have been out here that I had something of the sort to show people. Everybody here seems much interested to know about Quincy, especially about the granite industry. I have noticed a goodly number of monuments of our stone in the village cemetery. I shall probably reach home before the Souvenir is ready for circulation, but I shall want some copies to send back to friends here. If your will reserve eight copies for me I will call for them when I return.

Yours sincerely,
J. O. Hall, Jr.

Y. R. A. M. Percentages.

The Hostess heads her class in the Yacht Racing Association of Massachusetts in average percentage. In 6 races she has 4 first and 2 seconds. The Heiress, her nearest rival has entered more races, but has had soft snaps when the Hostess is away; if she could get in a few more races with only the Nixie as a rival she might bolster up her percentage, but the Hostess has showed her superiority.

The order in percentage is as follows:

Class B—Meemer, Ashumet.

Class D—Little Peter, Cartoon, Hermes, Eleanor, Jeannette, Thordis.

Class L—Hostess, Heiress, Thelma, Bud.

Class S—Arab IV, Privateer, Harriet, Spartan.

Class T—Dauntless, Duchess, Perhaps, Helmi.

Class X—Ray, Attilla, Bess.

Knockabouts — Pirate, Persimmon, Tunitoo, Lizard, Colleen, Hazard.

The Privateer is but 2 per cent. behind Arab IV.

St. John's Picnic.

The annual picnic of St. John's Parish of Quincy which includes the churches at Quincy, Atlantic, West Quincy and Braintree was held at New Downer Landing Saturday. There was a large number present but not as many as at previous gatherings of the parish. Various sports were held during the afternoon including two games of ball. The first was between the St. John's and St. Mary's and was won by the former by a score of 10 to 6. The second was between the North Weymouths and Pirates and was won by the former by a score of 10 to 8. Dancing was enjoyed during the afternoon and evening.

Genesee Racing.

The cup races between a Canadian yacht and the American boat, Genesee, begin today. The Genesee was built in Quincy, and is a Hanley boat. The boat that will race against her was designed by Arthur Paye of Southampton, Eng., and, as she beat all comers in the Canadian trial races, she must be very fast. There is a radical difference between the yachts, the Hanley craft being of the wide, flat-bottom order, while the Payne yacht is a fin boat.

The Globe says, The American challenger Genesee was designed and built by Hanley at Quincy Point, Mass., for a Rochester syndicate. The challenge was sent from the Chicago yacht club. The Genesee is a centre-board boat and is 44 feet over all, 27 feet water line 11 feet beam and 2 feet draft. She won in the trial races at Chicago easily, taking three straight by from 12 minutes and 28 seconds to 30 minutes and 36 seconds.

She is very fast in all kinds of weather. The Canadians will have a hard time in keeping the cup from so dangerous a rival. She is a typical Hanley boat and is a improved Meemer. When Hanley starts to turn out a boat for the purpose of getting any certain prize, it is almost sure that the trick will be done. With a boat from such a designer and with Charles G. Davis at the wheel, eastern yachtsmen are confident that the Canada cup will be brought to America this year.

Campers Arrested.

Word was brought to the Police station shortly before midnight Saturday night that a gang of men were creating a disturbance on Wollaston beach between the two yacht club houses. It was learned four young fellows had arrived at the beach early in the evening. After pitching a tent they went in bathing. While in the water they had considerable loud talk and used profane language. After coming from the water they continued their loud and profane talk until the neighbors became disgusted and notified the police. Inspector McKay, officers Morrissey and Curtin went down, using Hayden's team for a hurry up wagon. Four fellows who claimed to live the other side of Boston were scooped. When the case was called in court this morning the gentleman who made the complaint failed to appear with his witnesses. One of the gang pleaded guilty and was fined. The others pleaded not guilty and were discharged.

TODAY'S COURT.

Milledge E. Crouse, Owen W. Crouse, William Tobin and Charles R. Raines were arraigned for disturbing the peace at Quincy. Raines was fined $10 and the others were discharged.

Simeon Jacobson, Julius Friedman and Thomas H. Sullivan were fined $5 each for disturbing the peace at Quincy.

Joseph McCarthy and William J. Keegan were arraigned for setting fire to a building of George L. Baxter at Quincy. They were found not guilty and were discharged.

McCarthy and Keegan were also arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Case continued until Thursday.

Charles Fiskel was arraigned for the larceny of 58 tickets, valued at $5.80 from Henry J. Leiler at New Downer Landing and was fined $10.

The continued case of James Bushie was called and again continued for two weeks.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

The quiet slumbers of the residential part of Howard street were disturbed Sunday morning about one o'clock by a party of young fellows who came out on the late train from Boston under the influence of the east wind which was blowing quite hard at the time. At the time of the recovery he was shot and left on the field for dead, a bullet having passed through his body. He was not dead, however, and at the reunion he exhibited the colors, the recovery of which came so near costing him his life.

PLAN FOR DOUBLE HOUSE.

Design Provides Abundance of Light. Costs About $6,000.

When two home builders can agree to pool their issues and erect a dwelling together, the design here shown provides a plan that has many commendable features. While it is a double house in construction, each is separate and distinct from the other and possesses all the privacy of a detached house.

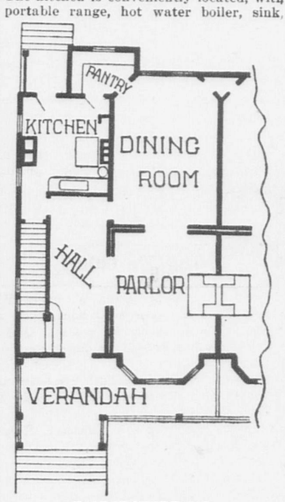

It is a means of economizing in construction which few people think of, but which will enable them to accomplish a good deal with a small amount of money. It is to make a combination with some one else and build a double house. Each one of the combiness owns a 25 foot lot. Together they give a frontage of 50 feet. The house is placed directly in the center of the combined plot, with the party wall on the center line. In this way a wide passage for light and air is secured on each side of the building. The rooms can be made larger and are better lighted, and a much more pretentious and attractive design can be built than would be possible with the same expenditure if single houses were erected. The reasons for this are obvious. Two chimneys would be necessary in each house if built separately. In erecting the double house the expense of one chimney and one side wall is saved outright, besides the advantage of duplicating doors, windows, etc.

A broad veranda extends across the entire front of the building, with the entrance porches at opposite ends, with broad steps. In the first story is an unusually large staircase hall, separated from the parlor by sliding doors. There is a smaller door communicating directly with the dining room and kitchen. The parlor is lighted from the front by a large octagon bay window and connected with the dining room by sliding doors. The dining room is lighted by a double window from the back, with a china closet on one side and the door to the pantry on the other. The parlor is provided with an open fireplace, mantel and grate. The kitchen is conveniently located, with portable range, hot water boiler, sink, wash trays, kitchen closet and pantry. The outside door of the kitchen is protected by a small porch.

In the second story are two large chambers, bathroom and closets and a smaller bedroom, with a practicable oriel window on the corner, which enlarges the room and gives a prettier interior effect.

In the attic are two bedrooms and an unfinished storeroom.

The hall is finished in red oak, with a handsome staircase, the flights of which are broken by broad landings and surmounted by a neatly molded hand railing, turned newels, rails and balusters, finished with a wood filler and three coats of varnish, rubbed smooth. The parlor and dining room are finished in light ash; kitchen and bathroom in Georgia pine, filled, varnished and rubbed smooth as required.

The building is of wood, resting upon stone or brick foundations. The outside walls are sheathed and covered with waterproof paper. The lower story is clapboarded and the side walls, roof and gables shingled.

In the halls of the first story are two small windows, glazed with prettily stained glass, which adds much to the cheerfulness of the hall.

The hip roof of the building, broken by dormer windows, verandas, porches and oriel windows, give a very picturesque effect to the exterior of the building, as shown by the perspective view.

This building can be erected for about $6,000.

New Floor Polish.

☞The advance in the retail price of meat which has been made throughout the country is said to be wholly due to the increased demands of the wholesalers. A common charge is that it is the purely arbitrary work of the dressed-meat ring. On the other side it is said that the Spanish war greatly increased the demand for meat, and famers and ranchmen sold off their cattle to an unusual extent, and thus brought about a present shortage in the supply. But we hear it denied that the dressed-meat ring is paying the farmers more than usual for cattle If that is so then it is of course a case of lawless extortion.—Newport News.

☞The Emergency hospital in Boston closed its doors last week because of a lack of funds. It was a popular institution, but, as experience shows, very expensive to run.

HOUGHS NECK.

Yesterday was the banner Sunday at the beach. The hot oppressive morning drove people to the seashore in large numbers, and the easterly breeze made it comfortable here.

The disastrous fire at Rainsford island Saturday evening showed up brightly from Honghs Neck, especially between 7 and 8, but it burned much later. It was located by field glasses. Nearly one-half of the main building used as a reformatory institution for boys was destroyed, causing a loss of upwards of $15,000.

The store keepers strongly object to having the illumination on a Monday, and some other day will probably be selected.

There was an unusual large number at the beach Saturday. In the afternoon and evening it was necessary to run two cars on every trip to accommodate the crowd.

—Hon. Charles Endicott of Canton, for several years county commissioner died suddenly in Boston Saturday. He had also been in the Legislature, the Governor's Council, State Auditor, State Treasurer and at the time of his death Tax Commissioner.

—The State bath house at Revere was use by 7,146. persons on Sunday.

—Summer residents of Cohasset, Hingham and Scituate presented an amateur dramatic entertainment in the Town Hall at Cohasset Saturday evening which was a society event. "Belladona" and "Thomas Chatterton" were presented.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CHURCH WAS WRECKED

Terrible Fury Displayed by a Fierce Mob of Parisian Anarchists.

Demonstration May React to Detriment of Dreyfus.

Government's Toleration In Guerin Affair Misinterpreted With Worst Results.

Paris, Aug. 21.—It appears that a series of anarchist demonstrations was decided upon at a meeting held Saturday night. The Journal Du Peuple, edited by Sebastian Faure, published a manifesto denouncing the military party, the anti-Semites, the Monarchists and the priests, and urged its supporters to meet force with force. "Should Dreyfus be convicted," said the manifesto, "it will be the triumph of bandits. Should he be acquitted the military section will be in open rebellion."

The paper called on all anarchists to demonstrate the priests and the jesuits. Copies of the manifesto were scattered broadcast, and the result was that the anarchists flocked into the streets, singing the "Carmagnole," and crying "A bas Rochefort," "a bas Drumont" and "a bas Guerin."

Sebastian Faure and Faberot, well-known revolutionary anarchists, were the ringleaders. Faure, standing on the pedestal of the statue, which rises in the centre of the Place de la Republique, addressed the crowd. Among other things he said that the anarchists should be masters of the streets.

The police then interfered and di-s lodged Faure and Faberot, making three arrests. The crowd at this point dispersed, but a column of demonstrators, headed by Faure and Henri d'Horr, made for the Place de la Nation.

The police broke through the column, and a struggle for the mastery followed. Shots were fired, and M. Goullier, commissary of police, was stabbed with a knife. This threw the police into momentary confusion. The mob re-assembled and ran toward the Place de la Nation. The police, reinforced by a squad that had been held in reserve, made another attempt to stem the current, and fresh, fierce fighting occurred, three constables being wounded.

Faure and d'Horr jumped into a passing street car that was going to the Place de la Republique, and the car driver, on arriving there, gave a signal to the police, who immediately arrested them both, together with two other anarchists, Joseph Ferrier and Jean Perrin. All were conveyed to the Chateau d'Eau barracks. Only d'Horr was found in possession of firearms.

In the meantime the anarchist mob retraced its course to the Place de la Republique, smashing the windows of religious edifices on the way. Suddenly the column made a loop and curved toward the Church of St. Ambrose, where the rioters smashed the windows.

Proceeding thence to the Faubourg du Temple, they formed up into a compact body. Hatchets were suddenly produced, with long knives, stolen from the counters of shops, and a concerted rush was made upon the Church of St. Joseph. The aged sacristan, seeing the mob, hastily closed the outer gate, but this was soon forced with hatchets and bars of iron. The massive oaken doors were then attacked.

According to the first account, the wild horde burst into the church, which instantly became a scene of pillage and sacrilege. Altars, fonts and statues were hurled to the floor and smashed, pictures were rent, candlesticks, ornaments and hosts from high altars were thrown down and trampled under foot. The crucifix above was made the target for missiles, and the figure of the Saviour was fractured in several places.

Then, while rancous voices sang the "Carmagnole," the chairs were carried outside, piled up and set on fire in the centre of the square, fronting the church.

When this stage was reached, the crucifix as pulled down and thrown into the flames. Suddenly a cry was raised that the statue of the Virgin had been forgotten, and the crowd returned and tore this down also.

Meanwhile the sacristan, who had been captured by the anarchists, escaped, and called for the police and Republican guards, who promptly arrived with many constables. They were compelled to fall back, in order to form up into line of defense, as the anarchists attacked them fearfully with knives.

At length, the officers began to gain the mastery. A score of anarchists took refuge in an adjacent house. Others entrenched themselves in the belfry, and fiercely defended themselves by throwing missiles on the Republican Guards, but finally these were dislodged. Twenty anarchists were arrested, taken to the police station, searched and found to be carrying revolvers, loaded sticks and knives.

When the police entered the church, they had just set fire to the pulpit. The interior of the edifice was a complete wreck. Seven valuable old pictures, that can never be replaced, were ruined.

After the mob had been driven away, Abbe Lacour, the incumbent, collected the fragments of the sacrament and replaced them in the ciberium. The people living in the houses near by extinguished the bonfire.

Besides St. Joseph's church two cafes were wrecked.

In the collisions between the anarchists and Guerinites the scuffling was serious, and three companies of the Republican guards charged the contestants, several persons being injured. Fifty or 60 policemen were seen striking wildly at every person within reach on the Boulevard de Magenta.

In the Avenue de Taillebourg there was a fierce conflict. The police had to draw their swords against the anarchists, who assailed them with stones. Four policemen were wounded, two so seriously that they had to be taken to the hospital.

A lamentable feature of the affair is that it will be regarded as a pro-Dreyfus demonstration and react greatly to the detriment of the chances of acquittal.

It is much to be feared that yesterday's scenes were due to the weakness the government has displayed over the Guerin affair. The government's toleration and desire to avoid bloodshed has been misinterpreted with the worst results.

At a late hour 20,000 people were in the Boulevard de Magenta, which runs past the end of the Rue de Chabrol. They were kept constantly moving by the Republican guards, who made a remarkable display of force. Large bodies of police were constantly operating in and around the Rue de Chabrol, and a large force was held in readiness at the nearest barracks.

The prefecture of police gives the following statistics of yesterday's riots: Three hundred and eighty persons were injured. Three hundred and sixty were taken to the Lariboisiere and St. Louis hospitals. Fifty-nine police agents were wounded, besides Commissaries Goulier and Domsimone. One hundred and fifty persons were arrested, of whom 80 are detained in custody.

The Transvaal Situation.

Cape Town, Aug. 21.—The Transvaal government, it is reported, has handed its reply to the British agent at Pretoria. Conflicting accounts are given as to its contents, and it is possible that the report is premature, and that the reply will be delayed owing to trouble with Portugal about the transport of ammunition consigned to the Transvaal now in Delagoa Bay. Strong feeling has been aroused here by the fact that the Transvaal is sending large quantities of war material for distribution among its supporters in Cape Colony and the Orange Free State.

Murdered Brother-In-Law.

Philadelphia, Aug. 21.—Edward F. Rich of Schenevus, N. Y., was shot and killed by William J. Haugh, his brother-in-law, at Pauisboro, N. J., a few miles south of here. Rich arrived in Pauisboro to visit his sister, Mrs. Haugh. On account of an old feud Rich and Mrs. Haugh met at the house of a friend. Haugh learned that they were together and went to the house. Forcing an entrance he attacked Rich, who, in defending himself, stabbed his assailant three times. Haugh then shot Rich through the heart. Haugh was arrested.

Probable Double Murder.

Huntingdon, Pa., Aug. 21.—Basil Bell, a licensed preacher, who has been living with a white woman named Mary Winters for several years, while in a drunken frenzy, attacked the woman with an axe, with which he knocked her down. He then kicked her in a brutal manner. Bell then called on John Rumsport, a neighbor, whom he accused of making love to Miss Winters, and cut him dangerously with the axe. Neither of the injured persons is expected to recover. Bell is in jail.

Food For Hurricane Sufferers.

Philadelphia, Aug. 21.—Five hundred tons of supplies for the Porto Rican sufferers were placed on board the transport Panther here yesterday. It is expected that 300 additional tons will arrive at the dock today, in which event Lieutenant Commander Aaron Ward says the vessel will be ready to sail at once.

Snubbed the Governor.

Boston, Aug. 21.—The Central Labor union yesterday decided not to invite Governor Wolcott to review the Labor day parade, because of the veto placed by him upon the trade union amendment to the insurance law last winter. At the time of the veto the labor bodies were highly incensed over the matter.

Gold From Cape Nome.

Seattle, Aug. 21.—The steamer Roanoke arrived last night from St. Michaels, Alaska, with 350 miners and gold dust estimated at $250,000. Most of this was brought out of the Cape Nome district. G. Price had the largest individual amount, about $60,000.

Won by Butler and Moran.

Boston, Aug. 21.—The concluding races of the meet at Charles River park were only fair in quality. The mile national championship, professional, was won by Tom Butler, and the mile championship, amateur, was won by Moran of Chelsea.

Fatal Trolley Collision.

Philadelphia, Aug. 21.—A head-on collision between two trolley cars occurred yesterday in Plymouth township, a few miles north of this city. Thirty persons were injured. Three are believed to be fatally hurt.

Five Sailors Drowned.

Detroit, Aug. 21.—The schooner Hunter [illegible] capsized yesterday in a squall off Point au Barques. Five of her crew were drowned. She was commanded by Captain Sharpsteen of Alpena.

AFRAID OF AMERICAN TYRANNY.

One of the Chief Causes of the Latest Rebellion In the Philippines.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Jacob G. Schurman arrived in Chicago yesterday from the Philippine islands, where he has just completed a six months' study at the instance of President McKinley. He left last night for his home in Ithaca, N. Y., and will report to the president as soon as a meeting can be arranged. In an interview he said:

PROFESSOR SCHURMAN.

"So far as the results of my official negotiations with the representatives of Aguinaldo or other Filipino officials are concerned, I am not at liberty to talk of them till I have made my report to the president. Concerning the island in general, however, there is much to be told. In my opinion the rebellion, the last of which we are trying to suppress, was due, in the first place, to several causes, the principal of which was the tyranny of some religious orders, the exercise of arbitrary power by the governor generals and the delay and corruption of justice.

"The leaders of the rebellion tell their followers the most astounding tales of the Americans, and the common people believe that the priests, under American rule, would subject them to the same tyranny. That the American army killed priests or otherwise maltreated churchmen or church property is, I believe, utterly without foundation.

"Aguinaldo is believed in the islands to be honest, and I think that he is acting honestly in money matters, but whether from moral or political reasons I would not say. While I do not care to discuss the real motives behind the rebellion at this time I will say that if it were suppressed there would be many prominent native officials out of an occupation."

Mr. Schurman declined to answer the question whether he had been the subject of any anti-imperialist communications, saying that on that question, or any which touched it even indirectly he would not speak. He also declined to give an opinion on the length of time it would take to suppress the rebellion. When asked if he considered the retention of the Philippines good policy on the part of this country, Mr. Schurman said that the resources of the islands were great, but that he must decline to commit himself on the subject of making them a part of this country.

Is Otis to Go?

Washington, Aug. 21.—Secretary Root has in contemplation a visit to the president at Lake Champlain. He has not yet finally determined whether to go, but will decide in a day or two. The fact that General Merritt is to have a conference with the president during the week, combined with Mr. Root's prospective trip, has given rise to fresh rumors of a possible change in the command of the troops in the Philippines.

Three Against One.

Lake Butler, Fla., Aug. 21.—Deputy Sheriff Kite attempted to arrest a party of illicit distillers known as the "Richard Bros." After arresting one, the other two brothers began firing. Four shots took effect in the sheriff's back, causing his death. Deputy Sheriff Kite returned the fire and wounded each of them, but not fatally. The three Richard brothers were placed in jail at Stark to await preliminary trial.

Prince Henry May Visit Us.

London, Aug. 21.—Prince Henry of Prussia, who commands the German squadron in the Pacific, will visit San Francisco, according to the Berlin correspondent of The Daily Mail, on board his flagship, the Deutschland, after he leaves China. It is possible, according to the same authority, that he will also go to Washington to see President McKinley, who has sent him an invitation.

Pope In Good Health.

Rome, Aug. 21.—At the festival of St. Joachim yesterday the pope granted an audience to 300 persons, all of whom were presented, in addition to 16 cardinals and many other prelates. The pope expressed his happiness at being able again to celebrate the feast and gave numerous historical reminiscences. He conversed freely with the cardinals and appeared in excellent health and spirits.

Killed Brother by Mistake.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Ralph H. Robbins of Warren, Mass., was accidentally killed while deer hunting at Eighth Lake last night. He and his brother, William Robbins of Passaic, N. J., started out to hunt deer. The latter mistook Ralph for one and fired, death occurring instantly.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Low pressure continues generally, except on the gulf, with a marked depression central over Lake Superior. As a consequence there has been no relief from the prevailing warm weather, except that afforded temporarily by local thunderstorms. Warm weather will continue generally, but will likely be tempered by thunderstorms in the upper lake region and the Mississippi and lower Ohio valleys, extending to New England.

Jouaust's Violation of Duties as a Judge Rebuked by Audience.

Gribelin Badly Disconcerted In Cross Examination.

Dreyfus Effectively Discusses Inaccuracies of Portions of the Testimony.

Rennes, Aug. 22.—The second day of the third week of the second trial by court-martial of Captain Alfred Dreyfus on the charge of treason began at 6:30 o'clock this morning. Maitre Labori was present. He drove to the court in a carriage and entered the hall at 6:30. The audience greeted him by standing up and by a general clapping of hands.

Maitre Labori walked quite briskly, but held his left arm close to his side in order not to disturb the wound. He met General Mercier and General Billot in the middle of the courtroom, stopped, chatted and smiled. Labori looked very well. He was given a cushioned arm chair. Mme. Labori, looking well, was also in court. Labori was warmly congratulated by friends. Captain Dreyfus, on entering, smilingly shook hands with Labori.

Three points stood out prominently in yesterday's proceedings. They were Colonel Jouaust's display of partiality, the new attitude taken up by Dreyfus and the contemptible conduct of the last witness, Junck.

The spontaneous utterance of Jouaust of the words, "What! again?" when Picquart asked to be heard, has been the topic of conversation, as Jouaust, for the first time, thus openly and candidly revealed his partiality and hoisted the anti-Dreyfusards' colors. Throughout the trial neither he nor any of the judges have ever shown particular love for Picquart. But he has never before committed such a flagrant violation of justice and his duties as a judge as he did yesterday.

Colonel Picquart's attitude of manly independence and utter fearlessness when at the witness bar, his refusal to gently mummur evidence in the ears of the judges instead of as he did, uttering his testimony in a trumpet voice so that not a person in court missed a syllable, irritated the judges, who showed their impatience in the tone of the questions they put to him.

Picquart was perfectly within his rights, even his due, to ask to be heard in the true interest of justice, in order that the fullest light should be shed on the affair; and it is well remembered that when, last week, General Billot and other generals asked to be confronted with Picquart, M. Bertulus and other witnesses, Colonel Jouaust readily accorded permission. The Dreyfusard newspaper at Rennes has already published a protest.

The second point, the change of attitude upon the part of Dreyfus, has given universal satisfaction to his friends. Hitherto he had confined himself, when asked by the judge if he had any reply to make to witnesses, to an impassioned protestation of his innocence. This made an immense impression on his hearers, but it only left a transitory impression. Moreover, General Roget made the significant remark in court last week that an innocent man does not merely protest his innocence, but defends himself.

This undoubtedly stung Dreyfus into the line he adopted yesterday when he rose and replied argumentatively and in a calm voice to the various points raised by the witnesses. It was in response to Captain Junck that he made his longest statement, occupying about 10 minutes, during which he used the notes he had taken while Junck was speaking, and with methodical arrangement of facts and in unequivocal language effectively discussed the inaccuracies of Junck's testimony. The prisoner punctuated his remarks with moderate, well chosen gestures of his right hand, standing erect, facing his judges and holding his gold braided kepi in his left hand.

The third point, the conduct of Junck in repeating confidences made to him, as a comrade, by Dreyfus, disgusted his hearers, and must have considerably impaired the value of the remainder of his evidence. He and Dreyfus sat together in the same office and, naturally, exchanged confidences regarding their relations with women. But, it was pointed out, no one but a contemptible person repeats them in court, especially in the case of a man posing as an officer and a gentleman.

Dreyfus, in replying, scored distinctly when he brought out Junck's utter lack of sense of honor and himself declined to enter into a discussion of the matter.

All of the witnesses were hostile to Dreyfus, but as most of the evidence was a reiteration of old statements, the audience followed the depositions with comparatively little interest. M. Gribelin's reference to the relations of Dreyfus with demimondaines proving the most appetizing portion of the morning's proceedings.

The audience, among whom were a number of women, who always manage to secure seats under some pretext or other, listened to M. Gribelin's statements with characteristic relish. A subdued titter went round when M. Gribelin even professed to know the exact amount Dreyfus spent upon his various amours.

M. Gribelin gave his testimony with an honest demeanor and apparent sincerity. But he did not strike one as being particularly intelligent. Nothing in his appearance would contradict the contention of the Dreyfusards that he was Major Lauth's tool in the machinations of the general staff against Colonel Picquart, former chief of the intelligence department, who listened to M. Gribelin with an air of contemptuous impatience.

Maitre Demange, of counsel for the defence, was more successful than usual in cross-examining him, and visibly disconcerted M. Gribelin. Counsel scored a distinct hit when he got M. Gribelin to admit that he mixed the intrigues of Paty de Clam and Henry to shield Esterhazy, and when M. Gribelin was finally disposed of his evidence had suffered badly.

The session wound up with a scene, on account of the extraordinary conduct of Colonel Jouaust, president of the court, who permitted himself to make an unwarranted display of partiality. M. Bertulus had been confronted with the last witness, Captain Junck, and General Gonse had defended the latter, when Colonel Picquart rose and asked to be allowed to refute some of Junck's remarks. Colonel Jouaust made a gesture of impatience, and shouted: "What! Again?"

An outburst of hooting and hissing came from the audience at such a display of unfairness from the president.

Judges and gendarmes quickly suppressed the noise, but Jouaust understood the well-merited rebuke administered to him, and turned very red. He adjourned the court a few minutes later.

Maitre Labori was present at the opening of today's proceedings. He walked quite briskly, but holding his left arm close to his side in order not to disturb the wound. He met General Mercier and General Billot in the middle of the courtroom, stopped, chatted and smiled. Labori looked very well. He was given a cushioned arm chair. Mme. Labori, looking well, was also in court. Labori was warmly congratulated by friends. Captain Dreyfus, on entering, smilingly shook hands with Labori.

Colonel Jouaust addressed a few words of congratulation to Labori and expressed the profound indignation of the tribunal at the attempt to assassinate the counsel. Labori was much moved and thanked Colonel Jouaust in an eloquent speech.

PROSECUTION DISCONCERTED.

London Correspondents See Changed Conditions In Favor of Dreyfus.

London, Aug. 22.—The special correspondent of London papers at Rennes are beginning to comment upon the changed aspects of the trial. To begin with, Captain Dreyfus is becoming his own advocate. He has ceased his passionate, mechanical, blank denials, and now defends himself by well-arranged arguments and short speeches. He takes frequent notes. This, together with Maitre Demange's careful checking of statements, is beginning to disconcert the witnesses for the prosecution, who are now making more positive detailed statements, and are observed putting their heads together and whispering.

Maitre Demange's cross-examination shows that the witnesses are quite unprepared, and scowls and shakings of the head, indicating displeasure, are not infrequent on the part of General Roget and the other generals when their subordinates are nonplussed.

The Rennes correspondent of The Times says: The sittings of the court-martial are fast degenerating into a medium for pouring out odious and irrevelant tittle-tattle. The greater portion of the matter put in as evidence Monday would shame the gossip of an afternoon tea party of village spinsters. In the presence of such a debauch of old wives' tales, no wonder the little messenger, who sits on the platform below the bench of the prosecution, ready to run errands for the court, went to sleep. Most of the rest of us were tempted to do the same thing.

This reiteration of twice-told tales, the irrelevance of which was long ago demonstrated, is becoming intolerably monotonous. The generals and ex-ministers sit there on the front benches of the witnesses, like a little clot of confederates, whispering in each others' ears while a comrade is at the bar, or comparing notes with one another. During the recess they are actually seen promenading with members of the bench of judges in the court yard of the Lycee. General Roget, for instance, accosts a judge, after having affectionately tapped him on the shoulder. Before the close of these astonishing proceedings some hundreds of kodacs will have recorded for all time numerous tell-tale proofs of the surprising intimacy between the judges and the military witnesses.

Colonel Jouaust provoked a burst of spontaneous disapproval at the close of the proceedings by exclaiming: "What, again?" when Colonel Picquart asked him leave to speak. I am still convinced for many reasons that, in the struggle between Picquart and the staff officers, it is this brilliant champion of light who is winning. Nobody has yet caught him tripping, but his adversaries are each day revealed in chameleon-like attitudes of self-contradiction, which are gradually becoming so numerous that it seems absolutely impossible for the judges to fail to draw the necessary conclusions.

Loss of $2,000,000 by Fire.

Cripple Creek, Col., Aug. 22.—Fire has entirely destroyed the business portion of the city of Victor, causing a loss estimated at $2,000,000. Beginning shortly after noon, the fire raged until night, consuming everything in its way. It had its origin, it is thought, in the Merchants' cafe. A strong wind from the south fanned the flames, and in a few minutes all the surrounding houses were afire. Efforts were made to stop the progress of the flames by blowing up buildings by means of dynamite, and all afternoon the hills roared with the explosions, but the effort was in vain. The first house was built in Victor in October, 1893. In July of the following year the city was incorporated and a few years later contained 10,000 inhabitants. That is about its population now.

LABOR MEN AT ODDS.

Brockton Shoemakers Object to Action of Rochester Convention.

Question as to the Use of Union Stamp Is an Issue.

Complaint Also Made of Alleged Unfair Apportionment of Dues.

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 22.—The contention between the local labor unions connected with the Boot and Shoe Workers' union and the general officers of that union seems to have reached a critical stage. The new constitution, as adopted by the Rochester convention in June, is supposed to go into effect in this city this week. The joint council of the local unions declared against this convention nearly two weeks ago, and an extended discussion and correspondence have been going on ever since.

The local unions and the general officers have been preparing for battle ever since the opposition was openly declared. Up to today six of the seven unions of this city have held meetings and all have voted to stand by the action of the local joint council. Each has appropriated money and adopted means of securing more to keep up the opposition.

These unions together represent 3100 workingmen, and there are 8000 in the national body. The local joint council has employed the best legal counsel obtainable in the city, and their opinion is to the effect that the convention was illegal. One labor leader of this city says: "Our servants (the general officers) have posed as dictators." The local men claim that the officers have no power to grant or cancel the union stamp; that the power belongs to the joint council. Many of the local shops have the union stamp, and these may have to deal with the general officers.

The new constitution increased the dues to 25 cents a week and gave to the general office 66 2-3 a month instead of 8 cents, which was formerly received. The new constitution also suspended the referendum and gave the general officers a two years' lease of office without a possibility of being succeeded by others.

The local unionists complain of the unfair apportionment of dues. Under the old system the local unions had 32 cents out of 48, and now they only get 33 1-3 out of $1. Of the 66 2-3 which goes to the general office, one-third is to go to a strike fund, one-third to a newly created death and relief fund and the remainder goes to the general office for current expenses. Thus the general office will receive 22 cents where is used to get 8. It will increase the income from a little over $7000 to over $21,000. President Tobin has been receiving $25 a week and Secretary Eaton $20. Recently they fixed it so each gets $22.50. Secretary Eaton has claimed that the stamp was the personal property of President Tobin, and that the joint council only had a voice in issuing it.

Schneider May Take a Hand.

Paris, Aug. 22.—A dispatch from Ems says that Colonel Schneider, the Austrian military attache, whose alleged letter incriminating Dreyfus has been one of the principal weapons of the prosecution, has started for Paris, with the intention of instituting proceedings for forgery, and the employment of forged documents against those responsible for the authorship and use of the letter, which he has already distinctly repudiated.

Nine Thousand Men Idle.

Havana, Aug. 22.—Of late the masons have been asking for an increase of wages. Yesterday about 4000 workers held a conference, at which a strike was agreed upon. They ask $3.50 (American) per day for ordinary work and $4.50 for special work. The American masons working in the city have gone on a sympathy strike, and 9000 men are now idle

North Adams knows how to reduce its tax rate. Although one of the smallest cities, with a valuation in 1898 of about $9,000,000, the assessors found an increase of over $3,000,000, making the new valuation $12,565,000. This unprecedented gain decreased the tax rate $2.30. Even then it is $19.50 per $1,000.

The outcome of the trust movement, to consolidate the cotton mills of Fall River, is watched with interest. The operatives are apparently indifferent, and do not anticipate the change would be any detriment. But the treasurers of the different corporations, who have had a soft snap, don't want to lose their grip. Perhaps they have met their match. A good place to reduce expenses is among the high salaried men.

Brookline is not such an ideal place for taxpayers after all. A Boston paper says, "values have been marked up in Brookline in a manner which has not found its parallel in most other suburban towns and cities. A great deal of the real estate in the town is assessed at a value quite equal to its selling price, and the value of personal property is graded quite as high, if not higher than in most other places."

The trust monster does not seem to be proving very destructive to small business interests throughout the country. July failures according to Dunn's Review, an accepted authority, were among manufacturers but 116 against 208 in July, 1898; 213 in July 1897, and 271 in July, 1896; while among the traders the number in July of the present year was but 457 against 645 in July, 1898; 716 in July, 1897, and 836 in July 1896; The total liabilities were but $4,872,197, against $10,101,455 in July, 1898, and $15,505,095 in July, 1896.

Those who heard Mary Ellen Lease at the Socialist meeting in Quincy a few weeks' ago in her tirade against prosperity, and applauded her efforts to array class against class, will be surprised to learn that she is about to take the stump against Bryan, and that she predicts the reelection of McKinley. In a recent speech she said:

"Bryan has made a serious mistake in insisting on silver as the leading issue. Another mistake is his response to popular prejudices againt trusts. There is a pretty general sentiment to limit them, and he has bowed to it. Then he has abandoned government control of railroads and he has joined those who oppose a vigorous policy in the Philippines."

Drift of Opinion.

☞One of the greatest surprises in the Kentucky campaign is the nomination of a full state ticket by the prohibitionists. It was not supposed that enough cold water people could be found within the limits of the state to fill the ticket.—Beverly Times.

☞It is always somewat of a surprise to realize how cheaply a letter can be sent from the United States to England. Still when the letter rate is compared with the charges for carrying a passenger over the same distance there is nothing so surprising after all. The man can be taken the whole 2500 miles across the Atlantic for five cents a mile. He is lodged and boarded luxuriously; he has the service of stewards, cooks and sailors. Consider him only as occupying so much cubic space and weighing so much. He has half a cabin to himself, which means 800 cubic feet, and he weighs, say 168 pounds. The same cubic space would receive 27,000 letters; weighing a little more. Now, deducting a third part of the man's fare for food and service, we find that each letter on the same scale would cost for the voyage alone, less than half a cent. —New Haven Register.

☞The Walter Wellman Arctic expedition has proven another polar tragedy, so far as one of the members of the party was concerned while the leading spirit of the adventurous enterprise is a helpless cripple. What a fearful price is paid for knowledge of the frozen north and how little is the game worth the candle.—Brockton Times.

☞The spitting habit is a nuisance; it is filthy, and is a menace to health. There are times when every one must spit but it is not necessary to make a public exhibition of it or its results. Neither is it necessary to defile sidewalks and floors of public buildings. There are gutters and there are cuspidors or there should be.—Providence Telegram.

☞The failure of the steamer Roanoke to bring a large amount of gold dust from Dawson is explained by the fact that she failed to make connections with the Yukon river boats at St. Michaels. And to elaborate still further it is not improbable that the river boats at St. Michaels had failed to make connection with any of the stuff up the Yukon.—Lynn Item.

☞Iowa farmers can't find men to help them harvest. Why don't they send to Bryan. He is the "friend of the people." He knows the whereabouts of plenty of idle men, eager for work but unable to find it. And he might spend the proceeds of a few of his harangues in paying their fares at reduced rates, to the harvest fields. But the idle men are "in his eye," and the dollars are in his pocket.—Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.

☞They are crazy in France, sure enough. Because the present government has sought to do justice to Dreyfus the Liberte newspaper tells its readers that the existing regime is the "apostle of the anarchy that has existed for the last two years and that has sown broadcast the seed of civil war." This paper says that France is rushing toward a catastrophe, which means, of course revolution. The Journal des Debats and Libre Parole predict civil war. Half the newspapers in Paris seem to be edited by lunatics. The outlook is bad.—Hartford Times.

☞We are glad to note that the merchants in many cities and towns are getting restive under the "stand and deliver demands of canvassers for church and society programme advertising. In a measure it approaches black mail, and the way to stop it is to stop short. The same amount of money spent in legitimate advertising would bring five times the result of the programme advertising. The latter is a snare and delusion. Fitchburg merchants say "No," with a capital N and stick to it.—Athol Chronicle.

☞One of the results of the last census was to show a notable decrease in the birth rate of this country, and there are statisticians who believe that the one to be taken next year will show even a more striking decline. The prophecy is made by H. T. Newcomb, an expert on statistics, that the population in 1900 will be 74,400,000. This will make an increase of 8.94 per cent. for the whole decade, a rate of growth far below that of any previous ten years. That families are smaller than was the fashion in the good old days is patent to every intelligent observer, though few realize that the country is fast moving to a European average in the matter of natural increase in population.—Brockton Enterprise.

Canada Cup Race.

The first of the races between the Hanley yacht Genesee and the Canadian boat Beaver at Toronto, Monday, for the Canada cup was declared off. The Beaver carried away her throat halliard at the start and withdrew while the Genesee which sailed alone within the limit of time was ruled out because she did not round one of the buoys.

At 11 today the boats started for another trial.

MILTON.

Frank J. McCormick of Blue Hill avenue, while riding a bicycle on Brook road in Milton, Monday, collided with a cart and received a fracture of the thigh bone. He was taken to the Boston City Hospital.

There is a notable increase of travel on the New Haven road to and from East Milton of late. People come out of the city to enjoy a trolley ride through Milton.

The rich furniture to be sold at auction by F. F. Crane on Friday is attracting attention.

STREET ISLANDS.

Would be Source of Comfort and Safety in Dewey Square.

Those who leave the Terminal station in Boston at the main corner exit run considerable danger. This can be obviated to a large degree by the use of the exit between the restaurant and waiting room, directly at the head of the tracks used by the Plymouth division, or the exit into Cove street. The Herald realizes the danger at the Square, and says:

"The increased use made of the South station by the transfer to that railroad terminal of the Boston and Albany railroad system, and the promise of a great increase in usage by the transfer of the trains of the Providence line, bring into evidence the need of certain improvements in the means of access to the station. The square in front forming the junction of Atlantic avenue and Summer street is a broad area across which passengers going to or from the station have to pass. At certain times of the day, particularly in the late afternoon, these thoroughfares are used by a large number of wheeled vehicles, including street cars.

"If we had definite rules of the road in Boston, such as are in use in most of the large European cities, compelling teams to keep strictly on one side of a thoroughfare, even though they were compelled in order to do this in turning a corner to take a wide detour, a regularity might be established which would be greatly to the advantage of numerous pedestrians. As it is, the footway across the square, either to Summer or Federal street, is crossed at all points by teams going in different directions in a manner calculated not only to startle but to endanger, the persons of those proceeding on foot.

"What should be done by the city authorities as a means of precaution is to erect in this square two or more "street inslands" as they are called places of refuge for pedestrians while crossing the street, shelters which are found in large numbers in Paris, London and other cities of the old world. The pedestrian can make for one of these feeling confident that having reached it he will be safe until he starts to renew his walk. Those who have been in the great cities of Europe where street travel is dense need hardly to be told that these street islands are an immense source of comfort and safety, and that without them the crossing of a street would often be attended with considerable personal risk."

Quincy Lady Took Cake.

It quite frequently happens that the guests at a summer hotel unite in some form of an entertainment to which the residents of the village are invited. Such an entertainment was given last Friday evening by the guests of one of New Hampshire's pretty villages, which took the form of a cake walk. Twelve couples participated in the walk, among whom was Mrs. —— of Quincy. The award of the cake was submitted to the audience, which numbered five hundred or more, and their choice was unanimous in favor of the Quincy lady and her escort. One of the trophies of New Hampshire this lady is now exhibiting to her friends is a beautiful cake of the four deck variety. As the lady is not open for future engagements in the cake walk line her name is withheld.

Mayor Quincy's Plans.

So many rumors are heard about the plans of Mayor Quincy of Boston, that a part of his interview by Boston daily will be of interest. He says:

"My only definite plan for next year, is to take a good vacation of several months' duration, including a European trip. I have been twice across, but the last time was in 1883, and there is much that I desire to see abroad, including especially matters connected with municipal administration.

"I have a great desire particularly to visit the Paris exposition, and I may spend some time in that city. As to the rest of my tour, why, I have not thought it over yet, or decided when I can go."

In reply to the question. "Have you any desire to stand in the future as the Democratic candidate for governor?"—he said: "I have not the slightest desire of that sort and never have had. After Jan. 1, I shall be a private citizen and I am disposed to enjoy my liberty as such to the fullest possible extent. If I become actively interested in politics again, and I may some time or other, it is not likely to take the form of holding any office."

The interviewer ought to have asked him if he was going to be married in 1900.

—Again last evening the Nantasket boat were tied up by a fog. The last boat left Boston at 7.30 and the last boat from Nantasket arrived about 8 o'clock.

In a long list of successful candidates for the bar, issued Aug. 19, it is singular that Quincy was not represented. But perhaps we have enough.

Many lines of business are effected by the absence of so many people for a vacation, yet there are many strangers in the city who in a measure take their places.

Frank C. Randall leaves today for a few days outing in Maine. He will visit his uncle, the Rev. Albert Smith at Augusta, Me., and his mother at Sidney, Me.

The young people of the West Quincy Epworth League went on a hay rack ride to Highland Park last week and had a grand good time, returning home in the moonlight.

The Quincy Adams freight depot has again been connected by telephone. The New York, New Haven and Hartford are equipping all of its principal stations with telephones, which in case of a strike of the telegraphers could be used in the handling of trains.

William J. Keegan and Joseph McCarthy, the two Quincy fellows who were arraigned in court Monday, for setting fire to the house of George L. Baxter on New road, and were discharged, are before Fire Marshal Whitcomb today telling what they know of the affair.

Again on Monday the Forest Hills and Quincy Street Railway Company, petitioned the Boston aldermen for a location for its tracks, with the right to use the overhead electric system on same on Washington, Morton, Codman, Adams and Minot streets, and Neponset avenue, Sanford and Marsh streets.

Harry Staples of West Quincy, who was called to St. John's N. B., on account of the illness of his mother has returned to West Quincy. Although he made all haste in responding to the telegram he received, his mother passed away before he arrived. Her death was due to a fall which injured her head.

Readville Trotting.

September Magazines.

The complete novel in the New Lippincott for September is entitled "The Duchess of Nona," by Maurice Hewlett. This is an Italian story of the picturesque and dramatic days of Caesar Borgia. A young English girl of simple birth ascends the Ducal throne of Nona and is wretched in her rich surroundings. The passion of an Italian lover brings on a crisis which has the charm of a great stage picture. Mr. Hewlett's handling of the plot is masterly, and his power has never been so evident as in this magnificent scene. The short fiction of the month is made timely and brilliant by a story of Mrs. Schuyler Crowninshield, the wife of Admiral Crowninshield of the Navigation Bureau at Washington.

LATEST!

THE VINING CASE.

It Occupies the Court all Day at Hingham.

The court at Hingham is occupied today with the famous liquor case of Miss Floretta Vining. The court came in at 9 o'clock, at which hour the little court room was packed to suffocation with friends of Miss Vining and others interested in this case, which has attracted widespread attention. Outside of the court room was another large crowd who desired admission but were unable to do so, and received such news of the trial as it progressed as was passed out by those more fortunate on the inside.

The whole forenoon was occupied in this case, and at noon the end was not in sight.

At 1 o'clock an adjouanment was taken until 2 o'clock, and the court and witnesses proceeded to the Cushing house for dinner.

The court came in again at two o'clock, and unless something happens to suddenly terminate the case, it will occupy the greater part of the afternoon.

Mrs. Mary Hart of West Quincy has recovered from her recent illness.

Mrs. Eugene N. Hultman and Miss Alice B. Hultman of Washington street are at Ashmont.

Next week will see people who have been away for the summer turning their faces homeward.

The expenditures of the Street department of the city, under the appropriation of $22,000, amounted to $18,690.05 on Aug. 1.

F. Monroe Perry, assistant superintendent of the Boston, Milton and Brockton street railway, has moved his family to Milton, so as to be nearer his office.

The store of W. C. Hartwell has been greatly improved by the removing the numerous signs that were plastered all over the outside of the building. The bulletin board should not be spared.

It is the effort of the Ledger to make the business of its advertisers a success, especially entertainments, auctions and new enterprises. Those who don't advertise should not expect free notices.

It is understood that the committee in charge of the annual illumination at Houghs Neck have practically decided upon Thursday, Sept. 7. This date, however, does not meet with general favor, and it may be changed.

MATRON AND MAID.

Mrs. Rorer says that she never spends more than $10 a week for her family table expenses.

Sarah Bernhardt was once intended for a milliner and came very near to being sent to a shop to learn the trade.

Mrs. Joubert, wife of the commander of the Transvaal forces, accompanies her husband in the field and has herself gained a considerable knowledge of military matters.

Miss Lillian Norton attracted little attention as an opera singer until she took on a foreign disguise by changing her last name to Nordica. She was born at Farmington, Me.

Mrs. Nelson A. Miles, with all her traveling, is a very domestic woman and particularly fond of managing her house, though she has not as yet adopted the fad of "cooking lessons."

Though Mrs. George Gould has $50,000 set aside for her each year, she frequently winds up the 12 months some $10,000 in debt, for she is interested in a number of charities which she helps liberally.

Miss Maud Goldschmidt, a granddaughter of the famous Jenny Lind, is now being trained in Paris. She is said to have inherited her grandmother's talent and to be a most charming young woman of 20.

Dr. Mary Bacheler is in charge of the dispensary of the Free Baptist Missionary society at Midnapore, India, where about 3,000 patients are treated every year. She began her work as a medical missionary in 1873.

Mrs. Leland Stanford is complete mistress of all the details connected with the management of her husband's vast estate. She has every working day prearranged by a regular programme and gives so much time to every task.

Mrs. Russell Sage gives this account of her marriage: "Mr. Sage was a widower and wanted a wife. He had known me as a schoolgirl, and when he asked me I consented, expecting to read my life away with a quiet husband."

Mrs. Leonard Wood, the wife of General Wood, interested herself in her husband's work when he was an army surgeon and, under his direction, read medicine to such good purpose that it is now said she could easily secure a diploma from any medical college.

Adelaide Ristori, Countess del Grillo, is fond of company in spite of her advanced years. She always carries a charm, which she believes has protected her against the evil eye. It is a bird's claw set in gold, and it has but one rival in her affections. With it she always carries the pen with which, at Ristori's request, Queen Isabella of Spain signed the pardon of a condemned man.

A BEAUTIFUL SPOT.

Rich Floral Display in Mrs. Packard's Gardens.

Anyone who admires flowers cannot pass along Hancock street without having their attention attracted to and expressing their admiration of the display made on the estate adjoining the conservatory of Mrs. A. B. Packard. The grounds always looks attractive and beautiful but never more so than at the present time.

The front near Hancock street has been laid out in mounds, crescents, five pointed stars, etc., upon which different designs have been brought out successfully by the use of flowers and plants whose foliage has striking colors. In these the red and yellow coleus form a good part, the background of several of these set pieces, if such they can be called is made of a beautiful fine green plant known as menthol. This is a Spanish plant from Gibraltar and was obtained by Mrs. Packard from the convent at the World's Fair. This is a rare plant in New England and is as beautiful as it is rare.

Other plants used in the display are the Egyptian paper plant, Century plants, rubber tree, sanseveria, acalphas, eucalyptus or blue gum tree, strobilanthus, fancy caladium, altheranthia, and pine apple tree. Near the walk leading from the street to the conservatory is a large mound with the foundation of menthol, and the initials E. A P. worked out in echaveria. There is also near by a rockery made of rocks gathered by Mrs. Packard in her numerous travels. In the conservatory among other plants are two new plants known as the Dewey plant which derive their name from Admiral Dewey.

Hundreds of people visit Forest Hills every summer to admire the beautiful flowers and plants, although the same collection perhaps, not quite as large, but fully as beautiful, can be seen right at home at Mrs. Packard's.

For 27 years Mrs. Packard has had a greenhouse, and daily she toils among her plants. In fact she gives all her time to them, and it continues a work of pleasure for her. She is now assisted in the greenhouse by Mrs. Walter M. Packard, her son's wife who has been with her several months. Outside, the work in the gardens is done by Mr. Benjamin Carter and his nephew who are faithful to their duties and successful in their artistic efforts.

☞ The right of the newspapers to attend the meetings of public bodies rests upon the fact that they are necessary to the public enlightenment. They have become, partly by association and partly by necessity, the only medium there is upon which the public can rely for information. It matters not that oftentimes their work is unsatisfactory and inadequate; there is no other agency to take their place. There is no official medium of publication. The advantage, therefore, of the presence of reporters is self evident. It goes without saying that a properly conducted newspaper seeks to report the proceedings of each meeting accurately, for it is a well understood fact in such newspaper offices that nothing so surely depresses the valuable and convertible good will of a publication in the long run, as inefficient reporting or wilful misrepresentation. Nor is the publication of conclusions and votes enough, except when the business done is routine, and therein lies the disadvantage of the developing tendency of making a hired clerk—the creature of the board—the intermediary of the administrative body and the public. It is necessary that the public should know what each commissioner, councilman, or selectman says, what his attitude is toward general questions, and in what general direction his influence is thrown. These necessary, and often vital, facts are essential to a proper valuation of a public servants usefulness and provide the only means known of determining the intellgence with which government is being conducted. — New Haven Register.

JAPAN'S FORWARD STEP

Extraterritorial Jurisdiction Has Been Abandoned.

COMMERCE IS IN ALIEN HANDS.

How the Foreigners Have Been Affected—Disposition of the Japanese to Look to the United States For Their Educational Advancement. Trade Relations With America.

Over 1,000 citizens of the United States, 2,000 Englishmen and about 1,000 German and French citizens will be directly affected by the new order of things in Japan, by which extraterritoriality disappears and foreign residents are made subject to the laws and business regulations of that empire. Fully 5,000 of the 10,000 foreigners now residing in Japan, says the Philadelphia Ledger, will be thus affected by this feature of the 15 new treaties which have abandoned their consular courts and extraterritoriality and made the citizens of the 15 countries in question subject to the laws of Japan when residing in that country. The total number of foreigners residing in Japan, as shown by a monograph on Japan just prepared by the treasury bureau of statistics at Washington, was, on Jan. 1, 1898, 10,531, as against 9,238 in 1897 and 8,246 in 1896. Of this number, in 1898, 5,206, or nearly one-half, were Chinese, 2,118 English, 1,076 Americans, 523 Germans, 491 French, 297 Russians, 155 Koreans, 109 Portuguese, 104 Dutch and the remainder divided among other countries in numbers less than 100 each. Of the 10,531 foreigners residing in Japan in 1898, 9,538 were classed as merchants and other professions, while of the 1,076 from the United States 879 were classed as merchants and other professions. Of the 2,118 British subjects, 1,761 were thus classed, and of the 523 Germans 453 were so classed.

The number of foreigners residing in Japan is only about one-sixth as great as the number of Japanese residing in foreign countries. The Japanese census of Dec. 31, 1897—it is interesting to observe that the Japanese take a census each year—showed 58,785 Japanese residing in other countries. Of this number, 7,610 were in the United States and 27,354 in Hawaii, so that 60 per cent of the Japanese now residing abroad are subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. Of the remaining 23,791 Japanese residing abroad, 13,615 were in Korea, 5,599 in England and English colonies, 2,861 in Russia and Russian colonies and 1,165 in China. Of the 7,640 residing in the United States, 2,178 were students and 729 merchants. It is interesting to observe that the disposition of the Japanese is apparently to look almost exclusively to the United States in educational matters, as the total number of Japanese students residing abroad, as shown by the census figures was 2,465, and of this number, 2,178 were in the United States, 129 in Germany, 47 in Russia and Russian colonies, 46 in England and English colonies, 21 in China, 14 in Korea and 10 in France.

The new relation in which the foreigners in Japan stand to its citizens, laws and government is especially important because of the unusual relation they hold to its foreign commerce. Both the import and export business of Japan are conducted largely by foreigners residing in that country. More than 66 per cent of the exportations from Japan and more than 67 per cent of its importations are conducted by foreigners. Of the total exports from Japan in 1898, over 107,000,000 yen were sent abroad by foreign merchants doing business in that country and 55,000,000 by Japanese merchants, while of the total imports of the year, 184,000,000 yen in value were imported by foreigners and 90,000,000 yen in value by Japanese merchants.

That the Japanese have proved apt pupils in the study of foreign commerce as an art is shown by an examination of the record of Japan's foreign trade during the past few years. In 1883 only 4.85 per cent of the imports into Japan and 14.4 per cent of the exports were made by Japanese merchants. In 1888 the percentages of importations made by Japanese merchants had increased to 17.8 per cent; by 1894 they had reached 29.2 per cent, and in 1898 32.6 per cent of the total imports was made by Japanese merchants. Meantime their share in the exportation business increased rather more slowly than that of importation, reaching 18.4 per cent in 1894, 25.8 per cent in 1896 and 33.7 per cent in 1898. The total value of imports by Japanese merchants in 1883 was 1,383,101 yen and in 1898 90,472,259 yen, while the total value of the exports by Japanese merchants, which in 1883 was 5,149,078 yen, was in 1898 55,000,559 yen. The fact that two-thirds of the exports of Japan still find a market through foreigners residing in that country, and that over two-thirds of the imports are brought in and distributed by foreign merchants doing business in Japan, adds greatly to the importance of the new relations which now exist between the Japanese government and foreigners residing and doing business in that country.

The commercial relations between Japan and the United States differ materially from those of many other countries. While our total exports largely exceed our total imports, the conditions are reversed in our commerce with Japan, as our imports from that country greatly exceed our exports to it. This is due to the fact that Japan is the producer of certain articles absolutely required in the United States and which cannot, or at present are not, produced in the United States. Of raw silk for our manufacturers our imports from Japan in the year just ended amounted in round numbers to $15,000,000, or nearly as much as our total exports to that country, while practically one-half of our tea imported was also from Japan, the total from that country during the year being over $4,000,000. Of rice the imports range in the vicinity of $500,000; flax, hemp and jute for manufacturing in round terms $500,000, while manufacturers of silk from Japan range between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 annually. Japanese official figures show that the exports from that country to the United States were in 1898 47,311,154 yen, and her imports from the United States 40,001,097 yen. An examination of the total figures for 1898 shows that Japan's total with the United States is larger than that with any other country, the exports to the United States being 47,311,154 yen against 30,473,895 to Hongkong, 29,198,175 to China, 20,496,406 to France and 7,783,643 to the United Kingdom, while the imports from the United States were 40,001,097 yen against 62,707,572 from the United Kingdom, 40,764,244 from British East Indies, 30,523,360 from China and 25,610,961 from Germany.

KITEFLYING IN THE SURF.

Newport Bathers Invent a New Sport For the Bathing Hour.

Tennis in bathing suits at Bailey's beach, Newport, has aroused the envy of the patrons of Hazard's beach, and a new amusement has been invented, says the New York World.

The other morning pedestrians along the beach walks near Hazard's were attracted by a couple of dozen large kites flying in the air and peals of merry laughter from the bathers. In the surf were a score of young men and women, and a dozen canoes were bobbing and tossing on the waves. The young folks, among whom were Miss Fifi Potter, Miss Eustis, Miss Kane, Miss Grant, Miss Ella Potter, Robert L. Gerry, George B. Eustis, Potter Palmer, Jr.; H. Rogers Winthrop, Honore Palmer and a dozen others—had equipped themselves with Blue Hill kites, to which were attached stout cords, the ends of which were fastened in rings in the backs of leather belts the bathers had about their waists.

The sport was to raise the kites a considerable distance and then enter the canoes. The young men paddled the canoes out from the beach. When a desired point was reached the bathers would leap from the boats into the water and would be towed ashore at a lively rate by the kites.

SOLDIER'S HEROIC DEED.

How Sergeant Harvey Dusenberry Saved One Hundred Men.

That was a heroic deed that won for Harvey Dusenberry the chevrons of a sergeant. Dusenberry saved 100 Oregon soldiers from death and mutilation. The Oregonians, according to the story told by one of their number to the Salt Lake (Utah) Herald correspondent in San Francisco, had been caught in an ambuscade where they were exposed to a murderous fire from three sides. They could not extricate themselves nor could they see their enemy. All that was permitted them was to stand up like American soldiers and blindly fight a concealed foe so long as life remained to them.

Dusenberry, then a corporal of Battery B, saw the terrible position of the Oregonians from an elevation. He secured help and drew up a Hotchkiss gun on the hill, whence he was able to pour a fire into the treacherous Filipinos. He kept up the cannonade for two hours, all the time exposed to a galling return fire. Fortunately he escaped unhurt, and was able to extricate the Oregon men from their dangerous position.

The Passing of the Lobster.

We've gazed with resignation on the passing of the auk,
Nor care a continental for the legendary rok,
And the dodo, and the bison, and the orinth-o-rhyn-chus
May go and yet their passing brings no shade of woe to us.
We entertain no sorrow that the megatherium
Forever and forever is departed, dead and dumb,
But a woe that hovers o'er us brings a keen and bitter pain
As we weep to see the lobster vanish off the coast of Maine.

Oh, dear crustacean dainty of the dodge holes of the sea,
I tune my lute in minor in a threnody for thee!
You've been the nation's martyr, and 'twas wrong to treat you so,
And you may not think we love you, yet we hate to see you go.
We've given you the blazes and hotpotted you, and yet
We've loved you better martyred than when living, now you bet.
You have no ears to listen, so, alas, we can't explain
The sorrow that you bring us as you leave the coast of Maine.

Do you fail to mark our feelings as we bitterly deplore
The passing of the hero of the dinner at the shore?
Ah, what's the use of living if you also can't survive,
Until you die to furnish us the joy of one "broiled live?"
And what can e'er supplant you as a cold dish on the side?
Or what assuage our longings when to salads you're denied?
Or what can furnish thunder to the legislative brain
When ruthless fate has swept you from the rocky coast of Maine?

I see, and sigh in seeing, in some distant future age
Your varnished shell reposing under glass upon a stage,
The while some pundit lectures on the curios of the past
And dainty ladies shudder as they gaze on you aghast.
And all the folks that listen will wonder vaguely at
The fact that once lived heathens who could eat a thing like that.
Ah, that's the fate you're facing, but laments are all in vain—
Tell the dodo that you saw us when you lived down here in Maine.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the *U. WEATHER AND CROPS.

Week's Average Rainfall the Smallest of the Season---Moisture Badly Needed.

Boston, Aug. 22.—The New England section, climate and crop service of the weather bureau, issues the following bulletin for the week ending Aug. 21:

The weather in New England during the week was fair in all sections. Except dense fogs during two or three days, mostly in sections of the southern coast, there was abundant sunshine. The fair weather was favorable to farm work and outdoor work generally. On account of the great need of rain, crops and vegetation in general made little progress. The weather was excessively warm in many inland sections. During the fore part of the week the nights were very cool, and frosts occurred in some parts of each state.

The temperature ranged decidedly higher than for the preceding week. The average for the district was 69 degrees, which is 4 degrees higher than for the week ending Aug. 14. The mercury ranged in the 90's in many sections, especially those of the interior portion, during the closing days of the week. Owing to light winds and a high percent of moisture, the weather in many cases was reported unusually oppressive. The high temperature and prevailing drought were injurious to many growing crops.

The average rainfall for the district was the smallest for any week of the season. For nearly the whole of the district there was no precipitation. Reports from Oldtown and Alford, Mass., indicate that seasonable conditions obtain in those localities, but for all other sections of the district crops and vegetation generally are suffering for rain.

Taking the district as an intregal, crops are at a standstill. A whole week has passed without a drop of rain. Seven days without precipitation, combined with very high temperatures, have produced a drought in sections where a week ago the soil was in seasonable condition. In other sections, where dry weather had prevailed for a week to a fortnight preceding the week just closed, crops have reached a critical stage. Corn is rolling and yellowing and the husks becoming dry; the ears not filling full and regularly. Tobacco and vines are drooping. Small fruits and berries are stunted and are drying and are devoid of the usual juicy qualities. The dry weather is especially injurious to pastures, causing a great deficiency in fall feeding and grazing. It is also affecting the quality as well as the quantity of milk supply. Grass in many sections has become dry and brown, necessitating the feeding of stock at the barn much earlier than is customary. In some localities the supply of stock water is becoming a matter of serious consideration, resulting in many cases in great inconvenience and hardship to farmers. The ground is too dry for fall plowing and seeding, particularly in northern portions of the district.

While frosts have occurred in sections scattered throughout the territory, the only damage, so far as reported, was in parts of the Dead River valley, Me., where they were sufficiently heavy to injure vegetation.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about 1-4 as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

WAR THE ONLY METHOD

For Settling Controversy Between England and the Transvaal.

Boers' Counter Proposals Will Get Scant Attention.

Great Britain Will Delay the Denouement as Little as Possible.

London, Aug. 22.—The report that the Transvaal government had handed its reply to the British agent at Pretoria, to be forwarded to Sir Alfred Milner, is confirmed in a dispatch from Cape Town. It is believed, however, that the proposition of Great Britain for a joint commission to investigate the effect which the franchise reform legislation would have on the outlanders has not been accepted, but that fresh proposals have been advanced.

According to Afrikander reports, the Transvaal's reply is a counter-proposal of a five years' retrospective franchise in the election of the president, and an increase in representation. It is said that the suggestion is made to submit all other differences to arbitration.

There is no longer any doubt felt in London that President Kruger has refused to submit to the demand of Joseph Chamberlain for the appointment of a court of inquiry. He may have done so diplomatically or hedgingly, but that his answer is regarded by the British government as tantamount to a positive refusal is now an established fact. The colonial office is normally non-committal, but there are other evidences which amply justify the statement. The report that President Kruger has proposed new terms is somewhat verified by the guarded comment of the colonial office officials, and the irritability displayed there. There is not the slightest doubt that they believe war is now the only way to settle the controversy. They would far rather have a curt, defiant answer, than the temporizing reply which the Boer president has sent. With the former Great Britain would have plain grounds for a quick commencement of hostilities. Under the circumstances which it is believed now exist, aggressive action needs considerable explanation to justify it in the eyes of the world and the English minority, who still declare war would be an outrage. However, if Mr. Chamberlain has his way, it is believed President Kruger's counter proposals will meet with scant attention, and unless the Boers completely back down, which is not likely, the crisis will quickly develope into war.

It is gathered that the colonial office has been aware of the nature of the Transvaal reply for some days, and it was communicated to the war office, hence it is probable Great Britain will delay the denouement as little as possible.

A high colonial official frankly expressed to a representative of The Associated Press his disgust of what he termed "Kruger's cupidity and hypocrisy." He said: "The kind of game which he is playing must be clear to Americans. The protestations of the Boers that they wish to live a quiet, agricultural life may be the tune of some one on the Veldt, but the gang in Pretoria is simply after money. Though President Kruger says many harsh things of the outlanders, he never hesitated to make money out of them, either by fair or foul means.

"This Transvaal question cannot be judged by recent occurrences. You must go back 50 years. It has been hanging fire ever since, and the sooner it is settled now the better."

Though the official did not actually say so, it was clear that he believed war was the only method of settlement.

It is learned that the government is somewhat annoyed at the public's slight interest in the Transvaal.

The official said to The Associated Press representative: "Dreyfus seems the only thing our people think about though England is in a most serious crisis. This indifference is, perhaps, typical."

A special dispatch from Cape Town says there is great danger of an outbreak of violence on the frontier, and that the scum of South Africa are enlisting throughout the colony, and are being sent to Pitsani and Jameson, on the border.

Humiliation and Prayer.

Cape Town, Aug. 22.—Sunday was observed throughout the Orange Free State and Cape Colony with humiliation, prayer and sermons advocating a peaceful solution of the crisis. Mr. Snytler, a leading Dutch reform preacher here, referred to the close ties uniting the Cape Dutch to those of the Transvaal, which, he added, were members of the great Afrikander family. If war should be declared, he asserted, Great Britain would commit a heinous crime before God and man, resulting in civil war in Cape Colony. There is evidence of growing uneasiness at Johannesburg, great crowds gathering at the railroad station, expressing disapproval at the departures for Cape Colony and Durban, Natal.

WHOLE CABINET WILL RESIGN.

Result of Rejection of German Canal Bill. Epoch In Country's Political History.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—The newspapers of this city recognize the fact that the rejection by the diet of the canal bill marks an epoch in the political history of the country, and point out that the Conservatives, for the first time since the formation of the empire, have openly defied a mandate of their sovereign.

One of the results of the present political situation is that the Socialists are applauding the firmness of the agrarian junkers "in upholding the principles of constitutional right."

Yesterday afternoon the cabinet held a meeting at the residence of Prince Hohenlohe, the imperial chancellor, and the whole cabinet agreed to resign. Emperor William will return to Berlin Wednesday, when, according to the Neueste Nachrichten, he will preside at the cabinet council and decide what steps are to be taken. All kinds of rumors are afloat, one paper asserting that the kaiser has accepted the resignation of the whole cabinet, while others are of the opinion that the fall of Dr. von Miquel will entail the fall of Prince von Hohenlohe also.

Wheeler Reaches Manila.

Manila, Aug. 22.—While a reconnoitering party of the Twenty-fourth infantry, under Captain Crane, was crossing the Mariquina river on a raft Monday, the hawser broke. The current caused the raft to capsize, drowning nine enlisted men. The United States transport Tartar, with General Joe Wheeler and his daughter; troops F, Nineteenth infantry, and more than $1,300,000 in coin, has arrived. General Wheeler reported at headquarters.

Russia, Germany and China.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—Baron Von Heyking, the late German minister at Pekin, who has arrived here on leave of absence, for a year, has declared, in an interview, that Russia does not intend to extend her possessions in China. He adds that a China-Japan treaty is impossible, because of mutual hatred, and declares Germany's Chinese interests lie in the direction of the Yang-Tse-Kiang.

Voulet's Action Unexplained.

Paris, Aug. 22.—The morning papers are full of comments upon the murder of Lieutenant Colonel Klobb and Lieutenant Meunier in the French Soudan, and of speculations as to the motives of Captain Voulet in causing their death. The Figaro says Captain Voulet often talked of the possibility of establishing an African empire and asks if he is about to attempt to realize the scheme.

Six'y Lives Probaby Lost.

Newberne, N. C., Aug. 22.—Reports from the coast of North Carolina, where the West Indian hurricane touched last week, are coming in, and show that a large number of lives were lost and much damage was done to property. Fourteen fishermen, in trying to cross Pamlico sound in skiffs, were lost. The schooners Goodwin and Aurora were wrecked. The L. R. Hill is ashore. The Beswick and all hands are reported lost. These losses occurred in Pamlico sound. It is believed that as many as 60 persons lost their lives in the storm.

Cut His Cousin's Throat.

New York, Aug. 22.—Everisto Rodriguez, who claims to be a nephew of General Maximo Gomez's secretary, had his throat cut at his home here yesterday by his cousin, Antonio Rodriguez, who had just arrived from Cuba. The cousins fought on different sides during the war in Cuba, and the wounded man's wife thinks that Antonio is a member of a secret society of Spaniards bound by oath to obtain revenge because of their dead Spanish comrades. Antonio Rodriguez escaped. The injured man may recover.

Visitors In Erie Basin.

New York, Aug. 22.—Steam yacht Erin and challenging yacht Shamrock both left their anchorage yesterday and went to the Erie basin, where the Erin was dry docked and the Shamrock was moored to one of the piers. By sundown the hull of Erin had been cleaned and painted below the water line. Today she will be painted above the water line and tomorrow she is to be floated out of the dock to make room for Shamrock, which takes her place in the dock. Shamrock will be stripped today of every ounce of superfluous weight.

Disappointed In Love.

New York, Aug. 22.—Samuel Oloff, aged 19, late a private in the Second United States infantry, attempted to blow out his brains at Central park yesterday. He was prevented from doing so and was arrested. A letter from a young lady begging him not to commit suicide was found in his pocket. The authorities think that Oloff attempted suicide because of illness and disappointment in love affairs. He will recover from his injuries.

Thieves Took Advantage.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 22.—During a violent windstorm here yesterday the big tent of John Robinson's circus was blown down upon the crowd in it. A general panic ensued and some 40 persons were more or less injured by being trampled upon. Fred O'Brien, an acrobat, had his right thigh broken and received other injuries. While the struggling mass was under the canvas thieves reaped a harvest.

Arthur Confident of Settlement.

Indianapolis, Aug. 22.—P. M. Arthur, chief of the Order of Railway Engineers, who is here to confer with the Big Four engineers, states that he is in sympathy with the demands of the men. He says that if the case goes before President Ingalls he is confident the president will grant the demands made by the engineers.

HUGHES' PUZZLING CURVES

Caused the Champions to Hang Out Signals of Distress and Lose.

Boston, Aug. 22.—"California Jim" Hughes, Brooklyn's star box man, stood in the way of Boston's success at the local ball park. His puzzling curves and fast "jump" ball, interspersed with a slow ball that would be hard to beat, had the home people guessing all through the ceremonies. The Superbas captured the second game of the series and never lost the lead. The season's play now stands five apiece, and today's game will be the "rubber."

Nichols went in for the champions and pitched good ball, but Hanlon's recruits touched the "King" up for enough hits in the fifth inning, along with a few fielding misplays, to give the Brooklyns five runs, which settled the game. Up to that period the game was close, but Hughes was as steady as a rock and the champions hung out signals of distress in all except a few cases when it came to facing the clever youth from the Pacific slope.

Champion Tennis Player.

Homburg, Aug. 22.—The tennis tournament was concluded yesterday before a brilliant gathering, Hobart continuing his victorious career. After defeating Gore he beat Mahony, the holder of the championship of Germany in 1898, three sets to two, the score being 3—6, 8—10, 12—10, 6—8, 8—6. Hobart won after the most brilliant match seen on the Homburg courts, playing a wonderful game, especially in the third love-set, completely smothering Mahony. The Duke of Cambridge distributed the prizes. In complimenting the victors he said he was glad to see such a fine game again so popular.

An Early Convention.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—The Record says: The Democratic national committee is considering the advisability of holding the Democratic national convention two or three months earlier than in former years. Word has come to Chicago that a meeting of the committee is to be held in October or November to discuss the question. It is not considered improbable that the convention will be called to meet in February. Some of the committeemen and Democratic leaders favor holding the convention in February, others favor holding it in May or June.

Brother Suspects Foul Play.

Webster, Mass., Aug. 22.—An inquest held over the remains of John Connors, who was found dead on the tracks of the Norwich and Worcester railroad, resulted in a verdict of accidental death. From suspicious marks on the body it was thought that the man might have been a victim of foul play. Benjamin Connors, a brother of the dead man, declines to accept the finding of the coroner as final, and intimates that detectives will be put on the case to investigate it fully.

Whole Island Under Water.

Washington, N. C. Aug. 22.—The recent storm played havoc on Occracock island, destroying 30 houses and two churches, washing away the Norfolk and Southern railroad piers, grounding several steamers and schooners, wrecking smaller craft of fishermen, and drowning not less than 20 men and all the horses and cattle on the island. It was the most destructive storm that section has ever known. The island was under water for three days.

To Suppress Gambling.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 22.—At a meeting of the district council here petitions signed by prominent taxpayers were presented to the council asking that steps be taken to enforce the laws of Rhode Island prohibiting gambling. It was voted that the chief of police be specially instructed to see that the law relating to gambling be enforced forthwith.

Labori's Reappearance Is Worrying Military Party.

General Mercier Makes a Most Pitiable Exhibition.

Driven Into a Corner and Rendered Liable to Arrest at any Moment.

Witnesses Who Made Depositions During Labori's Absence to Be Recalled.

Rennes, Aug. 23.—The third session of the third week of the second trial by court-martial of Captain Alfred Dreyfus, on the charge of treason, began at the Lycee at 6:30 this morning. Maitre Labori was present.

The session opened with the testimony of minor witnesses, Roy and Dreviell. The later deposed that Dreyfus, while with the general staff, could have access to documents, unperceived, during certain hours of the day. Captain Dreyfus, replying, admitted that he was present during those hours, but explained that his presence was connected with his duties.

The confusion into which the ranks of the military witnesses are thrown by anything approaching a lively cross-examination is due to the fact that their cases are all prepared for them, and in some instances even written out by Maitre Ployer, who pulls the strings from Paris in the interests of the military party. Hence the dismay spread by the reappearance of M. Labori.

The spy, Lajoux, prominent in yesterday's evidence, was one of the least reputable connected with the intelligence bureau. He was paid to leave France, and is still paid 200 francs a month. He knows all about Cuers, who betrayed Germany's secrets to France, and, among others, that a decorated colonel of the general staff supplied Germany with important mobilization plans and other secrets. This was two years after Dreyfus was condemned, and the traitorous colonel was Henry.

When Picquart was investigating this affair, Henry got himself sent to Balo to take the statements of Cuers, and to browbeat him into suppressing the truth.

Hush money is still being paid. On one occasion Lajoux was thrust into a lunatic asylum to prevent awkward disclosures.

Considerable impression was made by the reading of the notes made by the superiors of Dreyfus, showing that, throughout his career, he displayed industry and good conduct, until the moment he entered the general staff, when the records suddenly changed from industry to laziness and from discretion to haughtiness, while he was thereafter credited with developing a taste for prying into state secrets.

Tuesday was Maitre Labori's day at the Lycee. He was the central figure of the scene. As the Dreyfus drama unrolled before a crowded court his tall form was the magnet which, from the moment the curtain was rung up until it fell, drew all regards, not merely glances of curiosity, but the steady gaze of admiration. His mere presence brought brightness into the court room, and fresh light into the proceedings.

Labori did what people had expected. He galvanized the dormant defense into an active, living thing. Maitre Demange was conciliatory. He has always seemed to fear to tread on the military corn. Labori is a gladiator, and always speaks to touch his foe to the quick. Let there be the slightest opening in his opponent's defense, and he thrusts home.

When Maitre Demange found nothing to ask a witness, Maitre Labori's quick eye had discovered weak spots, and he came forward with searching questions. Generals Roget, Billot, Mercier and Boisdeffre, with the other military witnesses, gave one another anxious glances, and put their heads together to exchange obviously disagreeable impressions, as Labori plied the smaller military fry, who occupied the witness stand successively, with disconcerting questions.

Labori cornered General Mercier on the Schneider letter, which the latter had used as evidence, and which Colonel Schneider had repudiated as a forgery. The general was surprised when Labori suddenly demanded that he be recalled. Evidently he hoped the tribunal would support him in refusing to explain how he got a copy of a letter which was of later date than his incumbency at the ministry of war.

But Labori was not to be denied. He insisted that Mercier should give some explanation. Then, after hesitating, Mercier declared that he would assume all the responsibility attaching to his possession of the document. This, as Labori intended it should be, was a demonstration of communication by the general staff of part, at least, of the secret dossier to an ordinary soldier, such as Mercier became immediately on leaving the ministry of war. When Labori had attained his object and forced a confession of grave violation of law on the part of General Mercier, he gave a smile of satisfaction, and then added significantly: "I shall have other questions to put to General Mercier." The scene was highly dramatic, and made a profound impression upon all the spectators.

General Mercier made a pitiable exhibition. M. Labori, in a passion, fairly thundered his questions. "What can be the value of documents," said he, "which we cannot see and cannot discuss; documents for which it is impossible to know who takes the responsibility? I appeal to you, Mr. President, to be good enough to ask General Mercier now this document came into his possession."

Mercier, driven into a corner, feebly evaded the question.

"Mr. President," continued Labori, "I insist that a reply be given. General Mercier has sworn to speak the whole truth. I must insist that questions respectfully tendered by the defense be answered by him. The court-martial, unlike the court of cassation, has to deal with the whole range of the affair; and it is necessary that complete light be thrown upon it. I insist that General Mercier answer me, for it is my right."

After Mercier's shuffling collapse, M. Labori sank back into his arm chair, great beads of perspiration standing on his forehead, but his countenance radiant at the impression he had made.

General Mercier must have spent a very miserable evening, for, as the result of his admission, and with the additional charge of communicating secret documents to the court-martial of 1894, he is liable to arrest at any moment. Indeed some people think it not impossible that he will be lying in the military prison adjoining the cell of Captain Dreyfus before the week is out.

Another series of questions put by Maitre Labori concerned Lajoux, a spy formerly in the service of the French war office, but packed off to South America, according to various military witnesses, because he proved a swindler. Labori asked how it was, if that were so, that Lajoux was still receiving monthly payments.

Commandant Rollin, completely taken back, replied that a cessation of payments was under consideration.

The impression conveyed by Laborl's questions and the replies given was that Lajoux was being paid by the war office to keep out of the way in the interests of Esterhazy, whom Lajoux, in a letter read in court offering revelations in the Dreyfus affair, indicated as the real traitor. M. Labori's cross-examination in this matter therefore was a distinct advantage to the accused.

M. Labori announced that he intended to recall several witnesses who had made depositions during his absence. This means Mercier, Roget and others, who will be put to the test of a severe cross-examination. To his friends, M. Labori has expressed himself confident of being able to tear to pieces the evidence these generals have given so confidently before a sympathetic tribunal.

Captain Dreyfus pursued the attitude he took up Monday and replied to the statements of hostile witnesses with arguments and the presentation of counter-facts, only once giving way to his feelings and offering a cry of protest. This was at the conclusion of Colonel Bertin's deposition, when, with broken voice, the accused declared his love of France and the army. "Yes," he cried, "I love France and I love my country; but it is with sentiments different from those animating them who come here today to testify against me."

M. Labori, if anything, was better after his exertions than before them. The excitement under which he labored seemed to act as a stimulant, although many friends, noticing his flushed face, feared there might be a relapse. So far from this being the case, he was able to go for a drive with his wife in an autocar in the afternoon and, on his return, he held quite a reception, afterwards spending the time until dinner in going over the evidence.

The scurrilous tactics of the anti-Dreyfusard newspapers may be illustrated by a paragraph appearing in their organ here last evening, declaring that the attack on Labori which, it insinuates, did very little harm, was made solely to arouse the sympathy of the people of Rennes for the lamentable lot of an escaped convict from Devil's island.

Developments Pending In Strawboard Trade.

Boston, Aug. 23.—The Transcript says that the general business activity which has extended to every class of industry has greatly increased the consumption of strawboard. All the mills of the American Strawboard company, 15 in number, are running full time with an average output of 20 tons of strawboard each. Negotiations are now pending for the acquisition by the American Strawboard company of several important independent concerns. This deal has so far progressed that it is understood that an advance in price will be ordered simultaneously by the trust and its present competitors on all grades, to take effect Sept. 1.

IMPENETRABLE HAZE

Responsible For a Collision of Two Steamers In Boston Harbor.

Excursion Boat Mayflower Cut Down by Yarmouth.

Former Beached to Prevent Sinking, While Latter Is Not Badly Damaged.

Boston, Aug. 23.—With her fine prow, which the builders had shaped for speed as well as beauty, resting on rocks, the magnificent steamer Mayflower of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat company lies on the beach at Deer island, with a ragged wound in her side, the result of a collision with the fast steamship Yarmouth in the harbor yesterday afternoon.

The two big boats came together at a point about half way between buoy 6 and Long island head, at 2:30 o'clock, as the Mayflower was coming up to the city, while the Yarmouth was on her way out for her long trip to the provinces. The Mayflower was cut down and badly damaged, the injury extending below the water line.

As the Yarmouth backed off torrents of water poured into the Mayflower, and soon she was settling by the head.

The 95 passengers on board were soon taken off by the tug Confidence and brought to the city, while the Mayflower was beached at Deer island.

The Yarmouth, after the accident, anchored and lowered several boats, but they were not needed. Later, the Yarmouth proceeded to sea, and is believed to have escaped without any serious injury.

Had the Yarmouth struck the Mayflower five feet further back the boilers would have been exploded.

Deep, impenetrable fog was the direct cause of the accident. Nothing but the holding of a water-tight bulkhead, which the prow of the Yarmouth bent, but did not injure, prevented one of the most disastrous accidents ever occurring within the space of water intervening between the wharf piers of Charlestown and Boston light.

Under the shroud of haze which shut out from the sight of many of the craft that chanced to be in the vicinity of the place where the collision occurred, there was a terrible 20 minutes' experience for the passengers and crew of the pleasure boat, 118 in all; and in that time there were men whose actions approached the heroic—men who likewise played the parts of cowards—and women whose fright and wild shrieks for succor were only offset by the composure of others.

Thanks to the coolness of the officers of the Mayflower and to the brave work of Captain Baker of the Boston Towboat company's tug Confidence, who, from his pilothouse as the fog cleared for an instant following the collision, had seen the danger that threatened, everyone of the passengers which were on the injured boat were speedily transferred to the little tug and taken up to the city.

Some of the passengers lost their hats, some of them lost money and articles of wearing apparel, some lost their presence of mind and tried to jump overboard, so eager were they to get to the tug.

But no one lost his or her life, and each and every one of them considered this especial cause for thanksgiving, and did not hesitate to say so when they found themselves safe and sound once more on the company's pier at Rowe's wharf.

The name of the towboat, the Confidence, was just what was needed then, and when they stepped ashore there were faces in the group that were wreathed in smiles, and everyone was happy.

Not for years in the history of Boston shipping has there been a day more conducive to accidents on account of the fog than was the case yesterday.

Incoming and outgoing craft were being run at half speed only, but in spite of the greatest watchfulness there were many hairbreadth escapes, and just at the time that the Yarmouth and Mayflower came together, it is stated by many other skippers, the haze was simply impenetrable.

Mrs. Todd Must Go Back.

Washington, Aug. 23.—Commissioner of Immigration Powderly has finally decided the case of Mrs. L. M. Todd, a British subject, who is now in the San Fransisco pest house, suffering from leprosy. The commissioner directs that she be sent back to the Hawaiian islands and confined in the leper colony there. Inspectors have recently reported it as their belief that a colony of lepers exists in the northern part of Washington.

Editor Whipped.

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 23.—Editor W. C. Crum of the Florida Republican was badly beaten by whitecaps at Peck. He was postmaster at that place, and recently appointed Morrison, a colored man, as his assistant. A committee of citizens compelled Morrison to give up his office, and Crum was held up by a mob of armed men, and whipped and kicked. Carbolic acid was applied to the gashes made by the whip. Crum has closed the office and resigned.

He Missed Connections.

Havana, Aug. 23.—General Jiminez arrived at Manzanllo yesterday on board the Polaria. He missed the connections with Santiago. He is still greatly annoyed over what he calls his unwarranted arrest at Cienfuegos, as this will delay his arrival in Santo Domingo for more than a week. His wife will reside temporarily in Santiago, while General Jiminez and his son will go to Santo Domingo on a yacht that is now en route from Kingston, Jam., to coal.

Good Afternoon.

It is but human nature for those who managed the Quincy Yacht club's races, to smile at the bungling manner in which other clubs conduct their cup races. The Quincy club's races went off like clock work. The buoys were always in their proper positions, the course definitely marked, the depth of water more than ample for the deepest draft contestants, and the timing of the races was perfection in itself. The Seawanhak a cup race was a fake, and the Canada cup races started in rather bunglingly. The reason is apparent. The Quincy club conducts its races on a definite plan which is worked out weeks ahead of the events on charts and other paraphernalia. Every square foot of water over which the contesting boats can possibly sail, is plotted out and all reefs and other obstructions marked for buoys. This year two obstructions were found in the courses, one due east three-quarters of a mile from the club house and the other near the Hull club house. The Light House Board at Washington was notified and promptly removed the sunken spars. This is but one example of many of the systematic manner in which the planning for the regattas is carried out. The men who are selected for the various duties, such as the starters and those who look after the placing of the buoys and other arrangements are past-masters in their various lines. From years of practice in handling races a bungle is impossible.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Mrs. Mary Lease has met a newspaper writer who sees in her face "the play of human sympathy and the force of a soul." Force enough she has oh dear, yes; how could such force escape showing. But whether she is soulful that is another story.—New Bedford Standard.

☞William Waldorf Astor the man-ashamed-of-his-birthplace has taken pains to have his name removed from a New York committee having in charge the erection of a patriotic American statue. One can only marvel in view of William's actions during the last half dozen years that any one was ever idiot enough to put him on such a committee.—Milford News.

☞The official Russian revision of the fifth commandment which includes the emperor and his officials along with those whom the people are exhorted to honor probably suggests nothing of egotism to his most royal highness. The wonder is that the first commandment in Russia has not been amended to read: "Thou shalt have no other god but the czar."—Providence Reporter.

☞A fine little flurry has appeared in Washington political circles over the report that the anti-imperialists in the Republican party would run an independent candidate for president next year. One paper in Baltimore has already picked out Mr. Reed as the candidate. That reminds one that we are now at the height of the dog days. There is no sea serpent this year and the kissing bug has disappeared.—Springfield Republican.

—When the London Saturday Review seriously speaks of the United States as "the greatest nation on earth," as it did recently, Uncle Sam cannot be blamed for stepping a little higher and having his hat stretched.—Pawtucket Gazette.

BEAUTIFUL TRIP.

By Trolley from Beverly to Beautiful Quincy.

The enterprising Beverly Evening Times has been publishing a series of trolley excursions, and the one of Aug. 22, took the traveler "through to Quincy."

The Beverly cars take the excursionist to the depot at Salem, where a change is made for Lynn. At Lynn, close connection is made for cars that run through to Boston, via. the turnpike over the Lynn marshes, Central avenue through Revere, Broadway through Chelsea, over the new elevated bridge into Charlestown, and directly to the North Union station. Continuing the Lynn cars enter the subway near the Union Station and do not return back until Scollay Square is reached. Here the Beverly tourists changes to a Neponset bridge car, and he reaches the Quincy line in an hour. His impressions of the city of President, granite and schools is given in full:

"At the Neponset bridge we take the car for Quincy over the Quincy and Boston system. Cars also run from the bridge through to Brockton, connecting for Fall River and Newport, Rhode Island, or to Hingham and Nantasket beach. The ride from Neponset bridge to Quincy is a pretty one, the car passing through Atlantic, Norfolk Downs, and Wollaston, charming residential places.

"Quincy is a historic old city and is the only place in the commonwealth that ever had the distinguished honor of furnishing a president of these United States, while Quincy not content with one, furnished two. Speaking of Quincy in her 'South Shore Trolley Trips,' Katherine M. Abbott says: "Quincy had her fortune told long years ago by a famous traveler. On Captain John Smith's extraordinary map of the New England coast. Quincy is marked by a castle and cathedral, prophetic signs of her future dignity and renown. Her history has never been tame since the early days of Mount Wollaston, when the gay revellers led by Tom Morton—adventurer—danced around the Maypole at Merry Mount to the scandal of Plymouth. Myles Standish and Endicott hastened to suppress the 'wild-drake' of New England history who was supplying the Indians with deadly weapons. The May-pole was cut down and Morton banished to England.

"To recall the critical times of our history one has but to read the year book of old Braintree and Quincy with its files of soldiers, statesmen, patriots, orators, teachers, men and women born to build a republic. These ancestral names hold prestige wherever their children have founded new Braintrees and Quincys. Among them are Adams, Quincy, Greenleaf, Bass, Faxon, Morton, Thayer, Butler, Williams and Whitney. Family honors seem ever to run in plural number and they say in Quincy, instead of from a line of fighters, from a line of presidents, provincial and continental congressmen or metropolitan mayors. Happily for us Quincy excelled in distinguished correspondents. Their letters are a constant delight as portraits of the Colonial day.

"It is within the walls of Quincy that the 'New Education' was introduced by the later generations of the Adams family. Quincy schools and methods drew educators for study from far and wide. Every district of Quincy has its mark of fame. At South Quincy are the old Adams houses and Penn's Hill, from which Abigail Adams and her little son watched the burning of Charlestown and the maneuovering of the British cruisers."

Quincy contains many interesting historic spots and the historically inclined traveler may find much of interest in the 'Granite City.' Many pretty rides may be taken from Quincy to other points, such as to Nantasket, Hingham, Braintree, Weymouth and other points along the South Shore and through the Old Colony section of the state."

Won by a Quincy Boy.

The W. A. A. held their annual track events at Ludlow, last Saturday, and as usual records were equalled and broken.

The chief event of the day was the one mile run. Twenty-one men were entered. Hilliard of New Jersey was booked to win. At the half-mile mark ten men had dropped out of the race, and Hilliard was having it quite easy, holding the lead by about twenty yards. At the 3-4 mile mark, A. H. Paterson of Quincy, suddenly started on a tremendous spurt and passed Hilliard 30 yards from the tape and won by 2 1-2 yards; time, 4.46 1-2. Hilliard was second and Dutton of Vermont third.

The two mile run was won by Ouland of Philadelphia, Paterson second and Hilliard third.

Owing to a lame ankle Paterson was unable to enter the 5 mile run.

TWO SLIGHT FIRES.

Carelessness at Wollaston and a Mystery at Quincy Point.

The alarm from Box 52 at 8.07 this morning was for a slight fire in the kitchen of a house on Highland avenue owned by N. G. Nickerson and occupiod by E. L. Higgins. The fire was caused by the accidental upsetting of an oil stove, which was burning briskly when the alarm was sounded. Hose 2 was early on the scene and extinguished the blaze with hand chemicals. The central station apparatus was stopped near the Wollaston hotel. The recall came in six minutes. The interior of the kitchen was blackened somewhat by smoke and the floor burned some Later it was learned that the fire was caused by a careless servant who attempted to fill the oil stove while it was burning. Some of the oil ran over the tank, onto the stove, and took fire, In the excitement that followed it was overturned and the oil running along the floor carried the fire with it. In addition to the slight fire damage there was some loss by smoke; the whole will not exceed $125.

The alarm from Box 74 a 10.25 this morning was for a fire in a cottage house on North street, owned by J. W. Wilbur and occupied by Peter Curney.

The fire started from some unknown cause among a lot of mattresses and rubbish in the attic, and was burning briskly when the department arrived.

Hose 4 laid a line of hose from the corner of North street which was carried up a ladder and through a little window in the front end of the house. The firemen entered the attic and threw the burning mattresses out of the window. The fire was confined to this part of the house and did not break through the roof.

The furniture on the street floor was removed, and a part of that on the second floor. The water came down through the ceiling and the loss on the first and second floors will be by water only. Chief Williams estimates the total loss at $100.

There were rumors that the fire was started by a lot of lime in the attic, while other reports lay it to a defective chimney, and to rats and matches.

Liquor Case from Houghs Neck.

For some weeks past there have been numerous rumors flying about Houghs Neck that liquor was being sold illegally. There have been frequent rows, in which the participants were more or less under the influence of liquor, which it has been claimed was purchased at the beach. These rumors have come to the Ledger by parties who claimed to know where the ardent could be purchased but for obvious reasons no mention has been made of it. Inspector McKay who looks after the enforcement of the liquor law in Quincy has had Houghs Neck under his eye for some time and his frequent visits to the beach have not been for pleasure. Tuesday afternoon he went down again, and this time he had two warrants stowed away in his inside pocket. One of these warrants was against Clarence Dimock, who was charged with keeping a liquor nuisance, and the other was against George McIntosh who was charged with the illegal sale of intoxicating liquor. Both of these men were summoned into court where they appeared this morning. A number of witnesses were also summoned to tell what they know about the case. The parties occupied a cottage off Sea street in the rear of what is known as the Clam Shell.

Historic Panel.

Herbert W. Beattie, the modeller, has just completed the third of the four panels which are to go on a monument to be erected on the battlefield at Antietam.

The first two panels, which have been described in the Ledger, represented the First Maryland Infantry closing in upon Roullettes' barns and house, and the Second Maryland Infantry at Burnsides bridge.

The panel just completed represents Wolcott's First Maryland Battery in action at Antietam. The battery of five guns is seen in the foreground shelling the Confederates, who are concealed in the woods around Dunkards church, which is represented as it appeared upon the day of this famous battle from the position occupied by this battery. Smoke of the Confederate guns can be seen. On the left is a blazing farm house, surrounded by an orchard, which has been fired by an exploding Union shell. In front of the battery is a waving cornfield, studded with low hedge fences, across which the battery is firing. The battery is in charge of a mounted officer, and several killed and wounded of the Union troops are seen near by.

SPOTTER EVIDENCE.

Father and Son Hired to Board at Vining Villa.

At 4 P. M. Tuesday the end of trial was not in sight in the hearing in the Vining seizure case which had been in progress since 9 A. M. in the Hingham court with the exception of an hour's intermission at noon and an adjournment was taken until Friday morning.

Chief Mitchell testified to the raid and the seizure of a bottle of claret, about seven-eighths of bottle of sherry and possibly 200 emtpy bottles in two barrels.

Officer Reynolds corroborated the evidence of the chief.

Frank J. Rorke of Boston testified to purchasing two bottles of beer on Aug. 5. It was served in his room by the head waiter who refused to be compensated for it. The waiter said that they should settle with Miss Vining. Monday Aug. 7 he took his departure from the Vining villa. When he came to settle he called Miss Vining's attention to the fact that he owed her for some beer and she said that it was charged in the bill as sundries. When the bill was settled he offered to open a bottle of wine for his hostess. Miss Vining refused on the plea that she never imbibed. He then ordered four bottles of beer and paid 60 cents for them. He consumed the contents of one, Miss Vining's housekeeper another, the third was drank by his son and the fourth was reserved for the teamster.

On being cross-examined Mr. Rorke said the people he treated included the man who drove him over; he left another bottle for the housekeeper; then there was a drink each for his son and himself. Left about 2.30 or 3 o'clock. The treat was given at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. Gave Miss Vining 60 cents for the four bottles of beer. Left orders about my trunk with Miss Vining telling her what disposition to make of it. I had a conversation with Miss Vining when I settled with her but I do not remember what it was. Before we left the cottage between 2 and 2.30 I had been down on the beach. On the morning of the 7th I came down to breakfast and went over to the East End Hotel and walked about there a little while.

Alexander Rorke son of above testified in substance as his father and that he was present at the purchase and when the bill was paid.

Miss Vining took the stand in her own defence. She said that she had conducted the Vining villa seven years. Can accommodate about 50 boarders. This summer she had about 60. Asked if she kept any liquor for sale in violation of the law she said none whatever. Asked if she had a wine list for the accommodation of guests and her reply was the same.

Relative to when Chief Mitchell called, Miss Vining said she was sitting on her veranda, while the guests were enjoying an entertainment inside. When the officers entered she noticed they did so without removing their hats. She followed them over the house and described how Mitchell and Reynolds searched everything in the house.

Relative to the number of empty bottles seized she said originally they belonged to the guests and when empty they were brought down stairs to be sold to junk men or returned to the brewery.

The two bottles of wine were again produced. Witness said the claret was left over when the punch was made. Said she marked the bottle "F. Vining," when the officers took it away so that Chief Mitchell would put nothing else in the bottle.

When questioned regarding the testimony of the elder and junior Rorke, witness denied their statements in toto. She never had conversation with the elder Rorke, only on the day of his arrival and the day of his departure.

She testified: "It has been my custom never to keep liquor for my guests, and I know of no exception to this custom."

She produced her account book, in which she kept her accounts with her guests. Referring to the account book, Miss Vining said it was her custom to make entries on Saturday night. She made up the bills from this book of entry. When Mr. Rorke was presented with his bill he put her in mind of some laundry which was done. She admitted adding this and other items in lead pencil. Relative to the 30 cents, which in the bill was headed "sundries," Miss Vining firmly held that it was for milk, which Mr. Rorke had brought to his room three times a day.

She admitted that most of her guests had liquors of their own.

James F. Ormond identified the seized bottle of claret as one furnished by him in coloring some lemonade, and Michael Sullivan identified the bottle of sherry as the one he had given Miss Vining.

Ernest Brant and other guests testified to having liquor of their own in the house, and that they had never seen indication of sales.

There is considerable interest in the case, and a large attendance may be expected on Friday.

Democratic Representation.

The basis of representation to the Democratic State convention has been fixed at one delegate-at large for each city and town and each ward of a city, and one additional delegate for each 100 votes or majority fractional part thereof cast in the year 1898 for the Democratic candidate for Governor. The basis of representation will be the same for delegates to the councillor, county, senatorial, and representative conventions.

This will give Quincy 16 delegates as follows:

At large,	1
Ward One,	2
Ward Two,	2
Ward Three,	3
Ward Four,	5
Ward Five,	1

TO CLEAN MATTING.

To make soiled matting look fresh and bright prepare a pailful of warm water with a handful of salt and four tablespoonfuls of Ivory Soap shavings dissolved in it. With a clean cloth squeezed out of the mixture, wipe every breadth of the matting, rubbing soiled spots until they disappear.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Worse Than Poverty.

"You poor, little ragged boy!"

"G'wan now. De foist t'ing I know you'll be kissin me."—New York Journal.

Old Sta'ute In Force.

New York, Aug. 23.—That colored pupils may be excluded from schools where white children attend in this state was established by a decision rendered by Justice Smith of the supreme court in the case of Mrs. Cisco, a wealthy colored woman, who brought suit for a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel the school authorities of Queens borough to admit her son Jacob, 13 years old, into the schools attended by white children. Mrs. Cisco admitted that Jamaica had a school exclusively for colored children, but maintained that she had a right to send her son to any school in the borough she chooses. The case was stubbornly contested, and her motion was denied, without costs. Justice Smith rendered an exhaustive opinion, saying that there is no claim that the statute of 1864 was ever repealed, and the claim that the statute was repealed by implication cannot be seriously entertained.

Big Demand For Firearms.

Little Rock, Aug. 23.—Over 40 negroes are in the Pulaski county jail as a result of a concerted effort on the part of the authorities to run down the men who a few days ago committed assaults on five white women in this city. Ed Wright was positively identified yesterday by Mrs. Kennedy as her assailant and was held for the grand jury without bail. Every precaution has been taken to prevent a lynching. The wholesale arrests have aroused much excitement among a certain class of negroes. Dealers say their sale of arms and ammunition were unprecedented, yesterday the majority of sales being made to negroes.

Just as She Was Launched.

New York, Aug. 23.—As light as the day she was launched, Shamrock lies alongside her Erie basin pier. Completely stripped of all her sea-going spars and rigging, and with everything taken out from below, she floats fully 18 inches higher than she did upon her arrival last Friday. She will lie where she is for the present. She is not to be dry docked until the arrival of Sir Thomas Lipton, and perhaps not then, for her captain says it is not necessary to haul her out until the time set in measuring her, just before the races. Shamrock is to receive her racing rig at once.

LANDED HARD ON MEEKIN.

Brooklyns Secured a Good Start on the Champions and Won Hands Down.

Boston, Aug. 23.—Brooklyn defeated the Boston champions hands down at the South End grounds in the concluding game of the present home series. "Jimmy" McJames, the medico-pitcher, was on the rubber for the Superbas, and kept the home champions from hitting safely when hits meant runs. McJames used a splendid curve ball and a fast jump, which puzzled the home hitters all the way through, and it was evidently a "Brooklyn day" from the start.

Big Jouett Meekin was sent out to thwart Brooklyn's design on the pennant, but had hard luck, as the visitors landed on his fast ball in the first round for three runs. In the next inning another run was added, seven hits in all being made off the ex-giant, and then Willis was sent in, but too late to win the laurels. Willis was not hit hard, though another run was made by Brooklyn in the fifth inning on Daly's home run hit over the left fence. Boston pulled up slightly, after being shut out for six consecutive innings, and two runs were scored on three double-baggers.

Root's Visit to McKinley.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Secretary Root arrived from Washington yesterday and joined the president and Attorney General Griggs. They were closeted for nearly two hours, during which time they had a general talk on all pending matters. Secretary Root, when seen after the conference, said: "There is nothing startling to give out as a result of our conference. We had a general talk on a number of different subjects, but there is really nothing of special interest to give out at this time." Attorney General Griggs declined to talk on the subject of the conference. Major F. B. Mott of General Merritt's staff said that there was no probability that General Merritt would be sent to Manila.

Typhoon Still Raging.

Manila, Aug. 23.—The typhoon that has been raging for the last two days has kept the United States transports Zealandia and Valencia, with the Montana troops on board, in the harbor. The United States cable steamer Hooker, which grounded in the north channel off Corregidor island about a fortnight ago, will probably be knocked to pieces. A hundred miles of cable and $10,000 worth of instruments are on board the steamer. Fifty miles of cable have already been thrown overboard. The Hooker is grinding to pieces on the rocks.

Echo of Cleve'and Explosions.

Cleveland, Aug. 23.—C. E. Ward, a bicycle repairer, was arraigned yesterday on the charge of meddling with street railway property. His case was continued. Recently several boys were arrested on the charge of placing explosives on street railroad tracks. To the detectives they admitted that the explosives consisted of sulphur and potash, and that it had been prepared for them by Ward, who explained how it should be used. Ward is said to have confessed that he mixed the explosive.

The Canada Cup Races.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—The first race of the series which is to determine the possession of the Canada's cup came off on Lake Ontario without mishap. There was a fairly strong northwest wind at the start, and considerable sea outside. The Genesee finished one minute and 22 seconds ahead of the Beaver.

RHODES' PREDICTION.

President Kruger Will Climb Down and There Will Be No Bloodshed.

Outlanders Will Form a Government In the Transvaal.

Boers' Latest Communication Contains Certain Alternative Proposals.

Cape Town, Aug. 23.—In the Cape assembly yesterday Cecil Rhodes, referring to the Transvaal question, said: "There will be no bloodshed. President Kruger, like a sensible man, will climb down. The less the Cape Colony is concerned in the quarrel the better."

CECIL RHODES.

Continuing, Mr. Rhodes said it was certain that the Transvaal would become an English-speaking community, and the outlanders, being in a vast majority, would form a government in keeping with their views. He expressed the hope that the settlement would be fair, and that the Cape Colony would let the imperial government deal with that matter also.

It is rumored at Cape Town that the Boers intend to attempt a coup to obtain forcible possession of the ammunition detained by the Portuguese.

It is ascertained, on the highest authority, says a dispatch from Pretoria, that no definite reply has been sent to the proposal of Joseph Chamberlain to submit to a joint commission of inquiry the effect upon the outlanders of the recent franchise reforms.

The precise situation is that a communication was dispatched Monday to Sir Alfred Milner, which embodies certain alternative proposals. For various reasons these are kept strictly confidential, but it is believed that they will admit of the conclusion of a modus vivendi.

It is understood from unofficial sources of information that the alternative proposals of the Transvaal government are for a five years' franchise and a one-fifth representation of the outlanders in the first raad, provided the imperial government does not further interfere in the internal affairs of the Transvaal.

Official circles at present regard the situation as tending to improve.

The war ammunition consigned to the South African republic is still detained by the Portuguese authorities in Delagoa Bay.

The government of the Transvaal has received a communication from the governor of Lorenzo Marquez relative to the stoppage of arms there, to the effect that Portugal's obligations to all nations, including Great Britain, required the enforcement of the Transvaal-Portuguese treaty, and, as an unsatisfactory explanation existed as to the transportation of arms, they were stopped at Delagoa Bay, and until the terms of the treaty should be complied with, though no doubt the matter will ultimately be arranged satisfactorily. The Transvaal government regards the communication as "extremely vague."

A Johannesburg dispatch says that the field cornets are busy distributing Mausers and ammunition to the burghers. The exodus of miners continues. The situation is all the more alarming on account of general stagnation of trade, which causes acute distress to the small storekeepers and their employes.

Fitz Harris and O'Hanlon Freed.

Dublin, Aug. 23.—Earl Cadogan yesterday signed the order releasing from Maryborough jail James FitzHarris, alias "skin the goat," who, in May, 1883, was sentenced to penal servitude as an accomplice in the murder on May 6, 1882, in Phoenix park, of Lord Frederick Cavendish, chief secretary for Ireland, and T. H. Burke, permanent under secretary, who were assassinated by stabbing, by four men known as the "Invincibles." An order of release was also signed in the case of Laurence O'Hanlon, sentenced to penal servitude for attempt to murder members of a jury engaged in the trial of persons charged with murder in November, 1882. FitzHarris and O'Hanlon left the jail last evening.

Thieves Riddled With Bullets.

Springfield, O., Aug. 23.—William Wetzel and Samuel Isley, colored, and stepbrothers, were surrounded and killed near Urbana by officers who were trying to arrest them. They had stolen some harness in Urbana and four officers started in pursuit, overtaking them four miles out of the city. The thieves opened fire and the officers returned it, filling them with bullets, killing them while they were in their buggy. None of the officers were hurt.

Big Foreclosure Sale.

Sioux City, Ia., Aug. 23.—Sioux City's $300,000 union depot and $1,000,000 worth of terminal property were sold at auction yesterday under foreclosure to the Trust Company of North America, trustee, for the sum of $1,250,000. The only other bidders were Mason, Lewis & Co., bankers and bond buyers of Chicago and Boston. This firm bid up to $1,245,000 and then stopped.

ADDRESSED THREE CONVENTIONS.

Bryan Denounces Trusts and Administration's Policy In the Philippines.

Omaha, Aug. 23.—Ex-Governor Silas A. Holcombe was nominated for supreme justice by the Populist convention and endorsed by Democrats and free silver Republicans. The parties fused on nominations for judge of the supreme court and two members of the board of regents of the state university. United States Senator Allen was chairman of the resolutions committee in the Populist convention and William J. Bryan was a delegate to the democratic gathering.

Bryan dictated the platform of the Democratic convention. This document declared uncompromisingly for free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and endorsed bodily the Chicago platform of 1896. The platform of the Populist convention endorsed the platform of the Populist national convention of 1896, and, in addition contained planks denouncing the policy of the administration in the Philippines. The platform of the silver Republicans was much the same, and contained, in addition, a strong plank declaring against the use of railroad passes by public officials.

This pass resolution was adopted by the Populists' convention without dissent, but stirred up commotion among the Democrats, many of whom fought it hard, and for a time the gathering was resolved into a scene of great disorder.

Finally the matter was put to a vote, and the resolution was declared passed, although not over a dozen delegates voted on either side.

Mr. Bryan addressed all three conventions, and was emphatic in his denunciation of the administration's policy in the Philippines. He also spoke vigorously in support of the free coinage of silver, declaring it to be the main issue now before the public. He denounced trusts in strong terms, and criticized the administration for doing nothing to regulate them. He was received with great enthusiasm.

For regents of the state university, the conventions nominated Edson Rich and J. L. Teeters, the names going through without opposition.

Farmer and Professor at Head.

Columbus, O., Aug. 23.—The Union Reform party nominated the following state ticket: Governor, Seth H. Ellis; lieutenant governor, G. W. Seelye; auditor, Frank S. Montgomery; judge of supreme court, A. R. McIntyre; attorney general, Thomas Batham; board of public works, A. A. Weaver. The faction which favored the endorsement of Mayor Jones of Toledo for governor was in a hopeless minority. On the first ballot for governor, Mayor Jones received only 26 votes out of a total of 562. The platform adopted contains but a single plank: "Direct legislation under the system known as the initiative and referendum." Seth H. Ellis is a well-known farmer. G. W. Seelye is a professor of Greek in Wooster university.

Plans For Fall Campaign.

Boston, Aug. 23.—The Democratic state convention this fall will be held in this city, and the state committee has selected Sept. 21 as the date. William S. McNary will be chairman of the convention, and George F. Williams secretary. The report of the executive committee, recommending that the delegates and alternates-at-large to the national convention be elected at the state convention was adopted unanimously. Caucuses for the election of delegates to the state convention will be held Sept. 14 and 15.

Guilty of Counterfeiting.

New Haven, Aug. 23.—In the United States court, Lingi Bettina and Angola Camper of New Haven pleaded guilty to counterfeiting, and were sentenced to seven years each in the state prison. Louis Gerri, also of New Haven, pleaded guilty to passing counterfeit money, and was sentenced to four years.

FALL RIVER'S MILLS.

Plans of National Trust Opposed by Local Financiers.

Promoters of First Offer Confident of Success.

Will Require $23,000,000 to Insure Purchase of Properties If Cash Is Called For.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 24.—Two new features of importance have been interjected into the struggle for mill consolidation. One is the expression of a wish by some local financiers for the evolving of some plan whereby the local banks can carry out a scheme such as has been outlined by Barrows, Wade, Guthrie & Co., and retain the control of the mills in the hands of local people. The other is the receipt of letters from Nelson G. Greene, who speaks for a syndicate that has in view the consolidating of the ownership of all the cotton mills in the United States.

Nelson G. Green is popularly supposed to represent John E. Searles, the financier, now operating in the formation of a cotton baling trust.

It may be said that the offers are not popularly believed to be parts of a feasible plan in so far as the Fall River mills are concerned. Some treasurers have hoped for a national trust for a long time, but it was only with the desire for a management that should in some measure control competition in selling. It has never been the desire of local people to have the financial control of the mills go out of the city.

A capital of at least $23,000,000 will be required if for no other purpose than to insure the purchase of the properties if cash is called for.

The promoters of the first offer say that they have the fullest confidence that unless something very different appears than has yet been in evidence all of the mills offered will be in their control within three months.

Each corporation has been valued for consolidation purposes, and the extreme results obtained are very striking. The wide difference in some of the mills' valuations per spindle may be explained by the difference in age and condition of the equipments, the location of the mills, their real esate and the surplusses which some of the corporations have accumulated. For instance, the Durfee mill, which shows a capitalization of only $3.80 per spindle, is counted worth $10.94 by the promoters of the trust. This is due to the surplus which has been allowed to accumulate and put into new buildings and equipment. In the case of the Troy, the real estate owned by the company in the centre of the city brings up its valuation to $17.32 per spindle, or $10.53 in excess of the amount shown by the capitalization.

On the whole, the price per spindle offered would seem large if applied to mills outside of Fall River, but it was recognized by those who made the figures that the production per spindle is probably greater here than in any other American manufacturing centre. In fact, the values are considered to show an intimate knowledge of the plants, and a long study of the stock markets in this city and Boston, where Fall River mill shares are disposed of. The productive capacities of some of the mills warrant better prices than have been offered, and it may take some little time to convince owners that higher figures are not obtainable.

Conditions Have Changed.

Providence, Aug. 24.—There is no longer the possibility of a strike by the telegraph operators of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company. The representatives of the men have been given assurances that their complaints would be listened to and be given consideration, and the members of the Order of Railway Telegraphers have been informed by their president that the conditions which prevailed at the time they voted to strike have been changed. It is expected that after a few weeks there will be an amicable adjustment of all differences.

Assaulted by Masked Man.

Leominster, Mass., Aug. 24.—The police of this and neighboring towns are hunting the woods in this vicinity for a man who is charged with having assaulted Miss May Baldwin of Sterling, aged 17, while she was bicycling from her home to this town yesterday. Miss Baldwin is in a state of collapse from her rough experience at the hands of the man. Her description of him is meagre. She says he was masked.

Rail Was Removed.

Brunswick, Me., Aug. 24.—An engine and two cars of a special freight ran off the track near Brunswick yesterday. The engineer and fireman jumped and were uninjured. The freight cars were hauled on the track without much trouble, but the engine lies on its back in the gully badly smashed. The accident was caused by a rail removed by the section men, who forgot to use a flag.

Gibson Breaks a Record.

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 24.—At the bicycle races here on the new board track the special feature was the breaking of the world's professional two-mile paced record by Harry Gibson of Cincinnati. Gibson rode the distance behind a steam pacing machine in 3:09 4-5, the former record being 3:13, held by Major Taylor.

Job printing at the Ledger office.

Narrowly Escaped Drowning.

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 24.—Professor Anthony and Professor Purinton of Bates college were overcome by the force of the breakers while bathing at Ocean Park, and were unable to get ashore without assistance. They were rescued in an exhausted condition by other bathers, who joined hands and formed a life line.

Possible Location of Murderer.

Dover, N. H., Aug. 24.—Sheriff Hayes is in receipt of a telegram from the Oklahoma authorities, enquiring if "J. A. Simpson" is wanted in this state. That was one of the aliases borne by Julius H. McArthur, the horse thief, who fatally shot Deputy Sheriff Smith of Dover, May. 6, 1891. Sheriff Hayes answered to hold the prisoner, and will investigate at once. McArthur escaped from the Dover jail July 17, 1891, and Governor Tuttle issued a proclamation offering $1000 reward for information leading to his capture.

Strike Will Receive Support.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 24.—The executive committee of the National Federation of Operatives met here yesterday, and, after a lengthy discussion on the situation of the dissatisfied Potomska mill weavers, it was voted to support the local weavers' union in case of a strike. The question of striking will be decided at a meeting of the Potomska weavers tonight.

On the Diamond.

St. Louis, Aug. 24.—The St. Louis men made a garrison finish in the first game, winning out after the score was 7 to 2 against them. Both teams played loose ball in both games. McBride's wildness was mainly responsible for the loss of the second game.

Dr. Robinson's Advice to Negroes.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 24.—At yesterday's session of the colored Baptists' congress of the United States, Rev. Dr. Robbinson of Pittsburg, in an address, declared that the colored race "must paddle its own canoe. We must get money, banks, railroads," he continued, "learn how to make guns and powder, etc., and then learn to use them before we can become a power in this country." He closed by asserting that "the north, the south and the devil in hell are against the negro, and God is the only one who will accept us."

To Ask For Arbitration.

Cleveland, Aug. 24.—The Central Labor union last night appointed a committee to wait upon the executive committee of the striking street railroad men with a request that the state board of arbitration be asked to investigate the strike. At the offices of the Big Consolidated company it is said that a number of the strikers have returned to work, and that others have made application for places. The boycott is losing its force daily.

Plans Cut and Dried.

Harrisburg, Aug. 24.—There is nothing to indicate that there will be any change in the program arranged for today's Republican state convention by Senator Quay and his lieutenants. Even the most radical opponents of the senator concede that he will control the convention, and that the platform will be framed in accordance with his wishes.

Crosby Defeats Elliott.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 24.—J. A. R. Elliott, the recognized champion wing shot of the world, yesterday lost the eastern championship cup and a side bet of $100 to W. R. Crosby of Batavia, N. Y. The total was 139 to 128 out of a possible 150.

A GENERAL SURPRISE.

Chinese Exclusion Law Applied to Philippines by General Otis.

Not Done on Authority of Officials at Washington.

It May Be but a Temporary Move, Incident to Military Occupation,

Washington, Aug. 24.—General Otis has applied the Chinese exclusion laws to the Philippines, according to diplomatic advices received by the state department. The information was a surprise to the authorities here, both state and military, as the matter has been under consideration for some time, and it was not known that General Otis had put the exclusion laws into force.

The first intimation in that direction came in a dispatch, received a few days ago from the Chinese consul at Manila, telling the Chinese legation here that the exclusion laws against Chinese had been applied to the Philippines. The dispatch was brought to the attention of the state department, and inquiry was made as to how the action was brought about, as the Chinese government has been solicitous, since American military control was established in the Philippines, that the United States exclusion laws should not be extended over the islands. The state department knew nothing of such an extension, and made inquiry of the war department. The military authorities, however, were equally without information as to General Otis' course in this particular.

Accordingly the Chinese officials were advised that any action taken by General Otis in applying the exclusion laws to the Philippines was not the result of instructions sent from here, but was doubtless due to an exercise of his authority as governor general of the Philippines.

What further steps the Chinese authorities will take has not been determined, as Minister Wu Ting Fang is out of the city for a few days. There is little doubt, however, that he will seek to have General Otis' order held in abeyance until the authorities here pass upon the general question, which has been under consideration between the two governments.

In this connection, the state department has received an important letter from Mr. Williams, our former consul at Manila, who still remains there in a confidential capacity. He says the native Filipinos are strongly opposed to Chinese labor, and, in his opinion, the exclusion of the Chinese from the islands would materially aid in bringing the war to a close. He places the Chinese population at 52,000, which is considerably more than estimates from official sources. The letter is dated July 26. It has been turned over to the war department, to be used in the general consideration of the exclusion question.

The Chinese government has shown more anxiety as to the course of this government toward the Chinese in the Philippines than towards those in Cuba or other parts of the world, mainly because the Philippines are so near China and large numbers of Chinese are established there.

They carry on the bulk of the retail trade, have an extensive quarter in Manila, and send out traveling salesmen, carrying packs, to the remote interior of the islands. Some of the official reports, including those of Admiral Dewey, have paid a tribute to the work performed by the Chinese, and Naval Constructor Hobson has recently reported to the navy department on the value of Chinese labor in naval and commercial pursuits in the far east.

This has led the Chinese officials here to believe that the exclusion laws would not be applied to the Philippines, and they are still hopeful that General Otis' action will be a temporary move, incident to military occupation, and not a part of the permanent policy of this government toward the islands.

The only action taken here as to the Chinese exclusion laws has been in ruling that they were not a part of the immigration laws, and did not apply to Cuba and Porto Rico.

Our Sovereignty Over Moros.

Manila, Aug. 24.—General Bates has returned from Sulu, having successfully accomplished his mission there. After five-weeks' negotiation an agreement was signed, which in substance was as follows: "American sovereignty over Moros shall be recognized and there shall be no persecution against religion. The United States shall occupy and control such parts of the archipelago as public interest demands; any person can purchase land, with the sultan's consent; the introduction of firearms shall be prohibited; piracy shall be suppressed; the American courts shall have jurisdiction, except between the Moros; the Americans shall protect the Moros against foreign imposition, and the sultan's subsidy from Spain shall be continued." The sultan and several chiefs signed the agreement.

Troops to Be Rushed to Philippines.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Secretary Root has returned from his visit to the president at Lake Champlain. That the campaign in the Philippines is to be pushed vigorously and promptly is evident from a remark the secretary made to the reporters. He was determined, he said, that every man belonging to the 20 regiments of volunteers now being recruited shall eat his Christmas dinner in that country. His attention was called to reports of fresh preparations for treating with the insurgents with a view to peaceful settlement of the war in the Philippines. He had not heard officially of these, although he expressed himself as being glad if such a solution of the difficulties could be brought about.

Good Afternoon.

There is a noticeable absence of railroad excursions this year. It is said that the companies are so severely taxed by the regular rush of travel that they have all they can attend to.

The Lynn Review is advocating the abolition of vertical penmanship as taught in the public schools and a return to the old way on the ground that under present methods there is no individuality in the handwriting. This leads the Salem Observer to remark that there is just as marked a difference in the writing of a hundred pupils taught the vertical system of penmanship as in the same number of those taught the old Spencerian style. There's no danger, after a man gets into business life and has a good deal of writing to do, but he will develop a style of his own and have a signature to his check that will not be easily forged.

Drift of Opinion.

☞A certain Milford hotel has suddenly attained distinction by it having been given out that the building was set on fire by the flame from a lamp igniting a barrel of whisky. Imbibers never question the potency of a whiskey that will burn.—Lynn Item.

☞An automobile system is soon to be started in Cleveland to run on regular schedule in the streets in competition with electrics. The electric is a formidable rival of the steam railway and now in turn finds a threatening rival in the automobile. It's funny how things oftentimes work in this world, isn't it?—Milford Journal.

☞George and Anna Gould are seeking social recognition at the expense of costly entertainments, but Miss Helen is a queen in her own right now, and would remain a woman of whom all Americans could be proud if she lost every cent of her father's money. The other children may conquer realms their father never knew, but Miss Helen has a place in the hearts of her people her father vainly coveted all the years of his later life.—Rockland, (Me.) Star.

☞We must compel the trusts to work in the open and without any protection against the free play of competitive forces other than is afforded by their asserted ability to manufacture more cheaply than smaller capitals can manufacture. Then if they live they deserve to live, and we should only be impairing the power of society in the production of wealth by destroying them. And if they do not thus rest on an honest economic basis they will speedily fall under the conditions imposed by adequate regulative measures.—Springfield Republican.

☞It is the civilian who makes war. It is he who originates the antagonism from which war results. It was the fashion fifty years ago to blame the ruler of nations for making useless wars. They were said to amuse themselves with war as a sport and as a means of furthering personal ambitions. But nowadays we have no more of that. Since the people have got in control we find that their rulers avert war by diplomatic means as long as possible, and it is the civilian exploiters who contrive the occasions of war and clamor for it till they get it.—Baltimore Sun.

BY SECONDS ONLY.

The Genesee Scores Her Second Victory Over Beaver.

The Genesee secured a second leg Wednesday for the Canada cup, and as the Beaver has yet to secure one, the chances are excellent for the Rochester club boat, built by Hanley of Quincy to win three first and the cup. The Beaver entered by the Canadian syndicate must win three straight now to get the cup.

The race of Wednesday was on Lake Ontario off Toronto, and was nine miles to the windward and return. It was a pretty race and closely contested every mile, first one boat leading and then the other. At the start it was tack and tack for position, the Genesee getting the best of it.

The Genesee turned the windward mark in 2 h., 54 m., 19 s., and the Beaver was but 1 m., 17 s., behind.

The Beaver gained in the leeward work and at times was ahead. On this leg she outsailed the Genesee 40s., but did not overcome the lead of Genesee. The elapsed time for the race was: Genesee, 4h., 45 m., 5 7s.; Beaver, 4h., 46 m., 36.

Another race is being sailed today.

Found in Quincy.

Two weeks ago four boys of the New Hampshire State Industrial school at Manchester, got possession of the keys and made their escape. Two of the boys were soon captured, but the other two, James McCoy and John Conway, eluded the officers and managed to keep out of sight. A reward was then offered for their apprehension and a description sent to all police stations in this State. From this description, Officer Morrissey became convinced that the two missing boys were in Quincy, having located them, he visited the house of John Quinn on Gass place, a relative of one of the boys. His visit was very opportune, for he found the McCoy boy and promply put him under arrest. The two boys have been here ever since their escape, but the Conway boy had become suspicious and had skipped. McCoy delayed getting away until today, and this delay proved fatal to his liberty. Officer Morrissey took the boy to the police station, and later in the evening the superintendent of the school came out and took charge of the boy. He also left the reward offered.

Webster's Tomb.

Col. William A. Gile of Worcester, an admirer of Daniel Webster, is moving to preserve the Webster estate and tomb at Marshfield. In an interview by the Herald Wednesday he said:

"The Webster estate in Marshfield, which includes the tomb that holds the mortal remains of Webster, has passed into possession of a foreigner and is now absolutely the private property of that gentleman. I regret very much that this is so, and I am going to see what can be done toward the purchase of the Webster tomb, either by the state of Massachusetts or New Hampshire. I am going to have a talk with Gov. Rollins on this subject. Should there be any legal obstacle other admirers of Daniel Webster and I will see what we can do in the way of securing a sum of money sufficient to purchase the burial place of the 'great expounder' and provide for its being held in trust for coming generations."

New Hampshire was the birthplace of Webster, and the State has erected a statue on the capitol grounds at Concord. The New Hampshire Veterans will visit the Webster farm near Franklin Falls, N. H., on Friday, as the guests of Col. Gile.

To Give a Receipt.

The Post Office Department has adopted a new form of domestic money order, which will be introduced gradually, or as supplies of the old form become exhausted, at the various post offices throughout the country, after the 4th of September.

The new form is somewhat smaller than the order now in use. Its dimensions are about those of the ordinary bank draft. It has two adjuncts—the advice, or notification to be sent by the issuing to the paying postmaster, is a reproduction of the order through the use of carbonized paper (the manifold process,) and that receipt for the amount to be furnished by the issuing postmaster to the remitter.

In the adoption of the new form of order the interests and preferences of patrons of the system, no less than economy of administration, have been duly considered; and it is therefore confidently expected that it will tend to enhance in no small degree the popularity of this method of making remittances. It is expected that on or about January 1 next, the fee charged for orders will be materially reduced.

—The assessors of Fall River report an increase of $706,584 in valuation this year, making the total $71,647,870. The rate is the same as in 1898, $17.80 per $1,000.

Granite Breakwaters.

The county commissioners of Plymouth county have advertised for proposal for constructing a stone breakwater at North Scituate, and also a stone breakwater at Scituate harbor.

The work at North Scituate consists of about six hundred feet in length of stone retaining wall, which wall is to be about nine feet in height, five feet wide at the bottom and two and one-half feet wide under the capstone, which capstone is to be one foot in thickness, and will include the excavation for said wall, and the grading of the embankment in the rear thereof and a railing on the top of said embankment.

The work at the Harbor is to consist of a stone retaining wall about three hundred feet in length similar in character to that at North Scituate described above, but with a depth and thickness somewhat less, and is to include some filling in the back thereof.

It is understood that the length may be more or less than the figures given.

Swore Out a Warrant.

Martin Bigelow was summoned into court this morning upon complaint of Mary O'Conner who says that he stole her pocketbook containing $2.50 in money and some trinkets. According to Mary's story, she had been at a dance at New Downer Landing, and while on the way from Quincy to Weymouth Landing she was introduced to Bigelow who sat next to her. She had some peanuts and her pocketbook in her lap. When the car reached Quincy avenue she claims that Bigelow got out and in passing in front of her put his hand in her lap and took her pocketbook. She did not miss it until after Bigelow had gone. She then went to the police station and swore out a warrant. Bigelow denies taking the pocketbook.

Six Heats Not Enough.

Two events at Readville Wednesday required but two heats each, King Albert winning the 2.18 class in 2.13 1-4 and 2.15, and Who-Is-It the 2.12 class in 2.10 1-2 and 2.12. The bay mare Dariel won both heats of the 2.14 stake pacing but must win another. There was a sharp contest for the Massachusetts purse and although six heats were run, no horse secured more than two; Tom Boy took the first two, Charley Her the third and sixth, and Lecco the fourth and fifth.

Default Warrant Issued.

Last May, Rose Metcalf had her husband William in court for failing to support her. At that time the court issued an order for William to pay Rose a certain amount, but up to the present time he has failed to do so. Two months ago he left Quincy, saying that he was going to Dover, N. H., to look for work. Nothing has been heard from him since that time. This morning his case was called in court and failing to answer a default warrant was issued against him.

GUY'S COLISEUM.

FIVE FROM QUINCY.

Arrested in a Gambling House in Boston.

Captain Brown of the Boston liquor squad, accompanied by a squad of officers, made a raid Wednesday afternoon upon the room occupied by the "Mutual Investment Company," at 186 Washington street. The officers' visit was entirely unexpected and when they silently entered nine men were found seated around a large table, and it is alleged they were enjoying the great American game of poker. So sudden was the raid that the men present had no time to cover up their investments or to escape, and they quietly surrendered.

Of the nine men arrested, five belonged in Quincy although but two of the Quincy men gave their right names or address when they were lined up before the desk at Station 2.

It is claimed that all of the Quincy men were not engaged in play and that it was the first visit of one of them to the rooms, and that he went out of curiosity to see the others play and was quietly watching the game when the officers called. All of the Quincy men were bailed out and came home. This morning they were seen taking one of the early trains for Boston as they were to appear in the municipal court.

The officers claim that they have known of the business done in the Investment rooms for some time, and were only waiting for an opportune time to call, while the game was in progress.

All of the furnishings, consisting of a screen, roll top desk, tables, chairs, lamps, several packs of cards, and a sum of money were confiscated.

Each of the defendants were fined $20 in the Boston court.

Concord's Old Home Day.

Governor Rollins' suggestion for a new Granite State festival, to be known as "Old Home Week," has met with an enthusiastic reception at home and abroad, but nowhere has the idea been taken up more cordialty than in the Capital city, the governor's birthplace and his life-long place of residence. Concord will observe Thursday, August 31, as its first "Old Home Day," and a most attractive programme has been arranged. Business men and citizens generally have contributed a generous sum to meet the expenses of the day, and their enterprise will have still further exemplification in the parade, which promises to be the best affair of the kind Concord has ever witnessed, in the decorations which will be quite general, and in the hospitality which will be extended to an assuredly large number of visitors. The festival will begin at 10.30 A. M. with a bicycle parade, with liberal cash prizes for best decorated lady's, gentleman's, girl's, and boy's, wheels, and also for the best comic features. This will be followed at 11.30 by a general parade made up of military and civic organizations, the Concord fire department, and a comprehensive exhibit of the city's industries, stores, social organizations, etc. Cash prizes of $50, $25, $15, and $10 are offered for the best features of the parade. The First Regiment Band of Manchester, the Second Regiment Band of Nashua, the Third Regiment Band of Concord, Peabody's Cadet Band of West Concord, and drum corps will take part in the parade and furnish music throughout the day and evening. At 2 o'clock the public exercises will be held in State House yard, followed by a reception by Governor Rollins and invited guests in Doric Hall, at the State House, and a concert by the consolidated bands, 100 pieces. At the driving park a splendid free programme of bicycle races and general athletic events will be given, for which many handsome prizes are offered. At 6 P. M. an old residents' meeting will be held, and at 8 o'clock the day's festivities will be brought to an end by the finest display of fireworks ever given in New Hampshire and a band concert. The Boston and Maine Railroad runs quick and convenient trains from Boston.

—Birds differ very much in the heights to which they commonly ascend. The condor, the largest of all vultures and of all flying birds, has been observed soaring over 29,000 feet, or about five miles and a half, above the level of the sea.

—The largest house in the world is in Wieden, a suburb of Vienna. In this domicile there are 1400 rooms, divided into 400 suites of from four to six rooms each and they at present shelter 2,112 persons.

Clever Parisian Variations of Two Important Garments.

To meet the demand of the luxury loving and prompt paying American the Parisians set the pace in undergarments and do all their labor of construction by hand, but our own manufacturers follow their lead so closely and admirably in machine wrought pieces that it is really a matter more of sentiment than worth that dictates the purchase of the French article.

On both sides of the water the effort is always tending toward a reconciliation between excessive graceful daintiness, that every woman demands, and precautions against bulkiness, that no woman can allow. Turn over a heap of garments all fresh from Paris, and you will find that, though silk is so slightly used in their make up, none save the petticoats perhaps but will run through the circle of a thumb ring.

Everywhere that an inch of goods might be pruned away the artist's scissors have sliced to good effect and with no loss in the charm of the garment. For example, all chemises are sloped to fit the figure like a glove. The newest French pattern shows a novel arrangement by which a tiny side body is introduced under the arm and the seam so skillfully manipulated that it can never act as an irritating cause against tender flesh. To obviate any awkwardness in getting in and out of such a chemise the long slip either buttons or ties on the shoulders or is opened down the front well below the waist line, and this delicate garment is shuffled off as easily as a pinafore.

In taking away from the chemise about the waist line the skirt length has been increased. The long chemise has logically done away with that absurd little exotic in the feminine wardrobe, the short petticoat. She who wears a silk undervest is in comfort bound to adopt a brief tunic under her silk or cambric underskirt, and, though by this device she pares away some bulk at the bust and shoulder line, she doubles the thickness at her waist and hips. With the tight fitting, long skirted chemise the fattest of women gets all the relief she deserves and carries two undergarments instead of three.

Right at the top and bottom all the chemise decoration is done. Some of them are long enough to reach half way to the ankle and have their edges cut in deep vandykes or scallops or wedged shaped tabs, and then to these are applied little wavelets of lace.

Camisole, cache corset or underbody, call that garment what you will, but do not give it any length below the waist line. The prettiest and most useful styles are made in bolero and handkerchief shape, and an exceedingly recent invention in this line is cut to fold fichuwise, but perfectly flat, over the shoulders, across the bust, and, passing under the arms, the ends of it fasten by two flat pearl buttons in the center of the back. Those that button, orthodox fashion, down the front are cut off sharply at the waist, a broad embroidered beading serves as a belt, and through this a ribbon is run for beauty's sake, says the New York Sun, from whose summary of this year's attractions in underwear the illustrations and present fashions are reproduced.

The Gray Felt Hat.

The popularity of the gray felt hat is perhaps accounted for because, according to the New York Sun, "it gives young women an opportunity to express their feelings. It meant nothing if they wore bangs and allowed their sailor hats to slip back from their foreheads. A Tam O'Shanter, supposed to give some impression of carelessness and indifference, would not do because it was worn by women of all ages. Turning up her coat collar was unbecoming to a girl and likely to make her coat set badly. It was not until the soft gray hat turned down in front was as accessible to young women as it was to young men that they were able to express their moods in the same way. Every summer resort is this year filled with these soft gray hats on heads of both sexes."

About a Summer Word.

The most expensive word that can properly be applied to a woman is the word "dainty." A woman may be stylish, well dressed, good looking, half a hundred other things without any considerable amount of expense, but to live up to the requirements of the word "dainty" means that the person so designated has leisure absolutely unencroached upon. It means money plentifully supplied, a taste unspoiled by a desire for extravagance of color or form.

"Dainty" means all these and many other things, says the New York Herald. It means absolute freshness of material, of ribbons, laces, muslins, garnitures of all kinds. It means organdies uncrumpled, ruffles fresh from laundering, laces unspotted from the world and from everything else, water, soap, starch in abundance.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

Drought Produces Disease.

New York, Aug. 24.—A letter from Kingston, Jam., says: Although some rain has fallen the drought continues practically unbroken, especially in the parishes of St. Anne and St. Thomas. The crops have been destroyed altogether in the latter place. In the great peasant district of Yallahs, as a consequence of the drought, the indegeneous disease of yaws is spreading epidemically at an alarming rate, attacking the faces as well as the feet of the victims. Partaking somewhat of the character of leprosy, but more active, yaws is not immediately fatal, but it has always been a terrible scourge among the West India peasantry.

Our Porto Rican Soldiers.

Washington, Aug. 24.—According to advices received at the war department the experiment of enlisting natives of the West Indies into the American army has proved quite successful in the case of the Porto Rican battalion of United States volunteers, which body completed its organization a few weeks ago. A letter received at the adjutant general's office speaks in high terms of the battalion. It says that the Porto Rican soldiers are a fine lot of men, obedient and willing to learn; they take great pride in being soldiers of the United States army, and are always clean and neat.

Wireless Telegraphy Utilized.

San Francisco, Aug. 24.—The United States transport Sherman, bearing the First California regiment of volunteers, arrived here this morning. Whistles shrieked, bells rang and the streets were filled with cheering throngs. The Call scored a triumph in the development of wireless telegraphy in connection with the Sherman's arrival. Receiving stations were established at the Cliff House and on the lightship, nine miles out, and the news that the Sherman was in sight was followed by the intelligence "all well on board: no deaths during the voyage."

PROSECUTION WINCES.

Weak Points of Evidence Against Dreyfus Laid Bare by Labori.

Esterhazy Was Shielded by the General Staff.

Men Put Up to Sully Dreyfus' Character Show Astounding Forgetfulness.

Rennes, Aug. 24.—The fourth sitting of the third week of the second trial by court-martial of Captain Dreyfus on the charge of treason began at 6:30 o'clock this morning with the reading of the deposition of M. Penot. No special incident marked the opening of the day's proceedings.

M. Labori's vigor and tact have disarmed the distrust of the judges. He is succeeding, like a skillful, but kindly surgeon, who uses the scalpel at just the right moment, and carries the incision only just so far as is necessary to reveal the true nature of the wound. They feel that he does not probe merely for the sake of probing, but in order to diagnose and prepare the wound for the proper sort of dressing. He takes no unnecessary advantage of them. They are beginning to look upon him as a loyal Frenchman, convinced only that the interests of France require courageous determination to deal with the case resolutely.

The session of the court-martial yesterday was comparatively uneventful. The depositions were not productive of any really thrilling incidents. The systematic production of the flimsiest trash, which the prosecution deems profitable to inflict on the judges and which the latter accept as evidence, was proceeded with.

Much of the ridiculous testimony of the morning was devoted to an attempt to blast Dreyfus's private character, though, when Maitres Labori and Demange had finished with the witnesses, their bubbles of tittle-tattle were badly pricked. Much of the time was occupied in reading the testimony of Esterhazy and Mile. Pays before the court of cassation, during which many of the audience left the court.

M. Labori again distinguished himself in laying bare the weak points of the evidence. He was less fierce, however, than on Tuesday, though quite aggressive enough to arouse the latent hostility of the judges, which showed itself in various little ways.

M. Labori is no favorite, either, with Major Carriere, the government's commissary, and the latter makes no serious effort to conceal his feelings towards the lawyer.

M. Labori bore little traces of the effects of the outrage upon him. He rose, sat down and moved his body and limbs apparently without much difficulty. Only occasionally he put his hands to his back as though suffering pain.

The only dangerous opponent to Dreyfus yesterday was General Gonse, who mounted the stage with a quick step and apparently light heart, but he left it badly mauled by M. Lebori.

General Gonse began by declaring he came to defend his honor against those "drivelling" against him. But, when his cross-examination was finished, he returned to his seat crestfallen, for M. Labori had driven him into a corner on the attempts of the general staff to shield Esterhazy and had shown that the general staff, for which Gonse was responsible, had engineered Esterhazy's escape from the hands of justice. The confident tones of the general had by then dwindled into the proverbial still, small voice, and his defiant bearing had changed into the abashed air of a schoolboy caught telling a lie. The day proved certainly a poor one for the general staff.

Two good samples of the men put up to sully Dreyfus' private character were the third and fourth witnesses.

First, Major de Chatelet repeated an alleged conversation of Dreyfus regarding a lady at whose house Dreyfus is alleged to have gambled and lost money. But, when cross-examined, De Chatelet's memory failed him entirely, especially when asked the name of the lady, the street she resided in and the sum Dreyfus lost.

Next M. Dubreuil showed equally astounding forgetfulness on essential points of his evidence concerning Dreyfus' acquaintanceship with a foreign attache, and when M. Demange capped his successful examination of this point by promising to show that Dubreuil's record in the law courts is far from clear the witness left the stand badly discredited.

The special correspondents here agree that, although yesterday's sitting was monotonous, it was altogether a good day for Dreyfus. The proceedings, though much less exciting than on the previous day, were still dominated by the strong personality of Maitre Labori. People are beginning to see a likeness to the opening of Gambetta's career, and are asking whether Labori will go as far.

The most important point in the proceedings, perhaps, was the disposal of General Gonse, who practically had to confess that the general staff had shielded Esterhazy. Thus Mercier and Gonse are both practically shelved, and the general staff is beginning to show signs of wavering.

Another good sign was when a point of law arose on a certain matter, and Colonel Jouaust, the president of the court-martial, replied: "I am not up in law. I will make inquiries, and, if I find I have the right to do so, I will make the order."

This was in reply to Labori's request for certain information concerning the character of a witness, to be furnished by the public prosecutor, and it seemed to indicate a desire on the part of the judges to honestly seek the truth.

M. Jaures, the socialist leader who, with Mathieu Dreyfus, sees Labori every day after the session, and who is acquainted with the entire tactics of the defense, says: "I am convinced that Dreyfus will be acquitted. He must be acquitted, for no new fact has been brought up against him. The generals, I believe, are going to make their last stand on Bertillon's system, which they intend to submit as proving Dreyfus guilty. Intelligent men laugh at it, but it is very ingenious and has the merit, in the eyes of the generals, of being incomprehensible to an ordinary man and thus calculated to impress him, if supported by the puppets of the general staff. Bertillon's theory has already been introduced by some of the military witnesses, who declare their confidence in it. The trial, in my belief, will last about another 20 days."

Panizzardi May Testify.

London, Aug. 24.—Official permission to appear at the Rennes court-martial, if cited, has been granted, according to the Rome correspondent of The Daily Mail, to Colonel Panizzardi, formerly Italian military attache in Paris, who recently denied, in a communication to The Figaro, the statement of General Roget, in his evidence at Rennes, that Panizzardi addressed a report to Signor Ressman, former Italian ambassador to France, to the effect that Colonel Schwartzkoppen, former German military attache in Paris, had relations with Dreyfus.

Death Defeats Justice.

New York, Aug. 24.—The health board recently received complaints from persons in various parts of the city stating that valuable articles had been stolen from their residences by a Dr. Wood, who claimed to be a health board inspector, and was allowed to go through the residences. The amount of property Wood is said to have stolen aggregated $20,000. The police learned that Wood was in New Jersey. Complaints began to pour in to headquarters at Jersey City of robberies committed by Wood, who was representing himself as inspector of the Jersey City health department. He was arrested and the New York department was notified. Extradition papers were drawn up, but word came that Wood died yesterday in the Jersey City jail of Bright's disease.

Epidemic of Lawlessness.

Pittsburg, Aug. 24.—Engineer William Lawler was wantonly shot and killed yesterday by an unknown negro at Willock. The murder has so incensed the white men of the community that a race war is threatened. Willock is the terminal of a big tunnel, which is being cut through the hill, and many negroes are employed at the works. Saturday was pay day, and since then fighting, shooting and lawlessness generally have been the order of the day. The negro robbed Lawler's body and escaped. White men are hunting for him.

Funston Laid Up.

Kansas City, Aug. 24.—A letter to The Star, dated Manila, July 16, says: General Frederick Funston has been temporarily relieved from duty at San Fernando, and will go to the second reserve hospital to receive treatment necessitated by the re-opening of a wound incurred while in the Cuban army. It is thought General Funston will not again return to active duty, as his term of service will expire Sept. 3, and he has requested and been granted permission to return to the United States with the Kansas regiment.

Kaiser Will Have to Wait.

Berlin, Aug. 24.—It is understood that, as a result of the Prussian council, the cabinet will remain in office and there will be no dissolution. It is possible, however, that the minister of the interior will be replaced, he having bungled some instructions from the emperor regarding the votes on the canal bill. The dismissal of some dozen district presidents who contributed to the defeat of the bill is also expected. It is believed that Emperor William will wait until next session, when he will try to arrange some compromise.

Terrible Doings In Insane Asylum.

San Francisco, Aug. 24.—Governor Gage has presented to the lunancy commission his report of the investigation into the management of the insane asylum at Agnews. A great deal of the report is unprintable. It charges Dr. Sponagle, medical superintendent of the asylum, with many crimes, including rape and murder. He was removed and Dr. J. H. Crane was appointed to fill the vacancy. Drs. Stocking and Crystal were charged with incompetency and were also removed.

Fatal Boxing Bout.

Stockton, Cal., Aug. 24.—Alfred Molina boxed several rounds with John Musick Tuesday night. After a short set-to Molina quit. There was no knockout and no great damage done on either side. Shortly after reaching his dressing room Molina became unconscious, but was revived by a physician. Later Molina again became unconscious, dying yesterday without having recovered his senses. Musick has been arrested, charged with murder.

Mississippi Democrats For Bryan.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 24.—A. H. Longino was yesterday nominated for governor of Mississippi by the Democratic state convention, without opposition. The platform endorses the declaration of the Chicago platform of 1896, and declares W. J. Bryan to be the ablest exponent of those principles, the statesman and patriot, the great tribune of the people. The platform denounces trusts.

Valuable Mine Changes Hands.

Duluth, Aug. 24.—The largest mining deal ever made in the western Ontario gold fields has just been closed in the sale of the Sultana mine to the British capital corporation, limited, for £450,000. The mine has been the property of John F. Caldwell. The mine comprises about 70 acres, with a vein about 30 feet wide on the surface and running about $7 to the ton in gold.

Genesee Wins Again.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Another victory for the American Genesee in Genesee's weather was the result of Wednesday's race in the Canada's cup series. The course was nine miles to windward and return. The challenger displayed unexpected windward qualities, while the defender surprised all her admirers by her speed in running.

Homeward Bound.

Manila, Aug. 24.—The transports Valencia and Zealandia, with 790 men of the Montanna regiment, and 400 men belonging to other organizations on board, sailed today for San Francisco.

LYNCHING BEE AVERTED.

Troops Guarded Alleged Negro Father of a White Woman's Child.

Savannah, Aug. 24.—Acting under orders from Governor Candler, Captain Gleason of the First Georgia infantry took 200 men to Darien, 56 miles from here, on a special train to suppress an incipient riot and bring here Henry Delgall, a negro, charged with an assault upon a young white girl.

Word came from Mayor Keenan of Darien that the town was in charge of an armed negro mob, and he urged that troops be sent with all speed. When the troops arrived last evening they found many excited negroes, but otherwise there had been no disorder. Captain Gleason marched his men up to the McIntosh county jail, received Delgall from the sheriff and carried him to the train. Captain Gleason and 125 of his men returned here and Delgall was lodged in Chatham county jail. The object of the negroes in assembling was to prevent Delgall being lynched or taken from McIntosh county. They did not attempt to interfere with the military. Captain Gleason left 75 men there to preserve order.

The crime for which the negro was arrested is said to have been committed nine months ago, the victim having told the story upon the birth of her mulatto child. She said she did not tell before because Delgall threatened to kill her father and herself if she did so. The name of the woman is Matilda Ann Hope, aged 22 years. Her husband left her some time ago.

SHOT BY HIS BROTHER.

Baker Trenkaus Will Probably Die From Serious Wounds Inflicted.

His Wife's Life Ended by a Bullet In the Neck.

Murderer Turns Pistol Upon Himself When Pursued and Falls Dead.

New Milford, Conn., Aug. 25.—A triple tragedy occurred here shortly before 10:30 last night, when K. Trenkaus, a German baker, and his wife were shot by his brother, the wife dying instantly. Trenkaus received one bullet in the breast and two in the arm, and his death is momentarily expected. The shooting took place in Trenkaus' bake shop, at the corner of Railroad and Bank streets.

After the shooting the murderer fled from the shop, but the baker was able to reach the street and give the alarm. Dennis Cronin, a brakeman, saw the fleeing murderer, and started in pursuit, and he was soon joined by Night Watchman Neary. They had almost overtaken the man, on Bridge street, scarcely 100 yards from the scene of the crime, when he turned about and sent a bullet through his own temple, falling dead in his tracks.

The affair occasioned great excitement, and Medical Examiner King was soon on the scene. From the antemortem statement it is inferred that the brothers had quarreled. Edward wanted some money to go to New York, and Karl refused it, and the shooting followed. Mrs. Trenkaus was shot in the neck, and the jugular vein was severed.

As the murderer fled from the shop he was heard to exclaim: "Now I will go and kill the children," and he started for the Trenkaus home on South Main street, where the two children were.

The proprietor of the bake shop is about 40 years of age, and the murderer was about 35 years old. Little is known about him, only that he came to New Milford from New York three weeks ago. He stayed a week, and then came back six days ago, and it is believed he was engaged by the brother to work in the shop. He, however, spent considerable time riding with Joseph Clike, who drove the bread wagon, and it is said his attentions to young ladies and his attempts at flirtations, as well as his unwillingness to work caused the brother much annoyance, and quarrels have resulted. A sister of Mrs. Trenkaus lived with them, but she is unable to understand English, and could throw no light on the tragedy.

The remains of Mrs. Trenkaus and the murderer were taken to a local undertaking room, while the wounded man was carried to his home.

Witnesses and Accused Don't Agree.

Hartford, Aug. 25.—The county commissioners and the board of management of the county temporary home for dependent children, at Warehouse Point, held another hearing yesterday at the home on the charges of penury, cruelty and immoral conduct on the part of Superintendent Adams. Adams denied the charges that witnesses had testified to, although admitting that he had punished children mentioned by witnesses, though not in the cruel manner alleged. The most sensational testimony was that given by Mary Stalninger, aged 15 years, a former inmate of the home, who testified that Mr. Adams had taken immodest measurements of her. Adams claimed that he only secured the girl's height and weight at her request. Several witnesses testified to seemingly cruel punishment on the part of Adams.

New England Firemen's Muster.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 25.—Thirty-seven hand engine fire companies pumped hard for the honor of their respective tubs in the annual tournament of the New England Veteran Firemen's association. The Haycart company of Pawtucket played the greatest distance, 192 feet and 3 inches. The Eureka of Arlington, Mass., was a good second at 190 feet 2⅛ inches, while the Phoenix of Marblehead, Mass., was third, 187 feet 7 inches, and Eagle of Lynn, Mass., fourth, 185 feet 5½ inches. There is some dispute as to the booby prize between the Chauncy company of Hyde Park, Mass., and the Red Jackets of Cambridge, Mass. The latter, however, made no record at all, not being able to hit the paper, while the Chauncys' record was 137 feet 4½ inches, which was the lowest of the day.

Alleged Abuse and Starvation.

Torrington, Conn., Aug. 25.—Humane society agents have discovered what is believed to be a shocking case of cruelty to a child. Mary Conran, aged 15, was found lying helpless and emaciated in an upper room of the farmhouse of her parents. The agents say that the girl's condition is undoubtedly due to lack of proper food and care, and that proceedings will be taken against her parents. It is said that the girl is neither mentally nor physically strong, and it is alleged that her inability to do her share of the farm work has led to her abuse and starvation by her parents.

Won't Accept Resignations

Berlin, Aug. 25.—It is learned authoritatively that Emperor William has refused to accept the cabinet's resignation. Later, however, a partial reorganization of the ministry will be made. The emperor, despite recent events, is unwilling to have a complete rupture with the Conservatives.

KEYSTONE STATE REPUBLICANS

Endorse McKinley and Stone and Nominate a Ticket For State Officers.

Harrisburg, Aug. 25.—James E. Barnett for state treasurer, J. H. Brown of Lancaster for supreme court judge, and Josiah R. Adams of Philadelphia for superior court judge, were the nominations made by the Republican state convention yesterday. The nomination for supreme judge is equivalent to an election by reason of two vacancies in the court and no elector being entitled to vote for more than one person.

The platform indorses the administrations of President McKinley and Governor Stone, commends the executive for his appointment of Quay to the United States senate, and pledges the party to a reduction of the expenditures of the departments of the state government.

It reaffirms the St. Louis platform, declares for the maintenance of the gold standard and against free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. Renews allegiances to the policy of protection and indorses the action of Pennsylvania congressmen in voting for the Dingley tariff, and continues:

"We congratulate the country on the successful termination of the war with Spain, and recognize the wisdom of the policy President McKinley has inaugurated in the management of affairs in Cuba and Porto Rico, and promise him our faithful support in the prosecution of the war in the Philippines, in order that the supremacy of the flag planted there by the valor of our army and navy may be maintained."

In additional paragraphs the platform says:

"We have ceased to be content with supplying products for home consumption alone. We must keep pace with other nations in seeking new fields for our commerce, and to this end we support the policy of industrial, commercial and national expansion.

"We favor our national defense and the protection of closer commercial relations between the sections of our vast territory, now an imperative necessity, the immediate commencement and early completion of a great canal that will give communication between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, as well as its protection against foreign control.

"We favor for our national defense and merchant marine upon the lines laid out by the bills reported favorably to the senate and house, second session, of the Fifty-fifth congress, so that we may have a reserve defense in case of war, and that $200,000,000 worth of freightage, now paid to foreign ships, may remain to the American shipbuilder, the American seaman and the American mechanic."

Honorably Discharged.

Washington, Aug. 25.—An order has been issued at the war department honorably discharging from the volunteer army Brigadier General Irving Hale, to take effect Oct. 1. General Hale went

How They Do It In San Domingo.

Puerto Plata, Aug. 25.—Generals Caceres, Vasquez and Brache, at the head of 500 revolutionists, appeared before Macoris. They left the great body of their troops at the enterance to the city, and, with 20 men, advanced to the governor's house, demanding surrender. Governor Castillo repaired to the plaza, without making any resistance, and the delivery of the park, fort, arsenal and government buildings was then effected. The revolutionists then occupied the surrounding country, formally, meeting with no opposition. The complete victory of the cause of Jiminez seems assured.

Guerin Still Holds the Fort.

Paris, Aug. 25.—The police yesterday repulsed a number of market women who were trying to supply provisions to Jules Guerin, the anti-Semite agitator, and his companions, who are now intrenched against the authorities at the headquarters of the anti-Semite league. A small demonstration last evening in the Rue Lafayette in favor of M. Guerin led to scuffles and several arrests were made.

Revenue Cutter Bear Renders Great Service In the Gold Region.

Awful Result of Rush of People to Kotzebue Sound.

Many Drowned. Others Succumbed to Ravages of Starvation and Scurvy.

Washington, Aug. 25.—Captain Shoemaker of the revenue cutter service has received a report from Lieutenant D. H. Jarvis, commander of the revenue cutter Bear, containing an account of the rescue of the gold seekers who rushed into the Kotzebue gold country, Alaska, in the summer of 1898. Lieutenant Jarvis was taking the Bear north to Cape Barrow on her regular trip. At Cape Prince of Wales he learned of the awful destitution which had overtaken the gold seekers at Kotzebue sound.

On arrival there he found a terrible condition of affairs. Men had died of starvation, scurvy and by drowning, and he obtained a list of 48 deaths. But the list is by no means complete.

Over 1000 of the gold seekers had wintered there. The Bear after relieving as much of the distress as possible and leaving stores, lime juice, etc., for the survivors, took 82 of the survivors to St. Michael, where they were turned over to the military authorities.

Lieutenant Jarvis' report is dated July 30 at St. Michaels. He reported that he left between 225 and 250 survivors at Kotzebue sound. He informed the department that he would proceed to Cape Barrow and upon his return would touch at Kotzebue sound and pick up any one who desired to return with him.

Among those taken on board the U. S. S. Bear were J. Fred Gordon, James H. Kilnor and James A. Steel of Massachusetts.

Lieutenant Jarvis says: "The rush of people to Kotzebue sound was a sad, deplorable affair. Misled by false information and advertisements, 1200 people, many totally unfitted to stand hard conditions and climate, rushed to the country during the open season of 1898. During the winter no gold whatever was found, and in the spring they sought every means of escaping from the region.

"Many were drowned in the swift currents of the rivers in the fall of 1898, others lost their lives during the winter from the cold and, worst of all, in the spring scurvy broke out in nearly all the camps. I apprehend also that many of those who started coasting along the shore for Cape Nome may have lost their lives in the ice and weather."

Lieutenant Jarvis is the officer who distinguished himself in the winter of 1897-98 by leaving a relief expedition from Tunnuak, 200 miles below St. Michael, to Point Barrow. Over 1500 miles of snow and ice in the dead of winter he pushed an expedition for the relief of the ice-imprisoned whalers at Point Barrow.

He arrived there with nearly 500 reindeer after four months of almost indescribable hardships. For his heroism on that occasion the president recommended that congress give a vote of thanks and award him a gold medal.

Another Story of Misery.

Duluth, Aug. 25.—John C. Morrison, an Alaskan prospector from Duluth, reported dead in the Kotzebue country, has written home telling of the suffering of those who have been at Cape Nome. On July 24, from Anvil City, Cape Nome, Mr. Morrison wrote that over 100 miners and prospectors must have perished in the Kotzebue district last winter. Six of the party he was with died. His entire party was sick and nearly starved when a relief expedition rescued them. Mr. Morrison says:

"There is no gold in the Kotzebue country. The transportation companies succeeded in getting over 1000 people, poor fellows, there last winter. When we came out there were 800 people on the beach waiting for a revenue cutter to come along and take them home, as all were without money. There is plenty of gold at Cape Nome, washed up out of the ocean in the shape of nuggets, but I don't know whether there will be any claims left by the time I get well.

"Wages here are $8 per day with board. Anvil City is only a month old, but has about 800 tents, houses and stores. Board is $3 a day and board one night costs $1. Beer is 50 cents a glass."

Got Out In a Hurry.

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 25.—Fire broke out early this morning in the residence of Dr. Walter H. Johnson, and flames had gained considerable headway before the members of the family were awakened. Thy had barely time to escape from the burning building, scantily clothed. The loss is about $1500. The cause of the fire is not known.

Bomb For Archbishop.

London, Aug. 25.—A dispatch to The Daily Chronicle from Rome reports the throwing of a dynamite bomb into the villa of the Archbishop of Gallipoli, Province of Leece, seriously damaging the walls of the building. The motive for the outrage is believed to have been political.

Weather Indications and Forecast.

Sun rises—5:03; sets, 6:28.
Moon rises—9:20 p. m.
High water—2:15 a. m.; 3:15 p. m.

Warm weather is again general, except in the lower lake region, middle Atlantic states and New England. There have been local showers and thunderstorms in the upper Mississippi valley and from the upper lake region eastward. There were also scattered thunderstorms in the south. Generally fair weather is indicated for New England. The temperature changes will be unimportant.

Good Afternoon.

Quincy built yachts can not only successfully defend the Quincy Yacht club $500 cup against all comers, as they have done for two seasons, but now they have wrestled an international cup from Canada, and did it easy, too. If the Columbia don't win the great race with the Shamrock, it will be because she was not built at Quincy.

The telegraphic dispatch on the first page today from Washington will be read with local interest as Herbert W. Spear of Quincy is chief enigneer of the Bear. The Bear is doing great service on its mission of mercy to Alaska and the Arctic ocean Mr. Spear, a graduate of the Quincy High school and a brother of C. A. Spear, the clerk of the City Council has a fondness for his work, and is an efficient officer.

A grand firemen's muster like that at Fall River on Thursday still interests the local veterans. They recall many good times years ago. Braintree, Randolph, Hingham and Hyde Park sent tubs this year. but were not at the top of the heap as in balmy days. The Butcher Boy played but 159 feet, 10 3-4 inches, and was No. 28. The Alabama Coons of Randolph and Constitution of Hingham did better, while the Chauncy of Hyde Park had the lowest record of all. Limber up!

Check is often successful, and it may be in the case of the Social Democrats. Evidently reciprocity is not in their creed. The Ledger has given the local branch several kindly notices from time time free of charge, but when they give their printing to an amateur printer who is unable to do the work and takes it to Boston, they should not expect to have their rallies extensively advertised free in the newspapers. We would like to accommodate, but cannot afford to do business that way.

The importance of the real estate activity in Quincy should not be under estimated. To stand number seven in the State for two sucessive weeks is a remarkable record and when the two weeks are taken together the record was even better, number five. Let us all have a good word for Quincy, and help along the wave of prosperity which is rapidly increasing the valuation, the population, the number of homes, voters, etc., etc. All help to give the city the improvements and comforts of life, and Quincy is taking a front rank.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The Socialist mayor of Haverhill professes to be satisfied with the political outlook in his town. So far as we have noted, he has made a pretty fair mayor, having done neither all the good which was anticipated of him on the one hand, nor all the evil that was prophesied on the other.—New Bedford Standard.

☞Booker T. Washington is wise enough to pay no attention to the Afro-American council at Chicago, which denounced the President of Tuskegee. He has a mission that is not political, but educational, moral and industrial, and if he succeeds in it he will do more for the colored man than some of the brethern who are working only on political lines. He has the sympathy and support of white men of influence and wealth, and also of the more thoughtful and powerful members of his own race.—Lynn Item.

☞The practically instantaneous transmission to this country of every word of the testimony of the trial at Renes is a fresh illustration of modern newspaper enterprise and the American thirst for news, which ought to be amply satisfied in the large cities by hourly Dreyfus editions. Some very expeditous translation must be done preparatory to cable transmission. This complete work attracts no special attention as such, because these accomplishments have come to be matters of course. The early hour at which the court begins and concludes its sessions —7.30 and 11.40 A. M. respectively, Thursday—contrasts with the customary hours of trials here, and is a circumstance which, besides the four hours difference in time, greatly favors the American afternoon press.—Woonsocket Reporter.

☞It was stated in an American newspaper of the first rank that the modern critics of the Bible furnished material for Ingersoll's attacks on it and are therefore partly responsible for whatever destructive influence his work has had. The deduction is a strange perversion of logic. The Biblical critics of today have made a future Ingersoll impossible. If he had made their teachings or any of their learning his foundation many of his lectures would never have been written. The patient, scientific, reverent examination of the Bible which has made its history so much more comprehensible and has lifted its influence into purer effectiveness is wholly without connection with the onslaughts whose aim was ridicule and whose result was a lessened sympathy with the purpose which lies at the heart of Biblical criticism. There is a great difference between a critic and a criticiser. Wellhauser and Cheyne are critics. Kuenen and Robertson Smith were critics. Ingersoll was a criticiser who dealt with the Bible without sympathy, learning, or result. —Christian Register.

NEXT THURSDAY

Will Be the Grand Illumination Day at Houghs Neck.

After considering all the dates suggested for the annual illumination at Houghs Neck, the committee has settled upon next Thursday, Aug. 31, and offers increased attractions. They propose to make it "the best one yet."

A new feature this year will be a grand water carnival in charge of a special committee. An effort will be made to include water base ball and a blind-fold dory race, which have proved great sport at the annual gala days at Hull.

Other features will be the children's festival and free sail, field sports, band concerts., fireworks, and general illumination of the cottages.

The following committees are at work, but there is work for all, and the cooperation of all is invited:

Executive:—John Cavanagh, President; A. H. Taber, Secretary; W. W. Wilcox, Treasurer; T. Downey, Jr., W. H. Cavanagh, A. A. Meyer, Waldo Taylor and James Cavanagh.

Sailing:—T. Downey, Jr., W. H. Shaw, Bert Stiles, Elwood Beals, Frank Packard, Charles F. Cavanagh.

Aquatic Sports:—W. H. Fitzsimmons, Arthur Downey, Arthur Cavanagh.

Field Sports:—H. Darrow, W. H. Cavanagh, P. A. Kearns, Bert Carlisle, J. O'Hara.

Fireworks:—A. H. Taber, W. W. Wilcox, W. H. Talyor.

Ice Cream and Cake: — James Cavanagh and 12 ladies.

General illumination: — John Cavanagh, W. H. Taylor.

Music and Amusements:—T. Downey, Jr., W. H. Taylor, A. H. Dunham.

Remember the date Thursday next, Aug. 31.

Lieut. Bumpus.

After a year's faithful service with the regular army in the Philippines, says the Boston Transcript, two young officers from Massachusetts have been promoted to a higher rank. They are Lieutenant Edward A. Bumpus of Quincy of the Twenty-First United States Infantry and Lieutenant Harry F. Dalton of the Ninth United States Infantry. When the army was increased at the outbreak of the Spanish war these young men were among the many who received appointments as second lieutenants from civil life.

Lieutenant Bumpus goes by promotion to the Ninth United States Infantry and Lieutnant Dalton to the Nineteenth United States Infantry. Harry F. Dalton is the son of Representative J. Frank Dalton of Salem and a nephew of Adjutant General Dalton of Governor Wolcott's staff. Edward A. Bumpus is a son of Hon. E. C. Bumpus of Quincy, and was a Harvard student when the war broke out.

YACHTING FAME.

The Hostess in Harper's Weekly —Comments of Interest.

Years ago it used to be said that when the Quincy Yacht club attained the distinction of having its races written up and illustrated in Harper's Weekly that its reputation would then become international and its fame assured forever more.

In the current number of that periodical there is an excellent half-tone cut of the "Hostess." Mr. Caspar Whitney, the editor of "Amateur Sport," in writing about the challenge cup races says among other things:

"Boston and the Massachusetts coast generally have always given much attention to the small boat, and as a result own a large and finely modelled class that perhaps cannot be duplicated elsewhere. There is nothing more famous in a yachting way, or that furnishes better sport, than the knock-about, for long the only small race in Boston harbor. Within a few years one design freak classes have sprung up, with speed as the sole motive, and some exceedingly fast ones have been built.

"I often wonder why there is no annual race in small boats between representatives of New England and New York; it would provide quite as much port as one with Canadian clubs, and no doubt result more satisfactorily as to arrangements, conduct, etc.

"Why not annual regattas for small boats around New York and Boston, and the two winners to meet subsequently?

"Two of the most successful small boats this season have been "Hostess" and "O Shima San."

"The latter is 36 feet, a bit longer than the average so called small racer, but an excellent size, none the less, while the former is a 21-footer. "O Shima San," from her first appearance, has raced with notable, and, I believe, invariable success. "Hostess" this year has not only won the Quincy Challenger, which is the 21-footer blue ribbon of New England, but has added several others to her list of successes, among them the Crowhurst cup."

Second Day of Vining Case.

The celebrated liquor case of Miss Floretta Vining came up again in the Hingham court this morning on continuance. Another large crowd of interested spectators were early upon the scene, ready to rush in as soon as the doors were open and secure good seats, that they might better enjoy the trial. They were however, doomed to disappointment, for the court issued orders that no one should be admitted except the complainants, the defendant, counsels, witnesses and reporters.

This was a hard blow to the many who had made the journey from Hull, but the court was firm and excluded all except those above mentioned.

The reason for this was that a repetition of last Tuesday's scene was not desired.

When an adjournment was reached that day there remained ten witnesses for the defence to be heard. The court spent all the morning hearing these, and at 12.30 had not reached the end. An adjournment was then taken until 1.30, at which hour the hearing was resumed. It is thought that the case will be finished this afternoon.

77th Birthday.

Mr. T. Dexter Pierce, one of Quincy's long and well known residents, is celebrating his 77th birthday today. Mr. Pierce was born in Braintree, Aug. 5, 1822. When but five years of age he came to Quincy where he has resided. His business was that of a cracker baker at which he was employed for many years. A few years ago he injured his ankle by a fall, since which time he has followed no business. Mr. Pierce has never seen the inside of the house in which he was born since he left Braintree, 72 years ago, and he is celebrating his anniversary by a visit to his birthplace.

It Don't Pay.

B. F. Lane of East Weymouth arrived in Quincy from Boston early Wednesday evening, and after waiting about City Square for an hour or more he boarded a car for home. When the conductor came along collecting fares, Lane refused to pay. Threats of the conductor to put him off the car and to have him arrested were unavailing, and he rode to his destination without paying his fare. Thursday a warrant was sworn out against him for evading fare, and this morning in court Lane was fined $5 which he paid. It would have been cheaper to have paid his five cents at the time.

It was reported to the police shortly after 7 o'clock this morning that three little tots had wandered away from their home on Whitwell street and although a search had been made for them they could not be found. Chief Hayden sent out his officers who later found the boys on Adams street and returned them to their homes.

A resident of Quincy started from Union station yesterday for Quincy but got onto the West Quincy train by mistake. Just as the train started he discovered he was on the wrong train and got off, leaving a gold headed umbrella valued at $7 in the smoking car. One of the gatemen telephoned to Atlantic, and a dispatch was sent from Atlantic to South Braintree and in one hour and forty minutes he had his umbrella put in his hands by Conductor Paul Jackson.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

IN THREE STRAIGHT.

The Genesee Wins the Canada Cup from the Beaver.

The third and decisive race for the Canada cup at Toronto on Lake Ontario was the easiest yet for the Genesee, the Hanley boat, and the Rochester club assists the Chicago club to bring back the trophy.

The Beaver was ahead only for a few moments at the start. The Genesee turned the first mark with a lead of 11 m., 11s., and increased this 1 m., 17 s., at the next turn. On the last reach the Beaver gained a little, but the elapsed time was: Genesee 4 h., 17 m., 11 s.; Beaver 4h., 27 m., 58s. As the Herald says, It was the victory of an American centerboard of the American type over an English designed keel craft. The Genesee represented the Chicago Yacht club, to which the cup goes. The Rochester Yacht club had the enterprise to loan the boat, but the Genesee was designed and built by C. C. Hanley of Quincy, Mass., who moved up to Quincy from the Cape on account of the number of orders he got from Boston. It was no win with a racing machine, for the Genesee is as honest a boat as ever sailed in a cabin class, and more credit to her for winning from a "shell."

STILL HIGHER.

Quincy No. 7 in Transfers for Week, But No. 5 for Two Weeks.

In criticism of the good news reported in the Ledger Aug. 18, that Quincy stood No. 7 in the State in real estate conveyances for a week, some said, "oh, it was an exceptional week! Perhaps so, but that week there were 23 conveyances while the past week there were recorded 33, which are given below. Boston, Worcester and Springfield which were ahead of Quincy in the first instance, continued to lead as would be expected of such large cities; but Somerville which had 28 the first week, dropped to 10 last week; Fall River which also had 28, dropped to 22; and Lynn which stood just ahead of Quincy with 25 dropped to 13. While these three cities fell behind Quincy, there were three others which spurted ahead; Lowell and Brockton with a lead of one, and New Bedford with the help of 33 tax sales had a total of 47.

For the two weeks, Quincy ranks No. five in the State; the order being Boston, Worcester, Springfield, New Bedford, Quincy, Lowell, Fall River, Brockton, Lynn, Somerville, etc.

The Quincy sales recorded were:

New and Not New.

Unless you have visited Lake Sunapee in New Hampshire, you cannot realize what a picturesque and lovely place it is.

The lake is more than eleven hundred feet above the sea level, insuring a climate cool and delightful, while for scenic surroundings there is no place in the land which has so diversified a landscape. This inland sea lies at the foot of several mountains and its waters are as clear and sparkling as a crystal. Its shores are heavily wooded, and at every turn one finds summer residences, camp and outing-places, and every one with an outlook pleasing to the extreme. New Yorkers long since discovered the beauties of Lake Sunapee as a vacation resort, and among those who have summer homes on the shores of Lake Sunapee is the Secretary of State, the Hon. John Hay, while the late Col. R. G. Ingersoll and Austin Corbin were Sunapee enthusiasts. The drives that lead from Burkehaven, Sunapee, Georges, Blodgetts, which are but a few of the resorts bordering on the lake, are every one of them delightful, and the trip over the lake on board one of the steamboats which ply from Lake Sunapee Station to the numerous landings, is replete in attractions of a most pleasing character. The lake is a popular stamping-ground for the angler, for there is a great variety and quantity of fish to be found there. Lake Sunapee, like the White Mountains and all of the popular summer resorts, is reached by the Boston & Maine R. R., and the General Passenger Department of the Road at Boston, has issued a descriptive handbook of Lake Sunapee which is well worth perusing, for it tells all about the lake in an easy and interesting way. Send for it; it takes only a two cent stamp enclosed to above address to get it.

HOW FUNSTON LEADS.

No Truth In the Pictures Which Show Him Waving a Sword.

"There is one thing," writes Sergeant Ozias, "that should be spoken of to correct misapprehension of facts. General Funston is spoken of and pictured as rushing at the insurgents with uplifted sword and scabbard swinging high. He did nothing of the kind, nor did any other officer worthy of being called one. At Marilao I stood (up) on the east bank of the river with the first platoon of Company H, firing over the river at the rebels to protect Funston and the men crossing the river. None of us were more than ten feet from the river bank, in full view of the enemy and without even a blade of grass to protect us, but they were hid from us. We yelled to Funston that Pennsylvania was attempting to cross to claim our victory. He started on a run as fast as his legs would carry him, shouting to the squad with him, 'Come on, boys; deploy,' and to us, 'Give 'em fits, boys!' Seeing him there without so much as a stick in his hand, speeding his way like a shadow through the trees and banana stalks, over fences and bushes, ten yards ahead of his party, still yelling, 'Come on, boys!' stampeding chickens, hogs and dogs from among the houses, would have made a dead man laugh, serious as the affair was.

"Our platoon was firing at will, yet we guarded it so carefully that none but Filipinos felt it. At Calumpit, when Funston and the eight sets of fours, crossed and ran the rebels out of their trenches and won in a few minutes a battle that had been fiercely fought for two days, Funston was again barehanded, as were all officers except a few who carried native canes they had picked up, more as an aid to walking than anything else. I speak of these things to show that the sword should be left out of all pictures of this war. It is ornamental, not useful, and as I was there and saw these events as they happened I am (modestly) glad to tell of bravery not often paralleled in commanders."—Kansas City Journal.

A VALUABLE STRAWBERRY.

New Variety of Plants Discovered by Agricultural Department.

Professor Walter T. Swingle, one of the agricultural explorers sent abroad by the United States department of agriculture to look for rare and valuable seeds and plants likely to be grown with profit in the United States, has sent to the department a strawberry which possesses peculiar and valuable qualities, says the Washington Post. It is a plant that produces berries for four months in the year. The fruiting season of the ordinary strawberry in the United States is not longer than a month, and it can be seen that if this berry is grown in the United States it will become very popular, especially with small gardeners who raise the berries for home consumption. The berry is of good size and has a delicious taste. Professor Swingle obtained the berry from M. Villamorin, the famous French seedsman and plant grower, and its origin, according to M. Villamorin, possesses considerable interest.

Several years ago an old Catholic priest living in France became an ardent grower of strawberries and was continually experimenting in their cultivation. One day while walking in the forest he found a berry which he had observed frequently before and had noticed that it was continuously flowering. Upon closer examination he found that it was a wild strawberry, and he concluded to experiment with it. By growing it with another berry which he had long been cultivating he found that he could produce the present continuous fruiting strawberry. For years he grew these berries for the pleasure it afforded him and was very chary about letting any of his neighbors into his secret. Finally one day he told a neighbor, and inside of a year half a dozen berry growers were marketing the berry, each claiming it as the product of his own cultivation.

DREYFUS' DAILY LIFE.

Lives Almost Exclusively on a Diet of Milk and Eggs.

Captain Dreyfus still lives almost exclusively on milk and eggs at Rennes. On rising at 5 o'clock he takes a glass of milk. He is then escorted to the courtroom under a strong guard. On returning to prison he takes a second glass of milk, and at 1 o'clock a soft boiled egg and another glass of milk.

At 2 his wife calls upon him, spending a couple of hours with him daily without restrictions of any kind. After their interview another member of the family sees him for half an hour.

M. Demange arrives daily at half past 4 in the afternoon and remains until 7, discussing the progress of the case. During the remainder of the time the accused generally reads or studies mathematics. He retires to bed about half past 9. Dreyfus retains his good spirits and expresses confidence that he will be acquitted, especially now that he believes M. Labori will be able to return to the active work of the defense.

IVORY SOAP PASTE.

In fifteen minutes, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make a better cleansing paste than you can buy.

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture. The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING.—To one pint of boiling water add one and one-half ounces (one-quarter of the small size cake) of Ivory Soap cut into shavings, boil five minutes after the soap is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from the fire and cool in convenient dishes (not tin). It will keep well in an air-tight glass jar. COPYRIGHT 1899 BY THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO. CINCINNATI

Chase of Haverhill, Representative Carey, and others will explain fully just what the party aims are, and why it is for the interests of the working classes to unite with them. The Quincy branch of the Social Democratic party have arranged for sacred band concerts during the day, as well as to furnish lunch for visiting friends.

POULTRY POINTERS.

A full grown goose picked regularly will yield a pound of feathers.

One way of making poultry pay is always to have something to sell.

Chickens fatten faster on cooked food than on raw, because it is easier digested.

Though turkeys are good foragers, it will not pay to let them go without proper feeding daily.

Paralysis in chickens is due to overfeeding and lack of exercise. Give less food and make the fowls scratch for a part of their living.

It is rarely the case that it is advisable to stimulate egg production by the use of irritating condiments. Plenty of wholesome nutritious food is what is needed.

The profits from poultry are often wasted by feeding more fowls than should be kept. When a hen is not laying, she is expensive. Roosters are also expensive.

One of the best ways of removing lice from fowls is to make them do it themselves by having a lot of dry dirt where they can dust themselves whenever they feel inclined, having first sprinkled the earth with carbolic acid.—St. Louis Republic.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Salt is beneficial if scattered under the grapevines and pear trees.

All fungous diseases of plants, such as mildew, scab, blight, rust, rot, etc., are contagious.

It is not the growth of the tree so much as the formation of the seed that exhausts the tree.

If all wormy fruit is destroyed as soon as it falls, your orchard will eventually be made free from worms.

One of the best arguments in favor of a good fruit supply for the farmer is that it will contribute to the health of the family.

It is a safe plan at all times to burn the trimmings from the berry and grapevines, as well as from the trees. They are troublesome if left on the ground.

Props under the branches of a tree should never be allowed. If the load of fruit is too heavy for the branch to hold up, trimming is the proper thing to do.

UTAH'S CANCER.

Angus M. Cannon was fined only $100 for having six wives. Pretty light! We'll wager he would not part with one of them for ten times that amount.—Baltimore American.

"If let alone, polygamy will die a natural death," says the present Brigham Young. There can be no doubt of that. But will the Mormons let polygamy alone?—Boston Globe.

It becomes apparent that the law officers of the nation must take action against the violation of the laws enacted versus polygamous marriages unless the state of Utah will itself undertake this work.—Seattle (Wash.) Times.

MERCIER'S IGNORANCE.

Says He Knew Nothing About Evidence In Esterhazy Prosecution.

Judges Show Marked Hostility Toward Labori.

President of Former Court Martial Convinced by One Document of Secret Dossier.

Rennes, Aug. 25.—At the opening of the session of the Dreyfus court-martial this morning a medical certificate, signed by doctors unknown here, was read, declaring that it was impossible for Du Paty de Clam to leave his bed and come to Rennes to testify.

M. Labori asked that two well-known medical men should be instructed to examine him, but Colonel Jouaust refused.

Rowland Strong, the English newspaper man, then deposed to the circumstances in which Esterhazy confessed to him that he wrote the bordereau.

Thursday's session was marked by one of the most exciting scenes of the trial. The proceedings opened with a skirmish entirely favorable to the defense over Colonel Maurel, president of the court-martial of 1894, who admitted reading one of the secret documents to the court which had not been seen by the defense. He protested that only one document was looked at, alleging that this sufficed to enable him to form a conviction that could not be shaken.

This protest made matters worse, because, as M. Labori pointed out, if he perused one, it was his bounden duty to peruse all. Colonel Jouaust upheld Colonel Maurel in his refusal to indicate the nature of the document he read, but M. Labori announced that he would summon Captain Freystatter, another member of the tribunal of 1894, and get his version of what passed behind the backs of counsel for the defense. Colonel Maurel felt his position keenly and continually hesitated before replying to Labori's questions.

All this, however, was only preliminary to a fierce battle that ensued between M. Labori and General Mercier, the latter receiving reinforcements from Generals Roget, Gonse and De Boisdeffre, as well as invaluable assistance from Colonel Jouaust himself. M. Labori took General Mercier over the whole ground of his previous deposition. This led to several sharp passages at arms between the advocate and Colonel Jouaust, who upheld Mercier in refusing to reply to several questions which, in the general opinion of those in the courtroom, were distinctly pertinent.

Whenever General Mercier was cornered he declined to answer, and Colonel Jouaust invariably supported him. M. Labori protested most energetically. His words and manner breathed the deepest indignation, but the president of the court-martial was inflexible.

The intervention of Generals Gonse, Roget and De Boisdeffre and Major Lauth, who in rapid succession mounted the stage or rose in their seats and interposed remarks, was very exciting, and carried the spectators along on a wave of breathless interest. One after the other, these officers, who were in full uniform, would jump up and cry, "I demand to be heard," and without further waiting ascend the steps of the platform and begin a statement in support of a brother officer. Some times four officers were on the stage at the same moment. It was a marvelous display of military clanishness. At one time a perfect babel of voices reigned for several minutes, until Colonel Jouaust intervened and restored order.

M. Labori's cross-examination was successful as far as it went; but Colonel Jouaust prevented his pressing his advantage to the utmost. In fact, Jouaust's hostile attitude toward the counsel for the defense then and during the cross-examination of the witness, De Grand Maison, evoked the severest criticism on the part of the public present and bodes ill for Dreyfus. Not only Colonel Jouaust but the other judges displayed considerable impatience during Labori's scathing cross-examination, shifting restlessly in their seats and drumming the table with the tips of their fingers. General Mercier faced Labori's fire with callous demeanor, standing on the platform, his hands behind his back and his face only half turned toward his questioner. Once or twice a savage look in the eyes, an elevation in the tone and a swaying to and fro of the body revealed the inner fires of resentment.

The general, however troubled his mind might be, seldom departed from the callous demeanor characteristic of him. The lawyer made a strong point on the part Esterhazy played. Mercier said he did not know Esterhazy, and only saw him once—at the Zola trial.

"That is very interesting," exclaimed M. Labori. "But surely General Mercier was present at the Esterhazy trial."

The general replied that he was not there, and that he knew nothing about the evidence in the Esterhazy prosecution.

"What," cried M. Labori, "General Mercier, who was the chief accuser of Dreyfus, did not even follow the proceedings in the Esterhazy trial?"

A loud murmur of surprise and indignant comment came from the audience, but Colonel Jouaust immediately suppressed it.

General Roget faced the court with an air of unblushing effrontery. His handsome but unsympathetic features expressed the bitterest scorn as he spun round on his heel and, with arms crossed, faced Labori or the audience, or the judges. He is extremely vain and is always striking attitudes for the benefit of newspaper artists, quite a number of whom regularly attend the sessions. His impertinent behavior was strikingly illustrated yesterday when he interrupted M. Labori's examination of General Chamoine, which had resulted in Labori's scoring heavily against Mercier, with the exclamation: "This examination is a waste of time."

As a matter of fact the examination of Chamoine showed Mercier in a very bad light as it brought out that he had privately communicated to Chamoine, on the first day of the secret sessions, a report on the Panizzardi dispatch for insertion in the secret dossier. General Chamoine admitted that he did wrong in accepting the report, but pleaded ignorance in judicial matters.

The report consisted of three pages, of which the second and third, Chamoine declared, contained fantastic and, in fact, false representations.

M. Labori brought General Mercier to the bar in reference to this. Mercier admitted that the report emanated from Du Paty de Clam, but claimed that he himself did not understand its contents, though he thought it would be interesting and, perhaps, useful to Chamoine. This explanation was regarded as very lame and, combined with other shady actions, would damn Mercier as a witness in the eyes of any impartial tribunal.

Conviction May Mean Revolution.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Benjamin Dubuffet, a wealthy silk merchant of Paris, passed through Chicago yesterday, en route to Japan. He said: "If Dreyfus is convicted, I believe that another revolution will be probable. The Jewish bankers would first exert all their influence to secure another hearing for the prisoner, and, this failing, the worst might be expected. If Dreyfus is convicted the Jewish bankers will probably refuse to come to the aid of the government, and suspension of payment by the government banks, followed by a panic, would not be improbable."

Ca'ifornia's We'come to Her Soldiers.

San Francisco, Aug. 25.—The transport Sherman arrived yesterday from Manila with the First California volunteers and batteries A and D of the California heavy artillery. As the Sherman approached the Golden Gate, the land batteries belched forth a national salute, and the bay steamers took up the signal with their sirens. Flags dipped and were waved, whistles screamed, cannon were fired, trumpets were blown and megaphones and marine glasses were turned on the delighted boys who crowded the rigging of the steamer. Last night there was a grand illumination on the bay, and the city was lighted up with thousands of electric lights stretched in tasty designs. The celebration to be held in honor of the return of the soldiers has attracted 100,000 strangers. The committee having the carnival in charge has collected over $60,000 to defray the expenses of the celebration.

Considering Porto Rican Commodities.

Washington, Aug. 25.—It is believed in high quarters here that many of the important questions relating to Porto Rico will be left for congress to deal with, instead of being settled by executive action. One of these relates to the free exchange of commodities between Porto Rico and this country. Another plan for relieving Porto Rico is to permit her tobacco to enter Cuba free of duty. This would give an easy market to Porto Rican tobacco, but the point has been raised that it would depress Cuban tobacco. As between serving the Porto Ricans and injuring the Cubans in this respect considerable doubt has arisen.

Chinese Officials Didn't Know It.

Washington, Aug. 25.—It appears that General Otis' Chinese exclusion policy in the Philippines was put into operation some months ago, although the Chinese officials were unaware of it, and were proceeding on the theory that the question was still open for adjustment between the two governments. Acting Secretary Adee has addressed a letter to the Chinese minister explaining the status of the affair. It is understood that the operation of the exclusion under General Otis has not been attended with any difficulties.

Payments Suspended.

Havana, Aug. 25.—General Brooke has virtually decided not to make any payments to Cuban troops on the basis of additional rolls. The first payments brought to light such an amount of thievery and attempted swindling that he has ceased to consider the question of distributing what is left of the 3,000,000 in supplementary payments. The money now left in his hands will probably be used to assist wounded and deserving officers, who, under the original arrangement, were to receive nothing.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

CREDIT DUE TO MEEKIN

For the Champions' Defeat of Pittsburg In a Closely Played Game.

Fittsburg, Aug. 25.—Frank Selee's champions from Boston hurried from the east and the Pirates came from the west to begin a three-game series at Exposition park. Everybody expected a close game. There generally is when the champions are here, and everybody was not disappointed. There was some of the finest playing ever seen here, and the Pirates did a little more of it than the visitors. Still, Meekin pitched such remarkably good ball that it was not his fault that the home talent were not shut out without a run. He never twirled the leather better in his life. Had Meekin not been better than he ever was here the game would have been lost to the Bostons, 2 to 1.

British Prestige Threatened.

London, Aug. 25.—The Cape Town correspondent of The Daily Mail says: Despite the virtual blockade of war material in Delagoa bay, the Cape government is sending enormous consignments of munitions of war to Bloomfontein. During the present month over 2,000,000 cartridges have been sent, and 500 rifles were dispatched last night from Port Elizabeth to Bloomfontein. In addition, the Cape ministry, while absolutely declining to arm the volunteers of the colony, continue to afford other facilities to the Orange Free State to arm its burghers, just across the water, exhausted, and, unless the imperial government acts quickly and decisively, the gravest damage may ensue to British prestige.

Something Wrong With Shamrock.

New York Aug. 25.—The Tribune says that men whose opinions and yachting knowledge are respected, declare that Shamrock is twisted in the midship section, and that towing has caused a strain which has "worked" her plates. Unquestionably there is something wrong in the midship section on the port side of the yacht. Water was pumped in great quantities out of her. In explanation of the pumping it is stated that the water had come from the large water tanks, taken out on Wednesday. This idea could reasonably be reconciled with the immense quantity of water pumped out of the Shamrock. Men who have worked round the basin for 20 years are unanimously of the opinion that the yacht has sprung aleak.

A Consul's Indiscretion.

Washington, Aug. 25.—Consul Edward Bedloe, who has been stationed at Canton, China, during the administration of President McKinley, has been suspended by the state department and granted permission to return to the United States. His suspension was not due to charges of giving aid to the Filipinos, but arose, in part, out of the certificate of American ownership, said to have been granted by him to the steamer Abbey. The Abbey was seized by the gunboat McCulloch at Batangas, where she had landed a cargo of arms and ammunition. The authorities feel that Dr. Bedloe is innocent of any intentional wrong.

Genesee Gets the Cup.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—The Canada cup goes to Chicago. Such was the result of the third race for the trophy between Beaver and Genesee, the latter winning by 10 minutes and 47 seconds. Genesee's marvelous windward qualities in a light breeze were again in evidence in the beat of seven miles. The course was a triangular one, 21 miles around. The first seven miles was a beat to windward, the next leg a broad reach and the third leg a close reach back.

Fate of an Heiress.

New York, Aug. 25.—Juanita Teressette Terry, aged 13, who was killed with her half-sister and nephew by a train at Seabright, N. J., Thursday, was the only daughter of the late Juan Pedro Terry, the Cuban millionaire, and would have inherited between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 from his estate. Her next of kin is Mrs. Charles W. Trippe, her half-sister, who was badly injured in the railroad accident.

East Africa Disease Stricken.

Mombasa, Aug. 25.—The ravages caused here by famine and smallpox have become so appalling that it has been decided to appeal to the lord mayor of London to open a Mansion House fund for the relief of the stricken British subjects in East Africa.

THE KINDERGARTENS

Enthusiasm in the Vacation Schools Was Never Lacking.

We wonder if the grown up Quincy people, with all their grown-up plans for seasonable enjoyment, realize that the little people in the Home Science Vacation Kindergartens — over one hundred in number—have been having their mid-summer merry-making as well.

On Friday of last week a "Mother's Afternoon" was arranged at the Gridley Bryant Kindergarten, on Monday one at the Adams, and one at the John Hancock last Tuesday. The interested mothers, the busy teachers and their charming little pupils, the flower-decked school rooms, and, at the close of the hour of kindergarten games and exercises, the lemonade and cake (at the Gridley Bryant through the generosity of Mrs. Theophilus King, ice cream was served in place of lemonade) combined to make all three most successful occasions.

These "Mothers' Afternoons" are espeially arranged to give the mothers of the kindergarten children practical illustraiions of kindergarten methods of child-training, and it is gratifying to observe their growing appreciation of the kindergarten—not as an ingenious device for the temporary amusement of their little ones—but as a character building institution, where are sown the seeds of future virtue and efficiency.

This season's vacation kindergarten work, which has continued during a term of seven weeks, has been most satisfactory. The instruction given has been of marked excellence, the attendanoe regular—except for the absence of a few children in the John Hancock district owing to a case of diphtheria in the vicinity.

In the Adams school, the regular teacher, Miss Keefe has been most intelligently and faithfully assisted by Miss Mary Elcock, Miss Mary F. Jones and Miss Agnes T. McGinty. Miss Trask at the John Hancock has been indebted to Miss Annie A. Shirley, Miss Mary P. Tate, Misses Mary and Elizabeth Dunn. And at the Gridley Bryant, Miss Elizabeth O'Neil., Miss Louise H. Mahoney and Miss Mary L. McDonald have been Miss Weston's able assistants.

Friends have contributed music, flowers and encouraging words—and indeed interest and enthusiasm have never been lacking, however warm the day or dry and dusty the weather—the pianos alone evincing a debilty natural to the summer season.

Handsome Souvenir.

The very expensive and costly souvenir edition of the Quincy Patriot, which has taken constant work of canvassers, photograhers, engravers and printers for months to complete, is now ready for patrons.

Quite a large edition has been published, and it will be sold at the low price of 30 cents per copy. When eight or more copies are furnished to one person, the price will be 25 cents. Although the edition is large it will, very likely, be soon exhausted, when no more can be had at any price, as no second edition will be issued.

The publishers will furnish to every subscriber to the Quincy Patriot, whose name appears on the books, one copy of the Souvenir gratis. This will take a larger part of the edition; therefore those thinking of getting copies for themselves or friends should attend to it at once. The pamphlet weighs between one and two pounds, and Postmaster Hammond says the postage will be eleven cents. A copy will be mailed to every subscriber living out of the city, who will send his or her name and postage. Subscribers living in the city will receive them by carriers. If any one fails to receive a copy, please call at the Patriot office for one.

The subscribers at Atlantic can procure a copy by calling at the news stand of Branschied & Martens.

Copies will be for sale at the new South Station in Boston and at the principal news stands in Quincy.

Challenge Expected.

The members of the Randolph Veteran Firemen association are so elated by their victory over the engine, the Butcher Boy, at Fall River, Thursday, that they would like to play the local association for a purse.

It is the sentiment about town that if the Randolph boys mean business let them come to the "long green" and it will be quickly covered by the Butcher Boys.

At four musters viz: at Hudson last Labor day; at South Weymouth last September; at Highland Park in October, and at Fall River on Thursday last, the Butcher Boy has come home victorious, three times out of the four.

THE SEA.

My life is like a stroll upon the beach,
As near the ocean's edge as I can go;
My tardy steps its waves sometimes o'erreach,
Sometimes I stay to let them overflow.

My sole employment 'tis and scrupulous care
To place my gains beyond the reach of tides,
Each smoother pebble and each shell more rare,
Which ocean kindly to my hand confides.

I have but few companions on the shore;
They scorn the strand who sail upon the sea;
Yet oft I think the ocean they've sailed o'er
Is deeper known upon the strand to me.

The middle sea contains no crimson dulse,
Its deeper waves cast up no pearls to view;
Along the shore my hand is on its pulse,
And I converse with many a shipwrecked crew
—Thoreau.

IN THE RAIN.

A Romance of One Umbrella For Two People.

"If I didn't look as if I were trying to gain some benefit from your umbrella," he remarked as he chanced to meet her on the church steps after the service, "I would ask to walk home with you. I didn't expect rain when I left home, so I am unprepared."

"However," came her clear reply, just arch enough to be frank, "if you'll carry my umbrella and let me turn my energies to keeping my dress caught up out of the mud, I'll be very thankful to you."

They had walked, strangely enough, half way home in most complete silence when a man and a woman passed, like them, under one umbrella, but, unlike them, the woman was held snugly close to the man's side as she clung to his arm. It was a pretty picture of that open freedom which so undeniably marks a congenial man and wife, whose companionship has ripened into frank trust.

As they passed, Robert Cartwright said, half thoughtlessly, perhaps: "They are sensible. If two are trying to use one umbrella, they are surely to be commended if they strive to take up as little room as possible. Even if it be noon, won't you take my arm?"

"But they are plainly not such—such strangers as we," she returned, conscious that both were treading on dangerous ground.

"Are we strangers?" he asked quickly, turning his eyes searchingly to her.

The pretty face grew a trifle pale against its light brown hair. A lump seemed to climb to her throat, but she returned bravely, "Yes—that is, we'll always be strangers compared with them."

He stopped for an instant and gazed fixedly at her till a hot flush flew up from her collar and swept under the velvet strings of her dainty brown bonnet.

"Always?" he asked simply.

"Yes. Why, can't you see that they are married?"

She tried to laugh it away, but it would have been difficult to tell which pair of lips quivered the more or which pair of eyes swam in the deeper mist as the two started on, both silent, both sad, both realizing that a little tragedy had occurred in that brief instant under that dripping umbrella.

Eight years went by and found Gabrielle Vaughne alone in the world, with necessity for keeping up a life in which all interest and all energy were dead. She had at last arisen from a tedious illness, and the nurse herself hardly recognized the tall, pale, sad faced woman with the short, dark curls, as the bright eyed, light haired girl of six months before.

Gabrielle had one thing dear to her, and only one, and that was a memory. And some of our dearest memories are the cruelest parts of our lives. When finally she stood before a mirror and realized that that changed creature was herself, a mighty resolve filled her—she would go to the source of that memory.

She knew where he was; she knew that he had married three years after that bitter morning in the rain and had married a wealthy wife. That was the reason that she had thrust him back from her long ago, just because of his poverty. Not that it would pain her, a thousand times no! Hadn't she cried out night after night since that starvation with him would be only bliss?

But she had known his ambitions and his capabilities; knew his dreams of success, and she realized his ability to turn the dreams to realties. She was poor. Would she permit herself to hang a millstone about his neck? Would she hold him always in the depths of poverty by being his wife and the mother of his needy children? No; she would hurt his heart before she would ruin his life.

Time had proved that she had been right. His wife was a beautiful woman, and her wealth had opened boundless opportunities to him. He had risen—she had known that he would. But now that she scarcely was able to know herself she would venture into his world and see for herself how happy and prosperous he was.

So, having spent all but her last sovereign for her ticket, she stepped into Langinham one spring evening, steeling her heart to what might follow. The next evening she had walked past his great house and was starting back when a sudden shower burst unexpectedly upon her. She gathered up her skirts in that particular way so characteristic of a dainty woman and was hurrying along when all at once she was conscious of a sharp, childish cry at her side. Turning, she beheld a tall, sad faced man trying to quiet a fretful baby of about 2 years, which held out its dimpled hands to her and cried, "Mamma, mamma!"

The gentleman strove to quiet it, and Gabrielle started on. But sharp and piercing came the cry of "Mamma!" and her heart bade her linger.

For the first time the man spoke to her.

"I must beg your pardon, madam. His mother has just died, and something about you seems to have recalled her to him."

Gabrielle's heart softened at once. Going straight up, she took the tiny, outstretched hands in her own and murmured, "Poor, motherless little one!"

The father held out his umbrella over her, and for the first time she looked at him. The face was Robert's.

She was glad for the excuse of turning to the baby again and murmured something unintelligible.

However, he had not recognized her, so she drew all her strength to her assistance and succeeded in hiding her emotion.

"If you will walk under my umbrella, as I am going your way, you can keep dry. And, too, I fear baby won't like to part with you now."

There was no easy way to retreat. It would have been absurd to scud off in a changed direction through the pelting rain, so she continued talking hurriedly to the child.

As they reached the foot of the broad stone steps she stopped.

"I cannot thank you enough for having calmed Leslie. His nurse left this morning, and he will not be consoled by any of the other servants. So I finally told Mrs. Clarke, the housekeeper, that I would try him for a walk. But will you not take the umbrella? It will be a shame to expose yourself to such a deluge."

She gracefully declined all thanks and such kind offers and glided quickly off, a tall, black robed figure, daring the watery drops. But a perfect shriek from baby arose when he found himself deserted in this fashion, and each succeeding cry became louder and more distressing. Again Gabrielle could not go. Again she came back to him.

"Will you please come into the house with him? Mrs. Clarke may there be better able to get him away than I."

So Gabrielle, carrying his child, Leslie, entered the house, unknown, but welcome even then. Leslies was not to be easily deceived, and all the ruses were seen through immediately by his careful, big blue eyes.

"We must get a nursemaid this very night," declared Mrs. Clarke as she endeavored, in her practical, cold hearted way, to inveigle the young lord from his new "mamma."

"But," groaned Mr. Courtright, "where can one get one whom he can trust on such very short notice?"

A bold idea entered Gabrielle's head. She tried three or four times to speak and her voice failed. Finally she choked back the lump in her throat and said: "Would it be presumptuous in me to offer myself? I can show you some excellent references, and I am looking for some such position."

"You a nursemaid!" exclaimed Mr. Courtright in amazement. Then, a moment later, he would have given much to have it back unsaid. Her plain, black gown was darned at the elbows. It was merely her way of wearing it that gave her the appearance of a woman of long founded culture and delicacy.

Two years went by, in which Miss Varney, as she was then known, undiscovered, was loved by and loved in return Mr. Courtright's two children. It was one evening in March, just before dusk, when she had left Leslie up stairs asleep and had just come down to the drawing room with Mabel to stay with the child until her father came to dinner. He was late, and Mabel wandered off to the library, thus leaving Gabrielle alone in the dimly lighted room when Mr. Courtright finally entered.

"Shall I call Mabel?" she began, starting from her station at the window.

"No, Miss Varney, stay. I have something to say to you. You remember how moved I was the first time Leslie called you 'mamma?' You thought then, no doubt, that it was because of the memory of my wife. Partly so, but mostly because I thought for an instant that you were the woman who—who might have been his mother, if the fates had been kinder. Do you know, Miss Varney, that you often remind me cruelly of a woman I loved better than the world?"

"Your wife?"

"No. One I loved before I met my wife. Can you, will you, hate me if I ask you thus to be Leslie's mamma in truth as well as in word?"

Moment after moment went by. The shadows came closer and the rim of lighter clouds near the western horizon grew narrower. At last she said:

"I, too, loved in the long ago. And I can never in any way love another man. But"—

"Miss Varney"— he broke in.

"No, let me finish," she continued. "Take an umbrella and go down to the east gate. Do not ask a question, but take the umbrella and wait there."

Then she sped up stairs. He was dazed; maybe that was the reason that he, as in a dream, did as she had bid and took his station down by the rustic gate, where the softly falling rain dripped through the leaves on to the gravel of the walk.

Suddenly he was conscious of a rustle at his side, and, turning, there stood a tall girl, with a loving smile beaming above the same dark collar, with a sweet face shining from beneath the same velvet bonnet remembered so well from long ago, and an old time voice murmured:

"Robert!"

"Gabrielle?" he gasped.

"Yes," she laughed. "Gabrielle and your nursemaid in one."

When they walked up to the house that night, she clung lovingly to his arm under the narrow umbrella, for they were strangers no longer.—Exchange.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 27—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Green pastures; the Christian's pleasures.—Ps. xxiii, 1-6.

The Twenty-third Psalm is the most widely known and most popular of all the Psalms of David. It is taught to us in childhood, comforts us in youth and manhood, and strengthens us when advancing age speaks of the "valley of the shadow of death." It breathes a spirit of calm and sublime trust in God. It speaks of God's care of the soul under the figures of the Shepherd, who leads His sheep "into the green pastures and beside still waters," and that of the bountiful Host, who annoints the head of His guest with oil and who causes his cup to run over. And there is included also the sweet peace, profound serenity and trustful happiness of the one whom God thus cares and provides. And where in all the world can be found a peace and happiness equal to this peace and happiness of the soul, which may be called the Christian's joy or pleasure?

1. God is the source of the Christian's pleasure. He, as a shepherd, leads us into green pastures and beside still waters. He, as a host, anoints our heads with oil and deals so bountifully with us that our cups run over. The joy of the Lord is our strength. The Christian's pleasure is therefore spiritual rather than sensual. It comes from union with God, from blessings derived from God, from service for God, from fellowship and communion with the people of God.

2. The worldling cannot understand the Christian's pleasure. It is spiritual and can only be discerned by the spiritual. It is as unintelligible to the inexperienced as the conversation of those who speak in a foreign, unknown tongue. They understand and enjoy it. To us it is unintelligble and uninteresting. Many people of the world doubt the happiness of Christians, because they cannot understand it, yet the joy of one who is saved is more profound, more satisfying and more rapturous than any worldly joy. "Eye hath not seen, ear hath not heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man, what God hath in store for those who love Him." The eye, the ear, the heart, cannot discern the Christian's pleasures.

3. The Christian's pleasures are eternal. "I shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever." To be with God forever is to enjoy God forever. Worldly pleasures soon vanish. Spiritual pleasures last forever. Which are we striving for?

"Did not God place us in this world to enjoy ourselves?" said a worldly young man to a lady who was pressing Christ upon him. "Yes," she replied, "but my pleasure is in my religion." Happy indeed one who could make such a reply. Many professed Christians even find their pleasures not in their religion, but in spite of their religion. What a sad commentary on our Christianity when we have to go to the world for entertainment and amusement!

Bible Readings.—Neh. viii, 10; Ps. xvi, 6, 11; xxxv, 9; li, 12; Prov. iii, 17; xxi, 15-17; Eccl. ii, 1-11; Isa. xxxv, 1-10; li, 11; Math. xi, 28-30; Luke viii, 14; xvi, 19-31; Phil. iv, 4; Heb. xi, 24-26.

Blowing God's Horn.

"What is the good of all this shouting and blessing and praising and boasting?" A good deal of good, if the shouting and praising and boasting and blessing are "in the Lord" and not in ourselves, nor in anybody or anything else. Blowing God's horn may not be blowing our own. One good it accomplishes is to gladden the meek folks. If they meet or hear of one of these brave and triumphant persons who bless the Lord at all times, whose mouths continually praise the Lord and whose souls make their boast in the Lord, it so increases their courage and faith and hope that they are glad. Is it not worth while to gladden meek saints? Surely it is. So, don't get out of patience with the noisy people.—Christian Standard.

Look Inward.

Whenever you find yourself inclined to dwell with more than common severity of temper on the sins and shortcomings of other men and to be lax and liberal in judging your own faults, you will do well to inquire whether you are not in a backslidden state. If you have in any measure overcome the world, the flesh and the devil, you are bound to know how hard the task is and to entertain feelings of sympathy for all that are engaged in the same fight. The best people are the most charitable. Saintliness is tenderness. The immaculate Son of Man had a kind word and a helping hand for all struggling souls. He did not and does not break the bruised reed nor quench the smoking flax.—Nashville Advocate.

God's Favors.

God multiplies His favors. Day by day and hour by hour they come trooping along according to existing need. So continuous and opportune are mercies and bounties that we too often take them as matter of course, attribute them to secondary causes and fail to trace them, with due intelligence and gratitude to their divine source. Never ought the Hand that feeds us and the Heart which responds in love, sympathy and kindness, be forgotten or unacknowledged. Goodness ever deserves recognition.—Presbyterian.

The Value of a Good Name.

Secure a good name to thyself by living virtuously and humbly, but let this good name be nursed abroad and never be brought home to look upon it. Let others use it for their own advantage. Let them speak of it if they please. But do not thou use it at all but as an instrument to do God glory and thy neighbor more advantage. Let thy face, like Moses', shine to others, but make no looking glass for thyself.—Jeremy Taylor.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

DRESS AND FASHION.

FLUFFINESS AND FRIVOLITY RULE IN LATEST GOWNS.

White Taffeta In High Favor—Newest Garnitures of Threaded Velvet and Ribbons—Shoulder Draperies, Scarfs and Fichus.

Beauty and elegance have become common things where fashion congregates. The proof of this lies in the fact that gowns pass our notice now without so much as leaving an impression which formerly we would have thought models of luxury, and it requires something quite out of the common to arrest attention and excite comment. The present season is quickly fretting out its little hour and has reached the period where little that is new is to be noted in the kingdom of fashion; what is is, and few changes occur worth noting.

White taffeta, indeed, is high in the regard of the leaders of dress at present; tunics and polonaises of taffeta are much worn over underskirts and bodices of lace, caught at the waist by a clasp or button, and they are minutely tucked all over till the silk looks as if corded. On bodices this tucking is often advantageous, for the present close fitting, unadorned style does not suit too slender figures, and the tucking gives roundness without taking away from the fit.

A touch of black is the acme of smartness on light gowns, but another idea is a chou of shaded pansy velvet, from light to dark, on the left side of the bodice, or a yellow chou, from delicate maize to rich orange. The idea is to give a strong dash of color somewhere.

Sleeves are being made with a band of three tucks round the armhole, so as to keep them quite flat and yet give a little relief to the severe outlines which not every shoulder can do with. A sloping shoulder line is once more an accepted standard of beauty.

One of the latest forms of trimming resolves itself into a threading of black velvet or ribbon, through the material itself or the embroidery. This may be gathered from the accompanying sketches, the first two gowns both being threaded in this manner. The one on the left has a tunic of mauve taffeta, completely covered with narrow tucks, fastened with large strass buttons. The revers and underskirt, of ecru guipure, are slashed with black velvet. The other gown is in pastel rose voile, the tunic having a large semiloose double plait of cream lace, with black ribbon passed in and out. Narrow tucks edge the tunic, which is fringed with black silk.

The second group of sketches consists of a dress of ecru guipure over white voile, the tunic fastening down the right side with a latticed ribbon velvet. The yoke is draped round the shoulders fichu fashion with black mousseline de soie. The overdress in the second figure is laced down with silk cord and edged with fringe. The shoulder drapery is in two shades of silk muslin.

Many Parisian models have a long, fluffy scarf or shoulder drapery in chiffon or mousseline, even cloth gowns being treated with this fichu-like style. Formerly we should have considered such a mixture of the severe and the frivolous, the thick and the thin, as incongruous and out of keeping, but incongruity is not now in the dictionary of fashion.

Already the tide of the eel skin skirts is turning, and a refreshing fullness appears on many of the leading Parisian models. Many bear witness to actual fulling at the back. Some have little tucks about 3 inches in length in the center of the back, from which the skirt sets out in graceful folds. Having assisted joyfully at the birth of the tight skirt, the Parisians are now prepared to do equal honor to its obsequies. Soft black flowing skirts, with blouses, are eztremely fashionable.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about 1-4 as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

Good Afternoon.

The swindler worked Holbrook and Bridgewater this week with a bogus check and an errand boy. Look out for him.

Quincy is quite in the swim this week. Its beauty as seen by trolley riders has been praised at length by the Beverly Times, one of its yachts has won an international cup, and it has risen to No. 5 in number of real estate transfers in the State.

The story started to injure the candidacy of Gen. Guild for lieutenant governor, that if elected he would remove Adjutant General Dalton and appoint Col. William A. Pew, Jr., acts in Mr. Guild's favor, when Col. Pew finds it necessary to say, "I am not, never have been, and do not expect to be a candidate of the adjutant generalship."

It is a pleasure to learn that Miss Vining of Hull was fined only upon a technicality. How few of us there are who are not guilty of violation of the many intricate laws of the State. A charge could be trumped up against almost anyone, and the judge would feel compelled to render a verdict of guilty. Criminals too often escape on technicalities, but one regrets to see law abiding citizens found guilty because of technicalities.

The talk that the Guild supporters were to work against the reelection of Representatives active for Speaker Bates, has started the report that the Bates supporters are to retaliate by opposing the reelection of members of the Republican State Committee. The Representatives and the State Committee are evidently victims of the newspapers who continue to accuse them of most everything as suits their fancy. Both Guild and Bates have friends on the State Committee, and the party will not be divided whoever is nominated.

While the action of the Democratic State Committee relative to the selection of National delegates for the convention of 1900 is not without precedent, and while Mayor Quincy of Boston has lost his grip, there is considerable sense in Mr. Quincys protest against the plan adopted. Certainly a party which advocates the election of senators by the people should not take away from the congressional districts the privilege of nominating their own candidates for delegates. On the whole the choice of 1900 delegates in 1899 is premature, and looks as if those in control feared they might lose their grip. Certainly it will not unite the party.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It was hardly necessary for Gov. Roosevelt to deny that he was a candidate for vice president. If there is a man in the country who belongs right where he is for the next four years it is the same Teddy. — Minneapolis Tribune.

☞ The Democratic state committee proposes to be the whole thing so far as dictating the party programme in this state is concerned, judged by the innovations for the selection of the delegates to the next national convention of the party.—Brockton Times.

☞ Just why there should be such a difference between the First and Second brigades on the question of intoxicants is difficult for one not in the service to see, but there are many stories afloat that do not picture the present encampment at South Framingham entirely in the light of a vast temperance meeting, unless by the force of an awful example. There always have been and probably always will be various opinions concerning the real benefit to the men and to the state that is derived from the week in camp, but it is safe to say that the absence of liquors of all kinds from the ground would not make the hour of duty any less popular among the people of the state at large or any less useful to the men.—Marlboro Enterprise.

☞ It would possibly be a good thing from a hygienic standpoint if the action of the beef packers in raising the price of their product should result in the people making beef a less conspicuous article of diet, especially in the summertime. The purpose of health, and also of getting back at the beef magnates might be served at one and the same time.—Brockton Times.

☞ An eminent naturalist, after a careful study of the subject, believes that the so-called kissing-bug may be one of several species. It may be the melanoletes picipes, the opscoelestus personatus, the coriscus subcoloratus or the rhasahus thoracius. And again it may be the product of the professional joker's lively imagination.—Providence Journal.

☞ The evil influence on our magazines is too clear. The money poison is crawling over them, one by one. Where are our intellectual magazines? Those that can really be called so are devoted to reforms, and are known by such terms as "The Coming Age." They have a social revolution in view, and are ardent about it. But this is only another newspaper phase, such as the Forum, the North American Review, and others, exemplify very well, and sometimes ably,—although many of their contributions carry little weight, and afford no important reinforcement to the thought of the world. Springfield Republican.

☞ Hon. Thomas B. Reed is now, or will be in a very few days, a private citizen, and will become in a short time a member of the New York bar. In that capacity he will simply be the equal of all the other members of the bar. He will be enabled to enforce no rules, nor to send a sergeant-at-arms after a member who refuses to acquiesce in his decisions. The influence he will exert will depend on the ability he displays in managing the cases entrusted to him by his clients. He will meet men of the greatest eminence in their profession and they will show no especial deference to him because he has been speaker of the house. But he is himself an able and resourceful man, and doubtless will be able to hold his own, and everybody will wish him success.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ It's a wise man who talks only of what he knows about. A writer in the National Magazine takes issue with the editor of that magazine in his opposition to trusts virtues: says business never was better, and that it is easier to tax and look after big corporations than many small ones. To his first argument we may reply that in former years when shoe manufacturers were numerous in New England towns, the help earned better wages, and were more steadily employed. To-day it is a bitter conflict and rush a few months with the trust concerns, and then weeks and months of practical idleness. Wages are also somewhat graded according to a man's capacity when business is driving, and when the lull comes he can scarcely live. If the community is dependent for work on one big shop, the men are not prosperous, as if there were several small ones.—Worcester West Chronicle.

☞ The growth of what may be called the vacation habit is rather noteworthy. About the only person nowadays who gets no vacation is the worker on a farm, and sometimes he and she do not get one in winter. It was thought when the scheme was first proposed that it would lead to less work. Experience has not proved this to be the case. The rest and freshness thus induced make the worker prepared to do much more than before the rest. For a long time the people of this countey were too much for work, and to little for play. Nor is this reproach which is quite undeserved, even now. We still take our pleasures sadly, and have too few play days. The sum total of work will not sink below the amount necessary for the needs of the people; and it would not, even were the working days shortened. perhaps the day of the future will not be shortened, but be divided into three sections of workers, and the effect might be better than one set of workers for 10 hours. It allows a storing up of new energy that cannot take place when one's day lasts to long.—Gardiner (Me.) Reporter-Journal.

—There is a good demand now for about everything this country can produce. England has asked a Texas firm to submit figures for 500,000,000 feet of yellow pine to be delivered at gulf ports.

RATHER ROMANTIC.

Maine Couple Journey to Quincy to Get Married.

It is usual for two young people of the opposite sex, when they have reached that stage that they believe they must have been created for each other and could not live happily apart, to get married, take a few weeks trip, and then settle down to the stern realities of life.

Charles Merton Cooper of East Bordenham, Me., and Miss Nellie Ellen Burrell of East Sebago, Me., however reversed the usual order by taking their trip first and getting married afterwards.

They left their rural home in Maine, and started for a trip to Brockton. From Boston they were continuing their journey by electrics. They reached Quincy this morning and while the car was waiting a few minutes in City Square they evidently became impressed with the solidness of the historic First church and City Hall and determined to get married in the City of Presidents.

City clerk Harlow was visited, to him Charles said he was twenty-four years of age, a moulder by trade, and that this was his first venture in the matrimonial market. Nellie said she was twenty-three, had no occupation, and it was also her first venture.

Mr. Harlow is said to ask them a score of other questions, such as how long they had loved each other, if they had their parents' consent, where they were going, etc., all of which were answered in a satisfactory manner.

A witness was necessary and Edward Lennon, the Board of Health Inspector, was called. He quickly brushed back his raven locks, gave his mustache an extra curl, his clothes a little brush, and stood silently by while City Clerk Harlow in his sweetest voice made Charles and Nellie man and wife.

A solemn stillness prevailed while the ceremony was in progress.

The little birds on the window sill forgot to sing, and even the telephone bell did not ring, but the little bunch of flowers on the city clerk's desk seemed brighter than usual as the few necessary words were said. Congratulations were offered by the officiating officer and witness, but the records neglect to show whether or not they kissed the blushing bride.

The fee was quickly paid and the bridal party boarded the next car and continued their journey to Brockton.

Unjustly Accused.

The case of Martin Bigelow who was in court Tuesday upon complaint of Mary O'Connell of Weymouth, who charged him with the larceny of her pocketbook while on a street car Wednesday night came up in court this morning. The case was one that should never have been brought into court as there was nothing whatever that could connect the young man with the loss of the pocketbook. The facts in the case, as admitted by the girl, were that after she had paid her fare on the car she put her pocketbook in her lap. She thought no more about it until some time after Bigelow and his friends had left the car. As the young man when he left the car passed in front of her, the first thoughts that entered her mind were that he must have taken it. Acting upon these thoughts she had a warrant issued. As she now admits some time elapsed from the time she paid her fare and when the young man had left the car before she missed it, and as she sat on the end of the seat the chances are that instead of being taken by anyone it slipped from her lap and fell into the street.

The girl now says that she does not think Bigelow took her pocketbook, and if she had given the matter a second thought she would not have done as she did.

The court found that there was nothing whatever to connect the young man with the case and promptly ordered his discharge.

It is regreted by all parties that the case got into court, especially by the young man who has been unjustly accused. It will probably teach the girl a lesson so that the next time she is unfortunate enough to lose her pocket book she will think twice before bringing an innocent person into court for larceny.

The Lake St. Louis races have not been entirely to the credit of the Yankee designers, builders, and sailors.—Record.

I do not think Miss Floretta Vining was much surprised that the case in which she was charged with illegally selling intoxicating beverages at Nantasket went against her yesterday. The rapidity and vehemence with which she entered an appeal clearly demonstrated that she was ready for a throw-down. If she ultimately loses the suit, it will be the first time she was ever conquered.—Post.

Quincy Young Men Who Were Appreciated.

Early in the season says the Boston Home Journal, there appeared at the Hotel Pemberton, Hull, Mass., five young men in a handsome yacht called "The Redskin." Their names were Messrs. J. L. Sturtevant, L. H. Sturtevant, E. L. Sturtevant, C. C. Lane and F. W. Clapp, and although they were strangers to the other guests of the house, they soon endeared themselves to all through their readiness to give pleasure to others and their unfailing spirit of good fellowship. It was soon learned that they conducted the business of the Thayer Chemical Manufacturing Company of Cambridgeport, and so successfully that they employ forty-five men on the road all the time. Many a pleasant sail did their new friends have on "The Redskin," and to many a right royal good time did these young men contribute a large share. It was in appreciation of the pleasure which their presence had added to the season at the Pemberton that on Thursday evening, Mr. A. C. Ratshesky, the well-known president of the United States Trust Company, gave a dinner in their honor. The table decorations were both unique and striking. In recognition of "The Redskin," red was the prevailing color. Red carnations were massed upon the table, and in the centre was a yacht in crimson with white sails. The cards for the ladies were crimson, too, while those for the gentlemen were white, with red and black decoration at the corners. The menus were in the form of red folders, and contained, besides the long list of delicacies offered—and which assumed a most mysterious appearance, printed backwards—a greeting and right hearty welcome to the guests while on the back all sorts of witty recommendations to those present, apropos of the pleasant times they had enjoyed together. The natty souvenirs for the girls were crimson golf bags filled with candy, while those for the married ladies took the form of tennis racquets and balls. The gentlemen had stone beer mugs filled with red candy. Among those present were Miss May Edwards, Miss Annie West, Miss Laura Shuman, Mrs. S. Shuman, Mrs. Carl Brandt, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ratshesky, Mr. Harold Shuman, and of course, Messrs. J. L. Sturtevant, L. H. Sturtevant, E. L. Sturtevant, C. C. Lane, and F. W. Clapp. All agreed in declaring the affair one of the most enjoyable that the summer had offered. Some of the "rules" for guests were very amusing. The "etiquette" of the occasion, for instance, declared "silver an china taken from the tables charged extra." "Thayer's pills are sure to kill. Try them." "Invited guests should give up their meal tickets before being seated."

Privateer and Heiress.

The Privateer scored a handsome victory yesterday in the open race at Kingston. She had three rivals but the Harriet finished nearly 3 minutes behind, the Arab IV, 15 minutes and the Geisha over 38 minutes. In Class L the Heiress and Rooster were the only entries, and the former won by 12 minutess, 17 seconds, The order in Class B was: Areyto, Hermes Little Peter and Eleanor. In Class T: Boblink, Perhaps and Lobster. In handicap class: Yankee, Dolphin, Nancy Hanks, Samper, Medora, Mildred, Emma. L, Cursette, and Winnetuxet. In special class: Rainbow, Frolic, Kittawake, Ventas, Scrap and Olympia.

PROGRESSIVE FIRM.

Scammell's Carriage Manufactory Now a Large Industry.

The new carriage manufactory of Simeon Scammell on Quincy avenue, which replaces the building recently destroyed by fire, is completed an is now being fitted with its machinery which will be in running order next week. The new building is larger and better apportioned than the one destroyed by fire, and was built to meet the demands of his large business. The building which is open from the street floor to the roof is in two sections, which are separated by a thick brick wall.

That part of the building on Quincy avenue will be used as a wheelwright shop, and is fitted with all the latest machinery such as band saws, turning lathes for wood and iron, planers, etc. The engine which runs this machinery will also be situated here. A large double door leads Quincy avenue and another leads to the rear section of the building.

This will be used as a blacksmith shop, and the iron work for carriages will be done here. Besides two forges there is also the heavy machinery used in getting out large work, including a large furnace for heating tires. This is heated by oil and will heat any tire from the smallest carriage tire to the heavy steel tires used on stones teams. This does away with the old process of building a fire of wood out of doors to heat the tires for setting. The boiler which furnishes power for this engine is also located here.

The basement will be used as a store room. The paint shop will remain as now, being located some distance in the rear of the main building.

Mr. Scammell now has a model plant in every way, and can readily handle any thing in the carriage building line from the lightest carriage to the heaviest stone teams. He is fortunate in having Mr. Edgar G. Cleaves as foreman.

☞ Mr. Elisha Thayer of South Braintree, who is a director of Cottage City water works, will attend the annual meeting for the election of officers and such other business as is necessary at Cottage City next Monday and Tuesday. Mr. Thayer has been a stockholder in this system from the start and he reports it to be in a prosperous condition.

☞ The Braintree band gave their last out-door concert in the South Braintree square last evenng. The threatening weather kept large number away, but there were fully 800 present, and highly enjoyed the selections encoring every number.

ON HER EVIDENCE.

Miss Vining was Fined for Violation of Liquor Law.

Inasmuch as Miss Vining was convicted in the Hingham court for violation of the liquor laws on the evidence of the first day, the evidence of yesterday loses its interest. Several witnesses who have been guests and neighbors of Miss Vining testified to a familiarity with the house, and had never seen any sales or indications of sales.

The sensation of the day, says the Herald, was sprung when Counsel Nason requested the elder Rorke to take the stand. In addition to witness' employment during his life it was learned that he was at one time janitor of the Somerset club.

"Were you not the Francis J. Rorke who was tried for killing Timothy W. Collins of Boston?" asked Counsel Nason.

Witness acknowledged he was.

Counsel Nason wanted to put the indictment in, but this the court would not allow.

Lawyer Buttimer for the government, asked that the question be ruled out, but the court allowed the question to remain.

The court then took a recess until 1.30.

Upon reassembling Lawyer Nason, of the defence, made an argument which lasted two and one-half hours. He was followed by Lawyer Buttimer for the government.

Judge Kelley, in reviewing the case, said that upon one thing alone he found Miss Vining guilty. Upon her evidence she had acknowledge that on one occasion she had made a sale in receiving money from Mr. Brant after the goods had been delivered.

Upon that ground alone he found her guilty and fined her $65. She appealed.

Then will follow the sports consisting of three bicycle races, a 500-yard dash race, a three legged race, a shoe race, a wheelbarrow race and a sack race.

HOUGHS NECK CASES

McIntosh Pleads Guilty—Samuel Burrell Arraigned.

Two more Houghs Neck liquor cases were in court this morning. The first case called was that of George McIntosh, who was charged with the illegal sale of liquor to Officer David Gordan. The evidence in this case was obtained by Inspector McKay who entered the place kept by Demock and McIntosh dressed as a street railway conductor. He had no difficulty whatever in obtaining what he desired in the liquor line. On another occasion Officer Gordon accompanied by a man in a street railway uniform entered the same place and readily obtained alcoholic refreshments.

When McIntosh's case was called this morning he retracted his plea of not guilty and entered one as guilty. The case was then continued a month to enable him to pay his fine.

The other case from Houghs Neck was that of Samuel Burrell, who was arraigned upon two complaints charging him with the illegal sale of liquor. He pleaded not guilty on both cases, which were continued until next Wednesday.

Explosion.

The cylinder head of the seventy-five horse power engine at Swingle & Falconer's granite plant at South Quincy, blew out Friday noon almost wrecking the engine.

The accident took place shortly after 1 o'clock. The engineer had started up his engine and had just left the room when he was startled by an explosion. He rushed back and finding the room full of steam, lost no time in shutting off the supply.

Investigations showed that the cylinder head had been blown out, and had carried part of the cylinder box with it. The bolts holding the head in place being broken as though pipe stems. The temporary strain on the engine had also broken the cross head.

Just what caused the accident has not as yet been determined.

As it is now, the engine is useless and a new one will be placed in position before Monday.

Fortunately no one was in the room at the time or more serious results might have followed.

SHATTUC NOT AFRAID

Of Any Attempt to Have His Name Stricken From List of Congressmen.

Spicy Correspondence With Edward Atkinson

In Which Both Gentlemen Define Their Positions In Plain Terms.

Cincinnati, Aug. 26.—The following correspondence between Edward Atkinson of Boston, the anti-Imperialist leader, and Congressman W. B. Shattuc of Cincinnati, explains itself:

Mr. Atkinson's letter is dated Boston, Aug. 15, 1899, and reads thus:

"Dear Sir—A copy of the "Anti-Imperialist," returned to me with this endorsement: 'Respectfully returned. Take my name off your list. I am no traitor to my country.' has been received.

"I am very glad to have the information that you are not a traitor. Had you been, I should have taken your name off the list of members of congress, to all of whom my pamphlets in support of Senator Hoar and others are sent. I may add that since we may assume that you do not support the opponents of criminal aggression, our efforts to take your name off the list of the members of congress at the next election will be fully justified. In the interval you may receive other copies of documents similar to that which you have returned, because I cannot at present expurgate my mailing list."

Mr. Shattuc's reply, dated Aug. 25, says:

"Dear Sir—I have received your letter of the 15th instant, and beg to tell you that I would not, even for the nomination to congress, support those guilty of criminal aggression against this government (as you are guilty of). Your intimation that you may be able to have my name taken off the list of the members of the next congress because I decline to receive your treasonable documents is another evidence of your monumental gall and egotism. You would succeed in your effort about as well as you did in getting your criminal literature in the hands of Aguinaldo and his followers.

"You knew what you were doing when you tried to get this trash in the rebels' hands. Your purpose was to give the rebels encouragement, to embarrass the government of the United States, and to induce the rebels to hold out until, perhaps, you could try your luck in having the names of loyal congressmen taken off the list at the next election.

"Not a precinct in the First Ohio congressional district would elect you or one of your kind as a delegate to a convention to nominate a director for the county poorhouse. The citizens of this district are loyal, patriotic people, and I am sure they are not in sympathy with those who are doing all they can to embarrass President McKinley and the government in the effort to restore order and suppress the rebellion in the Philippines. When that is accomplished it will be time to determine what form of government shall be established in those islands.

"Our people applaud the speech made by our president recently, when he said, speaking of our flag: "It is the flag of the free, the hope of the oppressed, and wherever it is assailed, at any sacrifice, it will be carried to triumphant peace." That is the kind of talk our people like here.

"For fear that you will forget it, let me suggest that you make a memorandum that the nomination for congress in the First Ohio district will be made about September, 1900. It will be necessary for you, to secure the results you desire, to commence your work a little before that time—the earlier the better—for I am assured that your friend Aguinaldo will cease to exist as a military chieftan long before that date."

The Cotton Duck Combine.

Baltimore, Aug. 26.—The cotton duck consolidation, which is one of the most important industrial combinations of the south, has been completed and the 14 mills acquired are now in the hands of the Continental Trust company of this city, awaiting their transfer to the Mount Vernon-Woodberry Cotton Duck company, which has been incorporated under the laws of Delaware, and the permanent organization of which will be completed within the next few days. The total capitalization of the new company is $23,500,000.

Swelling the Fund.

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 26.—The committee of Boston colored men who are raising a fund for the support of the family of Frazier B. Baker, the murdered postmaster of Lake City, N. C., participated in last night's meeting of the Salvation Army, at the camp ground. Addresses were made by Messrs. Allen, Adams, Kirk and Farris and Miss Jewett. Mrs. Baker and her son were introduced. Money was raised toward the Baker family fund.

Mother Finds Her Child.

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 26.—Anna McColley of Sandwich, Mass., 11 years old, alleged to have been kidnapped last spring, for whom the mother has been searching ever since, was found yesterday by the Lewiston police in a boarding house, and was turned over to the parent. The child was contented in her Lewiston home, and was reluctant about going away.

Murderer Has Disappeared.

New Haven, Aug. 26.—Francesco Iannotti, aged 35 years, died at the hospital yesterday as the result of knife wounds inflicted by Ferdinanda Arkosse during an altercation over a game of cards last Wednesday night. Directly after the assault Arkosse disappeared and no trace of him has since been found.

Bound For Philippines.

Seattle, Aug. 26.—Seven hundred and fifteen troops and officers of the Third cavalry, under the command of Major Henry Wessells, Jr., sailed for Manila yesterday afternoon on the transport St. Paul.

PRICES SOARING UPWARD.

Many Short Features in the Trade Situation. Scarcity of Beef Cattle.

New York, Aug. 26.—Bradstreet's says: Strength of prices and steadiness of demand are still the salient features of the trade situation. Iron, steel and other metals, most of the cereals, leather and cotton goods manifest upward tendencies as to prices. Other staples, with the exception of sugar and anthracite coal, retain all their old firmness. Fall demand is expanding at most markets, particularly good reports being received from the northwest, and that portion of the corn-growing country which this year seems likely to be notable for surplus production. Current railway earnings maintain the promise of earlier weeks. Aggressive strength is noted in iron and steel. Consideration of next year's needs now seems to be the most prominent feature of the trade, aside from complaints of slow deliveries on nearby orders.

Wheat has been quite firm all the week, partly owing to the whittling down of northwestern estimates, but also due to steady demand for the cash article, alike on foreign and domestic account.

The shadow of the Neill estimate is still over the cotton market, which, however, is firmer, owing to reports of deterioration, due to heat and drouth, and partly to exceptionally good reports from manufactured goods, quotations of which are tending upward. The proposition to combine Fall River mills is reported still under advisement. Compared with a year ago, cotton is ½ cent higher, but, while supplies are immensely larger, the growing crop conditions are the key to the situation.

Additionally strong features in the general trade situation are the active demand for lumber at most markets at steady prices, and the firmness in the higher grades of wool, notwithstanding less active buying. A supporting feature in this latter case, however, is the active demand reported alike for men's and women's wear woolens.

Conditions of supply and demand seem to be at the bottom of the recent rise in beef prices. This advance has attracted increased receipts of grass-fed cattle, and some shading of quotations is noted, but Chicago prices have only been equalled five times in 22 years. There are nearly 10,000,000 less beef cattle in the country than there were seven years ago, and in fact there are fewer cattle in the country now than in any year since 1882.

Reflection of the smaller supply of hides and of the active demand for boots and shoes is found in higher quotations for hemlock sole leather at some markets.

One of the least satisfactorily situated trades is that of anthracite coal, in which production appears to have outstripped consumption again, and there is complaint of price cutting. In the bituminous trade the efforts to bring about a combination of producers still attracts attention.

Caught For $2600.

Alexandria Bay, N. Y., Aug. 26.—D. W. Bisnall of Baltimore, who has been stopping here at the Thousand Island House, was victimized out of $2600 by a party of sharpers. About two weeks ago four men arrived here and opened a gambling resort. They enticed Mr. Bisnall into their rooms, and by clever manipulations of the pasteboards got the above sum from him. The men then left for Canada.

Lieutenant C. E. Johnston of the revenue cutter service, who has just returned from a tour of inspection of the hurricane-swept coast of North Carolina, reports that, although the devastation caused by the storm was very great, the number of wrecks and the loss of the number of wrecks and the losses of life, as reported by the press dispatches, were exaggerated.

A LUDICROUS SCENE

When Bertillon Had His Charts and Documents Lugged Into Court.

Military Witnesses Pretend to Understand His Theories.

German Government May Be Asked to Produce Some Esterhazy Documents.

Rennes, Aug. 26.—M. Bertillon, the noted anthropometrist, was the principal witness in the Dreyfus case yesterday. M. Bertillon requested that his diagrams and papers be brought in. The request was granted, and M. Bertillon retired for a moment. Later he returned at the head of a squad composed of an infantry sergeant and four privates, all staggering under the weight of immense leather satchels, bulging with documents and charts, which they deposited on the stage as a roar of laughter echoed throughout the court. Even the judges were unable to suppress a smile as they gazed on M. Bertillon's stage properties strewn over half the platform.

Nevertheless, even the Dreyfusards do not deceive themselves as to the effect M. Bertillon's testimony or "demonstration" may have upon the judges, who, they fear, will be gulled by what the Dreyfusards consider spurious. All the judges have passed through the Ecole polytechnique, the highest school of science in France, and they are thus peculiarly interested in such "evidence" as M. Bertillon's. Moreover, with the aid of the innumerable diagrams and specimens of writing, which he submits to them, they may be able to follow his reasoning intelligibly, which is more than any member of the audience could do. If the judges accept Bertillon's premises—that Dreyfus, as an expert spy, did not write ordinary handwriting, but in close imitation, even contriving to give the letters the appearance of having been traced, in order to be able to repudiate them as a forgery, if detected—then the structure built upon this ground-work may be scientifically correct. Even Dreyfus, when shown Bertillon's demonstrations, admitted the ingenuity and plausibility of the system, though he naturally declared that it was built upon a false basis.

A remarkable feature of M. Bertillon's deposition was the heat and excitement he put into what was expected to be a calm, dispassionate exposition of his theories. He thundered, shouted and waved his arms, as though engaged in some terrible dispute. Once he literally shrieked, and members of the usual audience, who had been unable to follow him and were taking the air in the courtyard, rushed back into the hall breathlessly, inquiring what had happened, and imagining he was fulminating some dreadful denunciation of the accused. Their excitement was turned into hilarity when they found that he was merely impressing upon the judges the significance of the exact space, measured in centimeters, between two words in the bordereau.

The military witnesses, all of whom sit in a bunch, leaving Colonel Picquart and M. Bertulus severely isolated, followed M. Bertillon's statements with a grave and wise expression of countenance, upon which never a suspicion of a smile appeared, as though they understood every word. Evidently they had received a "pointer" to preserve this attitude, for, without seeing the diagrams, they certainly could not have understood him any better than did the general public, who treated M. Bertillon as a farceur.

The Echo De Paris announces that the counsel of Dreyfus has obtained possession of the certain documents mentioned in the bordereau in Esterhazy's writing, which they will produce in court next week as a coup de theatre. The correspondent of The Associated Press inquired as to this in competent Dreyfusard quarters. He was assured that the statement was erroneous, but was also told that the defense intended, in the event of Captain Dreyfus being re-condemned, to ask the German government to communicate these documents, proving his innocence, and they had reason to believe such a request would be granted.

M. Bertillon resumed his testimony this morning regarding the handwriting of Dreyfus and his reasons for believing the artillery officer guilty.

Crookedness of French Officials.

London, Aug. 26.—The Rome correspondent of The Daily Mail says: Italy and Germany have obtained proofs that diplomatic correspondence passing between Paris and other places is systematically opened. This has been the case particularly since the campaign against Dreyfus began, the French war office having sought proofs to strengthen the accusation against him. Questions on this subject will be asked in the Italian parliament.

Sailors Stretched Their Legs.

Nice, Aug. 26.—The Olympia battalion landed from the cruiser yesterday at Villefranche, near here, for drill purposes, the entire population of the town viewing the parade. The men presented a splendid appearance. Admiral Dewey received a visit from Edward Andre, Belgian consul at Manila. He passed a quiet day on board and seemed in perfect health and greatly benefited by the rest he is taking.

Philippines For Great Britain.

Vienna, Aug. 26.—The Politische Correspondenz, which is often inspired from the Austro-Hungarian foreign office, says: A petition is now on the way from Manila to London, addressed to the British government, and signed by numerous European inhabitants of the Philippines, as well as many Americans, in favor of the United States exchanging the Philippines for the British West Indies.

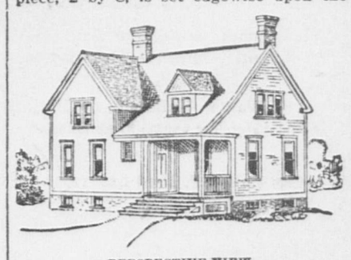

No Cash In Ottoman Treasury.

Constantinople, Aug. 26.—A financial crisis is imminent. The Ottoman exchequer is empty. The finance minister, Rechad Bey, has fled from those seeking payments and taken refuge in a private residence, which is now under the protection of the police.

QUEEN ANNE STYLE.

Design For a Substantial and Comfortable Farmhouse.

The design shown represents a sensible, conveniently arranged and substantially constructed cottage or farmhouse in the Queen Anne style of architecture. The foundation walls are of brick laid in cement mortar, plastered on the outside with cement, and the cellar has a concrete floor three inches thick. The sills are built of two pieces of plank, one, 3 by 6, laid flat upon the walls and securely anchored in place by wrought iron bolts set in the brickwork. The other piece, 2 by 8, is set edgewise upon the wall and securely spiked to the plank beneath. The studding is notched on the lower end to come flush with the outside of the brick wall and sill and spiked to both pieces, thus securing the framework of the entire building from being torn from its foundations by the most violent storms.

The framework should be hollow, with tongued and grooved sheathing nailed on diagonally. In the cottage shown the sheathing was covered with waterproof building paper and clapboarded with six inch beveled siding. The roof is also sheathed and covered with waterproof paper and shingled. Shingle lath should never be used in regions which are frequented by high winds, as the shingles bend under the pressure of the wind between the laths, and the rain or snow is driven into the building.

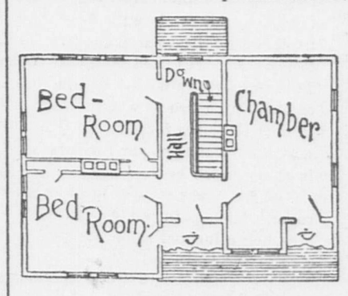

The building is one and a half stories in height. The main roof over the second story chamber extends down over the front of the parlor, thus forming in a most economical manner a small veranda which protects the front entrance. If desired, in the winter time this porch could be inclosed with glazed window sash as an additional protection. The staircase hall extends through the middle of the building, with a door at the rear leading to the yard. Upon the right of the staircase hall is a parlor 12 by 16, lighted by a window in front and rear and two windows in the sides. It is heated by a grate designed for burning soft coal—or it is so arranged that a stove can be used if desired. In the front, at the left side of the hall, is the dining room, 13 by 15, with windows in front and on the side. It is also provided with an open fireplace and grate for burning coal. The dining room communicates with the kitchen through the pantry. The kitchen is connected with the main hall by a door conveniently near the back entrance, and is abundantly lighted by two large windows. In addition to the pantry the kitchen is provided with a large storeroom—an essential feature, especially in a farmhouse. It is also fitted up with a portable range and suitable iron sink. In the second story are three good sized chambers, with a closet for each. At the front of the hall in this story is a large closet which may be used as a trunkroom or linen closet.

The side walls and ceilings throughout are hard finished on two coats of brown mortar and lath. The steps and risers of the stairs are of yellow pine; newels, rails and balusters of ash; all other woodwork of white pine, all painted in two coats—both exterior and interior. This building can be erected, under favorable circumstances, in a thoroughly substantial manner for $1,800. If a bathroom is desired, the extra plumbing, cesspool, etc., would cost about $300.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

A Bad Sign.

Wife—Who was that who called?

Husband—One of my tenants called to pay me his rent.

"Did he pay it?"

"Yes."

"Then why do you look so gloomy?"

"He didn't say a word about wanting $50 or $100 worth of repairs."

"What of it?"

"That shows that he's going to leave."—Tit-Bits.

Paint For Stables.

Where paint is exposed to the fumes of ammonia and sometimes other chemical agents, it should not be of white lead, but zinc white. This may be affected, too, but in less degree than the lead, so commonly used. For water closets, stables or any similar positions use zinc white, mixed in pure oil, and you will get a much more durable coating.—American Homes.

To Remove Mildew From Linen.

The stained parts must be well rubbed with soap, then chalk should be scraped over the mildew marks and the linen be laid out flat on the grass. As the chalk dries in the air, be careful to moisten it slightly again, and when eventually washed in the usual way the mildew marks should be eliminated.

FOR STAKE OF $10,000

Charlie Herr Wins at Readville In an Exciting Race With Lecco.

Upwards of $100,000 Was Placed on the Event.

Pittsburgs Fall on Lewis and Capture a Game From the Champions.

Readville, Mass., Aug. 26.—The card at the grand circuit races yesterday was the finest ever presented at the Readville track, and 15,000 people enjoyed it. Excitement constantly spiced the events, for every heat was a fight for the wire, and not a few times the spectators thought they knew better than the judges as to the winner. The Massachusetts stake race, which has proven to be the greatest trot of the year, was quickly finished after the start was given, Charley Herr, owned by David Cahill of Lexington, Ky., winning it. The event came over from Wednesday, Charley Herr, Tom Boy and Lecco having two heats each.

Tom Boy, at the time of postponement, was a fair favorite, the sporting men being scared of Lecco's aptness to break and run, although claiming that he had speed enough. Charley Herr was admired for steadiness, but people thought his speed limit had been seen. Tom Boy was sick Thursday, and yesterday he had no chance to win, acting lifeless. Herr became the favorite, and by trotting an honest mile won in almost a dead heat with Lecco. The latter repeated his performance of the sixth heat Wednesday, in which he was expected to win, by breaking three times, each at a quarter, and then coming into the last turn off his stride, but with speed which closed up yards of distance behind the leader. Through the last eighth came the two horses, almost neck and neck. Everybody was on their feet, shouting wildly, and everywhere, except in the judges' stand, it looked as if Lecco was under by a nose. But there was no question as to the winner on merit, and Charley Herr took the big end of the $10,000 stake. It is claimed that upwards of $100,000 depended on the event.

CHAMPIONS HAD A GOOD LEAD

But They Were Passed by the Pittsburgs and Failed to Catch Up.

Pittsburg, Aug. 26.—There was one blood-curdling ball game here, and the losers were the champions from Boston. It might be worth a baseball inquiry to find out whose fault it really was that the game was lost to the champions, for they had a good lead at one stage of the contest. They were caught and were passed, and, although they made a good bid to get matters even they never showed a strong chance of winning after they had been left in the rear.

Two Records Fell.

New York, Aug. 26.—Two world's records were lowered at the first day's races for the amateur championships of the National Cycling association. In the final heat of the one-third mile event Frank L. Kramer of the Harlem Wheelmen defeated G. H. Collett of New Haven by half a length in a sprint down the stretch in the record time of 39 4-5 seconds. In the final heat of the one-mile tandem event, Hausman and Rutz ran away from Collett and Wahrenberger in the stretch, winning by a length in the record time of 1:52 3-5 seconds. These were the only short distance championship finals run.

Cyclone Headed Off.

New York, Aug. 26.—Dan Creedon of Australia defeated Fred Morris, colored, of New York last night in a hurricane fight that Referee White only allowed to go six rounds. Morris, who is known as "The Cyclone," was not out, but was hopelessly beaten, and had long since become a mere punching bag for his opponent. The men weighed 160 pounds, and when they came to the ring the betting on them was even.

Double Execution.

Muskogee, I. T., Aug. 26.—Cyrus A. Brown and Matthew Craig were executed here yesterday. It was the first legal hanging of white men ever held in the territory. They mounted the scaffold smiling. Brown killed Daniel Cuthbert, an aged white man, in October, 1896. Craig killed Deputy United States Marshal Joseph Heinrichs last March.

LIBERTY AND HUMANITY.

Blessings Under Our Flag Await the Acceptance of the Filipinos.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 26.—President McKinley addressed 12,000 people in the Auditorium here yesterday afternoon. He was introduced by Bishop Fitzgerald, who said that there was no conflict between the Stars and Stripes and the flag of the cross, and that "they float side by side for humanity, liberty and truth."

The president said: "Love of flag and love of country are not inconsistent with religious faith. I believe that there is more love for our country and that more people love the flag than ever before. Wherever that flag is raised it stands not for despotism and oppression, but for liberty, opportunity and humanity, and what the flag has done for us we want it to do for all people and all lands which by the fortunes of war have come within its jurisdiction. That flag does not mean one thing in the United States and another in Porto Rico and the Philippines.

"There has been doubt in some quarters respecting the policy of the government in the Philippines. I see no harm in stating it in this presence. Peace first, then, with charity for all, establish a government of law and order, protecting life and property and occupation for the well being of the people who will participate in it under the Stars and Stripes."

When the president finished the big building shook with the intensity of the applause. When the tumult stopped the president said: "I have said more than I intended."

Suffering From Heart Trouble.

Washington, Aug. 26.—The United States Army and Navy Register today says: Recent letters from Manila mention the illness of Admiral Watson as the source of great anxiety to his officers. The illness is the effect of an accident which occurred to his launch while he was on board on July 11. A strong wind was blowing and as the launch, the Undine, went under a bridge the strong current, aided by the wind, set against the little boat and she was thrown against a hawser from a sailing vessel. This rope carried away the awning and the smokestack. Admiral Watson showed no appearance of having been startled by the occurrence, but before his return to the flagship serious heart trouble developed. No one but his physician is allowed access to him. It is hoped, however, that the enforced quiet may restore him to health.

New Constitution Endorsed.

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 26.—At a special meeting of the local branch of the Lasters' union, held here last night, it was voted to endorse the new constitution of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, adopted at the convention at Rochester, last June, and over which there has been considerable opposition among the local unions here. Eight of the nine unions in this city previously had held meetings, and in each instance it was voted not to endorse the constitution, and it was expected that the lasters, the last union to take action, would act in the same manner. At the meeting last night, however, with about 100 members present, only eight dissenting votes were heard when the motion for the adoption of the constitution was made.

Governor Gage to Soldiers.

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—In a short speech to the California volunteers, Governor Gage said in part: "The present war is not a war of conquest, notwithstanding the treasonable utterances of a few carping critics to the contrary. The acquisition of territory is but an incident, the war itself being in defense of American rights, American commerce and Christian civilization. To yield to disorganized bands of half-civilized natives the lands won from Spain by the blood and valor of our soldiers, would be to forever lose our foremost place among the powers as a commercial and civilized nation."

Italy Wants Lynchers Punished.

Washington, Aug. 26.—It is said at the state department that the report of the probable settlement of the recent Italian lynchings in Louisiana on the basis of a $50,000 indemnity is incorrect, as no such proposition has come from the Italian authorities or is under consideration by the department. The last word from Count Vinci, the Italian representative, was to the effect that the Italian authorities were chiefly interested in having the guilty parties punished, and until action in this regard was taken there was no basis for any other steps.

Deliberately Drowned a Boy.

Highland Falls, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Harry Rose, aged 8 years, and Arthur Slausen, aged 13, were fishing along the banks of the Hudson river, six miles below here, yesterday. Slausen deliberately threw Rose into the river and continued fishing, paying no attention to the drowning struggles of Rose. The little fellow soon perished. Presently the father came along and inquired for his son, and Slausen finally admitted the truth. The neighborhood was aroused and the body was recovered.

Recruits For Five Regiments.

Boston, Aug. 26.—Recruiting officers of this city have received orders to begin at once the work of recruiting for the Forty-first, Forty-second, Forty-third, Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh regiments. The Forty-sixth is the regiment which is to be located at South Framingham. Most of the recruits enlisted in Boston henceforth will be sent to that regiment, except where they express a preference for some one of the others.

The Twenty-Sixth's Orders.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 26.—The Twenty-sixth regiment will leave here for San Francisco on its way to the Philippines on or about Sept. 5, orders having been received to that effect. The regiment will go via Boston and Providence, and will reach San Francisco about Sept. 16.

Weather Indications and Forecast.

Sun rises—5:04; sets, 6:27.
Moon rises—10:04 p. m.
High water—3:45 a. m.; 4:15 p. m.

There have been showers and thunder storms in portions of the south Atlantic and gulf states and a few widely scattered showers in various other districts. Fair weather is indicated in New England. The warm weather in the west will extend gradually eastward.

FEARFUL HAVOC ON COAST

Is Wrought by Recent Hurricane Described by Lieutenant Johnston.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Lieutenant C. E. Johnston of the revenue cutter service, who has just returned from a tour of inspection of the hurricane-swept coast of North Carolina, made his report yesterday to the life saving bureau.

Although the devastation caused by the storm was very great, the number of wrecks and the loss of life, as reported by the press dispatches from Norfolk, Lieutenant Johnston stated, were exaggerated.

"The hurricane attained frightful velocity in the vicinity of Cape Hatteras," said Lieutenant Johnston. "At the Hatteras weather bureau station the anemometer blew down while registering a velocity of 120 miles an hour. For a minute it registered 160 miles. The ocean swept over a strip of land separating Pamlico Sound from the Atlantic.

"Sheep, cattle and horses which were on this land were drowned and many houses were wrecked. At New Inlet a big club house owned by Boston parties was blown bodily from its foundations and moved 20 feet. For miles along the coast not one telephone pole in 10 is standing. At Ocracoke 60 houses were swept away, but there was no loss of life here that I was able to ascertain.

"There were several wrecks along the coast between Chicacomico and Ocracoke, and the life saving crews did noble work in saving life.

"At Durant's station, near Hatteras Inlet, 300 bales of cotton have come ashore, together with 200 cords of oak staves. The cotton was evidently shipped from New Orleans. The bows of the vessel, believed to be a steamship, are ashore and bear the name Agnes. Two bodies were washed up, one of them evidently an engineer of a steamship."

Opinion Entitled to Credence.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Brigadier General Anderson, commanding the department of the lakes, is here. General Anderson commanded the first body of troops sent to the Philippines, and spent considerable time in the islands. His opinion is that the present rebellion will be brought to a close by the end of the next dry season. This can be accomplished, he believes, by a sharp and decisive campaign, and by taking prompt advantage of every forward step gained by the American forces. With an army kept up to an effective fighting force of 40,000 to 50,000 men, General Anderson thinks there will be no great difficulty in clearing out the rebels and bringing about their surrender. The general believes the acquisition of the Philippines will be of considerable value to the United States.

Shots From Guerin Fortress.

Paris, Aug. 26.—At a late hour last evening a reporter from The Anti-Juif tried to revictual the Guerin fortress, but was prevented by the police. M. Guerin, greatly incensed, fired two shots at a policeman. Neither reached the mark, but the incident will probably precipitate matters. All was quiet in the vicinity of Rue Chabrol throughout the night, but at 4 o'clock this morning a black flag appeared in the attic window. Some days ago M. Guerin stated that in the event of his death the party would hoist the black flag. It is known that two of the party have been ill, one seriously, from congestion of the lungs. Communication with the house is still strictly forbidden. Even bearers of ordinary police passes are not allowed to approach. M. Guerin resumed watch on the roof at 5 a. m.

On Bread and Water Diet.

Little Rock, Aug. 26.—The crusade against idle negroes, which began shortly after the atrocious assaults committed on white women here last week, is being pushed vigorously. Of the 50 negroes jailed as suspects, a large number have been sentenced to jail for 60 days on bread and water on the charge of vagrancy. The bread and water sentence is given under authority of an old law that had not been invoked in many years. Large numbers of negroes have fled from Little Rock to escape arrest. Three who have been identified as those who assaulted white women have been removed to another county to avoid possible lynching.

Accounts Said to Be Irregular.

Boston, Aug. 26.—A special to The Herald from Norway, Me., says: The closing of the Norway Savings bank for an investigation of its accounts has caused no end of speculation here as to the reason that made this action necessary. It is now admitted by one of the bank officials that irregularities concerning the figures which are shown on the depositors' books and those on the treasurer's books caused the suspension. The late Judge S. S. Stearns was cashier and treasurer of the bank from May, 1894, until the 9th of the present month, when he died. His predecessor was his law partner, H. M. Bearce. It is not yet known how great the deficit will prove to be, but there is reason to believe that the amount will not be less than $15,000.

Countess of Paris Interested.

London, Aug. 26.—A special to The Daily News from Paris states that the government of France has reason to believe that the Countess de Paris is the owner of the house in Rue Chabrol in which M. Guerin and his party is located, and that M. Guerin is only a man of straw, who is acting for her. This, according to the special, perhaps explains the long suffering and patience on the part of the government.

Trolley Accident at Pawtucket.

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 26.—An electric car on the Union Street railway jumped the tracks on Pawtucket avenue, and collided with an electric light pole, by the side of the road. Mrs. Mary Burns received serious and possibly fatal injuries, and Samuel Lavin was badly hurt about the back and spine. The 15 other passengers on the car all sustained slight bruises, and were generally shaken up.

And Still They Come.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 26.—The steamer Cottage City arrived here yesterday with 12 survivors of the Edmonton trail, from Wrangel, Alaska. Most of them are destitute and badly crippled from the effects of scurvy and frost. News is brought of a murder and suicide at Dawson. Harry Davis killed Maud Roselle, formerly a well-known circus rider, and then killed himself.

Mrs. Jacob H. Gallinger

Wife of U. S. Senator Jacob H. Gallinger, of New Hampshire, writes:

"Having used Fairbank's Fairy Soap, I have no hesitation in saying that it is all that is claimed for it. I like it very much."

FAIRBANK'S FAIRY SOAP
The Soap of the Century.

Unequaled for toilet, bath, and fine laundry use. The purest and best floating white soap made.

Was Quite Willing.

"I want you to understand, however," said her father, "that I consent to your marriage only under protest."

"Oh, that's all right," the young man replied, "if you will let none of the demands I may make on you afterward go to protest."

A Nasty Dilemma.

"Gee, and if there ain't the farmer who said he'd shoot me if he saw me in his apple tree again!"—New York Journal.

Speaks For Itself.

"Clementine, what did you do with that curtain goods you bought last week?"

"Well, it was entirely too gay and loud for curtains, so I made a shirt waist of it."

Extremes Meet.

The Old Man—What! Have you learned to smoke already?

The Small Boy—And you—haven't you quit smoking yet?—Der Floh.

CANCER CURED
BY ABSORPTION
NO KNIFE.

The result of years of scientific research by America's greatest blood specialist. A pleasant treatment that relieves immediately, cures permanently all forms of CANCERS, TUMORS and CHRONIC DISEASES. Hundreds of wonderful cures effected in and around Boston. Read the following:

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

Castle Square Theatre.

The remarkable success of "The Sporting Duchess" is giving the summer season at the Castle Square theatre a very brilliant ending. This play has held its popularity with the Castle Square audiences for two weeks to such an extent that even the standing room of the great auditorium has been exhausted at every performance, and its retention as the attraction for the coming week has been made imperative by the undiminished demands upon the box office. It will not be possible, however, to continue this attraction beyond the coming week and some changes in the cast will be made for the final performances. The great stable of educated horses has proved a strong feature of the production and with the scenes of the regimental ball, the sharply contested sale of "Clipstone" and the great Derby race continue to arouse the enthusiasm of the audiences at every performance. On Monday, Sept. 4, the Castle Square Company will appear in "Charley's Aunt" with Mr. Walter E. Perkins in his original character.

Keith's Theatre.

"It is a remarkable evidence of nineteenth century enterprise that a summer theatre is no longer a thing to be shunned for the double reason that it is too hot within the four walls to breath comfortably, and for the other fact, once so apparent, that there can never be gathered in a playhouse during the torrid days talent sufficiently worthy to make the going worth while, even if the temperature is tolerable," says a critic recently in refering to Keith's theatre. "Mr. Keith has killed off both of these scarecrows; his handsome playhouse is positively a cool retreat." The summer show is in every respect equal to that offered in what is known as the regular season, and quite often it excells in variety the winter bills. For the week of August 28, one of the leading features will be the clever act of O. G. Seymour and Mlle. Dupree, in a combination of wonderful acrobatic work, clever musical specialties and graceful dancing, which has won unstinted praise from critics in other cities. Minnie Dupree, who was one of the "Two Little Vagrants," is to make her debut as a monologuist, and as she has many warm friends in Boston, the talented little actress is assured in advance of a hearty reception. John C. Rice and Sally Cohen are announced for the week of Sept. 4th, in one of their amusing comedy sketches.

TRUFFLES IN AMERICA.

New Industry For the Small Truck Farmers.

DOGS ARE TRAINED TO FIND THEM.

The Tubers Grow Beneath the Ground, and a Man Cannot Locate Them—Professor Swingle Believes the Industry Can Be Established In the United States.

The United States department of agriculture has received through Professor Walter T. Swingle, one of the agricultural explorers sent abroad to look up matters of interest to that branch of the service, a number of seeds and plants which it is thought will prove of value to the American producer and consumer, says the Washington Post. All of these will be experimented with by the division of seed and plant introduction within a short time, and valuable results are confidently expected.

Among the things sent over from France are some truffles, an article of food that is very little used in the United States, but which can, in all probability, be produced with profit there. In France the truffle industry is growing rapidly and promises within a short time to become one of great value to the agricultural class. Professor Swingle believes that we can produce in the United States all the truffles we need, whereas now we import every single one that goes on the table. Although not a common article of food in the United States, in France they are considered a delicacy and are cooked in numerous different ways. As an accompaniment of other dishes they lend a rare flavor and richness. Some idea of the growing magnitude of the truffle industry in France can be gathered from the fact that within the last few years it has increased so rapidly that it amounts to more than $5,000,000 annually, and such is the demand for them that from a mere side issue on the part of farmers it has developed into a regular business of great profit.

Truffle raising is very interesting, and to carry it on successfully requires considerable skill and patience. Truffles, it is well known, are a fungous growth like mushrooms, but instead of growing on the surface they are found from 10 to 12 inches below the ground clinging to roots of trees, and it requires the aid of trained hogs or dogs to discover them. The odor is very strong and penetrating and is generally esteemed powerfully fragrant.

Like mushrooms, there are various species, some of which are worthless and dangerous, but these are easily distinguished from the edible truffle, and it is, therefore, more valuable than the mushroom. Truffles are raised in England, Italy and France, but the French truffle is by far the best. Professor Swingle procured the truffles sent the department from the choice of the Paris markets, and if we succeed in introducing them into the United States they will be of the best quality. Forests that were long thought to be utterly valueless even for the timber growing upon them have lately been found to possess great value for the production of truffles. Indeed truffle forests within the past few years have increased so much in value that the taxes upon them have been quadrupled.

The truffle grows from July till autumn or winter and is found only on oak, beech and birch trees and requires a peculiar soil, a rich, clayey earth. Professor Harkness of the Academy of Sciences believes that the forests of California and the Carolinas can produce the finest quality of truffles. There are species of truffles now found in California, but they are hardly fit for eating, and in order to introduce the industry into the United States it will be necessary to plant the imported tubers and experiment with them on different kinds of trees. In France the best truffles are sold for as high as $4 a pound. Inferior ones can be bought for a dollar up, and the wholesale price varies from 60 cents to $2 a pound.

The French truffle is globular in shape, and in color a bright brown or black, with polygonal warts covering it. Then mature flesh is blackish gray, marbled within with white veins. The odor is very pleasant, especially when the tubers are young, then somewhat resembling a strawberry. With age the odor gets very potent, but is never offensive. These are the best truffles grown, and are the ones that bring from $3 to $4 a pound.

It is by the odor of the truffle that its presence in the earth is detected, but man alone cannot discover it. Squirrels, hogs, dogs and other animals frequently dig up truffles and devour them, and it has been necessary to train the hogs and dogs to point out the places where they grow without eating them. Pigs will always eat truffles, and dogs will do so occasionally, and it is therefore usual to give the trained pig or dog a small piece of cheese or some like reward each time it is successful.

The department purposes to make careful experimentation with the growing of the truffle in the United States, and Professor Swingle thinks that there is little doubt it can be produced successfully. If so, it will prove an additional source of income to the agricultural class, and with an average price of $2.50 per pound it can readily be seen that it will yield a large income to the producer, especially as it will undoubtedly be more universally used as an article of food than it is at present. The people of the United States now do not consume one pound of truffles a year where the French do 100 pounds.

AMERICAN TRADE IN CHINA.

Significant Facts Given by the United States Consul at Chefu.

The state department at Washington has received a valuable report from the United States consul at Chefu showing the great strides made by American trade throughout China. It is in line with the views expressed by President Schurman since he returned from the far east, and gives much additional information as to how this American trade must be directed if it hopes to continue in control of the markets of China, as against Germany, Russia and Japan. Summing up from numerous tables, the consul says:

"It will not be long at this rate before the United States and Japan will supply the market entirely, unless we are shut out when Germany and Russia get their ports in order."

He shows that American trade in China increased throughout the list of articles, except kerosene, says the New York Tribune. Japan's trade also showed marvelous strides, and Japan now sells considerably more than one-third of the entire foreign imports and over $1,000,000 in gold more than the United States. The consul says that this should give food for thought, as Japan is beginning to be a formidable competitor, not only of the United States, but of all Europe and of Great Britain.

Mr. Foster brings out the fact that the Russian authorities have now practically taken possession of the territory back of Port Arthur. The consul also shows the manner in which Russia is developing the steamship service between Port Arthur and European and Asiatic Russia. He speaks also of the gradual control which the Germans are obtaining of the whole province back of Chefu.

"PAPA IS AT RENNES."

How Dreyfus' Children Were Told of Their Father's Return.

"Papa est a Rennes."

Thus did Captain Dreyfus' children learn from their mother, writes a correspondent of the London Daily News, that their father had safely returned to France after a five years' absence. They were very young when he left them one day suddenly without saying goodby. But they still remember him and wanted very much to see him back again. Their mother, they could see, was very sad over his lengthy absence, and so were Uncle Mathieu, Uncle Paul and grandpapa. They knew from their father's letters that he was longing to see them. He never wrote home without sending them his loving remembrances.

As the little boy and girl grew older and learned to write, it was agreed that their first letter should be to their father. When Mme. Dreyfus told them, a few weeks ago, that papa was at Rennes, they were delighted, but not surprised, because their mother had always told them that he would come back to France.

Their mother has told them that next month they will meet their father, never more to be separated. They know that they are shortly leaving for a holiday, because their father has lived in a hot and unhealthy climate and needs rest and quiet. These innocent children will learn hereafter that their father's journey was one from which the general staff of the French army had intended he should never return.

ODD PRANK OF NATURE.

Strange Conduct of a Kentucky Farm Pond.

A curious and interesting phenomenon occurred the other day on the farm of Mr. John McClanahan, near the hamlet of Ellisville, Carlisle county, Ky. On this farm was a large pool about 30 feet long and 6 or 7 feet in depth, with a solid rock bottom. This pond furnished plenty of stock water for a number of years and during the late drought was a source of supply to the neighboring farmers.

About 5 o'clock in the evening the cattle and horses were seen running panic stricken from the pond. Mr. McClanahan hastened to investigate and discovered that where once was his deep pond now was nothing but a puddle of mud, at least six inches above the level of the surrounding ground, says the Louisville Evening Post. He says a low, rumbling noise could be heard for some minutes afterward.

Many have visited the place, and several of the superstitious neighbors are preparing to move. No plausible cause has as yet been advanced for this strange prank of nature.

Queer Effect of a Stroke of Paralysis.

Mrs. Joseph Betz, German, living at Red Rock, a small village five miles from Chatham, N. Y., sustained a stroke of paralysis a few weeks ago, and for some time her recovery seemed impossible. She is now recovering, however, and as she regains the power of speech it is discovered that she is no longer able to speak English, which language she spoke fluently before her illness, says the Albany Evening Journal. She understands it as easily as ever, but her power to pronounce the words and use them in their proper order seems to have left her entirely. She now converses entirely in German and carries on conversation with those of her friends who do not understand German by means of an interpreter.

Rice Culture In Texas.

It is now conceded that rice cultivation in Texas is proving a success, says a Fort Worth dispatch to the Chicago Inter Ocean. Captain Dunovant of Eagle Lake planted as an experiment 300 acres, which promises to be a successful venture—so much so that the captain says he will put in 2,000 acres next year. It is claimed ten barrels of rice can be raised on each acre of ground.

DEATH'S VEIL

Army Chiefs Would Hide Truth Behind It.

Their Villainy Is Exposed by Captain Freystaetter.

Declares That Mercier and Maurel Have Lied.

Dreyfusards Have a Secret Dread of the Absence of De Clam.

Report That Mercier Had Fled From France Proves to Be Unfounded.

Rennes, Aug. 28.—"Dead men tell no tales." This is the barricade behind which General Mercier and the general staff have entrenched themselves. But there is one weak point in the defense—Colonel De Clam—and the military clique know it and are striving to the utmost to keep him out of M. Labori's clutches. If they can prevent De Clam, who is now called the "sick man of the Dreyfus affair," from appearing at the witness bar, they can effectually put the silence of the tomb between truth and justice.

M. Labori is fighting tooth and nail to drag De Clam into court, but Colonel Jouaust persists in refusing him the necessary assistance. He declines to send reputable doctors to officially report upon the state of De Clam's health, which every Dreyfusard believes is only diplomatically affected, and tat he will recover quickly enough after the trial.

M. Labori hit the nail upon the head Saturday when, replying to General Mercier's last remarks, he exclaimed: "Always dead. Sandherr dead! Henry dead! De Clam is not coming!" Colonel Jouaust immediately cut him short, declaring he must not make observations, and M. Labori staggered and fell back into his seat with a despairing gesture.

Colonel Jouaust was not so particular in stopping the stream of irrelevant gossip which flowed from the lips of the military witnesses, who have defiled the court during the past fortnight.

While, however, the Dreyfusards believe De Clam is not seriously ill, they feel a secret dread, which is expressed in the significant remank, not infrequently heard: "Sandheer is dead, Henry committed suicide and De Clam will die."

The confrontation of Colonel Maurel, Captain Freystaetter and General Mercier was an instructive exposure of the fraud and dishonesty of the general staff, which the absence of De Clam alone prevented from being complete. The defense might demand that a commission be sent to examine De Clam on his sick bed. But MM. Labori and Demange despair of obtaining a satisfactory result therefrom. They want to have De Clam in court, and turn the screws of the rack themselves.

No one among the public who entered the courtroom Saturday and again found himself entangled in M. Bertillion's cryographic jugglery anticipated the thrilling scenes to be enacted before the court adjourned. M. Bertillion talked for two hours, during which even Colonel Jouaust felt constrained more than once to bring him to the point. Then M. Labori popped a few questions, which, when the president of the court-martial consented to admit them, were answered in an off-hand manner by the witness, who thought fit to show his contempt by barely looking at M. Labori, and to proceed, at the same time, to pack up his voluminous parcels and diagrams.

Captain Dreyfus also spoke a few words, repudiating Bertillion's direct denunciations, and then a military witness was put up to explain to the judges what Bertillion really meant. He only managed to be equally obscure. All this was utter gibberish to the journalists, most of whom left the courtroom and sauntered up and down the courtyard, leaving three-fourths of the benches empty.

All flocked back, however, when M. Labori rose and asked that Captain Freystaetter be called to the bar. Everybody knew the significance of his appearance, and dead silence fell upon the court as the little sergeant-usher returned, conducting a tall, keen-looking man, seeming every inch a soldier in his parade uniform of a captain of marine infantry, wearing five decorations in a row across his breast, the red ribbon rosette of an officer of the Legion of Honor, a cross and three medals, won in foreign campaigns, including a Madagascar medal, from which country he returned about a year ago.

Holding his head high, and with complete serenity of demeanor, he walked into the courtroom, passing in front of Generals Mercier, Roget, Gonse and De Boisedeffre, who were sitting in the front row of witnesses, and who gave him sidelong, rancorous glances, which he did not see, as he marched with his eyes fixed on the judges toward the platform.

This he ascended, coming to a halt in front of Colonel Jouaust. He smartly gave the military salute, took off his kepi, stood at attention and replied to the formal questions as to his name, age and the like in a resonant tone, which he maintained through the whole of his testimony. Never once did his voice falter. Never did it degenerate into hoarse croaking, as Colonel Maurel's did when Captain Freystaetter, looking him straight into the eyes, and with astonishing calmness, gave him the lie.

Captain Freystaetter's opening statement was a discharge of grapeshot for the Mercier gang. He enumerated four documents that were secretly communicated to the tribunal of 1894. The first Captain Dreyfus energetically denied, and no reliable evidence has been adduced in its support. The second was the "Canaille de D—" document, which has been shown not to refer to Dreyfus at all. The third was the d'Avignon letter, supporting the second, which therefore falls to the ground with it; while the fourth was the Panizzardi dispatch, which has been proved incorrectly translated, and ruled out of the proceedings by Colonel Jouaust in the present trial as unreliable.

This was the precious selection of waste paper which was deliberately communicated to the judges in 1894 and which swayed their judgment. The announcement that the Panizzardi dispatch was one of the secret documents was another hard blow to Mercier's reputation, because he had declared in his deposition that this dispatch was not communicated to the tribunal in 1894.

M. Labori asked Colonel Maurel to explain his declaration that only one document was read. Maurel gave the reply: "I did not say only one was read. I say I only read one." A wave of indignation passed over the audience and his ears were assailed with a tempest of hisses and "Ohs," which were renewed when he repeated in a distracted way that he had only read one.

Captain Freystaetter did not hesitate a second when M. Labori asked him if he maintained his statement. He replied: "Not only did I read the documents, but Colonel Maurel read them and made a commentary after each."

This was the lie direct to Colonel Maurel, who did not protest, but merely objected to the term "commentary." Maurel thus stands before the world as a self-confessed liar. His endeavors to throw mud at Captain Freystaetter by cynically asking why the latter had not spoken before during the last five years only recoiled on himself and placed Captain Freystaetter in a still more creditable light. Captain Freystaetter's candid admission that he did wrong unwittingly and that, when he knew of it, he obeyed the dictates of his conscience, evoked a murmur of admiration.

M. Labori then called General Mercier again to the stand to drive him into a corner on the Panizzardi dispatch, but Mercier was allowed to question Captain Freystaetter, endeavoring to catch him on a question regarding the Robin shell. His deliberate attempt to make Captain Freystaetter out a liar was a specimen of the disgraceful tactics of the military clique. The audience shuddered when he cried, "I have caught Captain Freystaetter in a deliberate lie."

Almost anyone else would have struck Mercier down; but Captain Freystaetter gave a splendid example of coolness and self-control in the face of such an outrageous attack. He confronted General Mercier with the same undaunted but not defiant demeanor as he maintained toward the judges, whereas General Mercier and Colonel Maurel were barely able to contain themselves with concentrated rage. The people in the courtroom gazed upon this extraordinary scene with a fever of excitement, straining forward, with eyes bulging, drinking in every word and gesture of a three-cornered duel—a simple captain against a general and a colonel.

Captain Freystaetter replied stoutly and without a tremor of voice that he did not say the document referred to the Robin shell, but to a shell. This simple retort exposed Mercier's craftiness; and Captain Freystaetter in a convincing manner repeated his declaration that the Panizzardi dispatch was communicated to the court-martial, quoting its opening words and thus flatly contradicting Mercier.

Then it was that M. Labori saw his opening to force upon Colonel Jouaust the necessity of bringing De Clam into court, as, in face of the contradictory declarations of General Mercier and Captain Freystaetter, the evidence of De Clam could alone decide the matter, especially in view of the fact that General Mercier has said in his deposition that De Clam compiled the dossier, including the explanations sent with the documents.

When M. Labori tackled him, however, Mercier saw the trap and immediately shifted his ground, declaring that he had

'TIS "OLD HOME WEEK."

Granite State's New Festival Formally Opened by the Governor.

Bonfires on Many Hilltops In Token of Welcome.

Old Pastors In Former Pulpits and Past Choir Members Join In Singing Old Tunes.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 28.—New Hampshire's new festival, "old home week," was auspiciously inaugurated at Rollinsford, the home of the ancestors of Governor Rollins, for whom the town was named. The governor and other distinguished people were present. The exercises included a reception, a dinner and a literary program. A poem by Dr. William Hale of Gloucester was read. Mrs. Annie W. Baer delivered an historical address, and speeches were made by Governor Rollins, Judge Pike of the supreme court, and others.

In the course of his address, Governor Rollins spoke of the significance of the day, claiming, among other things, that over 10,000 natives of New Hampshire reside within a radius of 10 miles of the state house in Boston. The idea of old home week was first manifested in a speech by the governor at a dinner of the Sons of New Hampshire held in Boston. The idea met with approval, and of the hundred associations formed in the cities and towns of the state, Rollinsford was the first to observe the occasion in a public celebration.

Governor Rollins said that he had received hundreds of responses signifying the intentions of former residents to return for the week, many from persons who had not visited their homes for 25 years. The speaker gave the grange credit for putting the movement through, and, in conclusion, he spoke of the help the grange will be in promoting good roads and developing the natural resources of the state.

Carroll, Freedom and Bridgewater were about the only other places to hold special celebrations, most of the towns in which old homestead week associations have been organized having selected some day when a larger attendance might be expected.

In answer to an expressed wish of Governor Rollins, bonfires were lighted on many hilltops in the state, in token of welcome to sons and daughters of New Hampshire returning to their native towns to enjoy reunion with relatives and friends of earlier days.

Eight o'clock was the hour set for the kindling of the beacon flames, but the blazing of the fire on top of Beech hill, in Hopkinton, at 7:30 o'clock, was taken as a signal for the firing of a huge pile of combustibles on the summit of Rattlesnake hill, the highest point within Concord city limits.

Kearsarge mountain was quick to respond with a bonfire, prepared by direction of A. N. Batchelder, secretary of the State Old Home association. From a point commanding a view of country stretching over distances from 25 to 50 or 75 miles, toward various points of the compass, fires could be seen—one on Sandborntown mountain, one on Knowlton's hill, in Boscawen, another on Dunbarton's hill, and a fourth on Oak hill, in London. Crowds of people in this city sought advantageous points from which to see the chain of beacon fires.

Judging from what is known here as to the plans of the different town committees, New Hampshire must have been dotted by fires from Coos to the sea, from the Piscataqua to the Connecticut. It was an auspicious and picturesque opening for old home week.

In the well-remembered church on the hill, the chapel in the pines, or the more modern temples on the busy city streets, were held yesterday throughout the state, appropriate religious services as a part of the observance of old home week.

Former pastors occupied pulpits where in days gone by they had expounded the doctrine, past members of the choir sought the singers' seats and joined in the old tunes, while the members of the congregation again sat in the old pews and recalled the Sundays of their childhood days. Nearly every church in the state had a congregation composed more or less of seeming strangers, but who, in reality, were old members. The services were greatly enjoyed by all, and in nearly every case the week's observance was the theme of the day's sermon.

In this city one of the largest congregations assembled at the morning service at the Friends Christian church, where Rev. Roland D. Grant preached, and "Uncle Ben" Davis, for more than 60 years a music teacher in the state, led the choir. At the First Methodist church there was also a large attendance, and Rev. C. C. Hills, D. D., conducted the services.

Governor Rollins attended church in Mount Vernon, while in Springfield a special old home week service was held in the Union church and Rev. Orin Webster preached. A dinner for the visitors was served in the Springfield town hall.

At Dunbarton a union service was held by the Baptist, Episcopal and Congregational churches, and Rev. George L. Putnam of Millbury, Mass., and Rev. Leonard Parker of Cambridge preached the sermons.

An earnest attempt has been made in many parts of the state to place in good order the old cemeteries. In Webster quite a sum has been raised for this purpose, while other towns will follow its example.

Good Afternoon.

The rally of the Social Democrats on Sunday was chiefly a meeting for labor agitators, and was not applicable to conditions in Quincy. Much was said in criticism of existing conditions in the country without proposing any specific remedy. Without question coal miners, and in many states mill operatives and contract laborers, are oppressed, but in Quincy and Massachusetts labor is not so degraded and in the starving condition as the agitators would make the people think. That most of the people are content is proven by the opening remarks of one of the speakers, that he would be satisfied if he made one man dissatisfied. No one believes that three per cent. of the people of this city control the labor of Quincy. It is doubtful if three per cent. would admit that they are controlled by anyone. In the granite business, the manufacturers have had for a few years as hard a time as the cutters to make both ends meet. Both are now enjoying a wave of prosperity which promises better times. It may not be wise for miners, mill operatives and others to own their homes, but it is not good advice to give to people in Quincy.

We all of us know of abuses which we would like to see corrected, and which we have confidence will be righted. There is almost unanimous oppositions to trusts and combines, but how to reach them is not clear. Surely many do not wish to trust their future in the hands of Socialists who belittle the President, Governor, Legislature, and courts; who make such reckless statements as did Representative Carey, that the Quincy Representatives had no use for their constituents after election; that said Representatives poured whiskey into the voters on election day and after election dropped them hard. The evils of the trusts are not yet manifest, and are largely imaginary. Perhaps they will not be the successes or evils that the promoters anticipate. Municipal ownership has made rapid strides in late years without the help of Socialists. Streets, bridges, schools water and sewers are generally in municipal control, and in several cities, gas, electric lighting, etc. Garbage and ashes are collected by cities; sewer and water connections made; bath houses, libraries, parks, etc., maintained. In fact the drift is decidedly that way. Yet few will admit that it is time to run municipal street railways, municipal telephone system, municipal shoe factories, municipal granite plants, etc.

The tax rate of Hull, with its big revenue from liquor licenses, is $16.25. It costs something to run small towns, especially where liquor abounds.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The State Committee of the Socialist party decided yesterday at a meeting to hold the State Convention in Horticultural Hall, Worcester, on Monday, Sept. 25.

☞ Speaking of French justice, it was Alexander Dumas who remarked that, if he was accused of stealing the towers of Notre Dame, he would not undertake to defend himself in a French court. He would simply bolt instead.

☞ George Washington Clark of Milford, Conn., was successful yesterday morning in shooting a chicken thief, who had stolen some fifty of his fowls. The dead man's pocket-book bore the words, Adam Wing, Monson, Mass.

☞ Talking about female rulers, what's the matter with Deborah? She judged Israel and the Bible tersely states that "the land had rest forty years." That is an excellent commentary on her reign.—Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser.

☞ The Dreyfus case has reached a stage where its vicious character is well understood. The victim has already received his acquittal from the world, which is not personal liberty, but it is a step toward securing it and possibly preserving his life.—New Haven Register.

☞ So long as we have a free government, and every man can invest and double his money as he sees fit, we will have the inequalities which now exist between rich and poor. We would not be as prosperous as we are probably, if it were otherwise.—Waterbury Democrat.

☞ Edward Atkinson and his colleagues, newspapers and individuals, have now a new field open to them and they should seize the opportunity. Mexico is attempting to put down an insurrection of the Yaquis Indians. These Indians are not "governed by their consent,' and have gone to war. Why not bombard President Diaz, his generals and soldiers with documents showing the great outrage being done the Yaqui—Nashville American.

☞ The Porto Rico relief fund already collected in Boston, and forwarded to the sufferers by the recent hurricane, is a notable example of the generosity of the Hub whenever there is a call upon the liberality of Bostonians. Those cities that are so ready to sneer at the chief New England city would be better employed by showing what they can do for charity. It is one of Boston's peculiarities to always be ready to answer a call of distress, and it would be better for the country if there were more cities that were likewise peculiar.—Lynn Item.

☞ We want a thorough demonstration of the superiority of the winning boat in the contest for the America's cup in October and do not desire that the prize shall go to either boat as the result of a fluke. For this reason it is hoped that the Shamrock has not been badly strained by her trip across the ocean, and that whatever defects she may show as the result of that voyage may be speedily overcome. A fair race and the prize to the honest winner thereof is the American idea of yacht racing, whether the result be in our favor or against us.—Brockton Times.

☞ Did you ever stop to think how ludicrous some expressions that people commonly use, are, and how little they mean, when they are really mean to mean much? We overheard a man talking about the way somebody treated someone else who was a neighbor. To give full force to his feelings in the matter, he said: "Why, he treated him like a dog." That meant in their mind that they suffered lots of abuse. Then we fell to thinking as to how dogs were treated, and as a matter of personal observation we came to the prompt conclusion that if we could be cared for as carefully as most of dogs, are, we'd consider ourselves born lucky.—Beverly Times.

☞ Schools similar in scope and design to the Tuskegee Institute should be scattered all over the south, and the Negroes taught not to seek an avenue of escape from manual labor, but to set about manual labor with more zeal and knowledge. Only a small percentage can become successful members of the learned professions or successful business men, and these will rise to the surface by the force of their own energy and ability, and probably rise all the more quickly and easily from the foundation of a good industrial education. The same is true to a greater or less extent of the white race. What the world needs now in greatest numbers is skilled workers to carry on the great industries that are adding so much to the sum of human wealth and comfort.—Minneapolis Tribune.

An Interesting Legal Case.

The Nevada State Courts have decided, in the case of Knox vs. Rossi, the first case that has arisen under he present War Revenue law, that the absence of the required stamp on a document does not affect its admissibility as evidence in a state court, but only in the courts which have been established under the U.S. Constitution and by acts of Congress. Under the War Revenue act of the Rebellion in the case of Carpenter vs. Snelling, 97 Mass. 452, it was held that the force of the act was limited to courts of the United States. The act states that unstamped documents cannot be used as evidence in "any" court, but this is interpreted to mean, any United States court. This decision will interest lawyers and business men.

THE SOCIALISTS.

Quincy Branch Hold Open-Air Meeting.

A Large and Enthuasiastic Gathering.

Appeals to the Prejudices and the Classes.

The Social Democrats had a very sucessful open air meeting Sunday afternoon in Bellamy grove so-called by Branch 21 of Quincy at the junction of New road and South street. About 500 were present when the speaking began but the audience increased so that during the latter part of the afternoon upwards of 1000 were in the grove and neighborhood. All shades of politics were represented—Democrats, Republicans, Prohibitions and independents, city officials and ex-officials. Some may have joined the ranks of the Social Democrats during the past year but a large number were present out of curiosity. The speakers were all earnest and entertaining and their bright salies amused and met the approbation of many but were equally disgusting to others.

Two platforms were erected near the street one for the speakers and the other for the band. Over the speakers platform was a very small shield with insignificant letters which almost trembled as they spelled out "Fear Not.' Nailed upon trees in the grove were declarations of faith, etc., the most important of which read:

"Trusts and combine are pushing the small merchants and manufacturer to the wall. With their unlimited capital they control modern labor saving machinery which is forcing the wage worker into idleness or to labor for wages which are insufficient for subsistence. The remedy we advocate is public ownership in connection with the initiative and referendum. We are rich in faith and enthusiasm but poor in funds. Donations to carry on this work cheerfully accepted."

Soap boxes were located in the grove to receive contributions. Attention was called to them from the platform but the announcement was made that everything was free even refreshments which were served to all who desired.

From 1 until 1.45 P. M. there was a concert by the City Band which was much enjoyed. Literature of the party was distributed meantime. The arrival of the speakers was greeted with applause.

Mr. Phillip Halvosa who is president of the Granite Cutters' Union as well as a leading Social Democrat presided and in opening hoped the audience would give the views advocated due consideration.

Comrade Harding of Haverhill was first introduced. His face wore a continual smile and he appeared happy but he claimed wrong ruled the land and spoke against existing conditions. He said the tendency was to cling to old ideas but admitted in the same breath that the world had progressed. He asserted that if a laboring man dared to think, he lost his job and was out in the street. Relief was possible at the ballot box. He appealed in the name of wife and children and made a rather startling statement that inmates of prisons were more sinned against than sinned.

Comrade Lowell of Whitman followed. He is a laster by trade. He said he came to spread discontent and he should be satisfied if he made one man dissatisfied. He advocated collective ownership and equality. The only day to strike was election day. He said cities must have some other revenue to prosper, and cited Brockton which he said was almost bankrupt. The valuation was going up, and the taxpayers can't raise the money. Economy in money was the cry of city governments, but monopolies must be run in the interest of the public to secure relief. Like the post offices, where stamps were so much each, and schools where all were on an equality; not like railroads where there was single fare, 10-trip tickets and 100-ride tickets, at varying prices.

The Soper family of Rockland composed of Mr. and Mrs. Soper, two sons and two daughters, rendered a vocal selection which met with favor and they were recalled.

Comrade Mealy of Alabama said the meeting was significant of the times. That a few years ago it was impossible for Socialists to get an audience, but it was not so now. When three per cent. of the people of the United States control labor it was wrong. He wanted the emancipation of the people, and spoke of the life of coal miners. He said the worst thing a man can do is to own his home, as then he is tied there. He wanted to see a working class party.

Blanche Lowell of Whitman, a cute little miss, recited a selection, and was recalled for another. She was followed by the band.

Representative James Carey of Haverhill made the longest speech of the afternoon. He said machines were displacing the small producer and displacing labor. He separated the world into two classes: the class who owned the earth and the class who had nothing but their misery."

Speaking of strikes, he said he had no hope for a people where the men did not dare to strike. If nothing more a strike was a protest against tyranny. The Adamses whom the country revere would have been rebels if they had not been successful in their strike against King George. Had they lost they would have been hung. Machinery of production and distribution will be multiplied and multiplied, and the number of laborers reduced. Now more shoes can be made in six months than the country requires in a year.

Speaking of the petition from the granite cutters of Quincy to the Legislature, authorizing a patrol during strikes, he said he and his colleague from Haverhill were alone in support of it. Where were your Representatives? They love you only on election day, when they pour whiskey into you. After election they drop you hard. At the State House you could not tell the difference between a Democrat and a Republican; they all belong to the capitalist class. I favored the trial by jury in contempt cases. Workingmen who didn't have contempt for court ought to be put in jail. Your Representative in charge of the bill said I was opposed to law and order. He urged all to be workingmen on election day. The Dubuque law was characterized as an abortion, and he told of a party he had in the House with the Quincy representative.

Such was the applause that greeted Representative Carey when he closed that he was recalled. He told the story of the capitalist and the bedbug. The man had no objection to the capitalist as such or the bedbug as a bug, but he did not like the way they got a living.

"The Holy City" was beautifully rendered as a vocal solo by Mr. Lewis Griffith, to accompaniment by the band.

The next speaker introduced was "Malin," a correspondent of the Social Democratic Herald, who said all helped injustice by some social interests. He spoke of the possibility of an universal pleasure. We have all the material to build an earthly heaven but have used them to build an earthly hell. The world was simply an industrial battle field. The cause of poverty was social and not industrial. All the privation in the world was caused by rottenness in social industry. So long as there are twelve men for every six jobs there was bound to be selfishness. Workingmen who meet on Sundays are doing what pious people are praying God to accomplish. A wage was a symbol of slavery. We do not want wages from the employer but a right from an equal. The only golden rule today is to do others or they will do you. We want to strengthen the Socialist party with a clean cut belief which is founded in the Social Democratic party. This was the only party that would bring about Socialism in America. It was bound to come as the outcome of the social industrial conditions as they exist today. All we need to do to organize as workingmen and demand our rights and then there is nothing on earth that can withstand its power.

After a selection by the band Hon. John C. Chase, mayor of Haverhill was introduced. Mayor Chase was the last speaker and he talked for an hour. The present condition of things, he said, was the outcome of greed. We are suffering for the necessaries of life when it was unnecessary as there was plenty. We insist it be run in such a manner that the millions of people shall not starve to death. Why is it possible to see stores loaded with necessities and people starving? There is only one way out of it. People must assume control of everything that produces the wants of man. The speaker then contrasted the shoe business of twenty years ago with today. Now it was impossible for a man to save money enough from his pay to go into business for himself. He is a slave to economic principles. There was not employment enough. Every walk in life was overcrowded. Every one of us who upholds the present condition stands guilty of making a tramp and beggar of a man. People reject Socialism because they do not understand it. When we contemplate the fact of the many trusts forming we have got to turn to Socialism. The development has reached a place where we have got to force the crisis. He then spoke of the Social Democratic movement, and its growth in Haverhill. His election as mayor did more for the emancipation of the people of this country than anything that has happened for years. A white working man today has not got the value of a jackass as there are so many more of them. He is worse than the Negro slave of '61. The Negro then had a commercial value, the same as a horse today. We can not expect people who are living off us to say thank you and get out. We have got to say, you have used this machine long enough, it belongs to us. What does it matter to us to say who shall make law if we have nothing to say how we shall make our living. We do not believe in

ALMOST A MURDER.

Brutal Assault With an Axe at Atlantic.

The Victim is Likely to Recover.

Assailant is Arraigned in the Quincy Court.

There was a lively fracas at the house of Frederick Cornish on Walnut street, Atlantic, Sunday afternoon, and that murder did not result was a miracle. As it was Edward Fyburn of Hancock street received five deep cuts in the head, besides a badly lacerated finger and arm, which it is alleged were caused by an axe in the hands of Cornish.

From what can be learned, it would appear that Saturday night Cornish put in a lot of liquid refreshments to carry him over Sunday. In the afternoon several of his friends called and beer was freely drank. It is said, however, that none of the parties were so drunk as not to know what they were about.

Later in the afternoon Edward Fyburn of Hancock street, a brother of Mrs. Cornish, called at Cornish house and was also treated to beer. Finally Fyburn went upstairs with his sister and was soon after followed by Cornish. Just what took place there is as yet unknown. It is, however, said that Cornish claimed that Fyburn struck his sister in the face. A war of words followed, which as it continued, grew warmer. Then it is alleged that Cornish rushed down stairs, and possessing an axe he went back and made a murderous attack upon Fyburn, who was unarmed and unable to defend himself against the fierce onslaught.

Cornish used the sharp end of the axe and it descended rapidly upon the head of Fyburn. Fyburn it is said dropped at the first blow, but Cornish, more as a fiend than anything else, continued to rain savage blows on Fyburn's head.

Fyburn received five deep cuts on the head, one of his fingers was almost severed, and his right arm was cut. Everything about the room was covered with blood and it resembled a slaughter house.

In the house besides Cornish, his wife and Fyburn, were Edward Walsh, Norman McLane and Thomas Fay. After the assault officer McCarty, who was on duty at Atlantic, was notified and he in turn notified Officer Holoran. As soon as they arrived at the house, Cornish was placed under arrest.

Dr. Bruce had also been notified and attended to the injured man. The cuts in the head were sewed up, sixteen stitches being required. Before Fyburn's wounds could be dressed, it is said he lost over two quarts of blood and was very weak. He was taken to is home and is now in a precarious condition, although the physician says unless something new develops he will recover.

Fyburn is reported as comfortable this morning and will be about again in a few days.

Cornish was arraigned in court this morning for assault with a dangerous weapon, and the case was continued until such time as Fyburn is able to appear.

Mail Destroyed.

A pouch containing the Cape mail was run over by the cars at the Quincy depot this morning and badly cut up. The train upon which this pouch arrives runs express through Quincy and is due at 7.30. The mail pouch is thrown off as the train approaches the station. It was thrown off as usual this morning, but the suction was so great, that after striking the platform it was drawn beneath the cars and the wheels passed over it. The engineer felt the jar as the wheels passed over the pouch and stopped the train. The pouch was cut and the mail matter quite badly mutilated.

THE SOCIALISTS.

dividing up the profits of the world. We want to stop the dividing up. We say the machinery of production shall be owned and operated by the people. That the products shall belong to those who created them. For illustration let there be a Shoe Master General who shall carry on the shoe business, as the Postmaster General carries on the mail. He will ascertain how many shoes are needed and how many men working six hours a day will be required to make them. We want the abolition of the capitalistics system and we will not stop until that is accomplished. The platform of Social Democracy is public ownership. In closing the speaker urged his hearers to go to the polls and vote for the Social Democratic party.

The meeting closed with "America" by the band.

Handsome Souvenir.

The very expensive and costly souvenir edition of the Quincy Patriot, which has taken constant work of canvassers, photographers, engravers and printers for months to complete, is now ready for patrons.

Quite a large edition has been published, and it will be sold at the low price of 30 cents per copy. When eight or more copies are furnished to one person, the price will be 25 cents. Although the edition is large it will, very likely, be soon exhausted, when no more can be had at any price, as no second edition will be issued.

The publishers will furnish to every subscriber to the Quincy Patriot, whose name appears on the books, one copy of the Souvenir gratis. This will take a larger part of the edition; therefore those thinking of getting copies for themselves or friends should attend to it at once. The pamphlet weighs between one and two pounds, and Postmaster Hammond says the postage will be eleven cents. A copy will be mailed to every subscriber living out of the city, who will send his or her name and postage. Subscribers living in the city will receive them by carriers. If any one fails to receive a copy, please call at the Patriot office for one.

The subscribers at Atlantic can procure a copy by calling at the news stand of Branschied & Martens.

Copies will be for sale at the new South Station in Boston and at the principal news stands in Quincy.

Knives and Stones.

A gang of Italians somewhat under the influence of liquor created quite a little excitement on West street, near the railroad crossing Sunday afternoon. The story is that the Italians made an insulting remark to a young girl who was passing. A crowd of young fellows nearby, who saw and heard the remark, undertook to take her part. This apparently angered the Italians who drew their knives and made for them. As might be expected they quickly scattered, leaving the Italians in possession of the field. Two of the young men took refuge in the flagman's shanty at the railroad crossing. The Italians made an attack on this with stones but did not attempt to enter. The shanty, however, was considerably battered. The two fellows later made their escape in safety.

A Mistake.

Mention has been made of the fact that T. H. Kingstone was building a cesspool upon his estate on Chestnut street, instead of entering the sewer which has been built in that street.

In connection with this Mr. Kingstone says, that when he commenced to build his cesspool he did not know that the sewer had been built in that street. As soon as he learned that there was a sewer there he immediately made application to enter the sewer, and stopped work on the cesspool.

Sunday Night's Fire.

The alarm from Box 46 at 9.40 o'clock Sunday night was for a fire in the house of Mrs. Patrick Kelly at 158 Copeland street. The fire started from an unknown cause in some clothing that hung in a bath room on the first floor. The fire was confined to this room and the damage will not be over $75.

Accidental Burns

Are quickly relieved by Comfort Powder. Nothing stops the smart and heals the skin so quickly. There should be a box in every kitchen.

A West Harwich item in the Herald says, This part of the Cape seems to be the one place in the United States where the horse is supreme and where the bicycle is at rest. It seems that the turnouts improve in quality and quantity every season. This year a first-class horse show could be organized down on the Cape from the many splendid horses and rigs seen daily. Worthy of mention are those of Mr. Caleb Chase of Brookline, Mr. A. B. C. Currier of Boston, Mr. James W. Bill of Ogdensburg, N. Y., Mr. James H. Stetson of Quincy, Mass., Mr. Charles R. Adams of Boston and Mrs. Frank Thompson of St. Louis.

Bathers were scarce, although the water was not so cold as the air. Representatives from the Metropoitlan Park Commission were present taking photographs of the hotels embraced in the proposed reservation.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

made a mistake in saying that De Clam compiled the dossier, since he had been informed by General Boisdeffre that the late Colonel Sandherr compiled it.

This is the dying effort of the general staff to hide the truth behind the veil of death; and the audience shuddered with disgust, Labori uttering his despairing cry: "Always the dead! Always the dead!"

It is rumored that the government has decided to arrest General Mercier, but the rumor is not confirmed. Saturday evening a report was in circulation that General Mercier had fled to the island of Jersey, but this story proved to be without foundation. Early yesterday morning the gendarmes were still posted outside the residence of General St. Germain, military commander of this district, with whom General Mercier has been staying during the trial. Their presence indicated that he was still there and, in reply to questions, they declared that they had not seen him leave the grounds.

The futurity was worth nearly $42,000.

DRIBBLES HIS REPLIES.

Kruger Shows Too Much Procrastination, According to Chamberlain.

Cannot Permit Delay to Continue Much Longer.

Great Britain Must Be Established as the Paramount Power in Africa.

Birmingham, Eng., Aug. 28.—In throwing open his own gardens here to the members of the St. Bartholomew's Ward Liberal-Unionists, Joseph Chamberlain was drawn into the most important speech on the Transvaal situation he has made since the adjournment of parliament. He said:

"I know there is one subject which is very deep in all your hearts and about which I cannot talk or say much, lest I do harm. That is the relation of our race with the Transvaal government. I wish that I could tell you today that the difficulties existing for so many years between her majesty's government and the oligarchy in Pretoria, which has assumed such an acute form during the last few years, were happily settled. But, unfortunately, that is not yet in my power.

"For three months we have been negotiating. President Kruger has made, perhaps, some little progress, but I cannot truly say that the crisis is passed. President Kruger procrastinates in his reply. He dribbles each reply like water from a squeezed sponge. His offers are accompanied with conditions which he knows to be impossible or he refuses to allow us to make a satisfactory investigation of their nature.

"I do not think it will be denied that we have exhibited patience unparalleled in the relations between a paramount and a subordinate state. The situation is too frought with danger, it is too strained for indefinite postponement. The knot must be loosened, to use Mr. Balfour's words, or else we shall have to find other ways of untying it.

"If we are forced to do that, then I would repeat now words used by Lord Salisbury in the house of lords. I say that, if forced to make further preparations, if this delay continues much longer, we shall not hold ourselves limited by what we have already offered but, having taken this matter in hand, we will not let go until we have secured conditions which, once for all, will establish us as the paramount power in South Africa and secure for our subjects there those equal rights and privileges promised by President Kruger when the Transvaal's independence was granted.

"If it comes to this, if the rupture which we have done every thing in our power to avoid is forced upon us, I am confident we shall have the support not only of the vast majority of Britons, but of the whole empire. In all this bad business there is one thing upon which we may congratulate ourselves, and that is the unity of the empire. No British subject can suffer injustice anywhere without awakening a responsive chord in our most distant colonies which stand shoulder to shoulder in maintaining the honor and interests of the empire."

Gold In Ontario.

Minneapolis, Aug. 28.—A special from Mine Center, Ont., says: What the discoverer claims to be a new mining district has been found by a Mr. King of the Sawbill lake region east of here. He and a companion have been prospecting north of the Canadian Pacific road, and 65 miles from the line, almost direct north from Bonheurst station, they have found a district possessing rich veins of gold-bearing quartz. Both King and his companion have taken up claims which are said to carry free milling gold in rich quantities.

Will Stick to Silver.

Kansas City, Aug. 28.—William J. Bryan stopped here between trains while en route to Denver. "I shall continue to discuss silver," said Mr. Bryan, in response to a query, adding: "There was a story recently that I was putting silver in the background. I am not. I will not. Silver will be placed alongside the other great issues, and it will be given its due share of consideration. I stand by the Chicago Democratic platform."

On Whitecaps' Tracks.

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 28.—According to a Tampa special to The Times Union and Citizen eight government officers, together with District Attorney Stripling and Commissioner Crane, have gone to Peck with warrants for 16 persons charged with participation in the whipping of Postmaster Crum by whitecaps, and also the intimidation of his colored assistant, Dan Morrison.

Needs Overhauling.

Washington, Aug. 28.—The Boston, which arrived at San Francisco Saturday from Manila, has been ordered out of commission, and will go to the Mare Island navy yard, to be dismantled preparatory to undergoing a complete overhauling. The Boston brings back a number of short-time enlisted men and officers who have had more than their share of service at sea.

Whitney Syndicate's Big Deal.

Halifax, Aug. 28.—A dispatch from Sydney says: The Dominion Iron and Steel company will, in a few days, through President Whitney, execute a bond to the National Trust company of Boston for $8,000,000, to forward the company's great project. Six million will be paid over at once, and the trust company will furnish the balance as required.

Double Murder at 'Frisco.

San Francisco, Aug. 28.—George Tanner, a water front saloon keeper, yesterday murdered Deputy Sheriff James R. Brown and Fannie Barnes, a woman with whom Brown consorted, in a lodging house in this city. It is said the woman had been friendly with Tanner, but they recently quarreled. Tanner was arrested.

CHAMPIONS SIX GAMES BEHIND.

Trolley Dodgers Are Widening the Gap Between Them and the Coveted Pennant.

The Bostons, the Philadelphias, the Pittsburgs and the Clevelands lay idle yesterday, while the other clubs of the big league circuit went out on western fields and improved their percentage standing several points in some cases.

Brooklyn seems to gain inch by inch at any and every opportunity over Boston, and by defeating the Chicagos yesterday went up another inch towards pennant heights. Thus the Bostons are six games behind Brooklyn's winning record, and in games lost the Dodgers lead by an even seven battles. Following is the standing:

	Won.	Lost.	P'c't.
Brooklyn	73	35	.676
Boston	67	42	.615

Slot Machines Raided.

Philadelphia, Aug. 28.—Sheriff Sell of Camden county, N. J., with 40 policemen sworn in as deputies, yesterday raided 50 saloons in Gloucester, and captured 400 gambling devices of the slot machine order. The raids were planned and directed by the Law and Order society of this city, which has been collecting evidence for some time past. In nearly every case the officers met with resistance, and as a result more than a dozen men are in the hospital, some of them injured so badly that their recovery is doubtful. Knives, pistols and blackjacks were freely used, the patrons of the various saloons being under the impression that the police were there to arrest them. Gloucester is a resort on the Delaware river, about six miles below this city, and is known as a "wide-open" town. The saloons have always done a flourishing business on Sunday.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Rev. Thomas Lynch, vicar general of Vermont, was stricken with paralysis of the heart while out riding, and died before medical aid could be summoned. Father Lynch was born in Ireland in 1831.

Bridget O'Brien was burned to death at Fall River, Mass., by her clothing catching fire from an overturned lamp.

Lorin D. Avery, 46, was found dead on the tracks of the New England railroad at East Longmeadow, Mass. The head and both legs were crushed, and it is supposed that he was struck by a train.

Fire at Reading, Mich., a town of 1500 population, destroyed 21 buildings. The aggregate loss is about $75,000.

G. Turina, a prominent sculptor, who has been employed for some days on the Dewey triumphal arch, now under course of construction at New York, died suddenly at his home. Turina was 60 years of age, and was born in Verona, Italy. Casper Bubert, who was also engaged on the Dewey arch, dropped dead a few days ago.

The glass works of Gill & Co. at Philadelphia were burned. A dozen dwelling houses adjoining were damaged by fire and water. The total loss is about $100,000.

Steamer Mesaba, at New York from London, brought a full set of racing spars for the cup challenger Shamrock. The mast is of Oregon pine and of great length. In addition to the spars brought by the Mesaba, three steel and aluminum spars, two wooden spars and some sails and gearing for the Shamrock arrived on the steamship St. Louis.

A human skeleton was found in the Connecticut river at a point nearly opposite Woodsville, N. H., on the Vermont side. The bones were bare of flesh or clothing. No identity has been made.

During a small fire in a restaurant at Lynn, Mass., the firemen and the police rescued, with considerable difficulty, Mary Donnelly and her daughter, Elizabeth, who occupied rooms on the second floor. Both women were overcome by the smoke, but revived.

John T. Flavin, president of the Wisconsin State Teachers' association, and for 25 years county superintendent of education, committed suicide by hanging to a tree on his farm at Watertown, Wis. Despondency and overwork are believed to have been the cause.

Dr. Max Thorner, a widely known ear and nose specialist, dropped dead at his home in Avondale, O., of heart failure.

George Albach, aged 30, attempted to coast down a hill at Meriden, Conn., on his bicycle, but was unable to turn at the foot of the hill and ran into a pile of rocks. He was so severely injured that no hopes of his recovery are entertained.

Harry Humphrey of Hampden, Me., aged 11, was drowned in the stream there. He got into deep water while swimming.

MURDER AT NARRAGANSETT PIER.

Woman Found With Bullet Hole In Head---Husband Suspected of Crime.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 28.—The body of Mrs. Andrew Weeden, colored, was found behind the electric light station here at 11:30 Saturday night. There was a bullet hole through her temple. The body was found by William Jackson, and a search is being made for the woman's husband, who has disappeared.

The street leading from one or two of the large hotels to the railroad station is lined with small structures inhabited by the hotel help, as well as those engaged in laundry work, and it was in one of these houses that Mrs. Weeden made her home. The electric light station is within a few feet of the house, between it and the railroad station.

One of the first inquiries made by the police was as to the whereabouts of the woman's husband and of their relations. Numerous stories at once sprang up, the gist of them being that the couple had not lived together for some time, and that Weeden had been seen at the Pier Saturday noon. The police began a search for him at once.

At Mrs. Weeden's own home the police gained little in the way of information, except that the woman had been seen about the house just before dark. Nothing, however, was seen of the husband at that time.

Dr. Wilcox, the medical examiner, held an autopsy Sunday afternoon on the body of Mrs. Weeden and then turned it over to an undertaker. She had been killed by a 22-caliber bullet, which entered in front of the right ear and flattened itself in going through the cranium into the brain. She probably died half an hour after the wound was inflicted. No revolver has been found. She was 18 years old and leaves one child. She was married three years ago. There is Indian and white blood in the family, which has always borne a good reputation. The Weeden family has lived at the Pier and is well spoken of by acquaintances. It is said, however, that Andrew Weeden had been drinking of late and had cruelly used his wife, which caused her to leave him three weeks ago.

There is every indication that Weeden was jealous of his wife after seeing her in company of another colored man. She probably aroused her husband's anger by attending a dance of colored people at Halcyon hall early in the week and by accepting the escort home of William Jackson, a truck driver, who found the body and notified the police Saturday night. Mrs. Weeden had also visited an ice cream saloon with Jackson Saturday evening. The police do not believe Jackson had anything to do with the crime, but he is looked up as an important witness.

Mormon Elder Shut Off.

Boston, Aug. 28.—Elder Ephraim Jensen, the Mormon elder, who preached a week ago Sunday on Boston Common, was prevented from repeating his sermon yesterday by the police, under orders of Mayor Quincy. Elder Jensen had received a letter from the mayor informing him that his permit to speak had been revoked. The mayor stated that he did not understand the nature of the request for the permit when it was made, and had since ascertained that the elder was advocating principles contrary to the laws of the United States. The elder tried to begin his sermon yesterday, but an officer quickly stepped forward and informed him that he would not be allowed to continue.

Fast Road Wheeling.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 28.—Bert Russell of this city yesterday lowered the road record between this city and Boston and return. He covered the distance of 198 miles in 14 hours and 12 minutes, cutting down the old mark of 14:47. This was his second attempt.

Jones' Novel Campaign.

Toledo, Aug. 28.—The committee in charge of Mayor Jones' independent canvass for governer has arranged a trip for the mayor over the state, and for this purpose has secured an automobile. With the candidate will go a speaker and singer, and the music used will also be furnished by Mr. Jones. In addition to this feature a horde of canvassers will be started in a few days, and they will sell Mayor Jones' book, "The New Right," and each man will be provided with literature and arguments. The proceeds of the book will be devoted to the campaign work.

Timber Ablaze.

Deadwood, S. D., Aug. 28.—A big fire has been raging in the timber east of this city, in the Two Bit district, for the past 24 hours. It has already burned over a considerable extent of territory and destroyed much valuable timber. The country is very dry, and fears are entertained hat the fire will get beyond control. A force of 60 range riders is fighting the flames. It is also reported that another fire has broken out in the Spearfish division, and that a territory seven miles square has already been burned over.

To Escape Unjust Measures.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 28.—Prominent Finlanders here declare that 100,000 Finlanders have decided to leave their country owing to recent action of the Russian government in demanding the right to recruit from the Finlanders for the imperial army, which is claimed to be a violation of the Finnish home rule measure of 1892. It is also asserted Russia demands $10,000,000 a year more taxes.

President at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Aug. 28.—President and Mrs. McKinley spent Sunday rather quietly, nothing of special note occurring. In the afternoon President and Mrs. McKinley, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Pitcairn, took a drive. Before the ride had extended far Mrs. McKinley became fatigued and the party returned home.

FOUR VICTIMS

Of a Fierce Midnight Fire In a Convent.

Four Hundred Inmates of Institution Were Asleep.

Acts of Heroism by Sisters and Their Charges.

Nine Buildings Were Destroyed In Remarkably Short Time.

Believed to Have Been of Incendiary Origin. Property Loss of $150.000.

Blauvelt, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Fire was discovered in one of the buildings of the convent of the Dominican Sisters at Sparkill and in a few minutes the several buildings were in flames. Four persons were killed. The fire destroyed nine out of the 10 buildings in the group, and that it did not claim more victims is due to the bravery of the Sisters of Chirity, who conducted the convent and orphanage, and of some of the older inmates.

The fire occurred about 1 o'clock Monday morning, and found the 400 tenants of the institution asleep. There was a hasty, but timely, warning that started the work of rescue. Hundreds were gotten out in almost perfect order, but a score, who risked their lives to save others, were finally forced to either jump from the upper stories or make desperate dashes through stairways and corridors filled with flame and smoke. It is charged that the buildings were fired by an incendiary.

The known dead are: Helen Brown, 6 years old; Emma Mackin, aged 7; Jane ——, aged 70; Mary K. McCarthy, aged 28. The missing and unaccounted for are: Therese Murphy, aged 16; Mary Brown, aged 4.

The seriously injured are: Sister Sienna, shock and collapse, serious; Sister Marie, burns and concussion, moderate; Sister Bertrand, concussion of the spine and shock, serious; Sister Katherine, broken arm; Sister Ignatius, slightly injured by fall; Sister Liguri, shock and hurt by fall, slight; Hanna Shea, leg broken. Twenty-five inmates were injured by falls, jumps and burns, none very seriously.

The fire was discovered in the lavatory, a separate building, which stood in a corner of the square formed by the 10 buildings. It was seen first at 12:50 o'clock by Watchman Lynch, who gave the alarm. The lavatory adjoined the No. 1 dormitory, in which over 200 boys slept, and was connected with it and with the other buildings by an enclosed archway or corridor that ran clear across the grounds and tapped the rear of every structure.

The clang of the electric gongs and the cries of the watchman had hardly begun to ring through the convent before the fire had attacked the archway and was eating its way into the first dormitory. The archway acted as a great flue that gave a furious draught that grew in intensity at every corridor that opened into it. Flames shot down this horizontal chimney, and the convent proper and chapel, at the extreme eastern end of the grounds, were afire before the first dormitory was fairly ablaze.

The boys in the first dormitory got the first warning. Sister Reginald, who had trained the lads in the fire drill, rushed down the line of white beds, and, arousing the sleepers, clapped her hands. The boys turned out with a rush, and while some waited to hustle into clothes, the majority hastened to the front of the building and gained the lawn in their night clothes.

By that time the second dormitory, where the little boys slept, was ablaze. The older lads made a dash for the building, and were soon carrying the smaller fellows out. The buildings were all finished with Georgia pine, which burned like fireworks. Forks of flames gained the roof of the second dormitory, and great blasts of fire swept through the windows, doors and halls. But the sisters stood at their posts, and little squads of heroes rushed in, bundled up the sleeping waifs, and dashed out with them.

Meantime there were other stirring scenes. The convent and chapel made a great stack of flames, and between them and the second dormitory the girls' dormitory blazed and cracked as the fire leaped up its wooden walls.

A dozen sisters were cut off in the upper stories of the convent building. They were forced to the windows, and while some climbed out to the sills, others knelt in prayer, there were cries for aid. Engineer Otto placed a long ladder against the outer wall, and by speedy and heroic work managed to rescue half a dozen. Six were forced to jump for their lives, but, with one exception, Sister Bertrand, all escaped without serious injury.

The escape of Sister Agnes seemed almost a miracle. She was cut off on the fourth floor. Climbing out upon the window sill, she seized the shutter and swung out clear of the building. Then she loosened her hold and shot downward. She struck the ground squarely upon her feet, and then fell over on her side. Immediately she got up and walked quickly away from the burning wall. She had escaped unhurt.

The fire reached the girls' dormitory last, but once it took hold of the building it burned fiercely. Most of the girls were on the upper floors, and it was with the greatest difficulty that they were gotten out. The sisters were the last to leave the building. Shortly after the last of the rescuers left the second dormitory, it was discovered that two of the baby boys were missing. John Cody, a 15-year-old boy, ran into the building, in spite of warnings. Nobody expected to see him alive again, but a minute later Cody come dashing out of the building, and under each arm he carried one of the missing boys. His friends embraced him in their joy.

There were 326 children in the orphanage, 60 of whom were girls, and their ages ranged from 2 to 16 years. Most of them were from New York city, and were in most instances committed by the Gerry society and city courts.

The value of the property destroyed is placed at $150,000, and the insurance is roughly stated at $75,000. The heaviest individual loser is Rev. Father Edward Cronin, chaplain, who lost his library, valued at $2500, and his personal effects.

The children are to be distributed among different houses of the order until fireproof buildings are erected.

Coroner Kirk viewed the bodies of the dead, issued a burial permit, and will hold an inquest Monday.

CHAMPIONS GOT A SCARE.

But a Quartet of Misplays Allowed Them to Down the Clevelands.

Cleveland, Aug. 29.—Joe Quinn's homeless ones gave the champions quite a scare, and but for a quartet of bungling misplays at the start might have won. Jimmy Hughey was just out of the hospital, but he pitched a creditable game. Duncan, just secured from Washington, was behind the bat. He made one superb throw to second, nailing Hamilton, but his two errors were costly.

KRUGER WILL LISTEN

And Know How to Reply When Chamberlain Addresses Him Direct.

Alliance Between Transvaal and Orange Free State.

British May Surround Burghers and Then Negotiate New Convention.

London, Aug. 29.—A dispatch from Pretoria says: The reports of Joseph Chamberlain's speech at Birmingham last Friday have been calmly received here. President Kruger said: "Let the newspapers bring whatever they like. I cannot say whether they report Mr. Chamberlain correctly. When he speaks to me direct, I shall listen and shall know how to reply."

Commandant General Joubert, in the course of an interview, declared that the whole republic would resist like one man any interference with its independence.

State Secretary Reitz said he believed Mr. Chamberlain was only speaking for himself and not for the whole British cabinet. The situation, he declared, had not grown worse, but there was danger that a spark might fall into the magazine and do mischief.

According to The Daily Mail's Cape Town correspondent, the belief is still entertained there that the British government is opposed to extreme measures, and it is reported that President Kruger is so well aware of this that he has just cabled countermanding conditional orders for large meat supplies.

Although not definitely known, it is assumed here in London that Mr. Chamberlain had the reply of the Transvaal government before he delivered the Birmingham speech. It is also believed that on the receipt of President Kruger's offer of a five-years' franchise and other concessions, Mr. Chamberlain wired that they were acceptable and suggested modifications.

If this be so, and if the reply to that suggestion—that the Transvaal government adheres to to its latest offer and will make no further concession—be President Kruger's final answer, the position is ominous.

The importance of President Steyn's letter to Mr. Schreiner lies in the fact that an offensive and defensive treaty exists between the Transvaal and the Orange Free State.

The Cape Town correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says: British troops will be immediately concentrated at Laing's Nek and Mafoking, and it is believed that the British program will be to surround the Transvaal, and then to negotiate a new convention.

In consequence of the increased tension in the Transvaal affair, the Queensland government is making preliminary arrangements to dispatch a contingent to South Africa.

Burghers Not Asleep.

Cape Town, Aug. 29.—According to reports from Johannesburg, the burghers are everywhere exchanging Martins for Mausers. A heavy load of ammunition, including many Mausers, arrived at Johannesburg on Friday from Utrecht, the Netherlands.

CHARAVAY ERRED IN 1894.

Now Declares That Dreyfus Was Not the Author of the Bordereau.

Rennes, Aug. 29.—When the Dreyfus court-martial resumed its session this morning Mercier and other generals were present as usual. Colonel Cordier, who was deputy chief of the intelligence bureau under Colonel Henry, testified to the effect that Colonel Sandherr, and not Colonel Henry received the bordereau.

The balance of the evidence yesterday, for a change, was in favor of Dreyfus. Five witnesses were for him and two against him.

The most interesting testimony was that of Chief Handwriting Expert Charavay, who had come to declare that he had changed entirely his opinion which, in 1894, was against, and now is in favor of Dreyfus, who, he now affirmed, was not the author of the bordereau. His candid confession of error was received with murmurs of satisfaction in court, which became discreet applause, in spite of Colonel Jouaust's patent disapproval when he solemnly added: "I declare here, on my soul and conscience, that the bordereau was written by Esterhazy."

The most important incident, however was Colonel Jouaust's acquiescence in Major Carriere's request that a rogatory commission be instructed to take Colonel De Clam's deposition. The initiative came purely from the government commissary, Labori and Demange having no faith in such a measure, because it allows De Clam to escape cross-examination, which is the only thing worth having under the present circumstances. De Clam being a witness for the prosecution, Carriere will simply prepare a list of questions which an examining magistrate will put to De Clam at his residence, and nobody supposes that the witness will be very much embarrassed by the interrogatories.

It is asserted that Major Carriere ordered the commission to take the evidence of Colonel Du Paty de Clam in obedience to peremptory instructions from the government.

De Clam the Guilty One.

London, Aug. 29.—The Rome correspondent of The Daily Mail says: Colonel Panizzardi positively declares that the initial D in the Canaille De D—document means Dubois, which is an alias for Colonel Du Paty de Clam.

Good Afternoon.

The Socialist Labor party and the Social Democratic party should not be confounded, although some of the principles may be the same. The former polled 10,063 votes for governor last year and the latter but 3,749. The former is now a party under the State laws and will hold caucuses and conventions this year.

Many new features have been added for the Houghs Neck gala day this year, and from the programme outlined it really looks as though the attractions would excel all past efforts. Everybody should go early to avoid the crowd. After 6 P. M. the company will surely be taxed, but it has more cars than ever this year, and it can draw cars from other routes in Manager Graham's district, so that good service may be expected.

The regulations announced by the Board of Health relative to connecting existing plumbing with the sewers, makes only such concessions as can reasonably be expected, but they are of importance to those who have at considerable expense put in plumbing which has been largely satisfactory. The use of the sewer should be encouraged by city authorities as far as practicable and the terms and regulations should be as liberal as possible.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Some people are anxious to have the rules of congress changed when that body reassembles, in order to give the various members some show of authority and influence. Mr. Reed has undoubtedly exercised great authority in legislation, more than it is safe to commit into the hands of any one man, but it may be said to his credit that he has never shown a disposition to use it dishonorably or to his own personal advantage.—Newport News.

☞ A loving cup made from dimes contributed by 50,000 individuals will be one of the souvenirs awaiting Admiral Dewey on his return to the United States. The value of this gift, large as it is intrinsically, is greatly enhanced by the number and hearty good feeling of the donors, and the Admiral will preserve it as one of the most valued tokens of the regard held for him by American people.—Lynn Item.

☞ If Mr. Hobart shall be renominated he will be the first vice-president to receive that distinction in a great many years. If he shall be re-elected he will be the first vice-president to serve two terms since John C. Calhoun, who served from 1825 to 1833. In fact, there have been only four vice-presidents who were re-elected—John Adams, George Clinton, Daniel W. Tompkins and John C. Calhoun— Milford Journal.

☞ An attempt is being made by a leading London hotel to compel male guests to dine in evening dress. It is not likely that such a rule, even if enforced in England, will ever become popular on this side of the Atlantic. American business men are in too much of a hurry to make an elaborate toilet before dinner, except on extraordinary occasions; and an American hotel attempting to start such a custom would be likely to find out that there are other hostelries, where American independence is allowed to prevail.—Lowell Courier.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

Order Fixing Basis of Sewer Assessments.

The Commissioner of Public Works

Under Fire for Condition of Sewered Streets and Sprinkling.

The City Council got together at City Hall again Monday night after a few weeks' vacation. There was not much real business before the Council, but what there was was of an important nature. The meeting was lengthened out somewhat by the debate that followed a resolution which was in the nature of a censure of the Commissioner of Public Works, for the condition of the streets in Wollaston, which had been opened for the sewer.

Councilmen, Badger, Freeman, Owens, Pinkham and Poland were absent.

JURORS DRAWN.

The Mayor and City Clerk assisted by Councilman Hill drew as jurors: Warren Edwards, John Glover and Luther S. Anderson

APPOINTMENTS.

Mayor Keith in a communication announced the appointment of Francis Abele as inspector of animals, and John Page as measurer of upper leather.

The Mayor also requested that the Ordinance be changed so as to provide compensation for the inspector of animals. Referred.

SEWERS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Sewerage Commissioners asking for an appropriation of $5,000 for lateral sewers. To Committee on Sewers.

The report of the Sewerage Commissioners for the six months ending July 1 was received and placed on file.

NO JUNKET.

An invitation was received from the League of American Municipalities to attend the third annual convention at Syracuse, N. Y. Placed on file.

CAUCUS PLACES.

The Democratic City Committee asked for polling places for caucuses Sept. 15.

Later in the evening Councilman Jameson offered an order designating the places in the several wards, as follows:

Ward One, Council Chamber; Ward Two, Hose house; Ward Three, Doble's hall; Ward Four, St. Mary's hall; Ward Five, Hose house; Ward Six, Hose house. Adopted.

PETITIONS.

Councilman Packard presented a petition for the widening of the west side of Hancock street, between Granite and Cottage streets. To Committee on Streets.

A petition was received for the enlargement of a culvert on Phipps street. To Committee on Streets.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

The New England Telephone Co., petitioned for a location of poles on Whitwell and Canal streets, and the Electric Light & Power Co. for a location for poles on Wollaston avenue, Common, Liberty and Centre streets and Faxon road. To Committee on Streets.

MOTIONS, ORDERS, ETC.

Rule one was suspended and it was voted when the Council adjourn it be until Sept. 11.

Councilman Jameson offered an order for $500 for changing No. 3 fire alarm circuit into two circuits.

In connection with the order he read a letter from the Gamewell Company, stating that No. 3 circuit now had four gongs, one whistle, two strikers and 23 boxes which was too much for safety.

To joint Committee on Finance and Fire Department.

Councilman Nash offered an order adopting the system of sewerage and sewerage disposal as shown by plans prepared by the Sewerage Commissioners on file. Read once and referred to Commitee on Sewers.

SEWER ASSESSMENTS.

Councilman Nash offered an order authorizing an assessment of 12 cents per running foot frontage, and 6 mills per square foot area on the estates benefited by sewers.

This was under the order apportioning the cost equally between city and abutters, who will pay 50 per cent. each. The assessment on abutters to be two-tenths on frontage and eight-tenths on area within 100 feet. The estimated cost is fixed at $1.93 per foot.

Read once and referred to Committee on Sewers.

COMMISSIONER UNDER FIRE.

Councilman Jameson requested that the Commissioner of Public Works appear before the Council.

The City Messenger reported that he was out of town.

Councilman Jameson then offered a resolution to the effect that whereas certain streets in Ward Five where the sewer had been constructed had not received such attention from the Commissioner of Public Works as should be expected; that he be requested to put them in repair; also that the sprinkling was not equal to former years and justice to abutters who pay assessments demand that it be done in a more thorough manner.

In support of the resolution Councilman Jameson said the streets had been sadly neglected. He had personally requested the Commissioner to attend to them and he had promised to do so. It had been four months since the last promise was made and nothing had been done. Some of the streets were absolutely dangerous. Some of the sewer work had long been completed, and while streets in other parts of the city had been attended to, these had been neglected.

As to sprinkling there had been days when the sprinkler should have been out that it was not seen. When it does come it only partly does its work. As we pay for this we should have good service. The streets were not as well sprinkled as last year.

Councilman Packard said these streets required some time to settle. There were other streets that needed repairs just as bad as those in Wollaston. He believed the Commissioner was doing as well as he could.

Councilman Swithin asked of Engineer Branch what amount the Commissioner was allowed per mile by the Sewerage Commissioners.

Engineer Branch said the amount had not been fixed.

Councilman Swithin thought the Sewerage Commissioners should see that the streets were fixed.

In reply to Councilman Bryant, Engineer Branch said the contracts with contractors provided that they should leave the streets in practically the same condition as they found them.

Councilman Bryant hoped the Council would not put itself upon record by censoring a man who was not to blame. Contractors agree to put the street in good condition and it was the duty of Sewerage Commissioners to see that the contractors leave the street in good condition. They do not do it. Bring the Sewerage Commissioners before the Council and blame them. He did not believe sewers were ever built where less attention was paid to careing for streets. Did not blame the contractors if they had soft commissioners. He did not know about watering the streets. Let us have the Sewer Commissioners before us and have them tell why it was not done.

Councilman Jameson said other streets have been fixed, but those in Wollaston have not. He did not know how much time it takes for a trench to settle. We look to and hold the Commissioner of Public Works responsible for the conditions of our streets.

Councilman Bryant asked the last speakers authority, to which Councilman Jameson said the charter.

Councilman Bryant then said that the Legislature passed a law later giving authority to the Sewer Commissioner to dig up streets.

Councilman Jameson—Does it not say they shall put streets back satisfactory to the Commissioner of Public Works.

Councilman Bryant—That is just it, but he can not make the Commissioners do it.

Councilman Jameson—If that is the case why does he say he is coming down to fix the streets. We hold him responsible.

Councilman Packard moved to lay on the table.

Councilman Swithin—The Commissioner has tried every way to get the Sewerage Commissioners to allow him a certain sum to fix the streets, but could get nothing. The proper party to blame were the Sewerage Commissioners.

Councilman Bryant hoped Council would not lay on the table. He would like a vote passed to have the Commissioners appear before the Council. There was no sense to blame a man for something he cannot help. When the Hancock street sewer was built the street settled badly. The Sewerage Commissioners paid for putting the railroad tracks back and had the cheek to offer the Commissioners $400 to fix the street.

Councilman Packard said he thought laying on the table would let it down easy.

Councilman Jameson—Who is to be the judge if the streets are in conditions?

Councilman Bryant was proceeding to answer, when objection was made. He said, if the gentlemen will tell me how he wants me to answer his questions, I had just as soon be the parrot as the monkey.

Councilman Jameson would ask the City Solicitor who was responsible?

City Solicitor Blackmur said under the Charter the Commissioner of Public Works was, but later the Legislature gave the Sewerage Commission exclusive authority to lay and maintain sewers, they can dig up the streets at any time. If they leave it unsafe they ought to fix it. If Commissioner has no money, and the Sewerage Commissioners give him none, he cannot do it.

Councilman Jameson then offered an amendment to the motion to lay on the table, that the Commissioner and Sewerage Commissioners be requested to appear before the next meeting of the Council. Ruled out of order.

Councilman Clark thought the Commissioner to blame.

Councilman Dugan opposed the resolution. It was not right to censure a man until he had a chance to be heard.

Councilman Hogan hoped resolution would be killed. It was not in the right form.

The motion to lay on the table was lost, and the resolution also.

Councilman Jameson offered an order that the Commissioner and Sewerage Commissioners be requested to appear before the next meeting of the Council. Voted.

Councilman Jameson then moved that the City Solicitor be requested to give a written opinion at the next meeting of the Council as to who is responsible for the condition of the streets through which the sewer has been constructed and completed. Motion lost.

WASHINGTON STREET!

Councilman Newcomb asked the chairman of Committee on Streets what was the cause of the delay in reporting on the petition of the Quincy & Boston street railway on Washington street.

Councilman Swithin said there was some questions that the Committee had not been able to decide, and must get opinions of the City Solicitor.

Adjourned at 9.15 to Sept. 11.

Immediately after the adjournment President Sidelinger read a communication from Manager John R. Graham to the Committee on Streets, inviting the Council and members of the City Government to a trolley car ride through the Blue Hills Reservation.

Councilman Swithin took the chair, and was appointed a committee of one to arrange a date for the excursion and then notify the members of the Council.

Summer Home.

The old Samuel Downer homestead at Crow Point, once familiarly known to the public as Downer landing, is now utilized as the summer home of the children of the mission on Tremont street, Boston.

During the entire season, instead of an outing of a single day, with its unavoidable hurry and fatigue, the little ones have had the privilege of quietly breathing the health-giving ozone of this beautiful spot.

The home is in charge of the matron, Miss Beatrice B. Tracy, aided by Miss Lida A. Atkins, assistant matron, and a corps of well-drilled attendants.

At the present time there are 45 children in this summer retreat, all happy and enjoying good health. The large children seem to take especial delight in caring for the little ones, "making b'lieve" that they are their babies.

NO GRIEVANCE.

But Granite Cutters Are Ordered to Quit Work.

The cutters in the sheds of the Capital granite company, 30 in number, were ordered out Monday says a dispatch from Montpelier, Vt., to the Globe. There is no strike, but they claim that the arbitration provided for in the agreement between the granite cutters union and the manufacturers union has been refused, and that the men, knowing how their associates feel regarding their remaining in a shop where the trouble originated, have gone out.

The trouble arose originally over the pay of a workman employed by the Capital granite company. The matter was reported to the union and was taken up by the grievance committee. They being unable to agree with the manufacturers' committee, a seventh man was called in, as provided by agreement between the manufacturers and cutters, to decide the case. D. R. Bisbee of Barre was selected by the committees and after hearing the case decided that the man should be paid according to the bill of prices, which would be a little over 42 cents an hour.

When the committees met to figure the time the man had worked and for which he should be paid, a difference arose over what time should be reckoned. On this point the manufacturers' committee refused to make any concessions or to refer the matter to arbitration. This leaves matters in a peculiar position. An agreement between the manufacturers and cutters provides for arbitration of differences, and that while such arbitration is pending there shall be no strike or lockout.

It was hoped that a compromise could be arranged, but it failed. The men who were ordered out today are complaining bitterly. They have no desire to quit work, and really have no grievance.

Land Values in Boston.

The recent reports made by the assessors for the city of Boston show that even within the past year there has been a large and vigorous growth in the values of real estate in this vicinity. The statement of the Boston assessors is not peculiar in that respect, for a study of the reports of assessors in Norfolk, Middlesex and Essex show that in those three counties, as well as in Suffolk, values of real estate have made an increase of large proportions in the recent past. This increase is about in the same proportion as that of Boston, if an average be taken, so that while Boston property has increased in value, property in the suburbs of Boston, or in the towns and cities nearby, has increased in as large and, occasionally, in even larger ratio.

The total valuation of taxable property in Boston is $1,090,000,000 in round figures, and of this, more than $865,000,000 is real estate. The increase in the value of real estate during the past year is about $36,500,000, quite a noteworthy gain in itself, although it has been accompanied by a gain of more than $17,000,000 in personal property. The gain in the value of Boston real estate has not been confined to any single section of the city, but it has been more rapid and noticeable in some sections than in others. The increase in the valuation of property between the Union and Terminal stations has been most marked.

A large amount of money has been invested in the vicinity of the Terminal station, partly in new buildings and partly in old structures that have been remodelled. The wholesale trade that formerly did business in these old buildings has moved further south, or across Fort Channel into South Boston, and retail trade has come into these new buildings.

Altogether, in Wards 6 and 7, which lie between the two great stations, there has been developed this year the greatest increase in values. This increase for these two wards alone amounts to about $14,000,000, or nearly 40 per cent. of the entire increase in real estate values in Boston, even in some estates on which no improvement has been made, and which have been held as investment property in the past. The new demand for locations in Ward 6 and 7 has led to the refusal, by the owners, of what would formerly have been considered tempting offers.

In Ward 11, the northern part of Back Bay, extending from the Public Garden to Brookline, the increase in valuation is about $2,500,000, and this can be attributed chiefly to improvements of property near the Back Bay fens.

In Ward 20, which lies in that part of Dorchester covering Uphams Corner, Meeting House Hill, Monnt Bowdoin and Field's Corner, values have increased about $2,300,000 in the past year. So far as this increase is explained at all, it is said that the construction of Columbia road led to a greater development of the property than would otherwise have been brought about. The general trend of settlement in Dorchester seems to have set in that neighborhood. This was expected when the construction of Columbia road was begun.—Boston Daily Advertiser.

Mr. Noah Curtis Stetson, formerly of Braintree, died on Monday at the residence of his sister on Granite street, Quincy. He was in his 69th year.

Mr. George W. Prescott is at the outing of the Stoughton Musical Society today. This may surprise some who never heard him sing, but he enjoys good music just the same.

Field Family.

One of the most intensely interesting historical and genealogical books that has ever been compiled in that of the Field family and descendants which will soon be printed. The history of the family is traced back to the year 823 to Wettolsheim, near Colmar in Alsace-Lorraine, formerly in France, until the Franco-Prussian war, and now in Germany. The name was originally De la Feld and it was at their castle near Colmar that they entertained Pope Leo the 9th and his court while on his way to consecrate the cathedral at Strasburg. Sir Hubertus De la Feld went to England with William the Conqueror, in 1066, and for his services at the battle of Hastings in which the Norman chieftain fought the decisive battle, was granted lands in that country. For years the name was De la Feld, but owing to the wars between France and England, in the fourteenth century, the former prefix was dropped by one branch of the family and the name became Feld, Feild and Field. The history of the family is farther traced through England to America where emigrant ancestors settled in Massachusetts, New York, Long Island, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Virginia.

The work has been compiled by Frederick C. Pierce of Chicago, historian and genealogist, and is his seventeenth volume in this line. This will make a volume of over 700 pages and be profusely illustrated with French English, Italian and American illustries. Col. Pierce would be pleased to hear from persons of this name, and descendants. Address post office box 244, Chicago, Ill.

Museum Opened.

Roland Reed, as has been his custom for a number of years, presented a new play at the Boston Museum Monday evening. This season the piece is a farcical play from the pen of that clever writer, Sydney Rosenfeld, who has already been highly successful in his efforts for Mr. Reed. His "Lend Me Your Wife," "The Club Friend," and "The Politician" will be pleasantly remembered as being highly successful plays in Mr. Reed's repertoire. The new comedy is called "His Father's Boy," and has some of the wildest complications ever ever laughed at. Mr. Reed is seen in a character that is particularly will adapted to him, and it is one of the best roles he has had in years.

The story of the play is most interesting and is sure to entertain Mr. Reed's many admirers. The play is produced in Mr. Reed's usual careful manner, as he has asssociated with him this season perhaps the strongest company that has ever accompanied him on any of his tours. Miss Isadore Rush, who has become a great favorite, has a most happy role, and one in which she is enabled to keep up her reputation as being the best dressed woman upon the stage.

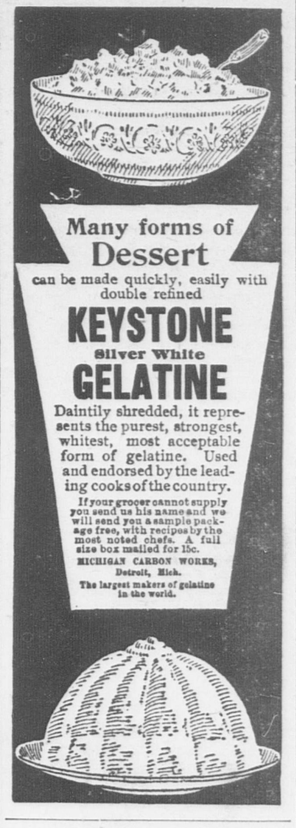

Mr. Reed's engagement will undoubtedly be one of the most successful comedy events of the season.

Landlady—Mr. Bilker, when will you settle this bill?

Bilker—Madam, I'm only a poet, not a seer into the future.—New York Journal.

Of Interest to Tobacco Growers.

New Haven, Aug. 29.—In the United States court Judge Townsend handed down a decision in the question of the validity and infringement of a patent for the "art of maturing tobacco leaves." The court dismissed the bill. The decision is a most important one, involving the right of thousands of tobacco growers in this country. The question involved the rights of tobacco growers not having patent rights to treat leaf tobacco to a chemical process which spots it and makes it resemble Sumatra leaf tobacco.

Keepers Caused Paretic's Death.

New York, Aug. 29.—The coroner's jury investigating the death of James McGuire, a paretic, in the Manhattan state hospital for the insane on Ward's island on Aug. 5 last, rendered a verdict that he had come to his death from undue violence at the hands of Keepers Daniel O'Connor, Thomas Sexton and Patrick Ryan. The coroner committed the three men to the Tombs to await the action of the grand jury.

Smallpox at the Hub.

Boston, Aug. 29.—Two cases of smallpox were discovered in Roxbury district yesterday. One case involves a man and the other a child. Since having the disease the man has been walking about, but the health officials say his is a mild case and that when discovered he was found to have nearly recovered. The child is not thought to be severely affected.

Eight Negroes Drowned.

Dardanelles, Ark., Aug. 29.—Eight negroes were crossing the river in a skiff here yesterday when the boat capsized, drowning the entire party.

Weather Indications and Forecast.

Moon rises—morn.
High water—6: 45 a. m.; 7 p. m.

A slight disturbance is central in the south Atlantic states, resulting in a continuance of the rains on the south Atlantic coast. The high area in the north still controls the temperature from the lower lake region and upper Ohio valley eastward and moderate temperatures therefore continue. Elsewhere they were quite high. Showers are also indicated in the western upper lake region, probably extending to New England.

Women Were Disappointed.

London, Aug. 29.—The officials of the Greater Britain exhibition decided yesterday, on account of the recent scandals, to close against women the Kaffir kraal, peopled by 300 African natives, who depict scenes of savage life in connection with the exhibition. No official notice of the closing was posted, and an extraordinary scene ensued last evening, when some 500 women appeared at the gates of the kraal, seeking admission and protesting their disappointment.

THE PHILIPPINES OURS

Just as Much as States of Alaska, Texas or Louisiana.

Our Troops Subjected to Insults and Duplicity.

President's Tribute to Returning Volunteers For Services In Philippines.

Pittsburg, Aug. 29.—President McKinley left Pittsburg last night at 9 o'clock for East Liverpool a very weary man. The entire day had been spent under the most trying circumstances, and the president was almost worn out. His speech at the demonstration to honor the homecoming of the Tenth Pennsylvania volunteers was the most remarkable that he has delivered for some time.

He surprised many of his audience by the energy of some of his utterances. He asserted that the Filipinos were the aggressors at the opening of hostilities. He denounced their leaders. He criticised the anti-imperialists as "the men, few in number, happily, who would have rejoiced to have seen them (the volunteers) lay down their arms in the presence of the enemy."

The speech of the president was, in part, as follows:

"You have earned the plaudits, not alone of the people of Pennsylvania, but of the whole nation. Your return has been the signal for a great demonstration of popular regard from your landing in the Golden Gate on the Pacific to your home-coming, and here you find a warmth of welcome and a greeting from joyous hearts which tell better than words the estimate of your countrymen and their high appreciation of the services you have rendered the country.

"Our troops represented the courage and conscience, the purpose and patriotism of their country. Whether in Cuba, Porto Rico or the Philippines, or at home awaiting orders, they did their full duty, and all sought the post of greatest peril. They never faltered. The Eighth army corps in the Philippines have made a proud and exceptional record. Privileged to be mustered out in April, when the ratifications of the treaty of peace were exchanged, they did not claim the privilege—they declined it.

"They did not stack arms. They did not run away. They were not serving the insurgents in the Philippines or their sympathizers at home. They had no part or patience with the men, few in number, happily, who would have rejoiced to have seen them lay down their arms in the presence of an enemy whom they just emancipated from Spanish rule, and who would have been our firmest friends. They furnished an example of devotion and sacrifice which will brighten the glorious record of American valor.

"The mighty army of volunteers and regulars, numbering over 250,000, which last year responded to the call of the government with an alacrity without precedent or parallel, by the terms of their enlistment were to be mustered out, with all of the regulars above 27,000, when peace with Spain was effected. Peace brought us the Philippines, by treaty concession from Spain. The senate of the United States ratified the treaty. Every step taken was in obedience to the requirements of the Constitution.

"It became our territory and is ours, as much as the Louisiana purchase, or Texas, or Alaska. A body of insurgents in no sense representing the sentiment of the people of the islands, disputed our lawful authority, and even before the ratification of the treaty by the American senate, were attacking the forces who fought for and secured their freedom.

"The world will never know the restraint of our soldiers—their self-control—under the most exasperating conditions. For weeks, subjected to the insults and duplicity of the insurgent leaders, they preserved their status quo, remembering that they were under an order from their government to sacredly observe the terms of the protocol in letter and spirit, and avoid all conflict except in defense, pending the negotiations of the treaty of peace. They were not the aggressors. They did not begin hostilities against the insurgents pending the ratification of the treaty of peace in the senate, great as was their justification, because their orders from Washington forbade it.

"I take all the responsibility for that direction. Otis only executed the orders of his government, and the soldiers, under great provocation to strike back, obeyed. Until the treaty was ratified we had no authority beyond Manila city, bay and harbor. We then had no other title to defend, no authority beyond that to maintain.

"Spain was still in possession of the remainder of the archipelago. Spain had sued for peace. The truce and treaty were not concluded. The first blow was struck by the insurgents. Our kindness was reciprocated with cruelty, our mercy with a Mauser. The flag of truce was invoked only to be dishonored.

"Our soldiers were shot down when ministering to the wounded Filipinos. Our humanity was interpreted as weakness, our forbearance as cowardice. They assailed our sovereignty; and there will be no useless parley, no pause, until the insurrection is suppressed and American authority acknowledged and established. The misguided followers in rebellion have only our charity and pity.

"As to the cruel leaders who have needlessly sacrificed the lives of thousands of their people, at the cost of some of our best blood, for the gratification of their own ambitious designs, I will leave to others the ungracious task of justification and eulogy.

"The government to which you gave your loyalty welcomes you to your homes. With no blot or stain upon your record the story of your unselfish services to country and to civilization will be to the men who take your places at the front and on the firing line, and to future generations, an example of patriotism and an inspiration to duty."

STEEL ARCHES COLLAPSED.

Nine Men Killed and Many Badly Injured In an Accident at Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—The steel arches of the new Coliseum, being erected on the site of the old Libby prison at Sixteenth street and Wabash avenue, collapsed about 4:30 p. m. yesterday. The truss work for the roof was completed, all but the last girder of the north end. This was being put in place, when it suddenly fell toward the south and carried the other girders down with it one by one like a stack of cards. Nine men were killed and several were badly hurt.

Nearly all the men who were killed were at work on top of the arches, 40 feet above the ground. Some of them made futile attempts to slide down the side of the arches, but before they could save themselves were hurled to the ground. Many of them uttered piercing shrieks for aid as they fell. Most of them were killed outright by the awful nature of their injuries. The skulls of the unfortunate men were crushed into shapeless masses; their limbs were cut off as if by a monster knife, and they were mangled beyond recognition.

The immense structure began falling slowly, each arch being sustained by the cross beams supporting the entire structure. As the mass gained impetus, thick bars of iron snapped with a loud report and the great mass moved faster and faster in its descent. With a crash that was heard blocks distant, the structure fell, leaving the walls practically uninjured.

The direct cause of the accident is not known, and it will probably be several days before it is determined.

Bonner Ou'fought Kenney.

New York, Aug. 29.—Jack Bonner of Summit, Pa., met Yank Kenney, Bob Fitzsimmons' sparring partner, and fairly outfought the latter in a 25-round bout before the Coney Island Sporting club last night. Bonner owned to weighing 162 pounds. Kenney said he was 10 pounds heavier, but he easily weighed 30 pounds more than the Pennsylvania man. Bonner was handicapped with a swollen jaw and suffered from an ulcerated tooth, but despite this offset and the advantage of weight which his opponent held over him, Bonner put up an excellent fight and deserved the well-earned decision which he received.

Fight For China's Trade.

Philadelphia, Aug. 29.—The national Manufacturers' association has purchased in Shanghai, China, a building containing 40,000 square feet of floor room, and as soon as practicable a permanent exhibition will be established there. One hundred firms have asked for space, and all but two have signed contracts. The Shanghai exhibition will be the beginning of a competition with England and Germany by this country for the China trade. It will be conducted on the plan of the commercial museum of this city.

Made a Widow Homeless.

Hadley, Mass., Aug. 29.—Two wards of the state board of charity, Richard Barry of Holyoke, 13 years, and Harry Sturn of Boston, 9 years old, have confessed that they set the fire that, on Saturday, completely destroyed the house of Mrs. Rosa Dyer, a widow of this place, with five children. Mrs. Dyer is now homeless. The boys also admitted that they broke into an adjoining house and stole $5, as well as stamps and silver ware. Their excuse for setting fire to the Dyer house was to see the engines.

The Band In War.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 29.—General Guy V. Henry, who has been spending the summer here, was serenaded last night by the Twenty-sixth regiment band. The general made a short speech, in which he said that a band was of more importance to a regiment than a corps of surgeons, for upon the melody and good spirits of the band depended largely the good spirits of the regiment.

Charges Not Sustained.

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 29.—W. A. Roberts, who has been mentioned as a candidate for congress in this district, and who has been on trial here two days on the charge of embezzling $50, was discharged from custody. Judge Cleaves found that the complaint was unsustained by the evidence. The case arose out of a dispute between owners of a newspaper here.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Mrs. Mary Harriet Robinson, the only direct descendant of Columbus in America, died at her home in Sandusky, O., aged 80.

The brass and iron bedstead factory of Oliver Bros., at Lockport, N. Y., was destroyed by fire. Loss, $250,000. James McVittie was fatally burned. Three hundred men are thrown out of work.

The smelter and chlorination plant of the Golden Reward company at Deadwood, S. D., burned. This was the largest plant of the kind in the Black hills. Loss, $150,000.

John Woods fell through a skylight at his home at Holyoke, Mass., landing four stories below. He died half an hour later.

Fire in the Bryant building at Brockton, Mass., caused damage exceeding $25,000. The block contained eight large stores and half a dozen smaller ones. D. T. Burrill, a photographer, was the chief loser.

The bench moulders of the Highland stove foundry, Boston, are on strike for a restoration of a 10 percent cut in wages made two years ago.

The body of John M. Southwick, who disappeared from Claremont, N. H., May 25, was found in the woods north of that village. It was suspended from a tree by a strap. There was a bullet hole in the head and a pistol on the ground.

The bodies of A. L. Stevens and A. E. Hazlett, two of the men executed with John Brown at Harper's Ferry, were disinterred at Perth Amboy, N. J., and will be shipped to North Elba, N. Y., where they will lie beside those of the others of the party.

The pope, according to the Rome correspondent of the London Daily Mail, conferred with Father Martin, the head of the Jesuits, with the view of persuading the French Jesuits to moderate their violence toward Dreyfus, the pope being alarmed at the trend of events in France.

The Red Cross society has news from Manila that Aguinaldo has promised to release all sick Spanish prisoners.

CROPS GREATLY INJURED.

Severity of the Drought Felt In the Greater Portion of New England.

Boston, Aug. 29.—The New England section, climate and crop service of the weather bureau, issues the following bulletin for the week ending Aug. 28:

General showers fell during the early part of the week in coast sections of the district, and were also fairly well distributed over the interior section of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. The amounts, in numerous instances, were copious, thoroughly wetting the surface of the ground, filling streams and temporarily breaking the drought. Scattered showers also occurred in parts of Vermont. For the remaining parts of New England the weather was fair, though with more or less cloudiness and fog. The showers and moist weather have improved crops, though with few exceptions the drought continues severe and is injuring corn and late vegetables.

Owing to the extensive cloudiness and the prevailing northerly and easterly winds the average temperature of the week was 67 degrees, 2 degrees lower than for the preceding week. The temperature was well distributed, there being little complaint of cool nights, and the thermal conditions generally were favorable to crop growth.

The average rainfall for the week was .43 of an inch. It was, however, very unevenly distributed. While plenteous showers occurred in many sections of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, there were numerous localities in the northern portion of the district where there was no rain. The heaviest rainfall of the week was in the vicinity of Boston and occurred chiefly on the afternoon or night of the 22nd. Rain is still needed in all sections of New England, and for the greater portion of it the drought, at the present writing, is unusually severe.

With slight exceptions crops remain at a standstill in Maine, due to a continuation of the dry weather. The same conditions obtain for a large portion of New Hampshire and Vermont. All crops, in territory mentioned, are suffering and many are permanently injured, past recovery, and, in a few instances, have been destroyed. The injury is greatest to late corn, meadows, pastures, garden vegetables, beans, vines, berries, and to fruit generally. Rain, if it comes soon, will save many crops, and greatly improve others that will otherwise prove a total loss. In the southern parts of the district, where general showers occurred the early part of the week, followed by several days of moist, cloudy weather, with dense fogs in coast sections, crops are greatly improved, grass and vegetation generally being refreshed and again making rapid growth. More rain is much needed here and would be very beneficial to all late crops, especially to grass. Yet crops will mature without great loss, even if the dry weather continues, unless damaged by early frost. In addition to injuring crops the dry weather is also delaying fall plowing and seeding. The soil is too dry for cultivation and for the germination of seeds.

The scarcity of water for stock is a matter of much inconvenience in many sections of the northern states.

There is great danger of forest fires in timbered sections.

White grubs are very destructive to strawberry beds in the vicinity of Brentwood, N. H.

The Old Home Celebration.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 29.—There was somewhat of a lull in Monday's celebration of Old Home Week. The individual town celebrations which had been planned are now about to begin. Mount Vernon and South Hampton, however, brought their special observances to a close, each with a village basket picnic, attended by many hundreds of visitors. The shops and factories will close on Thursday and special trains will bring into the city the largest throngs in its history. It is evident that the chief end and aim of Old Home Week, which was to secure the return of sons and daughters of the state for a visit, has been reached, for reports from all sections of the state show that the mission has been well performed in this regard.

Concerning Maine Liquor Seizures.

Portland, Me., Aug. 29.—Dennis A. Meaher, who recently raised a point of law in a case under the prohibitory liquor statute that phased the court and state attorney, after a diligent search, has found the decision of the Maine supreme court which he cited. It was rendered Aug. 5, 1886, and is to the effect that deputies must know that liquor is on the premises before they swear out their warrants and take that and nothing else. The point is an important one and bids fair to break up a feature of the seizing business. The original paper was dug out of its resting place in the clerk of courts' office after every other known resource had been exhausted in trying to find a transcript in some book or file of papers.

Trolley Car Knocked Out.

Hampton, N. H., Aug. 29.—The Bar Harbor express on the eastern division of the Boston and Maine struck an electric car which was stalled on the track late last night. There were no passengers in the car, and the motorman and conductor were also off their platforms, one of them trying to adjust the trolley, while the other was endeavoring to signal the train. Neither was injured. The car was almost completely demolished.

Captured by Lord Vincent.

Hartford, Aug. 29.—The Charter Oak $10,000 stake was run off Monday afternoon. Lord Vincent closed the contest in the fifth heat, and took the race, showing endurance and speed. Indeed, the closing heat nearly placed him in a class outside the field. As in previous heats, the contest was for second place, this time Royal Baron and Lecco fighting for it, the latter taking it by a close decision.

Result of Family Quarrel.

Somerset, Vt., Aug. 29.—Lucien C. Harris shot his stepson, Charles Burnap, Monday, as the outcome of a family quarrel. Burnap attempted to enter a room in which Harris was writing, whereupon the latter fired, the bullet passing through the door panel and entering Burnap's arm, just below the wrist, inflicting a very severe wound. Possibly the arm may have to be amputated.

Annie S. Colton

Wife of ex-United States Consul to Venice, says:

M'LEAN IS AWAY AHEAD

In the Preliminary Skirmish For the Gubernatorial Nomination.

His Men Control Platform and Everything Else.

Not Giving Anything and Taking Everything In Committee on Credentials.

Zanesville, O., Aug. 30.—The interest of the Democratic state convention crowds was centered largely in the selection of the state central committee. The committee will hold over the presidential year, and the contest for the control of the party machinery was a warm one.

In the fight for the nomination for governor, the forces of John R. McLean and Colonel James Kilbourne were energetic and enthusiastic, although the general sentiment among outsiders seemed to be that McLean's victory was a foregone conclusion.

Although the state ticket will not be nominated till this afternoon, the result was decisively forecasted in the preliminary meetings last evening. The McLean men carried a large majority of the 21 congressional districts and will control not only the convention, but also all the party machinery in Ohio until the next presidential election, since the members of all committees have been selected and through them all the officers of the convention, as well as those who will be in charge of the campaign.

The McLean men are disposed to be liberal to their opponents. After it was found that McLean had at the district meetings secured control of all committees, many called on him and promised support from unexpected quarters. McLean and his managers then advised that all the candidates for governor be voted for on the first ballot as originally instructed, and it was even suggested that there might be two ballots, so as to give as many complimentary votes as possible to the opposing candidates. It was thought that this would make them feel better for the campaign and also show what foundation there was for the claims of some of the Columbus managers of Colonel Kilbourne. At the same time it would afford an opportunity for an enthusiastic and dramatic scene when all the scattering delegations flocked to the McLean standard on the second ballot.

Mr. McLean was quite modest in acknowledging the ovations. The visiting clubs and delegations serenaded him.

Colonel Kilbourne was equally happy in his acknowledgments of serenades and some times did more talking. Some candidates for other places on the state ticket had very lively demonstrations in their interest and most of them were also enthusiastic for Bryan and McLean.

It is quite probable that the name of McLean will be presented to the convention very briefly. McLean does not know who will present his name. He does not believe much in speeches. He says he would prefer to have his name presented without commendation or a word of comment.

General A. J. Warner will present the name of Colonel Kilbourne in a stirring speech, and much eloquence will be expended on the other candidates.

The preliminary meetings were in some case much more spirited than expected and a few continued till evening. The Kilbourne men contested every place on the long lists. The result shows that the McLean men carried 14 of the 21 congressional districts to five for the combined opposition, with the two Cleveland districts contested. As the McLean men control the committee on credentials they claim that they have the convention 16 to 5 by districts, as well as 16 to 1 for free silver.

At the district meeting General Warner spoke bitterly against the McLean men. After a free-for-all fight, the anti-McLean men bolted and left the room before this district meeting was concluded. The McLean men control the contests, the construction of the platform and everything else, as they will the convention, and are holding the most noisy jollifications.

The McLean men were not giving anything away and were taking everything in the committee on credentials. There were about 100 votes contested. The committee on resolutions last night heard representatives of labor organizations, tax reformers and other specialists, including even the latter day interpreters of the "Golden Rule."

The Kentucky Muddle.

Louisville, Aug. 30.—It is announced by the Goebel managers that every election officer in the 119 counties in the state will be removed on Sept. 11, and new men re-elected by Goebel's state election board. The names of the appointees have not been announced. This is regarded by the Republicans and bolting Democrats as the first move in the conspiracy to steal the state. Chairman Trimble's letter to W. E. Thompson, a Democrat, who was made an election officer, advising him to resign, as men would have to be selected who would see that the Democrats were counted in, proves that Goebel is preparing to name as election officers men who will do his bidding. Senator Blackburn, who is Goebel's chief backer, declares that if there is any stealing in the November election it won't be done by the Republicans. Followers of Brown and Taylor say that they will go to the polls with double-barrelled guns, if necessary, and see that their votes are counted. General Taylor, the Republican nominee, said: "By the eternal, I intend to see that every vote cast for me is counted for me."

Bland's Successor.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 30.—Incomplete returns received last night from the Eighth Missouri district, in which an election was held to fill the unexpired term in congress of Richard P. Bland, deceased, show that Dorsey W. Shackleford (Dem.) has been elected over W. J. Vosholl (Rep.) by 2200 plurality.

Many Towns Celebrated.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 30.—Tuesday was the most successful day in New Hampshire's initial observance of old home week, as more than a dozen towns held enjoyable celebrations, in which participated hundreds of returning sons and daughters of the Granite state. The principal celebration yesterday was at Dunbarton, where Governor Rollins and Senator Chandler made entertaining remarks. The governor spoke along the line of his previous old home addresses. Senator Chandler referred to the fact that 50 years ago he drove a stage from Concord to Dunbarton three times a week, and said that he had always retained his interest in and knowledge of the town. He defended the rural communities of New Hampshire from the charge of religious retrogression, and said that in his opinion the standard of morality was as high in rural New Hampshire today as it ever was, and that there was as much church-going and as much religion.

Sequel to Runaway Match.

Boston, Aug. 30.—A Block Island special to The Globe says that William Wilson Sloan, Jr., the Harvard student of class '02, who, two months ago, suddenly married Miss Rose L. Edwards of Cambridge, the intended bride of George H. Boeck of St. Louis, and who are summer guests there, have been forgiven and the parental blessings have been copiously bestowed. This sequel to one of the strangest and most sensational marriages ever known around Boston came about within the past week at this quiet home of fishermen and farmers.

A Mayoralty Possibility.

Boston, Aug. 30.—The Post says: It has been known that the Democratic leaders of the city have been urging General P. A. Collins to permit them to use his name as a candidate for mayor. It was also known that in doing so the leaders were simply carrying out the wishes of the great army of Democratic voters in Boston. It is now understood that the general has given the required permission, and the announcement of his willingness to accept the nomination, if tendered, may be expected soon.

Decision Will Come Later.

Hartford, Aug. 30.—The county commissioners have concluded their investigation of the charges against Henry M. Adams, superintendent of the county home for dependent children, and the case was closed without argument by counsel on either side. Yesterday's hearing, the third that has been held, was occupied wholly in cross-examining Superintendent Adams. Mr. Adams denied several of the allegations made against him. The commissioners will render their verdict later.

Fast Three-Year-Olds.

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 30.—Idolita, owned by Frank Jones of Portsmouth, N. H., pulled down the winner's share of the rich Horse Review stake for 3-year-old trotters. The little bay walked away from the field in each of the three heats and won hands down. The purse was worth $20,000. The first heat was made in 2:12. This was the fastest of the three heats. The money was divided as follows: Idolita, Frank Jones, $9000; Extasy, H. C. McDowell, Lexington, Ky., $4500; Rita E, H. W. Brown, Salt Lake, $2250; Irma Electrite, Henry Axall, 51250; My Trick, Marcus Daly, Montana, $500. The balance of the purse was divided between the nominators of sires of the winner and second horse.

Troub'e Breaks Out Afresh.

Cleveland, Aug. 30.—Rioting and disorder broke out last night in connection with the strike on the lines of the Big Consolidated street railway and four cars were nearly demolished, while the crews were compelled to flee for their lives. It was only after determined efforts on the part of 30 policemen that order was restored. It is expected that many arrests will follow the outrages.

Cubans Got Quite a Pile.

Havana, Aug. 30.—The commission which has been engaged in distributing the $3,000,000 appropriated for the purpose of paying off Cuban soldiers who surrender their arms to the American officials has returned to Havana. It reports that 33,692 persons have received their share of the gratuity, and that the total amount of money distributed is $2,526,900.

GROWS MORE SERIOUS.

Great Britain Realizes That Boers Can Put Up a Strong Fight.

Bechuanaland Is Now In Fear of a Raid.

Transvaal Will Resist a Demand For Giving Effect to the Milner Program.

London, Aug. 30.—The Times, referring this morning editorially to the statement of William P. Schreiner, the Cape premier, that in the event of war he would do his best to keep the Cape Colony aloof from the struggle, says: This is a startling misconception of duty. When the government of the queen declares war, it is the duty of all loyal subjects, whatever their position, not to keep aloof, but to do their utmost to bring the struggle to a successful end.

Commenting on the latest utterance of President Kruger that the South African republic adhered to its latest offer and would not make any further concessions, the London papers unanimously draw attention to the increased seriousness of the Transvaal crisis.

But in the same breath they express uncertainty regarding the nature of the concessions beyond which President Kruger says he will not go. No official announcement has been made of these, though they are generally understood to be a five-year franchise and increased outlander representation.

To whatever dispatch or conditions President Kruger's defiant remark referred, it has brought home sharply the keen possibility of an impending war against no weak-kneed adversary. It is said that with recruits from over the borders the Transvaal would have about 60,000 men at its disposal, whereas, the most the British now could throw on the frontier would be 30,000, though of course this number would be materially increased within a month.

The British public is taking intense interest in the preparations of their own forces already in South Africa. Indignation against W. P. Schreiner, premier of Cape Colony, who, in the Cape house of assembly, declared that under the customs convention, the Orange Free State was justified in importing arms through Cape Colony, is fairly general, though that section which believes that a Boer war would be a crime are making, by editorials, petitions, etc., what they appear to think is the last effort to avert hostilities.

The Pretoria correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says:

Events have taken an alarming turn. Great Britain, at the request of the outlanders' council, has enlarged the original demands of Sir Alfred Milner, the British high commissioner, and is adopting the view of Cecil Rhodes that President Kruger will never withstand an ultimatum.

I have, however, high authority for asserting that President Kruger, the volksraad and the nation will unitedly resist an unconditional demand for giving effect to the Milner program, but will concede reforms on the conditions already reported.

The Cape Town correspondent of The Daily Mail says: A pitiable scene was witnessed at the railway station Tuesday on the arrival from Johannesburg of 150 children whose parents are too poor to come themselves. It is estimated that 15,000 persons have left the Transvaal since the crisis began.

In the house of assembly Tuesday the government announced that it was considering a proposal to afford greater facilities for women and children to leave Johannesburg.

Bechuanaland is in a state of ferment, owing to fears of a Boer raid. Colonel Baden-Powell's forces there are wholly inadequate to protect such an extended frontier, and the Boers appear to be quietly concentrating in the western part of the Transvaal.

A Boer spy has been arrested in Ramattabama camp, in British Bechuanaland.

The Johannesburg Standard and Digger's News credits General Joubert, the commander-in-chief of the Transvaal forces and vice president of the republic, with the statement that, although he is personally desirous to do everything to preserve peace, the situation is such that the republic must be prepared for war.

Whitecappers Indicted.

Greenville, S. C., Aug. 30.—The grand jury has returned true bills against seven white men charging them with kidnapping and whitecapping. Friday night of last week Cicero Harris, colored, who lives on the plantation of Solicitor General Atkinson, was visited, it is claimed, by these white men, who stated they had a warrant for Harris' arrest. The negro asserts that he was taken to Pike county by the parties and unmercifully beaten with buggy traces and whips. He exhibited his back covered with bleeding sores caused by the lash to the grand jury. He charged that he was whipped because he refused to work for one of the defendants.

To Become a British Citizen.

Halifax, Aug. 30.—H. M. Whitney, who was tendered a reception by the citizens of Sydney, C. B., last night, said in a speech that he had decided to become a citizen of Sydney. He declared his opinion that the iron works at Sydney were so well situated that they would successfully compete against the world. The speaker declared that the building of iron ships by the Dominion Iron and Steel company would be undertaken.

Good Afternoon.

The reappointment by Gov. Wolcott of Editor George M. Whitaker of the New England Farmer as assistant secretary of the State Board of Agriculture for the fifth year, gives pleasure to his brother editors and the farmers who have many of them a personal acquaintance with him. Mr. Whitaker is a student and progressive, and being well educated and practical he meets with success and makes friends. His special work is as executive of the Dairy bureau of the board, which he performs intelligently.

The expenditures of the Commissioner of Public Works under the appropriation of $22,000 for streets, amounted to over $3,000 in July, as per bills paid, and the balance August 1 was but $3,309.95.

A like expenditure in August would entirely exhaust the appropriation Sept. 1. Even if all work under this appropriation were stopped short, the balance would not be sufficient to maintain the department until Jan. 1. It looks as if the talk of extravagance in this department had some foundation in fact, and that unless the Commissioner gets some large credits from other departments of public works, that he will be in a hole.

The balances of the Commissioner on other items in his department, as per annual appropriation order, were on Aug. 1: Bridges, culverts and drains, $1,332.39 out of $2,500; engineering, $1,000 out of $3,000; removal of snow, $28.15 out of $9,500; street lighting, $9,049.78 out of $17,600; advertising, printing and stationery, $836.56 out of $2,500; edgestones, $1,560.37 out of $2,000; clerical services, $313 out of $625; repairs of public buildings, $2,001.29 out of $4,500; street watering, $3,300 out of $4,400; street crossings, $393.11 out of $1,000.

The balance for water maintenance, also in charge of Commissioner Cavanagh, was on the first of August, $3,923.81 out of $9,000, and $22,843.91 remained of the water construction appropriation of $31,895.33.

There are a number of special appropriations for specific streets under this department, some of which are nearly completed and others not started. The balances given, it should be remembered, are for Aug. 1, four weeks ago, and that if all bills were paid to that date that the balance would be even smaller.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Who cares a continental if diamonds are 50 per cent. higher than a year ago and still advancing in price? They don't look well in a golf suit.—Lynn Item.

☞The Manila Freedom, the soldiers newspaper in the Philippines, has a very poor opinion of one Edward Atkinson, and plainly states the fact.—Malden News.

☞A New York paper says that the Mormon elder who preached on Boston common last Sunday walked off with 500 converts. If he walked off far enough Boston won't care so very much.—Marlboro Enterprise.

☞When it comes to the payment of a poll tax or spending 12 days in jail, the former is the more pleasant alternative. It ought to be a matter of principle to contribute this much to the public treasury without the necessity for compulsion. — Brockton Times.

JUDGE OF PROBATE.

Hon. James H. Flint of Weymouth Gets the Plum.

An Ex-Senator and Ex-Representative.

Was on Committee on Probate and Insolvency.

Governor Wolcott today forwarded to the Council the appointment of Hon. James H. Flint of Weymouth as Judge of Probate for Norfolk county, vice Hon. George White, deceased. Judge Flint from his experience at the bar, as a judge in the district court at Quincy, and as a member of the Committee on Probate and Insolvency of the Legislature for three years is admirably fitted for the duties and the appointment is sure to be confirmed. The salary is $2,500. Sessions of the court are held twice a month in Dedham, on the second Wednesdays, in Quincy and on the fourth Wednesdays in Brookline.

In 1894 Mr. Flint was elected a Representative from the Quincy-Weymouth district by a flattering vote, his colleagues being Charles L. Hammond and George L. Wentworth. He was reelected in 1895 and served in the sessions of 1895 and 1896 on the Committee on Probate and Insolvency and also on Street Railways. In the fall of 1896 he was elected to the Senate from the First Norfolk district and served as chairman of the Committee on Insurance and also on the Ways and Means Committee and Probate and Insolvency.

The next year he was again in the Senate, and was chairman of the Committee on Insurance and a member of the Committee on Education and the Judiciary.

Judge Flint was born in Middleton, Mass., June 25, 1852. His youth was passed in that beauitful Essex county town, where he attended the public schools until his sixteenth year.

After one term in a private school in Salem and a term in the Danvers High School he entered the Classical Department, preparing for College at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., in 1869.

His course at Phillips was a brilliant one and he stood at the head of his class in scholarship and graduated in 1872, with high honors; the valedictorian of his class with the highest average for scholarship that had been attained there for years. In 1872 Judge Flint entered Harvard College and as a marked tribute to his ability, he received a "Bigelow Scholarship" one of the greatest honors attainable for Freshmen, requiring the united superiority of scholarship, character, all round strength and promise for the future, an unqualified mark of distinction. He became a member of the Phi Beta Kappa, a college society which accepts only those men highest in scholarship.

Immediately upon his graduation from Harvard he accepted an offer to assume the position of principal of the Marblehead High school, where he remained four years. His popularity in this position is attested from the fact that he was unanimously re-elected each year and urgently solicited to reconsider his resignation and remain. After spending a few months in the Agricultural Department at the State House, with his uncle Hon. Charles L. Flint, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, he entered the Boston University Law school, taking the three years' course in one year, ranking at the head of his class and making a record unequalled by any one-year student. He then went to New York city and spent a year in one of the largest law offices in the city; afterward returning to Boston where he was admitted to the Suffolk Bar in 1882. Soon he became identified with the firm that handled the largest insolvency case ever in the New Englands courts.

Judge Flint has done a large amount of literary work of a legal character. Among other things he edited the American edition of "Lewin on Trusts," now published in Philadelphia, and has written "Flint on Trusts and Trustees," which is published in San Francisco.

Judge Flint has been a valuable member of the Weymouth School Board for several years.

In April, 1890, he was appointed a Special Justice of the District Court of East Norfolk, holden at Quincy. He was elected Secretary of the Republican League of Massachusetts in 1888 and ably filled that position during the Presidential campaign, doing much quiet, but effective work in behalf of the party.

He is prominently identified with the Knights of Pythias being a past chancellor commander, and is a past warden of Safety Lodge 96, New England Order of Protection. He is also a member of Delta Lodge of Free Masons and a past junior warden.

He has ever taken a deep and active interest in all public matters, and is ever ready to give time and service to every good cause. Judge Flint is in the active practice of his chosen profession and has an office at No. 39 Court street, Boston.

Judge Flint is a thoroughly self-made man, born to a farmer's life, he worked early and late, spending the evening hours far into the night in reading and study, unill at last, starting out for an education he worked his way through school, college and the law school. He never hesitated at the hardness of his task, or the difficulties which arose before him. He is the friend of and sypmpathizer with the workingmen of whom he claims to be one.

Handsome Souvenir.

The very expensive and costly souvenir edition of the Quincy Patriot, which has taken constant work of canvassers, photograhers, engravers and printers for months to complete, is now ready for patrons.

Quite a large edition has been published, and it will be sold at the low price of 30 cents per copy. When eight or more copies are furnished to one person, the price will be 25 cents. Although the edition is large it will, very likely, be soon exhausted, when no more can be had at any price, as no second edition will be issued.

The publishers will furnish to every subscriber to the Quincy Patriot, whose name appears on the books, one copy of the Souvenir gratis. This will take a larger part of the edition; therefore those thinking of getting copies for themselves or friends should attend to it at once. The pamphlet weighs between one and two pounds, and Postmaster Hammond says the postage will be eleven cents. A copy will be mailed to every subscriber living out of the city, who will send his or her name and postage. Subscribers living in the city will receive them by carriers. If any one fails to receive a copy, please call at the Patriot office for one.

The subscribers at Atlantic can procure a copy by calling at the news stand of Branschied & Martens.

Copies are for sale at the new South Station in Boston and at the principal news stands in Quincy.

FIREWORKS.

The fireworks display this year will be let off from a large raft which will be anchored about 500 feet from shore looking toward Nantasket and can be seen from every part of the shore front from the head of Nut Island to the point of Rock Island. The exhibition will begin soon after dark. The committee suggest that the yachts and boats at anchor display as many lighted lanterns as possible thus adding a new feature to the programme. The committee also request that no boat come nearer than 200 feet to the raft as some of the water fireworks take up a great deal of room in their gyrations and there is danger from them.

All cottagers and business places are requested to illuminate their places as soon as darkness sets in. Cottagers are also reminded that it will be a good plan to have pails of water handy, and garden hose connected ready for instant use in case or fire.

Ample police and fire protection will be provided, but it is hoped that their services will not be needed.

CO. K BLANKETS.

The Militia Have No Further Use For Them.

The Quincy City Hospital Therefore Profits.

The Company Presents Them to That Institution.

The people of Quincy have heard much about the Co. K blankets. Of their presentation to Co. K in 1898 by Mayor Sears, in behalf of the city. Of their use during a brief tour of duty as a militia company at Rockport, before enlistment of the boys as U. S. volunteers. Of the liability of the city to pay the bill for the blankets and the final payment. Of the suffering of the volunteers during their winter in camp. Of the surprise later to learn that the blankets did not go to the front with the company, but were held instead at the armory in Braintree as property of the Massachusetts militia company. Of the trouble and ill feeling that was engendered when the volunteers returned, and the resignation of Capt. Kincaide. Of the reorganization of Co. K

It was thought that the people had heard the last about the blankets but they got too hot for the Co. K boys, and although winter is approaching the company came to the conclusion that they had no further use for them, and that they would benefit others more. It was a happy thought, that the blankets might be of use at the Quincy Hospital, and the suggestion met with favor. The company therefore voted to present said blankets to that institution.

There are 50 to 60 pairs of heavy blankets, very little used and practically as good as new. Doubtless they will be appreciated by many who become inmates of the Hospital, and the gift will be appreciated from a financial standpoint by the trustees of the institution.

A Good Recommendation.

Mr. W. G. Chubbuck who gives personal attention to moving pianos, furniture, etc., received this week the following letter from Mr. Kent:

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 26, 1899

Mr. Chubbuck,

Sir: My furniture which you packed and shipped on the 3d inst., arrived here all right. It was nearly a week on the road but there was nothing lost or damaged in any way. It was well packed, rather better than it needed.

MANY GOING HOME,

The Season Waning at Houghs Neck by the Sea.

The new addition to the house of Arthur Dunham is about completed.

Large quantities of herring have been caught off Houghs Neck this week.

Mrs. Hattie Connor has resigned her position on the staff of the Brockton Enterprise.

The tent of a party of campers was entered Saturday while the occupants were out and the pockets of George Ford's trousers relieved of $9 in money and a silver watch.

Mrs. J. B. Emery will run the Loretto for the balance of the season.

Mrs. J. J. Lacey and a party of young ladies from Jamaica Plain are in the McMaster cottage.

The cool weather this week has kept many transient visiting from the beach.

A cake walk and prize dance will be one of the attractions at the beach this week.

H. B. Willis and family of Milton have taken the Leslie cottage at Rock Island.

People have begun to think about getting back to their winter homes and nearly every day sees some family packing up their household goods.

Andrew Carby and family of Walpole are in the Shaw cottage on Great hill.

The smoker of the Quincy Yacht club comes on illumination night and the club house will illuminate.

Mrs. M. E. Fisher is entertaining a party from Hyde Park at the Sea View cottage.

A few more such organizations as the Manet Yacht club and the season at Houghs Neck would be a lively one.

Silver Lake Springs makes an ideal place for the water sports on illumination day.

A party of Quincy misses are in the Happy Thought cottage on Centre road.

The Houghs Neck fire apparatus will be augmented Thursday by men, ladders, etc., from the Central fire station.

About the only people at the beach this year who have made any money are the photographers, who are taking many group pictures. The latest is to have a lapel button with your picture in it.

The old car at the junction of Sea street and Manet avenue, that served as a lunch room, is being remodelled and next year will have a high sounding name tacked onto it, and be called a cottager.

The Grapevine cottage is occupied by E. E. Small and family of Brockton.

Houghs Neck people hope when they come next year to this delightful resort, to see the proposed boulevard to the beach a fact. They also hope to have electric street lights and other needed improvements.

Oil Stove Exploded.

The alarm from Box 32 at 12.05 this noon, followed immediately by an alarm from Box 37 called the department to a lively blaze in a double house on Payne street, owned by James Brogan and occupied in part by Mr. Brogan and John Horrigan.

The fire started in the kitchen of Mr. Brogan's part and was caused by the explosion of a blue flame oil stove.

Mr. Brogan was at home and says that he had just lighted the stove, but for some reason it did not work right. Suddenly it exploded, and the burning oil was scattered about the room. He rushed to one fire alarm box and at the same time someone rushed to another. Both boxes being of the non-interferance kind, one box did not work until the first pulled had sounded. The result of these two boxes was a second alarm, and called the apparatus from Atlantic and Wollaston, as well as elsewhere.

When the department arrived the kitchen was one mass of flames, which had worked their way toward the roof. The partition separating one of the chambers was burned through and the rafters badly burned. The flames, however did not work through the roof.

Several streams of water were thrown into the flames which were soon extinguished. Although the flames were confined to the kitchen a thick black smoke penetrated the whole house. While the department was at work willing hands had hustled the furniture on the lower floor of the house into neighboring yards.

The recalls were sounded at 12.15 and 12.35. The loss on building and contents will not exceed $500, which is covered by insurance.

Stop Baby's Pain!

Not by dosing. A medicated flannel pad called "Littlefellows Painese," made by the Comfort Powder people is far better and safer than soothing syrups. It instantly relieves colic, restlessness and all pains of the stomach and bowels. 25 cents at druggists.

Convicted of Liquor Selling.

Samuel Burrell said to be the man who has charge of the stables at the Great Hill House at Houghs Neck, was in court this morning charged with the illegal sale of liquor to William McCormick, David L. Gordon and William F. Dyer.

The first case was that of the sale to McCormick. The evidence in this case was that on the night of Aug. 12 he went into the yard of the Great Hill House in the evening with Dyer, and purchased a pint of whiskey from Burrell and paid 50 cents for it. McCormick also said he met Dyer and Gordon on the evening in question and that the three went to the Great Hill stable where they met Barrell. After some conversation Burrell went toward the stable and came back with the liquor. He then had a drink with Burrell and Dyer and later had a drink with Gordon at Dyer's house.

No defense was put in and Burrell was found guilty and fined $50.

Burrell was discharged upon the other two complaints.

Intervention Would Be Futile.

Berlin, Aug. 30.—The Cologne Gazette, in an inspired article, replying to the foreign press, says: After the failure of Major Panizzardi and Colonel Schneider to convince the French people, Colonel Schwartzkoppen's intervention in behalf of one innocently sentenced would be futile, especially since Germany has already done more than could be expected by Count Von Buelow's solemn declarations, which were given as representing the empire and the emperor, and Colonel Schwartzkoppen's word of honor in his declarations in November, 1897, that he never had any relations with Dreyfus.

AN ELABORATE SCHEME

Which, However, Fails to Withstand a Very Close Analysis.

Proposed Alliance of Latin-American Republics

In Which Progressive Countries Would Be Dominated by Little Neighbors.

City of Mexico, Aug. 30.—An eminent lawyer, belonging to the Conservative party, publishes in the clerical organ, El Tiempo, an elaborate plan for the alliance of all Latin-American republics in a league for mutual protection. According to this plan, the league is to be formed for 25 years, and to commence its existence with the first year of the coming century. There shall be a general assembly of delegates from all nations in the league. This supreme assembly shall have control of the combined fleets of the contracting powers, and shall also have eminent control over an inter-oceanic canal, which the new confederation shall construct in Central America. The nations in the league shall submit to compulsory arbitration all international questions. The supreme assembly shall establish concord between church and the members of the confederation.

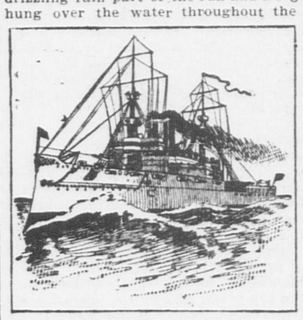

In its issue last night, El Mundo, a semi-official paper, tears the program to pieces in a brilliant analysis, saying that the whole plan is a scheme to bring the progressive Latin-American countries, such as Mexico, Brazil, Chili and Argentina, under the control of an assembly in which the little republics, dominated by the clergy, will have a majority, and El Mundo adds, the first outcome of the league would be war with the United States, which would regard any attempt to build an inter-oceanic canal a declaration of hostilities against itself.

El Mundo ridicules the scheme as impracticable, and opposed to the wishes of the liberal party in the Latin-American countries.

The Mexican Herald pronounces the scheme a delicious piece of Quixotry, and says, while it approves some such scheme of Latin-American confederation, it must come as an initiative from one of the chief countries concerned.

A Satisfactory Performance.

Lewes, Del., Aug. 30.—The builders' trial trip of the battleship Alabama resulted in the development in the maximum speed of 17¼ knots. There was a drizzling rain part of the run and a fog hung over the water throughout the day. The trial was made in open sea and in shoal water, between the northwest and southeast five-fathom lights. The wind was from the northeast, about 30 miles an hour. The trial was satisfactory in every respect.

American Capital In the Orient.

San Francisco, Aug. 30.—The Call says that a Chinese-American corporation, with a capital of $20,000,000, is in process of organization for the purpose of establishing large enterprises in China. The Chinese government is said to be backing the undertaking. Ho You, the Chinese consul general, laid the plan before a meeting of capitalists here yesterday, and it is said the necessary capital was subscribed. It is surmised that the ulterior object of the Oriental statesman is to induce the investment in China of American capital in such large amounts as will influence the United States government to take an active interest in Chinese politics, indirectly resist the aggression of European powers and prevent dismemberment of the Chinese empire, while protecting the American capital which will be invested.

Investigating Chicago Disaster.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Coroner Berz has begun an investigation of the Coliseum disaster to ascertain who may be held legally responsible for the accident. The coroner discovered that when the iron frame fell it was being used to support pulleys for hoisting heavy timbers. This discovery caused a sensation. A search was then made for John J. Johnson, the foreman, with a view to questioning him as to whether the arches had been used as supports for hoisting tackle for the iron and timbers raised and lowered. Johnson could not be found.

Fighting In San Domingo.

Cape Haytien, Aug. 30.—News has reached here from Santo Domingo confirming the defeat by the revolutionists of General Pepin, in command of the government force, who lost 30 men killed and had 40 of his soldiers captured. In addition, General Pepin was compelled to abandon a convoy of provisions. Further fighting has taken place near Monte Christi between the revolutionists under General Davarre and the government troops commanded by General Guelito. Details of this engagement have not yet reached here.

To Attack Zelaya.

New Orleans, Aug. 30.—Advices from Nicaragua state that General Louis Mena, the bravest fighter of the Reyes revolt, who has placed himself at the head of the refugees in San Salvador, numbering about 100, defeated the troops on the frontier, and is now pressing on to Leon. He hopes to raise an army there to attack Zelaya at the capital.

MERCIER QUESTIONS CORDIER.

Evidence That the General Does Not Intend to Throw Up the Sponge.

Rennes, Aug. 30.—Yesterday's attendance at the Dreyfus court-martial was the largest since the opening of the trial. Neither side was satisfied with the outcome of the proceedings of the day. The Dreyfusards expected that Colonel Cordier, who was deputy chief of the intelligence department under the late Lieutenant Colonel Henry, would testify that the bordereau was received directly by the late Colonel Sandherr. Had this expectation been realized, the testimony would have been a strong point in favor of the accused, because it would have been a reply to the anti-Dreyfusards, who have all along contended that Henry received the bordereau and forwarded it to Sandherr, a thing he would not have done had the bordereau been, as the Dreyfusards assert, written by his accomplice, Esterhazy, for, in that event, Henry would have recognized the handwriting when he received the bordereau from the German embassy, and would have suppressed it, instead of forwarding it to Sandherr.

Colonel Cordier, however, testified yesterday that he was absent from the intelligence department when the bordereau arrived, but that he believed it was received by Henry.

Naturally this statement elated the anti-Dreyfusards, but the Dreyfusards had good reason to congratulate themselves upon the remainder of Cordier's testimony, as it was wholly in favor of Dreyfus.

On the other hand the procession of generals and officers of the general staff, who demanded an opportunity to confront Colonel Cordier was a good piece of tactics from the point of view of the anti-Dreyfusards, because their very appearance on the stage and their contradictions of some of Cordier's statements left a disagreeable impression.

The appearance of General Mercier to question Colonel Cordier came as a surprise to many in the audience, who had supposed that, after last Saturday's scene, when Mercier was confronted with Captain Freystaetter, he would remain quiet. But Mercier is game to the death. His action is interpreted as intended to show that he is not going to throw up the sponge. The part he played in 1894 lays him open to arrest, and this is a constant topic of discussion in the cafes and at other meeting places in Rennes. There appears, however, to be excellent reason why the government will not take any such serious step until the trial is over.

All were anxious to hear the testimony of M. De Freycinet, senator, former premier, former minister of foreign affairs and former minister of war. This adroit politician, the "white mouse" of French politics, sat upon the fence as well as he could. His expression of a fear that the Dreyfus agitation would injure the discipline of the army greatly annoyed the Dreyfusards, as calculated to influence the judges against the accused. But he followed it with a eulogy of the pioneer of the Dreyfus campaign, M. Scheurer-Kestner, former vice president of the senate.

Matrie Labori then secured another concession favorable to Dreyfus by getting M. De Freycinet to admit that he could not recall a single fact going to prove that money had been sent into France from abroad to promote a campaign in favor of Dreyfus. The general feeling is, however, that his appearance on the witness stand has not materially helped the counsel of the accused.

Sensational Revelations Promised.

Paris, Aug. 30.—Major Tavernier, acting under the rogatory commission issued by Colonel Jouaust, president of the Dreyfus court-martial, questioned Colonel Du Paty de Clam at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and will continue the examination today. According to The Matin, De Clam made sensational revelations.

EASIEST KIND OF WORK.

Clevelands Fall Victims to Champions---McGan's Decisions Displeased Crowd.

Cleveland, Aug. 30.—It was the easiest kind of task for Duffy's men to win both games. Nichols pitched in great form in the first, only one of the three hits made off him being a clean drive to the outfield. Knepper's slow ones exactly suited the champions.

In the second game, Meekin was hit freely enough, but Colliflower was a positive mark. Umpire McGarr came in for a storm of abuse from the 300 spectators. He had about six close decisions to give, and as he gave them all to Boston, the little handful of people tried to get even for the two defeats by raking the umpires over the coals.

Choynski Won on Points.

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 30.—Joe Choynski was given the decision over Australian Jimmy Ryan at the end of a 20-round go here last night, for the light-heavyweight championship of the world. Choynski demonstrated great cleverness throughout. Ryan stood Joe's continual left jabbing in the face, while he showed little signs of punishment at the end of the bout. The decision was strictly on points. Choynski weighed close to 158 pounds, while he opponent was six pounds lighter.

JOE CHOYNSKI.

Address Has Good Effect.

Darien, Ga., Aug. 30.—Four troops of cavalry have been ordered to relieve the infantry on duty here since last Thursday. The cavalry will be under command of Colonel Lawton. The tug Crescent City has sailed for Savannah with a guard of 25 soldiers to bring here the 28 rioters confined in the jail at that place. There are 18 rioters in jail here. An address issued by the negro leaders of McIntosh county to their race is having excellent effect. It is signed by six preachers, the postmaster, the collector of the port, the chairman of the Democratic party and one editor, all colored.

Anarchists' Cowardly Scheming.

Rio Janeiro, Aug. 30.—The police have discovered an association of anarchists at San Paulo, and the investigation shows that, among others who were chosen, is a young girl, who has already started on her voyage, whose mission it is to dynamite buildings of the Paris exhibition. Several persons have been arrested in connection with the plot.

"BOSTON VEGETABLE VAPOR."

It is claimed that, while it has the required properties of ether, chloroform, nitrous oxid gas, it lacks the disagreeable and dangerous qualities of these drugs. It is certainly a boon to suffering humanity to be relieved of the nausea too often following the administering of sedatives of the old school.—Boston Transcript.

PROGRAM CARRIED OUT.

Democrats of Buckeye State Nominate John R. McLean For Governor.

Kilbourne Wouldn't Stand For Lieutenant Governorship.

Resolutions Endorse Chicago Platform and Bryan---Anti-Trust and Anti-Imperialism.

Zanesville, O., Aug. 31.—Every possible effort was made by the Democratic convention yesterday to nominate Colonel James Kilbourne for lieutenant governor, but after a dozen of the close personal friends had withdrawn his name and declared that Colonel Kilbourne would decline, this effort was abandoned. The convention closed last night after a day of dramatic plays. While there were a half dozen other candidates for governor, the McLean men had claimed everything with such confidence that they undertook to be magnanimous in minor parts. They stated early in the day that all the candidates would have their respective votes on the first ballot. McLean was nominated on the first ballot by a half vote.

It is claimed that he could have had 478 votes out of the 802 on the first ballot, instead of 402½, and that he would have had over 500 on the second ballot. At any rate the delegates all voted for their local favorites on the first ballot, and thus the program of complimenting them was carried out without the leader drawing from any of his competitors.

The convention, much of the time, was beyond the control of the sergeant-at-arms and his assistants.

The convention was properly represented in its platform, and the keynote speech of Judge Mooney. The name of Bryan was cheered whenever it was mentioned. The convention made demonstrations over free silver and anti-imperialism, anti-bossism and all the indictments in the speech of Judge Mooney and in the platform.

The platform heartily reaffirms the entire Chicago platform of 1896, especially emphasizing the financial plank, and says William J. Bryan "still retains our entire confidence, and we demand his renomination in 1900."

It declares radical and unalterable opposition to imperialism in the United States of America, saying: "When we have solved some of the race problems that confront us at home, then by example, we can proclaim the blessings that flow upon free institutions and thus procure benevolent assimilation, without criminal aggression."

It commends the action of congress in declaring that the war with Spain was for humanity, and not for conquest. It refers to the "valor and glorious achievements of our gallant soldiers and sailors," and adds: "But we profoundly regret that American soldiers are being unlawfully used in the name of liberty, to crush and destroy dawning Republicanism in the Orient, and we denounce the secret and vicious alliance now in evidence between England and the Republican administration, whereby this nation may become involved in war with foreign nations."

It demands that the Cubans and Filipinos be encouraged to establish independent republics. The Republican party is denounced "for its 38 years of abject subservience to the shipping interest of Great Britain." Also the so-called Hanna-Payne shipping bill, "which, if enacted into law, would further shackle our interests."

It favors the maintenance of an efficient navy, but says that a large standing army in our republic is a menace to liberty.

It favors the initiative and referendum, the passage of the eight-hour law, the more rigid inspection of mines and workshops, the prohibition of sweat shops, and the abolition of the contract system of prison labor.

It declares that all unlawful combinations of capital are the legitimate fruits of a gold standard and other corrupt Republican legislation, demands that articles the prices of which are controlled by the trusts be placed on the free lists, denounces the attorney general of the United States for his refusal to enforce the statutes against trusts.

It denounces political bosses who live and exist through jobs and schemes loaded upon the taxpayers, and concludes: "We recommend a constitutional amendment providing for the election of president, vice president and United States senators by direct vote of the people.

"We favor such appropriations by the legislature as may be necessary to insure the success of the centennial to be held at Toledo.

"That the trusts can be controlled by the States only, and not by the general government, is a matter of no consequence to us, if they can be controlled at all. The Republican party is at fault so long as the attorney general of the United States is selected and inducted into office because he is a trust lawyer, and so long as an attorney general of the state of Ohio is retired to private life because he has undertaken in this respect to enforce the law, the Republican party must fail in its declaration that it is opposed to trusts.

"We charge that the Republican party, as at present controlled, stands for, if indeed it has not already entered into, an Anglo-American alliance. We have no desire, we perceive no necessity, to aid Britain in the maintenance of a British policy anywhere, and with full confidence in the strength of our cause and country, we ask no aid from Britain in maintaining American policy anywhere that it is necessary or desirable to maintain one. We adhere to the Monroe doctrine. We are loyal to the counsels of Washington's farewell address. We are not prepared to accept the ancient antagonisms of England as our own, nor to participate with her in her new-found hates or envies, and at this juncture, when England sees its power slipping away and perceives with alarm the great advance of German manufacture in the world's trade, we have not discovered any reason why we should side with England and oppose the advance of Germany. We oppose the Anglo-American alliance, we would equally oppose any other alliance, and our motto will continue to be, in the future as in the past, one flag, one country and one allegiance."

Raced With Death.

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 31.—Abraham Sapiro had a thrilling race for his life in a beer vat at Katz Bros.' brewery here. The vat, which is used for mashing the malt, was empty, and Sapiro went into it to repair one of the two big steel knives, which reach from a shaft in the center and mix the malt. While working away Sapiro was startled to see the knives commence to move. Thomas McKay, the engineer, not knowing that Sapiro was in the vat, had set the knives in motion. Paced by one sharp instrument and chased by another, Sapiro ran around the vat at top speed. For five minutes the race for life continued. Finally Sapiro's cries attracted the attention of McKay, who came running to the side of the vat. He was so terrified by what he saw that he became rooted to the ground, and in a daze watched the chase. Sapiro cried desperately for help. The shaft had reached its maximum speed and the man between the knives could not last long. In the meantime a slip on the copper bottom meant horrible death. Sapiro was on his last legs when workmen from other parts of the building heard his cries and stopped the machinery, when Sapiro fell to the bottom of the vat exhausted. He was unhurt.

Lyons Defeated by White.

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 31.—Tommy White got the decision over Henry Lyons of Chicago at the end of a 20-round bout here last night. They fought for the 126-pound championship. Lyons put up a good fight, but began to weaken in the last round, and White landed almost at will. Neither man appeared to possess much power. They hugged continually from start to finish. Hitting with one arm free was allowed, and they pummelled each other every time they clinched. The decision did not meet the entire approval of the audience, owing to the good showing Lyons made in the first 15 rounds.

Remarkable Surgical Operation.

New York, Aug. 31.—The 8-months-old child of Robert Liddell, afflicted with complete ossification of the head, was successfully operated upon at the Grace hospital here yesterday. From birth the child's head showed no signs of development and ossification set in, causing partial paralysis of the left side. This was due to the pressure of the skull upon the brain, and by the operation a portion of the skull was removed. It is believed that the child will completely recover.

Alleged Wife Murderer Captured.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 31.—Andrew Weeden, the negro wanted on a charge of killing his wife here last Saturday night, was arrested yesterday morning by Deputy Sheriff Wilcox. Weeden had managed to elude the officers from the time his wife was shot up to yesterday. Weeden pleaded not guilty, and was held without bail for trial on Monday next.

Trolley Car and Wagon Collided.

Boston, Aug. 31.—As a result of the collision last night between an electric car and a wagon containing two men, John Fuchs was instantly killed and Jacob Matoni received severe bruises. Both men were riding in the wagon and were thrown to the ground when the collision took place.

TO RECLAIM ABANDONED FARMS.

Scientists Will Investigate the Existing Conditions In New England.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is arranging for an exhaustive scientific investigation of the abandoned farms of New England, with a view to their reclamation. He has had many letters from New England inviting his attention to this subject, and has resolved to send several of the scientists of the department thither to make a study of the conditions. Later the secretary himself will make a personal inspection.

Without having investigated the conditions, Secretary Wilson inclines to the opinion that the abandoned farms in New England have been deprived of phosphates, potash, nitrogeneous matter and the other essential ingredients of production by unscientific farming, and that by careful culture the fertility of the soil can be restored. A soil physicist will be despatched to make a careful analysis of the soil to determine exactly what it lacks. The secretary thinks that the planting of grasses, legumes, clover, etc., will restore the nitrogen, and that phosphates can be had by the introduction of domestic animals. Potash must be purchased. The secretary is very sanguine in his belief that science can reclaim these once fertile, but long abandoned, farms.

Collins Is Willing.

Boston, Aug. 31.—Patrick A. Collins received the reporters of the various papers yesterday, and in reply to the question of one of the reporters, "Will you be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor?" he said: "That is a very abrupt question. I suppose that this question must be answered in some way, and, though the convention time is a long way off, I see no reason why it may not as well be answered now. If that convention, looking the situation over, should regard my nomination as the best to be made under the circumstances then existing, I should as a loyal Democrat feel it my duty to accept. If the choice should fall upon some other man I shall feel as happy as he, and perhaps much happier for the next two years."

PATRICK COLLINS.

Wistful Eyes on Costa Rica.

New Orleans, Aug. 31.—An American just returned from Nicaragua, where he lived for seven years, states that there recently took place a secret conference between President Zelaya of Nicaragua and President Sierra of Honduras, the purpose of which was to effect an alliance between those two countries for an invasion of Costa Rica. It is stated that war between the allies and Costa Rica is bound to eventuate. The casus belli is contained in the fact that Nicaragua is intent upon regaining from Costa Rica the province of Guanacaste, which is adjacent to the proposed route of the Nicaraguan canal. This province belonged to Nicaragua, but was wrested from the latter in the last struggle with Costa Rica.

Granite State Praised In Song.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 31.—The success of New Hampshire's Old Home Week waxes mightily as the days go by. The Concord program began last evening with a concert and old residents' reunion. The singing of "Dear Old New Hampshire Hills," "The Star Spangled Banner" and "My Old New Hampshire Home" occasioned great applause. The concert wound up with "Old Lang Syne" by the band and quartet, with the audience joining in the chorus. "Uncle Ben" Davis, the oldest music teacher in New England, directed the concert. Later there were short addresses.

Cleveland Dynamiters Again at Work.

Cleveland, Aug. 31.—A combination car on the Wilson avenue line was blown up by a powerful explosion last night. There were several passengers on board, and five of them sustained broken legs. The explosion lifted the car entirely off the track, destroying the trucks and demolishing the flooring. The car fell again on the tracks and in such a way as to imprison the injured and frantic passengers. These were rescued by the crew of the car. The report of the explosion was heard three miles from the scene. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the explosion.

Sandbagged and Robbed.

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 31.—Otto Hillers, a barber, aged 33, of this place, is in a critical condition and will probably die as the result of being sandbagged. The man was found lying unconscious by the roadside. He says he was stopped by a stranger, who hit him on the head, rendering him unconscious, and stole $50 and a gold watch from him.

Appears to Be All Jiminez' Way.

Cape Haytien, Aug. 31.—Advices received from the cities of Santiago and Puerto Plata, Santo Domingo, say that both have proclaimed in favor of General Jiminez. A provisional government has been established at Santiago, where the presence of General Jiminez is demanded with enthusiasm by the people.

Williams—Scientific Optician.

Good Afternoon.

It was a bit amusing to read in the Globe that James H. Flint once represented East Weymouth in the Legislature. Not only once but four successive years was the judge in the Legislature, twice as Representative from Quincy and Weymouth, and twice in the Senate from the First Norfolk district. Quincy is proud of the ex-Representative and ex-Senator and is pleased to have given him a lift toward his present appointment.

Just why the Herald in its annual exhibit of assessed valuations and tax rates should include Manchester, Marblehead and other North Shore towns, and drop all the South Shore towns south of Quincy, which are nearer the Hub, is hard to understand. Quincy would make a much better showing if the list included our neighbors—Weymouth, Braintree, Holbrook, Avon, Randolph, Brockton and others, which have high tax rates. In the 31 cities and towns which the Herald includes, only Boston, Brookline, Everett, and Cambridge made a larger gain in real estate valuation.

The appointment of Judge Flint of Weymouth, as judge of probate for Norfolk county is entirely satisfactory to the people of Quincy at large. Some lawyers from this city were mentioned for the position, but made no active canvass for the appointment, feeling that it was useless against a gentleman so well equipped as Judge Flint. He received a liberal and hearty support from Quincy, and it is hoped that Weymouth which has of late been remarkably favored in number of important county positions will recognize the future claims of this city. The next senator to succeed Hon. B. H. Woodsum in 1900, should be a Quincy man.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ An eminent naturalist, after a careful study of the subject, believes that the so-called kissing-bug may be one of several species. It may be the melanoletes picipes, the opscoelestus personatus, the coriscus subcoloratus or the rhasahus thoracius. And again it may be the product of the professional joker's lively imagination.—Providence Journal.

☞ It would possibly be a good thing from a hygienic standpoint if the action of the beef packers in raising the price of their product should result in the people making beef a less conspicuous article of diet, especially in the summer time. The purpose of health, and also of getting back at the beef magnates might be served at one and the same time.—Brockton Times.

☞ Dr. Simpson seems to have lost none of his old-time power in charming dollars out of the pockets of attendants at the Old Orchard meetings of the Christian Alliance. It has frequently been the case in the past that persons have made pledges, in the heat of enthusiasm, which they could not well fulfil, and have made contributions which were afterwards regretted. Wonder if this year's list will be minus such instances?—Salem News.

☞ It is reported that some American merchants at Manila are coming to Washington to advocate the sale of the Philippines to Great Britain. It will probably be a bootless errand, although such a transfer might in many respects be to our advantage. But it may be doubted whether with her troubles in South Africa on hand, Great Britain will care to take up and carry on our war with the Filipinos, who would be no more likely to submit resistance to British than to American domination. —New Bedford Standard.

☞ Mr. Reed has been a partisan, but his partisanship always yielded to the superior claims of patriotism. He leaves the scene of his great triumphs as debater, counsellor and leader followed by the respect, affection and admiration of political friend and foes. It is unfortunate that he has taken this step on the eve of the settlement of some of the most important public questions of this generation. His services and guidance in his party councils in congress at this juncture would be priceless. — Philadelphia Ledger.

☞ If Christian Science be a delusion, as its enemies affirm with so much attention to detail, why attack it so persistently? The inherent weakness of any delusion is bound in the end to prove its undoing. The truth seems to be that these Christian Scientists are doing so much good that they have aroused the jealousy of other schools of the healing art and have for this reason alone been tried, convicted and sentenced in a most summary fashion. If all medical practitioners were to stand or fall upon the number of cases they lose, their number would wonderfully decrease. Better not persecute these people. If they are in the right persecution will strengthen them; if in the wrong the evil will work its own cure.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ There are commendable points in a resolution adopted by the jobbing confectioners of Chicago urging the government to use aluminum instead of copper in making one-cent pieces. The copper coin is the dirtiest piece of metallic money we use. It quickly becomes tarnished, and poisonous compounds form upon its surface. Disease germs readily find lodgement on it, and pass where they will do the most harm. Aluminum, on the other hand, is a bright, pratically untarnishable metal, easily takes alloy, may be made very hard, and is one of the lightest metals known. The cost of cents made from aluminum would not be much, if any greater than the copper coins at present in use, and the weight of this lowest of fractional currency would be greatly reduced. The suggestion is worth considering.—Dover Republican.

☞ The latest suggestion as to the medicine which should be prescribed for trusts comes from a Western state which would have Congress pass a regulation making it a penal offence for trusts to transact business outside of the state in which they are organized, a suggestion which brings to the surface the thought that Solomon died several years ago. Nevertheless, if the trust breeds dry rot, as a contemporary contends, if it is destructive rather than constructive, and benefits the few, and the very few at that, rather than the many, it must be crushed or it will work its own ruin, inasmuch as the chain is no stronger than its weakest link. If the communities which contribute to general prosperity go back, general prosperity will suffer. It may be that at the bottom of this entire controversy there is a natural law which will right things sooner or later, even if it is not stimulated artificially. —Fall River Herald.

☞ It is our spare time that makes us or breaks us. There is probably no one thing in the life of a young man or woman that exerts such an influence over the formation of his character, and over his chances of success in life, as his spare time and his manner of spending it. It is those few minutes in the store or office, on the street, in the cars, and especially the evenings, that tell which way the wind blows, and mark him as a success or a failure. With the wonderful opportunities offered to young people today for the betterment of their position and condition in life, it is a matter of serious thought that they will utterly turn their backs on this phase of life and choose, of their own free will, those things which they know cannot but exert a pernicious influence on their chances of success. It cannot be that the young people of today are degenerating as rapidly as we are led to believe; it must be that they are thoughtless, and that in their haste to have a "good time" they disregard the better and surer ways of securing happiness.—Brookline Chronicle.

All of Granite.

Prior to the meeting of the Governor's Council on Wednesday, the special committee of the council consisting of the Lieutenant Governor, Councillors Davis and Quirk, discussed the accepted plans for the Dorchester heights monument. The committee practically decided that the plans should be so amended to be entirely of granite and not of brick and granite as proposed. The people of South Boston opposed the idea of brick construction and the protest prevailed. The architects will be instucted to this effect. Quincy granite from historical connections and practical worth, as illustrated in Bunker Hill monument, should be considered.

PLUM FOR QUINCY.

Worthy Honor to a Promising Young M. D.

Governor Wolcott on Wednesday nominated Frederick E. Jones, M. D., of Quincy to be medical examiner for the Quincy and Randolph district, vice John H. Gilbert, M. D., of Quincy deceased.

Dr. Jones holds a commission now as associate examiner, having been appointed at the request of the late Dr. Gilbert in the spring of 1898 for seven years, and he had the endorsement of every doctor in the district as well as influential citizens for the new position, and is a popular young man.

Dr. Jones was born in Quincy in 1872 and is the son of ex-Councilman and Mrs. Frederick L. Jones of Granite street. He attended the public schools of the city and was graduated from the High school in the class of 1888. After a course at Bryant & Stratton's school in Boston he travelled in the South. At Memphis, Tenn., he was much in company with two surgeons and developed a liking for the medical profession. Fortune favored him and he took a four-years' course at the Harvard Medical college, being graduated in 1897. He immediately began to practice in Quincy, and has been very successful.

Dr. Jones is a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, the Massachusetts Medical Legal Society, and is also on the medical staff at the Quincy City Hopital. In 1898 he was a member of the Board of Health and served as secretary. He married in 1898 Miss Clara L. Graham, a daughter of John R. Graham, Esq., the manager of the Third Division of the Massachusetts Electric Company, and resides on Hancock street.

A Successful Church.

One of the most successful churches in the city, if not in the State, is the First United Presbyterian church, of which the Rev. William W. Dornan, B. D., is pastor. In the short space of two years they have acquired a church property valued at (12,000) twelve thousand dollars, and today only two hundred dollars are to be raised to finish the payment of the builder's contract.

The minister's salary is paid on the last Wednesday of every month, and since the organization of the church there has been no difficulty whatever to raise this money. Besides this, the pastor received a vacation of three months during the year, and this heavy extra expense was met as incurred.

One of the peculiarities of the church, in which they pride themselves, is the fact that no money is raised by "bean suppers," "fairs," or "concerts," but simply an appeal to the people from the trustees. Their love for the work prompts them to give without other inducements.

Their meetings are well attended especially on Sunday evenings when several hundreds gather within the building to listen to the simple story of the cross.

The lecture room is filled every Thursday evening when the pastor delivers a short address on some vital Christian theme.

A bright future is before pastor and people, and success spiritually and financially is assured.

Undertakers Dine.

The eighth annual convention of the Massachusetts Undertakers' Association was held at Squantum Wednesday, a shore dinner being served at the Inn at 3 P. M. Mr. George N. Hopkins, the president, presided, and these officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Vice Presidents, Lawrence Reed of Woburn, Henry Ford of Weymouth, F. A. Caswell of Worcester.

Treasurer, T. Weston Bryant of Charlestown.

Executive committee, Ralph Houghton of Randolph, Horace D. Litchfield of Cambridge, Oliver Walton of Wakefield, Albert W. Fay of Wollaston, J. Frank Child of Marlboro.

Delegates to the national convention, Franklin C. Graham, G. H. Waterman and Ralph Houghton.

Runaway Boy.

Word was received by the police last night from Station 11, Boston, asking them to look up a boy who gave his name as Frank Cox, and said he lived at 24 Centre street, Quincy. According to the Boston police they had picked up the boy whom they had reason to believe had run away. The Quincy police looked up the house at 24 Centre street and found it had been unoccupied for sometime. This word was telephoned to Station 11. The boy then said he lived on Trafford street and that the street lead out of City Square. This also was a violation of the truth and at last accounts the Boston police were trying to get the boy to tell the truth. The only family by the name of Cox given in the Quincy directory is on Squantum street, Atlantic.

NOW SUPT. KEMP.

A Quincy Boy Who is Meeting With Success.

The Staten Islander of St. George, N. Y., presented its readers on Saturday with a picture and sketch of Harry S. Kemp, the new superintendent of the Staten Island electric railroad, and it was a pleasure to gaze upon the face of the successful Quincy boy. He is the son of Mr. John J. Kemp of Newcomb street.

In the sketch the paper says, Harry S. Kemp is a man of energy. He is there, and is always on deck. Mr. Kemp was formerly with the General Electric company, and has travelled all over the country. He came here when the Staten Island electric railroad was first built, and was its master mechanic. He afterward went with the Gold Car Heating company as its Eastern manager. His return to Staten Island has been greeted with delight by his many friends.

Massachusetts Electric.

The recent advance in the preferred stock of the Massachusetts Electric Companies from 75 to 82 1-2 has been, says the Journal, entirely the result of investment buying. It is estimated by the management that the gross earnings of the constituent companies for the year ended Sept. 30 will show an increase of $400,000, four months of which time the roads have been under the management of the Massachusetts Electric Companies. Of the $400,000 gross increase in earnings at least 50 per cent. is net, but as some of the roads taken over were in need of improvements, practically all of these net earnings have been expended on the roads.

DIED.

STEPHENSON—In Hingham, Aug. 29, Mrs Martha, wife of Mr. Thomas Stephenson.

THE ILLUMINATION,

Early Arrival Indicate a Very Large Attendance.

The crowd that always gathers at Houghs Neck on illumination day has commenced to arrive. The unusually large number that came down during the early morning indicate that there will be a larger attendance this year than ever before.

The several committees were about early this morning and are hard at work prefecting arrangements for the sports, etc., that are taking place this afternoon.

The early morning hours did not give promise of a pleasant day but the mist burned off before 9 o'clock, and the day up to the present time is an idea one.

The first event on the programme was the sailing parties. This was scheduled for 8 o'clock and shortly after that hour the steamer Madeline commenced to take out ladies and children for short sails in the harbor. This was continued as long as there was water enough for the steamer to get to the float.

This noon hundreds of children were given a feast of ice cream and cake at the Fensmere pavilion.

The field sports commenced at 1 o'clock, and at 3 there will be aquatic sports. The result of these will be given in Friday's Ledger.

Rendezvous of Yachts.

The yachting season is drawing to a close, and there will be the usual rendezvous at Hull. The Hull-Massachusetts Yacht club announce a rendezvous, illumination and marine parade to take place the 9th and 10th inst., in Hull Bay, off its club house. All yacht clubs are invited to arrange "club runs." There will be festivities of a most enjoyable character Saturday evening, and the parade will occur Sunday afternoon. An unusually large attendance is already assured, and the fleet will be so large as to afford a memorable view for spectators.

Sold for $11,000.

The Dr. Faxon brick block on the corner of Chestnut street and Foster street was sold at mortgagee's sale this afternoon for $11,000, to Mrs. Lucy F. Washburn.

The block when built in 1875 was valued at $20,000 and the owner desired it assessed for that amount. It was assessed however for about $17,000.

Tragedy Witnessed by Five Thousand.

Dubois, Pa., Aug. 31.—N. E. Crissy, an aeronaut, fell 600 feet to instant death on the Punxsutawney fair grounds. Crissey had been going up daily in a large tube, which inverted itself at the proped moment, and the balloonist and his parachute shot out and descended. When he ascended yesterday, however, the belt by which he was held broke just as he was inverting his tube, and he shot like a stone to the ground. Five thousand persons saw the accident.

Kingmond Takes It.

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 31.—Kingmond, owned by Frank Jones of Portsmouth, N. H., and the stable companion of Idolita, who Tuesday won the Horse Review futurity, yesterday took down the $5000 purse offered for 2:24 trotters at the Nutwood Driving park. Cornelia Belle took second money, Dainty Daffo third and Escobas fourth. The first was the fastest of the three heats, 2:11½, and Kingmond took all three of the heats handily.

Little Fellow Roasted to Death.

North Conway, N. H., Aug. 31.—The stable of Clarence Mead at Glen was burned yesterday. His son, Louis, 5 years old, was burned in it, only a few of the charred bones being recovered after the fire. He and his little sister were playing in the carriage house only a few minutes before the fire, when she went to the house and he went into the stable to give the horses some hay, she says.

Ex-Penitentiary Superintendent Goes Wrong.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 31.—Colonel W. A. Neale, former superintendent of the state penitentiary, who was found by the legislative investigating committee something over $10,000 short in his accounts, has been arrested in Pickens and brought to Columbia. He was arrested on three warrants, charging failure to turn over public funds to his successor, breach of trust and embezzlement.

Double Tragedy at Brooklyn.

New York, Aug. 31.—John Jacob Brown, a negro, slashed his wife's throat with a razor last night in Brooklyn and then took a revolver and shot himself, dying instantly. The couple had frequent quarrels and the woman had left Brown. The woman, it is believed, will die.

TODAY'S COURT.

James Carroll was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case placed on file.

Ann Dyner was arraigned for breaking glass at Quincy. She was discharged.

George C. Hobart was arrainged for criminal assault on Flora Sylvester, a 16 year-old girl at Holbrook. Case continued one month.

—A certain Hanover, Mich., man felt so jubilant over recently experiencing religion that he publishes a card in the county papers telling what a nasty drunken brute he used to be and what a nice fellow he is at present.

—It is charged in Youngstown, O., that some justices of the peace recently made a deal with hackmen to pay them part of the fee for every wedding couple delivered to them.

CUCUMBER PICKLES.

Two Recipes From an Excellent Household Authority.

To fulfill its mission as a tempting relish a pickle should be not too large, but firm, crisp and well flavored. For the realization of this condition the cucumbers must be well selected and a good formula for their preparation carefully followed out. In Table Talk, Cornelia C. Bedford gives two pickling recipes. The first is for "sweet pickled green cucumbers," as follows:

For one-half of a bushel of small cucumbers allow one-half of a pound of white mustard seed, one-half of a pound of black mustard seed, one-half of an ounce of whole allspice, one-half of an ounce of peppercorns, one-half of an ounce of mace, one ounce of freshly grated horse radish, one-half of an ounce of celery seed, one-half of an ounce of stick cinnamon, one dozen red peppers and one-half of a pint of white button onions. Pour boiling water over the cucumbers and let them stand until cold, then drain. Sprinkle them with salt, one-half of a pint to each 100 cucumbers, and again cover with boiling water. Let stand in this brine for 24 hours, drain and cover with fresh, cold brine of the same strength. Drain daily for six days and cover with fresh brine. On the seventh day drain and wash in fresh water, cover with weak vinegar, heat slowly and keep at a very slow simmer for five or six hours until the cucumbers look plump. Drain them, wipe dry and pack in jars, adding to them the mixed spices. Cover with boiling hot cider vinegar, to which is added for each quart one-half of a pound of brown sugar.

Recipe No. 2 reads thus: Select the smallest cucumbers possible. To each 100 allow one ounce of whole cloves, one ounce of white mustard seed, one large tablespoonful of salt one cupful of sugar and two small red peppers. Put the spices in thin muslin bags, lay them in a kettle with the washed cucumbers and add sufficient vinegar to cover. Heat slowly to the scalding point, take from the fire and bottle. Examine them every week or ten days after they are first put up to make sure that they remain firm and solid. If some soften, remove them and drain the vinegar from the remainder. Add one-half of a cupful of sugar to each 200 pickles, scald the vinegar and pour it boiling hot over the pickles.

Summer Curtains and Awnings.

Thin white curtains in a window always suggest daintiness and refinement, but where the sun shines strong they make too glaring an effect inside. For this reason, says Harper's Bazar, the softer, sheerer muslins, those with less reflective surface, are to be preferred. Yellows and pinks in soft shades and sheer materials are in use. When the eye of the neighbor has to be considered, a pretty fashion is to have a thin curtain next the window, this curtain to be drawn back or looped or so arranged as to look well from the street, a sheer transparent color being hung straight, inside, next the room. No one from outside can see through, and those inside can see out without being deprived of any light. Heavy curtains are used inside of these when required and are generally of silk or chintz in a bedroom, of silk, tapestry or rich stuff in a drawing room or library. In summer, when awnings are used, these thick curtains are taken down. Green or white awnings, by the way, should be used instead of the blue or the red and white.

A Smart and Practical Little Costume.

The skirt of the boating costume here shown is of royal blue serge, trimmed with graduated bands of white braid and a circle of embroidered anchors applique. The jacket is in white flannel, summer cloth or pique, set off with blue braid, and coat revers of dark linen or satin, outlined with white braid. With it is worn a frilled chemisette, with turned down collar in white cambric.

The panama hat is trimmed with blue ribbon, black amazon feather and a ring gilt buckle. By a little change in the braiding pattern this costume, originally intended for boating and yachting, becomes suitable to all sorts of serviceable country and seaside wear, being at once sensible, becoming and smart.

CHAMBERLAIN'S REPLY

To Transvaal Alternative Proposals Now Being Considered by Officials.

Rhodes Talks of Corrupt Secret Service Fund.

Feeling at Pretoria That War Is Inevitable. Germans Urge Boers to Back Down.

London, Aug. 31.—The British diplomatic agent at Pretoria, Conyningham Greene, has handed to Secretary of State Reitz the reply of Joseph Chamberlain to the Transvaal's alternative proposals to the joint commission, suggested by Great Britain, to inquire into the effect which the proposed franchise reform measures will have on the outlanders.

Mr. Greene afterwards had a long audience of the state officials. The nature of the dispatch is not disclosed, but was subject to the consideration of the executive yesterday afternoon. It is understood that another conference may occur at Cape Town. The result is anxiously awaited.

A Cape Town dispatch says that there was a violent scene in the Cape house of assembly yesterday, when Cecil Rhodes repeated his conviction that the Transvaal secret service fund was largely used during the last Cape Colony elections for the expenses of the Afrikander condidates. He said he hoped that, in the forthcoming Transvaal settlement, the secret service payment list would be destroyed, as otherwise, many Cape families would feel uncomfortable. Several Ministerialists were afterwards reproved from the chair for fiercely retorting against the statement.

The government has refused to provide facilities for women and children to leave Johannesburg.

At a meeting of the Scandinavians of Johannesburg, just held, only two of them voted in favor of forming a volunteer corps in case of war. A deputation of outlanders has called on the British agent at Pretoria regarding the trade depression. A merchant, whose stock is valued at £40,000, said his daily sales now were about £8.

The Pretoria correspondent of The Morning Post says:

The Boer officials, after reading the cabled reports of Mr. Chamberlain's Birmingham speech, consider that war is inevitable. The speech has undoubtedly inflamed the war spirit here. The Boers are now all armed, except those in Johannesburg. Their commissariat is fairly good. All the forts are amply victualled. The Johannesburg fort has been strengthened with several quick-firers.

The ammunition which Mr. Schreiner allowed to pass through Cape Colony came direct to Pretoria. It was never intended for the Orange Free State.

President Kruger does not hesitate to express the view that war is almost inevitable. He has stocked the presidency with ample supplies of provisions to secure his own person from privation, and he is often heard repeating the 83rd Psalm.

The Matabeles are showing signs of unrest. The Boers are energetically engaged in poisoning the minds of the natives against the British, and they have approached the Zulu chief, Dinizulu, who appears undecided which cause to espouse. But the Zulus are preparing for the expected fighting, and it must be remembered that Dinizulu was deported to St. Helena with several other chiefs and kept a prisoner there by the British for several years.

The British diplomatic agent at Pretoria, Conyningham Greene, has handed to Secretary of State Reitz the reply of Joseph Chamberlain to the Transvaal's alternative proposals to the joint commission suggested by Great Britain to inquire into the effect which the proposed franchise reform measures will have on the outlanders.

A dispatch from Berlin state that The Neuste Nachrichten, which reiterates its declaration regarding neutrality in the event of hostilities in the Transvaal, says: The Boers should have fought the question on the basis of the Bloemfontein sphere of discussion. The anti-Boer feeling in Great Britain would pass away if Great Britain's demands were granted. France without Russia cannot stir a finger, and Russia will not. Austria-Hungary declared neutrality in 1896, and Italy will do nothing. Firmly convinced that the German government will maintain the strictest neutrality, we consider it all the more our duty to warn the Transvaal against a destructive policy.

Disaster Overtakes Mountain Climbers.

Vienna, Aug. 31.—While mountain climbing yesterday Max Neumeister of Innsbruck and Hermann Schulz of Spandau were killed, and Julius Stitzel of Stuttgart received terrible injuries that will probably prove fatal.

Geneva, Aug. 31.—Dr. Cauro of Paris was killed yesterday by a fall from a mountain precipice near Chamouny.

Zermatt, Switzerland, Aug. 31.—While two Englishmen, Hill and Jones, were ascending the Dent Blanche their rope broke, and Jones and three guides were precipitated down the mountain. The four bodies have been recovered. The accident occurred at an altitude of 14,100 feet. Mr. Hill wandered two nights on the mountain, unable to descend. His escape was miraculous, as the five men were roped together.

Captured by Joe Patchen.

Hartford, Aug. 31.—The big event of the circuit meeting at Charter Oak park was the first two-minute pace ever scheduled. There were five starters, John R. Gentry drawing out, after a misunderstanding as to whether the event was a two in three of a three in five.

JOE PATCHEN'S RACING EXPRESSION.

It was a three in five, and Gentry drew his horse, the management protesting and leaving the matter in the hands of the judges, who will decide after taking evidence. The starters were Joe Patchen, Anaconda, Chehalls, Frank Bogash and Searchlight. Anaconda, the favorite, 100 to 65 for Patchen, 50 for Searchlight, led until the stretch in the first heat, when Joe Patchen came in, and under the whip and a hard push took the mile in 2:04¾. The second heat was Patchen's all the way, and the final, which took the race, in 2:03¾, equalled the track record, made in 1897 by Star Pointer in an exhibition race with Gentry.

Preacher Killed by Officer.

Maryville, Mo., Aug. 31.—Rev. William Johnson, former pastor of the African Baptist church of Maryville, and an evangelist of the colored Baptist church of Kansas and Missouri, was killed last night by Officer Wallace while resisting an attempt to take him to jail. Johnson was convicted yesterday of having assaulted a white woman and sentenced to nine months in jail. Johnson created a sensation recently at a meeting of negro preachers in Leavenworth, Kas., by declaring that the negroes must organize, arm and kill those who lynched their brethren. Officer Wallace has not been arrested. The negroes are highly excited and threaten revenge.

Troops Still on Duty.

Darien, Ga., Aug. 31.—In the superior court yesterday, John Delagal was indicted and arraigned for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Townsend. There was no demonstration. Counsel for Delagal will endeavor to secure a change of venue, on the ground that, owing to the condition of public opinion, an unbiased jury cannot be obtained in this county. The grand jury is now investigating the case of the 59 rioters in jail here and at Savannah. Four troops of cavalry are now on duty.

Mining Company Robbed.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 31.—Through the arrest of M. Mayer, an assayer of Butte, John F. Boyd and James McDonald, disclosures of wholesale thefts of silver bullion from the Bi-Metallic Mining company have been made. At least $50,000 worth of bullion has been made away with. Detectives found $20,000 in bullion with Assayer Mayer, which they identified as coming from the Granite Bi-Metallic mill. The officers are looking for other parties said to be implicated.

Look Out For It.

Washington, Aug. 31.—The secret service has discovered a new counterfeit $2 treasury note of the series of 1891, check letter "D," Bruce register, Roberts treasurer; portrait, McPherson. The seal is dark red, instead of pink, and the parallel ruling is poor, as is most of the lathe work. It is a fairly deceptive photo-etched production, and the silk fiber distributed through the genuine paper has been closely imitated.

ESTERHAZY WROTE IT.

Opinion of Distinguished Experts In Regard to the Bordereau.

Generals Upset by Evidence In Dreyfus' Favor.

Air Filled With Rumors of Conspiracies and Predictions of Coups de Theatre.

Rennes, Aug. 31.—In the matter of evidence, Wednesday was quite a Dreyfus day. After hearing MM. Molinier and Giry, and M. Picot, a member of the institute, all of whom testified in favor of Dreyfus, General Deloye testified against the prisoner on the artillery references in the bordereau.

The evidence of MM. Meyer, Molinier and Giry, all of whom are handwriting experts of the first rank, was a strong point for Dreyfus. They were most emphatic in declaring that the bordereau was written by Esterhazy, and created a better impression that M. Bertillon by not introducing the fantastic diagrams which the latter deemed necessary.

Today's proceedings, behind closed doors, will deal with the question whether Captain Dreyfus was in a position to divulge the information regarding the artillery which was promised in the bordereau. The session will be very important, and is bound to have a tremendous influence upon the judges, one way or another, because they are all artillery officers, and will be able to appreciate such evidence better than the cryptographic intricacies that have been laid before them by the handwriting experts.

The Dreyfusards express confidence that their artillery witnesses, Major Hartman and Major Ducres, will effectively satisfy the judges that Dreyfus was ignorant of the matters mentioned in the bordereau, or, as an artillery officer, would not have been guilty of stating the errors which it contained.

The air of Rennes is filled with rumors of conspiracies and predictions of coups de theatre, but nothing precise can be ascertained. General Mercier's attitude during the last few days has mystified his followers in the case. He is extremely clever and the general feeling is that he is preparing something, the existence of which will be revealed in a few days.

It is now accepted as beyond question that there is a serious division of opinion on the part of the generals. While the case was running smoothly against Captain Dreyfus, they all pulled together, but since the tide of evidence began to turn in his favor, as was notably the case during the testimony of Captain Freystaetter and Colonel Cordier, which proved much more damaging to the general staff than the latter anticipated, certain dividing lines have become manifest between the various cliques. General Roget, Major Lauth, Captain Cuignet and M. Gribelin, the principal keeper of the archives of the war office, form one coterie, General Mercier and General Gonse form another, and General Billot and General De Boisdeffre a third. According to one report the first two coteries intend to throw over General De Boisdeffre, whom they feel to be faltering, and declare that he is responsible for all the errors and illegalities of the court-martial of 1894, thus making him the scapegoat. According to another report, General Roget, who was not implicated in 1894, and who even fought against Dreyfus because he inherited from his predecessors the responsibility for so doing, and placed over-confidence in the accounts of the matter furnished him by the general staff, will cut himself loose from Generals Mercier, Gonse and De Boisdeffre.

This is a plausible hypothesis, since Roget has assumed throughout the role of defender of the army, thus making himself popular with the army and with a large section of the nation, and he probably would not lose by separating himself from the wrong-doers of 1894, and declaring that his opinion has been changed by the evidence given during the present trial.

Yet another story is that the generals are going to give way on the authorship of the bordereau, in view of the strong expert evidence, and will admit that Esterhazy wrote it, alleging however, that Dreyfus furnished the information, not direct to Esterhazy, but to a third person, who acted as intermediary, without Dreyfus knowing Esterhazy.

In this connection it is asserted that Madam Rastian, who was housekeeper for Colonel Schwartzkoppen, the German military attache in 1894, and who is understood to have acted as a French spy, has been seen in Rennes, and will be summoned as a witness concerning Schwartzkoppen's espionage system.

All these rumors may be without foundation, but, in any event, they are symptomatic of the feeling in Rennes that something is going on under the surface, and that the complexion of the trial may be altered by some coup at any moment.

Dreyfus Should Be Acquitted.

Paris, Aug. 31.—Garbiel Monod, in The Figaro today, relates a conversation he had with M. De Freycinet after the latter's deposition at Rennes. M. De Freycinet said: "It was not for me to dictate a verdict to the judges, but all should desire an acquittal, as a conviction would be the perpetuation of our discords. As for the legend of the syndicate it is absurd.

Japanese Are Crowding Russians.

London, Aug. 31.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Times, who recently visited Korea, telegraphs that he has found Russian ascendancy completely supplanted by Japanese, and he does not believe that the new influence will be easily displaced. The correspondent says: The Japanese in Korea encourage reforms. They meet every Russian move by a counter move, and multiply Japanese interests in every direction with enormous rapidity. The American gold mining concession, which is being worked by numerous Americans, is remarkably successful.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about 1-4 as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.
